The war against Britain will continue, meanwhile, with "increased ferocity," these reports said.

Training Schools for Officers To Be Established in Canada

Ottawa, Oct. 20—(CP)—Training missioned in the non-permanent militia and attached to the Active Service Force for training.

When the officer commanding the Active Service Force considers such an officer ready he will be examined by a board appointed by the officer commanding and if he passes the examination he may be granted a commission in the Active Service Force units.

Officers commanding units may also appoint to the ranks any man of officer calibre and detail him for a training course. This means that a man enlists in the ranks will not prevent him from obtaining a commission.

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Glancing back over the season's football schedule Bob Schrieber's H.C.I. senior Interschoolastic squad, feels that they have made some very good points in two games, their close touchdown against Albert by the direct result of an opposition fumble on their own seven. However, the remaining two games remarkably well defens[ive] and showed improvement in this department on Wednesday, so it appears as though the Collegians have a fairly good offence which brings us up to today's subject offence, and, now that we have it—it would appear as though the Collegians need a little practice in place kicking, as they completed but three tosses in all yesterday's game. Not to mention the completed but three tosses in all yesterday's game. Not to mention the many attempts. No doubt Albert must be given some credit for their splendid set of attacks, but time out of 14 is a very small percentage, instead of a large one. Perhaps palates, especially against a team like Albert which has a fairly good defence close to the line of scrimmage, short flat passes would be the best bet as the opposition secondary should prove more prolific.

Some teams are prone to use the forward pass as a last resort when they find themselves completely stymied by the opposition, but not so a normal and integral part of their offence. They work out one or two ways of gaining yards in football, by runs, passes or kicks, and the latter can be more dangerous than either of the other two, especially when the ball is in a passing team? The answer is three-fold—the first is the protection afforded the passer and the skyway that the ball travels over the three feet to function. On several occasions yesterday, Albert's backfield charges were through on Ross Clare before he could get away the ball. Fleight, Receivers of forward passes must be fearless and courageous, that subject being after the catching of that pass regardless of the fact that the reception of

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 20 (CP)—Industrial section featured Toronto exchange today. Gains, mostly fractional, ex-cept about 8 points to around 25 and other building stocks were definitely strong, including Canada Cement, up 1 at 36. Standard Paving stocks, Mining and oils were off slightly.

New proposals to start the seaways scheme were credited with the pick-up in the building group. Steels, utilities, foods and implements were lower.

Smelters and Hudson Bay were base metal gainers and in the golds Dome, Hollinger, Powell, Preston, MacLeod-Cockshutt and others were up around a point. Twenty-cent final quarter dividend by Buffalo Ankerite sent the price back 7c to 7.50.

Western oils were at bit weak, including Home, Anglo-Canadian, Calmont and Okalta.

WALL STREET

New York, Oct. 20 (AP)—Most buyers took to bomb-proof shelter in today's stock market and leading issues drifted over a narrowly irregular range.

Prices were jumbled and dealings slackened after an apathetic opening.

Aside from the conflict abroad, business news, including dividends and earnings statements, was cheerless, although talk was heard that at least there of a possible flattening out of the industrial curve in the near future.

Advances of small fractions were registered by the Canadian group for Dome, McIntyre Porcupine, Hiram Walker, Distillers and Lake of the Woods, while Canadians displayed Dominion 4s in the bond market.

Stocks lacking enough trading vigor were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Du Pont, Standard Oil of N.J. and Southern Pacific.

Pending issues were Electric Power and Light Preferred, American and Foreign Power Preferred, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Union Carbide, General Foods, U.S. Rubber, Pathe and Westinghouse.

Egg Prices Ease

Toronto, Oct. 20—An easier price trend was evident in eggs at Toronto yesterday. Butter prices were steady.

Buyers were switching from top grades to undergrades on the egg market and prices for top quality eggs fell in all divisions. Supplies of fresh receipts continued light, but demand was poor.

Butter trading maintained a slow pace. Supplies of fresh creamery make were still small, while holders were not exerting themselves to make sales. Buyers displayed little interest in offerings. The Western market was available at 28 3-4c to 29c, with no business transacted.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, Oct. 20—Produce market prices here yesterday were reported by the Dominion Agricultural Supply Board:

THIRD OFFENCE BRINGS FINE OF $500

Convicted under the Excise Act of being found in possession of illicit liquor, Wilfrid Dexter, Tweed, appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in Tweed police court yesterday and pleaded guilty to charges his own admission to the charge. The case was prosecuted by the R.C.M.P., as a third offence, which automatically carried a fine of $500.00 and six months in prison, with an additional six months in default of the payment of the fine. Viherf intimated he would not meet the assessed fine, which would result in a year of imprisonment with the additional six months added consecutively with the original term.

The George Browns, family pets, have reached a milestone in the world of Julie. She has been with them practically all her life, and when they leave burned to a tidy pile of ashes, Julie will be 25 years old—the equivalent of 125 years in human terms.

Julie is a great home-lover and has never strayed very far from the Brown household. She received her education at home, and has never shown much inclination to stray from the environment she has known all her life.

Some years ago when the Browns had the misfortune to have their house burned to the ground one cold frosty night, Julie had no place of shelter, had both ears frozen—later they dropped off leaving the shortest of stubbs.

Adding a touch of distinction to her appearance is the recent arrival of grey hair, that juicy shade of silver-tipped crowning glory a sort of dignity.

Twenty-five years old—Julie! who is believed to be the oldest of her kind in America, is the favorite cat of the Brown family.

Territorial Waters' Limits Flexible Says Roosevelt

Hyde Park, N.Y., Oct. 20 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today that in case that the limits of United States' territorial waters are flexible, for the extension of neutrality zone of miles, depending on the circumstances under which the limits are created.

In the case of belligerent submarine which have been barred from American ports on territorial limits, the President said at a press conference that the limit of such waters is 300 miles.

BALANCE

In return, Turkey must help the Western Allies if war, act or objection by a European power "leads to war in the Mediterranean area or if the United Kingdom and France are engaged in hostilities in virtue of their guarantees to Greece and Rumania of April 13, 1939.

Turkey, however, is not compelled to take any action that would involve her in war with the Soviet Union and the Allied powers are not entitled to fight Russia in the event of Soviet aggression against Turkey.

Not European Fewer

All three parties in the treaty were said in diplomatic circles today to have agreed to the principle that the treaty should in no way be directed against Russia.

Diplomatic observers assumed, however, that there was no likelihood of a Soviet act of aggression against Turkey, but pointed out that a Turkish-Russian non-aggression pact has existed since 1925, and that Turkey has long been in Moscow but foreign circles there saw the treaties as a definite set-back to first defeat in her diplomatic "victories" over neighboring states.

It was regarded also as a check on any possible Russian plan to give military aid to Bulgaria and on Russian aims in the Balkans.

Victory for Britain

Members of the Parliament, who loudly cheered Prime Minister Chamberlain's announcement that the pact had been signed, acclaimed it as a victory for British diplomacy after what, in Mr. Chamberlain's words, was the "bombshell" thrown into the midst of the Nazi-Russo-German non-aggression pact last August.

Among the strategical and practical advantages expected by diplomatic circles here:

1. Increased protection for British, French and Turkish Near East interests.

2. The maintenance of Turkey's role as guardian of the Dardanelles strategic gateway to the Black Sea.

3. A pacifying effect on the Balkan States.

4. Strengthening of Finland and other northern countries in their negotiations with Russia because of Turkey's success in "standing up" to the Soviets.

To Rest on Friendship

Confidential but authoritative talks between Turkey and Russia. Mr. Zhdanov declared in Moscow that "Turkey's relations with the Soviet government continued to rest on the basis of non-aggression and of friendship."

The pact also emphasized that there was nothing in the agreement to prevent Turkey from concluding negotiations for an agreement on parallel lines with Russia.

Turkey thus attributed the suspension of the Turkish-Russian talks to her "closer association" with German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

"Von Ribbentrop's diplomacy has become a reality as it has always been," the statement said, and his latest effort has only resulted in what is described in Turkish diplomatic circles as "a diplomatic victory for the Axis Powers."

The Daily Mail said the treaty with Turkey and the declaration of neutrality by all Scandinavian States on the same day may make 1939 one of the most historically memorable dates of the war.

"For yesterday not only did the democracies strike a blow to demonstrate their solidarity but the guardians of the Black Sea made her the 'colossus'."

"Two land masses, Scandinavia and the Near East, have risen in great arms, outflanking the central continent. Control of both arms is maintained by would-be master of Europe, whether he lives in Berlin or Moscow."

The huge semi-circular line drawn from Scandinavia through Britain and France to Turkey "is capable of serving as a gigantic vice to screw up the paper said.

"The balance of power in the Mediterranean shifts in favor of the Allies. In Turkey, who now returns to the fold, they have gained have a powerful and trusted friend."

The Daily Mail added: "By their firm front against aggression in Europe, Britain and France have made a firm point for those smaller countries which wish to live their own lives in a world of peace and order. Now Turkey has made it clear that the southeastern Europe she has taken up a similar position and the Balkans will be made by this new cohesion and new strength as a result."

GERMAN POLITICAL

These quarters said they looked to Hitler to make a new bid for power, and expressed the opinion that he would be compelled to do so to bring about Italo-Russian cooperation to counteract that between Russia and Germany.

In the absence of official comment, these sources said Italy is "not contrary to Turkey's best interests."

Italy, however, is opposed to any Russian control of the Dardanelles.

Reports that reactions were expected until after the return of the German Ambassador to Turkey, Franz von Papen, due today. He left Turkey Wednesday—the day before the pact was signed—to discuss the new situation with Adolf Hitler and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop.

Hitler's immediate reaction appeared to have been normal ratification of the German friendship treaty with Russia, signed on Monday Sept. 25, and subsequent accords of Oct. 4 concerning Poland and the Russian and German spheres of influence in Poland.

It was recalled that the allies in the last war were unable to force Turkey into the war although they engaged in hostilities in virtue of their guarantees to Greece and Rumania of April 13, 1939.

Turkey, however, is not compelled to take any action that would involve her in war with the Soviet Union and the Allied powers are not entitled to fight Russia in the event of Soviet aggression against Turkey.

ROYAL CANADIAN

Inspection is carried out by a naval officer who boards the ship from the inspection vessel. Extent of the inspection depends on the ship. Ships moving regularly from one port to another may be quickly passed. Ocean liners may be thoroughly inspected when a strange ship arriving for the first time are checked with care.

The possibility the inspection service has to guard against infiltration of enemy agents into a port under the belly of a merchant ship.

The inspection service seeks to interfere as little as possible with legitimate vessels, whether of neutral or allied nations, because delay in loading is a serious matter.

The service, however, is for the safety of the vessel as well as for the protection of ports. At times ships have been given to the care only to those companies in which the ship's owners themselves interested.

Inspection consists of an examination of the ship's papers and questioning officers and crew, perhaps in examination of the cargo and a search of the vessel.

The inspection vessel may call for the ship's papers and then go on a ship which refuses to obey orders or acts in a suspicious manner.

Usually the coast defence battery is the real power behind the order of the inspection vessel, but the most part these craft are unarmed as the armed guard of the Royal Canadian Navy are required for other important duties.

All principal ports on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts have defence inspection for St. Lawrence River ports takes place just below Quebec, opposite the Isle of Orleans.

RAIN AND MUD

Not So Glamerous

There is nothing glamorous about fighting in mud and rain, correspondent ones.

Scanning the soggy terrain ahead of the front line you find it hard to believe any tank could operate on such ground, or any infantry march.

But Germany used two motorized divisions in Poland and, as one officer said, "the German military machine is not going to stop for works once they will try it again."

"It won't succeed against us on the western front," he said. "It is my opinion their whole attack will pile up behind mired motorized columns and stop."

The British front has been concentrated in the Maginot line sector. Corps is ironing out difficulties of transport, supply and communication and food to the front.

The situation, which was not unlike that of three years ago, seems to have improved greatly. If the German strike, it will be made against a heavily entrenched and fortified enemy.

Unless they move fast, and without delay, the Germans will be impossible to attack until Spring except by infantry unsupported by tanks.

DUPLESSIS NAMED

The Justice Minister said that the Germans boast of a triumph when they sink a British ship "and they are right. They sink a ship to havoc a friend in Canada, in the Province of Quebec, in the person of Premier Duplessis."

Not Prevented.

In calling the election, said the Justice Minister, Premier Duplessis was making "an attempt to conceal the maladministration of the Duplessis government". Mr. Lapointe called unfounded a complaint by the premier that the Dominion government prevented Quebec from borrowing in the United States.

"It is not true," he said. The Neutrality Act, and not a Canadian law that keeps Quebec from borrowing in the United States," he claimed.

Works Minister Gordon, in his speech at Joliette, said Premier Duplessis owes their relationships entirely to the Dominion and their laws to England "with its regime of liberty and concession".

Opponents of the Liberty party, he said, attempted "to make you forget this and tried to stir up Quebec against the rest of Canada". He said it was "to help preserve the liberties of French Canada that the Liberals at Ottawa were forced to participate in the war" and added that Canada, he pointed out, was spending millions of dollars Canada is spending to prevent the terrors of German and Russian methods spreading throughout the world.

The Works Minister gave his word "as a minister and a responsible man that there will be no conscription."

Difference Laid Aside.

At Arnprior, Mr. Cardin said that political differences had been laid aside throughout Canada, with the exception of Quebec which he called the "only province where anxiety is felt" and where an attempt is being made to arouse it against the rest of Canada."

Premier Duplessis said that in Quebec Province the rights of minorities always had been respected and claimed that the election is not a "fight of race against race". Quebec gives justice to the minorities "as they would know how to bring dismembers of discord to reason," he charged the premier.

The Union Nationale leader charged that "certain English-language newspapers, including the Star and the Gazette, (Montreal newspapers) are the organs of the trusts, are ceaseless against me."

Mr. Duplessis reiterated that he called the election because the autonomy of the province was threatened. He charged Dominion Minister Rogers with being a "centralizer" and Dominion Justice Department Minister had "preached disappearance of provincial legislatures".

Speaking at Menihlek Le Chien.

Mr. Gouin said that both Premier Duplessis and Mr. Godbout were "avoiding carefully" any mention in their speeches of the "trust question" in Quebec. He claimed that "the financial barons, instead of lending money to the farmers, lend only to those companies in which they and their friends are interested."

In previous speeches, Mr. Gouin asserted that the "only way to save Quebec's finances" is through the defeat of a provincial Union.

The A.L.N. head claimed "a vote for Godbout will be interpreted by the Ottawa government and the imperialistic bigots as a definite approval of Quebec favors full participation in the war, and eventual conscription will follow."

Urgent Call for Completed Socks Has Been Received — Knitters Asked to "Speed Up" Production

Women's and other organizations of Belleville which have rallied to the call of the Red Cross Headquarters for four all-wool-terrce, forwarded the first tangible proofs of their loyal efforts to the Red Cross headquarters Toronto, today, in the form of eighty-four pair of knitted socks.

Ready for shipment and awaiting call at the Belleville depot, the socks are by the willing hands of members of various city groups.

Through the courtesy of the Dominion have reported shortage of yarn is no condition, however, here, an official of the local society said this morning. There is plenty of yarn, also available thus far, she said, "thanks to the splendid co-operation of the merchants in the city who have kept us supplied with necessities at special rates."

"Further than that," she continued, "merchants of the city have signified their willingness to cooperate to the fullest extent in the work by donating size-lists for socks and garments, paper for wrapping and other supplies."

An urgent call for completed socks has been received from Red Cross Headquarters by the local branch, and officials urge everyone at present engaged in knitting these articles to "speed up" production so that they may be forwarded more quickly as possible.

In addition to the call for workers has been little short of magnificent in the city, the official stated. More than 30 groups representing church, fraternal, school and military organizations are now engaged for the common cause.

Knitting is also pronounced in villages and towns in the immediate vicinity, with many groups already organized and working.

WOLF CUB SHOT NEAR SULPHIDE

John Goulah Kills Wolf Near His Home With a Stick

The pelt of a handsome wolf-cub measuring three feet, nine inches from nose to tail, which was brought to the city today by John Goulah, Sulphide farmer, is on display.

Goulah was on his way to a field on his farm when his dog attacked it. His dog suddenly dash away in pursuit of a strange animal. Following a chase after which the dog succeeded in cornering the cub in a blanket, Goulah dispatched the animal with a well-directed blow from a heavy stick.

According to Goulah, wolves, the majority of them apparently cubs, have been plentiful in Hungerford Township during the past few weeks. He brought the pelt to county Treasurer James Haggerty to claim the fifteen dollar bounty paid by the government for bona-fide wolf pelts.

WRING APPAREL FOUND NEAR HOME

City police today were baffled and mystified when 17-year-old Ronald Wring, son of Doyley Wrace, brought a rubber raincoat and other small articles, which he had discovered secreted in his home this morning, to the police station. Wrapped inside the rubber raincoat were several small wrenches and tools, and slightly damaged safe tumbler. What is believed to be a regimental military uniform was stamped on the inside of the coat, which may assist the police in tracing its ownership and why the goods had been abandoned.

DAILY WAR SURVEY

Designed to Cushion Attacks

The Allied defences are so disposed as to make any appreciable advance costly. The advance positions are designed to cushion any attacks on the main fortifications. The retreat of the French forces a few days ago in no sense revisioned settled was an illustration of the tactics which might be followed on a large scale in a major German offensive.

The firepower of the advance units is so great that it permits them to retreat in order and at the same time inflict severe losses on the advance enemy thus decreasing the force of the attack by the time that it reaches the pre-arranged line of defence.

It is expected the Allies may be pleased at the prospect of a German attack on the western front. They will be: First, they are ready to meet it on the ground; second, it would involve the expenditure of large amounts of ammunition and fuel by the German forces which might hasten a shortage of materials and put new burdens on the already hard-pressed German industrial system.

Sessions of Teachers' Institute to be Held Here and in Peterboro

With sessions divided between Belleville and Peterboro, the annual convention of the South Hastings Teachers' Institute will get under way in the auditorium of Belleville Collegiate Institute, also on the morning of Thursday, Nov. 2nd.

Addresses by Inspector J. R. Pickering and the Rev. A. B. Payne have been arranged for the first session.

On Friday, Nov. 3rd, the scene will change to the auditorium of the Peterboro Collegiate Institute, where the final sessions of the convention will be held.

Voluntary Registration Is Explained

Women who have been wondering what the card system that is being used in voluntary registration of Canadian women, will be taking place in Belleville this week, will be interested in comments made on this subject by Mrs. Wm. Wallis.

Senator Pallis said in an article in a Canadian magazine that these questionnaires have been carefully planned to meet the basic similar requirements used in Canada and England in the last war. His aim is to gather such information concerning the women of Canada.

It is not expected that all women can answer all questions in the affirmative. Some Belleville girls may also not expect to be able to answer two or three. In all questions of this nature, Canadian women generally, no specific information could be derived and the questionnaire would not be a success. What one can't do, another can. What can be done in one district cannot be undertaken in another community.

The questionnaire is to learn what Canadian women can do, what they want to do, what help and training they need to help the country during war days.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK — By R. J. SCOTT

Border Hopping

By CHARLES GORDON

The long, mustard-green arm of the customs officer beckoned further. The customs officer looked through that other gate.

The bronzed young man looked up quickly. His preoccupied study of a pair of very blue eyes beside him had waved an inquisitive hand at the irate officer.

"Darling, you mustn't." The girl who owned the very blue eyes moved her slim young body closer to him. "Herb, . . . remember you."

"When I start my run running?" he teased her. "How do you like being a bootlegger's bride, Sally?"

Sally gazed at him adoringly. A young engineer at the Boulder dam, tall and lupen and with a sudden smile that had quickly and completely captivated her.

"How exciting everything looks, Herb." Sally used an early hand at the bizarre Nogales saloon fronts. "Can't we stop and snoop a little, and you can promise me some brandy for your father."

"I hope he appreciates our risking life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness for a little brandy for him." Herb swung his long legs over the roadster's sporty side and the lithest Sally up on the high sidewalk.

"Herb! the Old Jail cafe. I've heard a lot about it." Tucking Sally's hand possessively through his arm, he led her out of the blistering Mexican sun into the cooling inside.

"What a perfect love of a place, Herb." Sally cried. "Do look at those walls and that quaint ceiling. Look like they were cut out of solid rock —like a real dungeon." She shivered orientationly.

"By jove," Herb grinned expansively, "now I know how the count of Monte Cristo felt. I never really appreciated his feelings before." Sally laughed appreciatively, and Herb, inspired with the combination of Crime de Menthe and an attractive and attentive audience, enlarged upon his theme. Finally, some one, say a clue with imagination and initiative could make a real place out of this. Waiters resembling penitentiary stripes. Some of them with balls and chains in the corners. The head waiter carrying a rifle like a jail guard. The orchestra playing behind bars—

"I can agree with you about the orchestra," Frown rouging her lips, Sally looked up gaily at the orchestra that sat peering sleepily at long strings. "But let's make a jail break out of here."

Sally sauntered out into the hot sun, while Herb paused in earnest consultation with the bartender. Presently he joined her at the car.

"Seems like a good sized pint, Herb." Sally speculatively measured the bottle that he displayed to her. "What we do with it?"

"I'd say drink it. We better get it across the border and mail it to dad before we do." Herb slipped the bottle under his shirt in back and beneath his belt.

They fell in behind a string of cars headed across the international line, waiting for the customary search. Herb busied himself with a cigarette, while Sally, leaning curiously over the side of the car watched the progress of the inspection.

Suddenly she gave a stifled little shriek. "Herb, look. That officer you spooned at a little while ago is taking a bottle of liquor from that car. What will happen to those people?"

"Oh, not much," Herb was nonchalant. "Maybe a warning or something like that."

But Sally was not satisfied. She beckoned to a young officer. "What will happen to those people who had the liquor?" she asked, in appearing merely curious.

"Can't say, lady," the officer grinned amiably. "Maybe a fine. Maybe confiscate their car."

Sally thanked him bleakly, as he turned to join the other officers that swarmed over a decrepit old Ford just ahead of them, driven by a very black negro. One officer went directly to the left front wheel, wrench in hand, and removed the hub cap, taking out two small metal packages which he referred to as dope.

The old negro began declaring vehemently that the presence of the dope was a complete surprise to him, but his protestations were vigorously seized and led away.

"Herb," Sally whispered hoarsely. "That officer must be psychic. What chance have we?"

"All right, you're next." The uncanny officer eyed them with interest and turned to Sally a menacing look, a look that boded no good for smugglers of peach brandy.

Painfully Sally forced a smile. "Your clever of you to catch that colored man," and gathering courage at the officer's mute unresponsiveness, "especially since I, who is a lady, . . . don't see how you knew that dope was under his hub cap."

"Well," the officer rested one foot on their running board, "I had a tip about that guy. We pay for tips like that. This one was phoned in by the fellow who sold the stuff to him down in Sonora. He saw the coon hide it under the hub cap . . . Bring anything across?"

"Only what's under my belt," Herb said literally.

"O. K." the officer smiled broadly, unconvincing Herb's pun. "You can bring across all you can carry —under your belt. Go ahead."

West Huntingdon

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

West Huntingdon—Sunday Oct. 15th, was anniversary day for a large number of the church people of Huntingdon Township, St. Andrew's Presbyterian, West Huntingdon and Fuller United Church each held successful services both morning and evening. The special minister at St. Andrew's was Rev. Mr. Bonthron of Picton and at each service gave helpful and inspiring addresses. The music was furnished by the local choir of 12 voices under the direction of Miss Bessie Fleming. Three excellent anthems were rendered during the services. At the evening service the choir was assisted by Miss Arline Hummel of Stirling who gave in her sweet voice a beautiful solo. The thank offering amounted to $200.00. The members are not having an anniversary dinner this year.

At the Fuller anniversary, Mr. Kenneth Stewart the regular minister had charge of both services and as usual gave two outstanding sermons. The 12 voice choir was assisted by Mr. Percy Palmer of Ivanhoe and the Rev. S. Delve of Ivanhoe.

The People's Struggle for Happiness was the subject chosen by Mrs. Frank Herrity who was the guest speaker at the Endeavors social evening which was held on Tuesday evening at Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Elliott's home.

In her usual outstanding style Mrs. Herity in a travelogue fashion outlined the history of the People of Israel from time of Abraham down to the present time, closing her address with reference to some of the European leaders. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Herity for this very fine educational and inspiring address. Other items contributed to this outstanding gathering were a Bible lesson explained by Mr. Philip Carter; reading by Mr. Mac Earley; musical selection by Misses Irene and Marguerite Elliott; brief talk on Thanksgiving by Arthur Wilson.

The New School

There was great excitement among the pupils of the public school on Monday morning, for six weeks the classes had assembled in the Orange Hall while the old school house was being completely remodelled. On Friday evening, the teacher, Miss Margaret Wright informed her pupils that on Monday morning they would be given the opportunity of selecting their own seats. Very early in the morning the new school rang with the laughter and joyful shouts of boys and girls as they inspected their new school home.

Early in the spring a series of meetings were held by the ratepayers, some thought it wise to erect a new school. But the majority ruled, that the old building could be remodelled and thus save considerable money.

Mr. Roy Eggleton of Stirling was awarded the contract and he is being congratulated upon the neat appearance of this new up to date school which is believed to be the most modern in the township. In the basement has been installed a new Gilson furnace which furnishes ample heat for the class room, two cloak rooms, hall and vestibule. The school is completely wired with first class room which has the lighting coming from the windows placed on the left side is light and cheery, with white walls and ceiling, cream woodwork and brown trimmings.

The masonry work was done by Mr. Fred Eagle of Stirling. The work has been under the supervision of the local School Board with Mr. Samuel Donnan as chairman, Harry Thompson and Don Haggerty members of the Board. Mr. Elmer Post is secretary treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Monigomery of Belleville were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Pitman.

Miss Eileen Langdrige of Belleville spent the week end with the Misses Kathleen and Theda Moorcroft.

Miss Matilda Pargey of Belleville is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Don Pargey.

Mr. and Mrs. V. Cooke of Rochester took dinner on Thursday with their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Sarles.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Howes and Olive of Carmel, Mr. Carl Thompson of Belleville were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thompson.

Mr. Bill Tristram of Peterboro was renewing acquaintances in town over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Sarles, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McGee attended Roosevelt Fair last Friday.

Among those from here who attended the Sectional Rally of the W. M. S. held at Zion Church in Thurlow were Mrs. Foster Wilson, Mrs. John Moorcroft, Mrs. Geo. Cooke, Mrs. Sandy McCurdy, Mrs. Geo. Post, Mrs. Clayton Wright, Miss Sarah Wilson, Mrs. Melville Reid, Mrs. J. S. Wilson, Mrs. W. Fox.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Sarles, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Burrell were guests on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Grant of Belleville.

Mr. Allen Wallace, young son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wallace was taken suddenly ill on Thursday morning and he was removed to Belleville General Hospital where he underwent a successful operation for appendicitis.

Miss Sarah Wilson was a week-end guest of Miss Jennie Clements of Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ashley of Peterboro spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ashley and Mr. Frank Ashley.

Mr. Geo. McTaggart of Detroit, Mr. Percy McTaggart of Belleville were recent guests of their aunt, Miss Rita McTaggart.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Haggarty were: Mr. and Mrs. Warren Haggarty of Glen Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Forsythe of Wellington, Mr. and Mrs. K. Ray of Springbrook, Mr. and Mrs. C. Clancy of Wellmans and Miss Marjorie McInroy

Time, Manpower Strengthen Allies On Western Front

250,000 British Troops Called for Service Reported to Report for Possible Duty

MORE TROOPS LANDED

Von Papen Called by British Press "God's Gift to the British Foreign Office in Discussing Pact

London, Oct. 21 (CP)—This is Trafalgar Day and while Great Britain honors the memory of her greatest naval hero, Lord Nelson, 350,000 of her youngest men carry out his famous words: "England expects every man will do his duty."

An estimated 250,000 youths between the ages of 20 and 22, called up for service some weeks ago, must be registered by tonight for possible duty.

While they were signing up, results were brought in the war at the tall Nelson column in busy Trafalgar Square, commemorating Britain's victory over the French fleet off the coast of Spain exactly 134 years ago.

As Britain fought Napoleon then, so she fights Adolf Hitler now with the heavy movement of the war at a standstill following a blockade of Germany while troops stand beside the French in the mud of the Western Front.

Time Strengthens Allies.

British military authorities said both time and manpower were strengthening the allies on the western front. It was declared that the flow of troops which put 154,000 British soldiers on French soil in the first five weeks of the war had been continued and might be increased.

"Lightning" Strikes Twice in Same Place For Thomas Coxall

Paris, Oct. 21—(CP)—Thomas Coxall knows that lightning can strike twice in the same place. That was "established" for the second time in the Irish Free State Hospital's sweepstakes.

When the Cesarewitch was run a year ago at Newmarket he won a consolation award of approximately $500.

Yesterday he received word that he was in the money again, and this time in the principal race, $4,260.

"I've got a good job here and I'm sticking to it," he said, and when asked how he planned to spend the money he added: "I'm not going to spend it. It's going right into the sock with the rest."

2 NAZI AIRMEN GIVEN FUNERAL

Killed on the Firth of Forth in Raids on Monday

Edinburgh, Oct. 21—(CP Cable)—The Edinburgh Evening News today yesterday said the two crashed Nazi airmen killed in Monday's raid on the Firth of Forth were buried yesterday for two Nazi airmen killed in Monday's raid on the Firth of Forth were buried yesterday for two Nazi airmen killed in Monday's raid on the Firth of Forth.

"Everyone in his or her heart says 'Bravo' to Tyrwhitt and his men for the blow he has struck at the enemy," the paper said.

"Everyone in his or her heart says 'Bravo' to Tyrwhitt and his men for the blow he has struck at the enemy," the paper said.

Commenting on the presence of huge crowds lining the procession route, the paper said "was that in accordance with the desire of the Government and anxious about such large assemblages and more anxious because of the fact Edinburgh had two air raid warnings yesterday?"

"No" was to guarantee the crowd immunity yesterday afternoon," the Press stated.

The paper suggested there should be no prior publicity for the funeral.

"Let us honour the brave dead and yet protect our people against any serious risk to which this city already has been subjected."

Royal Air Force men who fought the Nazi airmen laid a wreath on their grave yesterday. R.A.F. officers and men were bearers and a guard of honor of R.A.F. officers of the Royal Air Force United Kingdom was present. Pipers played a lament and riflemen fired a volley over the grave.

Describe Turkey as "Britain's Stooge" and Declares Country Chooses 'Dangerous Route'

By LOUIS LOCHNER

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Berlin, Oct. 21 (AP) — Informed Nazis today expressed a belief that Adolf Hitler will seek to make Turkey another Poland.

They insinuated such an opinion in commenting on a statement by Yenetin, Russian government newspaper in Moscow, that Russia has no reason to regret Soviet Union's signing a mutual assistance pact with Great Britain and France.

Yenetin's statement will be republished by the entire German press today or tomorrow.

Commentators said Russia throughout her history has striven to control the Dardanelles, strategic gateway to the Black Sea. They put it at 50-50 as Turkey remained neutral, Russia

STORM-BATTERED VESSEL DOCKS WITH 73 INJURED

26 ON STRETCHERS

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Twenty-six passengers were carried on stretchers from the United States liner President Harding today when the storm-battered vessel arrived after one of the most tempestuous trips ever made by a modern maritime ansatz.

Ribs were fractured, bones fractured and bodies bruised by tumbling from bunks and decks during the storm, all except the 26 most seriously hurt were able to walk by the time the ship docked.

The hurricane struck the liner when the 13,969-ton liner was caught by a howling hurricane after leaving Cuba last night. Passengers said most of the injuries were caused by one huge wave, propelled by a 110-mile an hour wind. Some were hurt in the night.

Elopement, Marriage and Divorce Throw Film Colony into High Gear

Hollywood, Oct. 21—(AP) — An elopement, a prospective marriage, three divorce actions, an arrest for illegal entry and a petition for bankruptcy of a leading night club threw film colony gossip into high gear today.

The elopement was that of the beautiful Lynn Bondi, 18, high school her, the man who discovered Clara Bow, Schulberg, 35, married Miss Lynn Keebler, 26, flew to Las Vegas, Nev., yesterday and were married. Schulberg was divorced from Sylvia Ashley in Reno last year.

Miss Bondi's parents, irreconcilable heir to an asbestos fortune, was the principal of the prospective marriage.

Elinor Troy, who came here three months ago to appear in picture work, boarded a plane for New York after she was told, Hollywood police by telephone that I drop everything and fly East."

The 23-year-old former Bubble dancer, who once punched fighter Jack Doyle in a night club said she would marry Manville upon her arrival.

"I just want someone to do the town with me," he explained the actress' plans trip, which he said was costing him $8,000.

Miss Troy meanwhile, awakened on the set at 5 a.m. in Fort Worth, Tex., amended her announcement of marriage with:

"Well, I guess it's true, but he called me eight times yesterday and said he was."

Alfred J. Goulding, 53, who has directed more than 500 motion pictures since 1916, is awaiting the work of such players as Harold Lloyd and Bebe Daniels, was arrested by Immigration officials on a charge of illegal entry.

A native of Melbourne, Australia, he returned here in January, 1938, on a three-months' visitor's permit, an Immigration inspector said, from a three-year stay in England.

Charging cruelty, Marjorie Daw, silent film screen actress, and Myron Selznick, actors' agent, for divorce, for division of more than $1,000,000 in community property.

Creditors of the Trocadero night club, Doyle's, in a petition in Federal Court that the night club be declared bankrupt. Petitioners included waiters and other employees.

Moscow Press Says the Allies Draw Turkey into the Orbit of War By Mutual Assistance Treaty

Moscow, Oct. 21 (AP)—Izvestia, Russian government newspaper, declared today that the new British-French-Turkish mutual assistance treaty "inevitably creates the impression that there existed certain plans to drive a wedge between Germany and the Soviet Union".

An editorial in Izvestia said the treaty "creates a new balance of power in the Mediterranean and added:

"The Soviet Union, being the greatest Black Sea power, must keep a watchful eye on everything related to the approaches to the Black Sea."

The editorial acknowledged that Russian interests were not directly affected and that the protocol to the Anglo-French Turkey from any collusion that involve her in war with the U.S.S.R.

But, it said: "The treaty cannot be regarded as an instrument of peace. It testifies to the fact that Britain and France drew Turkey into the orbit of war."

The newspaper declared that a Turkish-Russian agreement was incompatible with Turkey's understandings under the British-French-Turkish pact.

PREMIER DYSART MENTIONED IN QUEBEC FIGHT

Duplessis Says He Lacked Courage to Protect His Own Province

VOTE WEDNESDAY

Montreal, Oct. 21 (CP)—Oratory in the Quebec election campaign hits a peak this weekend with the leaders of the two chief parties scheduled for nearly 20 platform addresses and broadcasts.

The speech-making efforts are divided among Premier Maurice Duplessis, Union Nationale government leader; Hon. Adelard Godbout, Provincial Liberal Leader, and two Dominion cabinet Ministers; and Paul Gouin, Action Liberale Nationale head.

At a political rally in L'Assomption last night Mr. Duplessis charged that Premier Dysart of New Brunswick had tried "to give Quebec a lesson in patriotism" through "he lacked the courage to protect his own province."

The Quebec Premier asserted that this New Brunswick leader recently had gone to Ottawa as "a champion of patriotism" to get permitted export of cellulose to Germany from his province. The Union Nationale leader claimed that "Mr. Dysart should busy himself with his own house-cleaning instead attempting to show Quebec how to

A man identified as C. J. McNamara, 60 years old, died of injuries received early last night. Passengers said most of the injuries were caused by one huge wave, propelled by a 110-mile an hour wind. Some were hurt in the night.

McNamara, was penniless, but papers in his pocket showed that he was a member of Canada's immortal Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, that since the end of the first Great War he had served four persons from drowning in Ontario and Quebec.

Personal papers told that on July 6, 1921, he saved Vera Baker, Night Superintendent of a Peterborough hospital; Aug. 13, 1923 he saved an unnamed boy at Port Stanley; after that, the papers indicated he rescued a son of former Mayor Preston of Toronto, another Lock 24 of the Welland Canal; and Sept. 19, 1931, it was noted that he saved the life of High Mowfatt on the Lachine Canal at Montreal. Authorities are attempting to arrange with military officials for burial.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR CO-OPERATION

Military Leaders of Britain, France and Turkey Conclude Conference

By ROBERT PARKER

Associated Press Staff Writer

Ankara, Turkey, Oct. 21 (AP)— Military leaders of Great Britain, France and Turkey completed extensive plans today for military co-operation under the new tripartite mutual assistance treaty.

The conference, which began on Wednesday, concluded as General Maxime Weygand, commander-in-chief of French forces in the eastern Mediterranean, and Lieut.-General Sir Archibald Wavell, British Middle East-commander, prepared to return to their respective headquarters by plane.

The military leaders were said to have decided on the closest co-operation and co-ordination of their staffs in Asia Minor. British and French staffs are reported to have pledged large quantities of munitions, planes and war equipment for quick delivery to Turkey, as well as assistance by the Turkish navy in the Black Sea.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Although the full blood of the war was spilled nearly two months ago the contest has not yet passed out of the diplomatic stage. Foreign officers and ambassadors wage a desperate but bloodless battle for positions while great armies, navies and air forces engage in minor skirmishes.

The diplomatic aspect of the war to date is emphasized by the importance attached in European capitals to the mutual assistance pact between Turkey on the one hand and Great Britain and France together on the other. The pact is considered a real victory for the British Foreign Secretary, Sir Neville Chamberlain, Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet, who spent weeks in Turkey seeking to block it as has returned to Berlin.

Paris, Oct. 21 (AP)—Premier Edouard Daladier summoned ten cabinet members to a special meeting at the war ministry today as France prepared to meet Germany's forces on the western front.

Reports that German troops were preparing for a major assault on the French lines persisted meanwhile despite military predictions Autumn rains would prevent any large-scale action.

Henry de Kerillis, member of the Chamber of Deputies Foreign Affairs Committee, wrote in the newspaper L'Epoque that "the French general staff tends to believe that a Nazi attack and powerful enemy offensive actually is being prepared."

SIR G. CAMPBELL GIVEN DEGREE AT CONVOCATION

Queens University Honors Five Distinguished Americans Today

SCIENCE NOT BLAMED

Kingston, Oct. 21—(CP)— Tendency to blame the advance of science, and not the "human or political agencies who operate modern instruments of death, for the destructiveness of warfare was deplored today by Sir Gerald Campbell, high i commissioner for the United Kingdom in Canada, at the Autumn convocation of Queen's University.

Sir Gerald was one of five distinguished North Americans to receive an honorary degree of laws. The others were: Dr. Duncan Campbell Scott, Canadian poet; Hon. James Gerard, former United States ambassador to Germany; A. J. Grant, former president of the Canadian Engineering Institute and honorary Vachon, rector of Laval University. Dr. R. Wallace, vice-chancellor.

"We must blame or praise science for the ability it gives us to live a life hitherto undreamed on men, women and children and for the annihilation which the natives of Africa can be shown moving spears in a factor in killing each other in civilized Europe.

'Peace Without Sacrifice' Plan Advanced by David Lloyd George

Carnarvon, Wales, Oct. 21—(CP Cable)—David Lloyd George, dynamic leader of the British nation during the crucial years of the first Great War, declared in the second broadcast heeded here today of the "peace without sacrifice" campaign he launched in the House of Commons Oct. 3.

In an impassioned address his constituents, he appealed for seizure of the present opportunity to summon an international peace conference before the "undoubtable horror and calamity of the Great War brings death and anguish to the German nation" to many lands."

He indignantly denied he had "suggested surrender to Adolf Hitler or that he recommended peace at any price. He agreed that the Commons supporting a peace offer "would be regarded as having been "grossly and viciously misrepresented." Britain, said no surrender her cause now without "covering herself and the Empire with dishonor and drenching them with the contempt of the world."

Not Beaten Nation

"We are not a beaten nation — far from it—and I am not recommending that we should sue for peace at any price as if we were vanquished. I am the last man in the country to make such degrading proposals."

Observing that the world was hanging back in expectation, the veteran statesman added: "Isn't it time to ask the Russian idea of an international conference? When hundreds of thousands are perishing in the German disaster I cannot either of the Siegfried or Maginot Line, it seems to me

A conference today, he maintained, would not be one summoned to dictate terms "unready forces and his shivering diplomates, bullied and hectored by the German dictator." It was just as easy to be firm at a conference as on the battlefield. If it became clear that Hitler had no intention of doing justice and acting in the spirit of good faith and sincerity to his conquests, Britain and France would quit the Conference with a clear conscience that they had done their best to secure an honorable peace.

World Acknowledge Responsibility.

"The whole world would then acknowledge that responsibility for plunging mankind into the misery and catastrophe of war rested entirely on the head of Herr Hitler."

Talks Expected to Reach New Stage In Three Days

Finland Moves to Float Defence Loan of $9,300,000 in Case Parley Breaks Down at Moscow

PARLEY HELPFUL

Dr. Juho Paasikivi Leaves Helsingfors Late Today With Belief That Finland Wishes to Preserve Neutrality

By LYNN HEINZERLING

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Helsingfors, Oct. 21 (AP)—Finland moved today to float a defence loan of 500,000,000 marikka (about $9,300,000) in the belief that a showdown in her relations with Soviet Russia.

"Morally strengthened" by the Stockholm conference in which she participated with Norway, Denmark and Sweden, Finland ordered her former premier, Dr. Juho Paasikivi, back to Moscow to resume talks expected to reach a turning point in two or three days.

Paasikivi planned to leave Helsingfors late today with proposals believed to reflect the northern nation's desire to preserve strict neutrality. He is scheduled to reach Moscow Monday.

Added to the staff accompanying Paasikivi will be Finance Minister V. A. Tanner, a government spokesman said the addition would give the mission "more authority."

No New Question

Foreign Minister Rinse Ryti, who gave the mission its final instructions, said the additions to the former did not mean however, that any new questions were to be brought into the talks.

"I believe a solution may be found with respect for the vital interests of both parties," Ryti declared. "No day to discussing with the Soviet have been on friendly terms. There has been no pressure."

At the same time he indicated Finland was fortified by the backing of other northern countries which appear to stand firmly to her viewpoint.

Line is Clear

"Our line is clear," he said. "We want to stand for neutrality. That means we see no fatal dilemma nations that are not contrary to our neutrality."

Referring to Finland's extensive defence preparations, the Minister, said, "We are not the only country in the South Baltic which forced us to take steps for our own general position". He said the morale of Finland's armed forces was "very high."

The current defence measure was designed principally to propose a five-year loan to be negotiated through sale of bonds.

CAR COLLIDES WITH HYDRO POLE

Considerable property damage resulted to a motor car driven by J. F. Carter, of this city, when the vehicle collided with a hydro pole on Dundas St. early this evening. Mr. Carter informed P. C. Evans upon his investigation of the accident that he had suddenly been stricken with the dizzy condition and was temporarily blinded. Although under a mild weakened spell, Mr. Carter's sense of direction was not seriously effected as he kept his motor car well on the right-hand side of the street, so much so that the right front portion of the car struck the pole on the right-hand side of the street. The pole was not dislodged or broken, but damage to over $100 resulted to the vehicle, police stated today.

POLICE SEEKING HIT-RUN DRIVER

Provincial Police today were seeking the identity of a hit and run driver, who driving his motor car broadside into an automobile driven by Mr. Salsbury at Bloomfield last evening. Mr. Salsbury informed Provincial Police authorities he was returning to Belleville from Picton and while passing through the village of Bloomfield, a large sedan had darted out from a side street, struck his automobile broadside and before he could alight, the other vehicle had disappeared from the scene of darkness. Mr. Salsbury's car was badly damaged, but fortunately the driver escaped serious injury. Provincial Constables O'Brien and Ervine are investigating.

DOWNTOWN BOOTHS TO BE OPENED

Booths, downtown, will continue to receive Volunteer Registration of Canadian Women all next week, it was announced by the committee this morning. These will be placed in Woolworths, the A. & P., McCarthy Theatre, Eaton's and the Corby Library.

A marked increase in registration was noted after the booths were opened in these convenient centres and it is hoped that many of the women will be reached through these sources.

Police Blotter

Peterborough police authorities reported the theft of a 1936 model Ford sedan from which the vehicle was equipped with Ontario license plates number 97-U-4 when stolen.

Two minor motor accidents were investigated by city police last night and resulted in the amicable settlement of damages and no charges were deemed necessary in either case.

Charles Axton, 79A Moira street, reported to P.C. Wyatt at the East hill automobile had collided with another parked vehicle while the driver was attempting to park on Front street early last evening. The owner of the vehicle struck could not be found, but Mr. Eaton reported the matter to the police and stated he was desirous of making restitution. Only small fender damage resulted however.

Motor vehicles driven by Paul Hibbard and Earl Keenan, both of Belleville, were in collision near the intersection of Canniffton Road and Station Street last night. Damage was slight and the parties agreed on settlement before the police arrived.

Three hours after he had been released from police court on a return home and procure cash with which to pay a fine that had been levied after a conviction had been registered against him on a charge of intoxication, a local inebriate found himself arrested on a second charge of drunkenness, and the sentence was not given, an opportunity of liberty a second time as he remained in police custody and will face a second degree intoxication charge Monday.

Municipal Representation On Educational Boards is Opposed by Local Board Reasons for Opposition Embodied in Resolution to be Sent to Toronto

REPORTER THANKED

James Donahue, of Ontario Intelligencer Staff, Who Has Enlisted, Receives Letter of Appreciation for Fine Coverage of Board for Three Years

Unanimously declaring itself to be unalterably opposed to proposed legislation to place municipal representation on Boards of Education, the Belleville Board at its regular meeting last night passed a resolution embodying its stand and reasons, copies of which will be sent to Premier Hepburn, her representing the riding and to the Hon. the Minister of Education.

"School boards, as at present constituted, are either elected by a direct vote of the people or are appointed by municipal councils, the recommendation included.

"Both methods are responding to the people for their actions. Any legislation which would place the Boards subservient to the councils would be a constant source of distress.

"Eighty per cent of the present expenditure is for teachers' salaries," it said, "and these are paid less from the funds collected. The other twenty per cent is made up of caretakers' salaries, equipment, repairs and other expenses largely beyond the control of the Board. Therefore if the efficiency of the Board is to be maintained, municipal representation could be of no financial value to us."

The Committee of Enquiry into the cost of education in Ontario reports: "The Committee cannot recommend that Boards of Education should be relieved of responsibility now resting upon them by law of providing and maintaining schools by means of municipality."

Serve Without Charge

"The members of the Belleville School Boards give their services without charge; members of the Belleville Municipal Councils are paid for their services, but the experience of a member of a municipal council is a factor if the school board would mean additional expense to the municipality," the resolution included.

"The percentage of increase of expenditures by municipal Councils for the past ten years is more than twice as great as that incurred by School Boards, which must take care of the increased demands of the public if increased attendance and increased training for industry and domestic pursuits. If municipal councils are to have voting power over School Boards, then School Boards will be unable to carry out the duties imposed on them under the Acts and Regulations of the Department of Education."

There was no discussion. Members unanimously voted for adoption of the recommendation.

Appreciation of the services of James Donahue, Ontario Intelligencer reporter, who covered the Board meetings for three years prior to his recent enlistment with His Majesty Forces, was voiced by Chairman Russell Wotton. The Board unanimously endorsed a motion, that a letter of sincere appreciation be forwarded by the secretary to Mr. Donahue.

Schools Free From Disease

The schools are being remarkably free from acute communicable disease, School Nurse Miss A. Barkman said in her official report to the board. Over one thousand children had undergone inspection during forty-nine visits to the schools, she said. Inspection Public Health Nursing Supervisor for the Department of Health, had visited the schools and had been particularly impressed with the health-teaching programs now being carried on by the teachers, under the new curriculum.

Official and personal welcome was extended to the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, Vicar of St. Thomas Church and a member of the board, recently returned from an extended vacation to England and Europe. Rev. Payne graciously acknowledged the warm reception extended him, and at the request of Chairman Wotton, gave a brief address to the board on his reactions of England and the English people during the declaration of war and the momentous days which followed. His address appears in another column of this edition.

Routine business, payment of accounts and other matters occupied the remainder of the meeting, Trustee Charles Hunter occupied the chair while the Board was in committee of the whole.

How Britain Goes to War Told by Rev. A. B. Payne

Willingness to Sacrifice So as to Destroy Aggression is Britain's Sole Purpose

PRAISE FOR PREMIER

The solid unity of the English people during the crisis and after the declaration of war; their grim determination to see the thing through, and the almost mechanical perfection of their preparations for war and defence of the Mother Country, were the things which struck me most forcibly," the Rev. Beauchamp Payne, vicar of St. Thomas Church, recently returned from a visit to England and France, told members of the Board of Education in a brief impromptu address last night.

Mr. Payne spoke for a few minutes only, but his forceful remarks left a deep impression on members of the Board who accorded him an appreciative applause at the conclusion of his remarks.

"The splendid people faced the crisis with grim determination; they were disciplined, and their habitual calm in the face of emergency never changed," Mr. Payne said.

Chamberlain Extolled

He paid a glowing tribute to Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

"When the history of this great war is written, the name of Neville Chamberlain will stand out in a lustre that is second to none in the annals of the saviour of a great situation."

England in wartime was one of the things that impressed the speaker. "When Chamberlain's momentous words, 'This country is now at war with Germany' came over wireless into British homes, there was a hush in which one could almost hear the heartbeat of those listening. Then they smiled. The call had come once again to them to play their part, and to 'carry on'."

"Marshal Foch was not wrong when he uttered those historic words following the signing of the Armistice in 1918. 'Gentlemen, we have ceased hostilities for twenty years.'

Britain's Preparedness

"I left England," Mr. Payne said, "with the feeling that every thing humanly possible for preparedness had been done. Things were perfect in readiness, and when the dread call came everything worked and interlocked with the precision of well-oiled machinery."

One of the most remarkable address ever made in England occurred when the Archbishop of Canterbury, leader of his Majesty's Opposite and a Labourite, addressed the House and declared the unanimity of his party with the government. Mr. Payne said, adding, "It might as well have been the Prime Minister himself talking, insofar as unity and loyal was concerned."

There is only one purpose in England, the willingness to make sacrifice and the calm resolve to sweep aside the aggression that would fain rule the world. No matter how long it takes, six months or six years, that will be accomplished," the speaker said. "That is the feeling I came away with."

Unity in Canada

"I only hope," he continued, "that with each succeeding day, the same feeling will reach the shores of Canada, that we will be just as united and determined to give our contribution to the attainment of the objective."

"It is a vastly different England to what it was twenty-five years ago," he said. "People are more determined, better prepared and more willing to do everything to aid the common cause. The same thing that hasn't changed," he smiled, "is the weather."

In Paris when France declared war, the usually gay Parisians sat calmly at tables at the outdoor cafes. When newsboys rushed about the streets, their shrill voices announcing the grave news, the French people refused to become excited about it. Mr. Payne said.

"They calmly finished their coffee, arose, paying their checks and when nothing had happened, calmly went about the business of war."

TO DISCUSS TOWNSHIP SCHOOL AREAS

Thorough discussion of Township School areas, advocated by Ex-Public School Inspector H. J. Hall, will take place at Marmora next Saturday when Dr. V. G. Greer, Chief Inspector of Public and Separate Schools will address Hastings County Municipal officials, trustees and ratepayers in the Town Hall.

Invitations have been issued through the Trustees and Ratepayers Associations will also hear Mr. A. Campbell, secretary of that organization who will speak on the important subject.

Once Communist, Now Christian, Will Speak Here

Mr. Bill Patterson Will Take Part in Service at Bridge Street Church Sunday Evening

Bill Patterson, erstwhile communist, who was converted to Christianity will speak at the Bridge Street United Church on Sunday evening at the regular service.

Rev. Ralston, according to an article in the United Church Observer, came to Belleville last night to Rev. Crossley Hunter's church, at Hamilton about the time Bill Peters and was acquainted for breaking in on the minister's studies. He said that he had been a communist all his life, and that he was not satisfied with this life as it failed to bring him permanent satisfaction.

"All my life I have lived on hate I hated the capitalists, I hated the politicians, I hated the Church and I don't believe I can go on any longer living on hate. Do you think that I could ever learn to love?" he asked Dr. Hunter.

The minister discussed the position, directed his reading and encouraged him in his search for happiness, with the result that Bill Patterson, prominent ex-communist agitator in Hamilton, has now undertaken enthusiastic exponent of the gospel of love, says the Observer. He has addressed young people's societies, has spoken from pulpits and has gone to his former enemies and sought their cooperation and forgiveness.

Bill Patterson is looking into his new-found religious life the same passionate vigor and enthusiasm that made him a leader in the communist crusader.

He was born at Lugar in Scotland and after the 1917 revolution in Russia, became a prominent member of the Scotch Communistic party. In 1929 he came to Canada and became very active in the party here.

Since his conversion he has come to believe the church must possess a dynamic love.

"THE LOST HORIZON"

Maestro Immortalized In Screen Story

The first and only screen appearance of the world's greatest pianist, Ignace Jan Paderewski will be for the second time by popular request be shown at the Mccarthy Theatre in the Lothar Mendes production "Moonlight Sonata" starting Monday. The great maestro who now is in his 77th year was indignant at the mechanical fate of the making of motion pictures and he was in a veritable wonderland during the progress of the filming of "Moonlight Sonata".

One memorable experience which must have added to his treasure store of remembrance was sitting with Lothar Mendes in the darkened projection room and hearing his own music surge forth from the empty screen before him. The first sound track of his playing had been made; the screen had captured the greatest living musical genius of the age, and the first recording for posterity had been made.

Eighteen different pianos were tried out before Paderewski decided on the two he would use during the course of the film—one at the studio and the other at his home. It was then found that the wooden flooring gave too much resonance, and a concrete floor was hurriedly laid down much to Paderewski's satisfaction.

One of the longest "takes" of "Moonlight Sonata" was some 1,000 feet of Paderewski playing the Liszt Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2. Besides the playing of the Rhapsody Paderewski also plays during the film of the picture, Polonaise, A Flat Major by Chopin; his own Minuet and Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata". Opposite the maestro, the supporting cast includes Marie Tempest, Charles Farrell, Barbara Greene and Eric Portman.

The program in addition to "Moonlight Sonata" includes an all technicolor scenic of the Holy Land entitled "Jerusalem" which is most appropriate and which is certain to please and entertain.

Canada's Destroyers' Part In Convoy System Described

Warships Manoeuvre, Sea is Scanned, Freighters Zig-Zag as Convoys Start for Britain

CONSTANT VIGIL

(By John Lisbiane, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Halifax Oct. 21—(CP)—The vigilance of Canada's sea fighters is playing a big role in smoothing the way for the almost unbroken procession of ships steaming eastward across the Atlantic with the sinews of war for Great Britain.

As the convoy leaves the transport, still another convoy has been launched safely on its way from Canada, given a send-off part past the coastal waters and into the open sea—and never it, the ships that have preceded it with hundreds of thousands of tons of valuable cargo, the Canadian navy has helped take the U-boat out of the hunting.

How Convoy Works

On this voyage, for the first time in the war on this side of the ocean, a newspaperman was allowed to see at first hand how the convoy system operates that has the record of having brought every ship home safely. The system is founded on watchfulness around the clock, on the part of constant action twenty-four hours a day. Through the day and night, as the ship's escort ships pound the lumbering convoy craft along, men scan the sea's face for enemy warcraft—U-boats or surface ships. Lookouts are the eyes of the fleet, heaving green through powerful glasses. Guns are manned without a break, shells always within reach. Sailors stand by the torpedo tubes of our destroyer. Others are at their stations beside the depth charges, those cylindrical looking "asbcans" laden with death-dealing explosives bearing penalties for enemy submarines "or with my best regards."

During the night, darkness offers keep constant watch. No enemy craft were sighted on this voyage, but it is not for want of searching. First, the destroyers speed out of the harbor for an advance survey. Nothing spotted, the freighters follow with a protection newly learned by them, remarkably similar to the system kept by men of war and take up pre-arranged positions and zig-zag along in formation.

As they steam away from the coast, the destroyers trace an intricate pattern of courses ahead and to each side of them, designed to afford a view of every possible danger spot. Then the slow-moving craft of the Royal Navy work from another position.

As night falls, the lights are doused. Not a glimmer shows from the warships or their charges. Under the moonless sky, the freighter show up only as darker blobs against a dark background.

On the bridge of the destroyer, heaving like a bucking steer now at the tail-end of a hurricane lit up the sea, officers peer anxiously into the murk. They must not get too far from the convoy ships, for it is easy to lose them; they must not let the destroyer swing too close, or there is danger of collision.

On deck the depth charges have been swung out to point over the side, four to the starboard and four to port. A row of electrical buttons on the bridge can loose their destructive force in a trice.

How a Ship Appears

As the ship goes scouting along through the chop with everything ready for any quick action, a tiny speck of light thrusts a hole through the darkness ahead and to port low. Instantly, the destroyer heels around in a wide arc and darts toward the strange sight.

The spot grows into a cluster of lights. The approach proves a mile and the men on the bridge identify the stranger as a trawler with her crew at work. Back we veer to the convoy, our scrutiny likely unsuspected by the fishermen.

As the dawn comes up in a gray veil, the convoy is sighted, scattered across the horizon, another unidentified craft is seen. The destroyer races for her, challenging signals flying from the yards.

Guns are brought to bear on her while our officers await her answer. Finally, she identifies herself as a freighter bound for the United States, and the warship lets her pass through the path of the convoy.

Meanwhile, the freighters have been reforming. Ships have strayed out of sight, and soon all are back in line and heading eastward again under the eye of the shepherding ships of war.

No. 1 Fruit Sells at One Dollar per Hamper — Windfalls at 75 Cents Bu.

LARGE FOWL DISPLAY

Colorful evidence of the statement of Mr. C. D. Stevenson, Dominion Fruit Inspector, that the quality of apples grown in this district this year are by far the best produced in years, the display of late Autumn and Winter apples offered at the city market does convince the admiration of rural and urban dwellers alike.

The fine display of MacIntosh Red, Northern Spy, Tolman Sweet, Starks, Greening and other varieties stood out in a fine display. Number one fruit was quoted at $1 the hamper lot, with buying being brisk. Windfall apples were offered at 75c and for the basket.

No immediate rise in price was expected, when the apple season further markets are obtained. The fine quality of the fruit, coupled with the British market, has been practically closed due to war conditions, and this fact, of course, has had a tremendous reaction on prices of Canadian fruit.

Eggs at 60 Cents

Prices of other offerings remained fairly steady. Egg quotations were: Eggs at last week's levels with "A" selects offered at 40c the dozen. Medium and pullets were quoted at 30c and 32c respectively. Farmers' better levels were closely watched tonight and found ready selling at 29c the pound.

Poultry was offered and was decidedly heavier than that of a week ago with prices, however, somewhat little deviation from those of last week. A few broilers were offered at 40c per lb. Choice weight six-months' birds sold at from $1.30 to $1.50 each, ranging lowly from 75c each. No turkeys or geese were available, though a few ducks moved sluggishly at $1. each.

Pickled and stored by fore-sighted vendors are the eggs remaining from last Sunday home-grown tomatoes which, also feature in price with the basket lots offered at 30 cents, a 10 cent rise over prices of a week ago.

Potatoes $1.20 Per 75-lb. Bag.

Potatoes were steady with buyers offered at 75c cents a peck and $1.20 per bag as $1.00 each. One vendor reported excellent business through dry rot but a survey of other vendors revealed the fact that this condition was not general.

Staple vegetables are approaching the lowest stage, with onions quoted at $1.25, turnips at 60 cents, beets at 10c the quart, and carrots at 50 cents. Large squash and pumpkin was available at from 10 cents each. Good quality cabbage was offered in flower sold at from 5 cents the head. Blue and Hubbard squash were offered at 20 and 25 cents the basket with the wild variety offered at 10 cents for the same quantity. Frost plums making their market debut were offered at from 60 cents the 6-quart basket.

Lovers of fish had plenty to choose from with fresh lake herring at four for 25 cents being the notable display. Lake trout was offered at 25 cents the pound with whitefish and pickerel selling at 20 cents the pound. Pike was quoted at 10 cents the pound.

GERMAN SIDE RIVER FLOODED

In Some Sectors Troops Forced to Fly High Water From Blockhouses

Luxembourg Oct. 21—(AP)—The German side of the Moselle valley inundated by heturdmun ley was flooded today as bright sunshine followed heavy rains which sent the river over its banks. In some sectors German troops had to climb to the high water to leave blockhouses. Residents of Mondorf and Erwages who left their homes yesterday, said the towns were emptied to provide quarters for troops.

Ten of thirteen furnaces in the Luxembourg steel mills were reported operating despite the evacuation of two thousand steel workers and their families, mostly Germans, returning to their own country.

SEES THREAT OF POISON GAS

War Office Warns Nazi Tactics Indicate Intention to Use Gas

London, Oct. 21 — (CP) — The War Office said last night Nazi repetition of the Ypres-Allinay and Hendecourt story 1915 Great Britain supplied poison gas to Germany "clearly indicates an intention on the part of Germany to use poison gas on the Western Front."

The statement added that use of poison gas would be "in contravention of the 1925 Geneva Protocol" to which Germany and the Allied belligerents are signatories.

"The sequence of events in the last war will be remembered," the statement continued. "It is an established fact that a decision to use this barbarous form of warfare was taken by the German high command as early as the late autumn of 1914.

"Technical preparations had been completed by them to use poison gas on the Ypres front. While waiting for a suitable wind, the German propaganda machine endeavoured to prepare the way for their intended outrage by lying accusations against their opponents.

"Secondly, that the Germans had given out an "utterly untrue" statement that the British empire had "shells and bombs filled with asphyxiating gas at their disposal." The War Office statement said "no poison gas for war purposes had at that time been manufactured, or experimentally, in Britain.

"The decision to perform the possibilities of making it was not taken until a fortnight after its inhuman use by Germany." The statement added "the sequel to Germany's 'poison gas' accusation" was the launching of the "first German gas attack" five days later.

Poison Gas in 1915

(By The Canadian Press)

Introduction of gas as an effective weapon in modern warfare dates from April 22, 1915, when the Germans discharged chlorine from cylinders on a four-mile front in France.

In a few weeks the Allies were equipped with crude respirators. The Germans found difficulty in combining infantry attacks with the discharge of gas which was dependent on the vagaries of the weather. As they increased its use through 1915, the Allies became more and more prepared to fight it.

From December, 1915, onward the Germans made the gas more lethal by adding a greater volume of phosgene. The first Allied gas operation was in September, 1915, when chlorine was discharged from cylinders.

The French were the first to realize the value of a shell containing a highly poisonous gas, a type which gave them much success at Verdun. The same year the Germans used the same type of shell at Verdun and on the Somme.

Gas became a serious factor for the first time in 1917. Gradually French, British and German shells contained more deadly stuff. In 1917 the Livens projector, a crude trench mortar that could fire a 60-pound gas shell, was put into use.

Then in 1917 the Germans introduced the famous mustard gas at Ypres. "Mustard" was by far the most deadly of all chemicals used in the first Great War. Not easily detected because of the alkeh smell, Mustard gas hung around for a long time and was effective even after its clear out territory which was not to be occupied immediately by advancing troops.

Phosgene and diphosgene, highly volatile liquids, were used to clear ground for an advance. The British used mustard gas to good effect after June, 1916. During the last year of the war gas caused 18 per cent. of all British casualties and 32 per cent. of American. The British and French used hydrocyanic acid which was immediately fatal. Gas was used freely by all combatants to neutralize artillery.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica says it is "difficult to hold gas less humane than other weapons". It asserts that only 3,000,000 gas casualties only 6,062 died. It was striking, the encyclopaedia says, how small a proportion of the gas casualties suffered any permanent disablement."

LOST 19 HOURS IN THICK BUSH

Roy Vickerd Finds Way Out While Parties Comb Woods

Woodslee, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP)—Roy Vickerd, 19-year-old boy out to open country today after he was lost for nineteen hours in the bush country near here today. Scores of neighbors had searched throughout most of the night for him after he failed to return home yesterday afternoon from a hunting trip.

Vickerd was weak from exposure and was taken to his immediately by friends located by the search party.

The men combed the woods and surrounding fields by lanterns and flashlights during the night and early without result. The search resumed at dawn today. Provincial Police joined the search.

Vickerd lives with his sister, Mrs. Ed Richardson, on a farm near Lake Shi companions on the hunt were Fred Richardson, Delbert Dennis and Diemer's nephew, Alphonse Diemer. The three followed different routes home, hoping to bag a pheasant.

FIVE TICKETS HELD IN CANADA

Dublin, Oct. 21—(CP)—A total of $5,725 went to Canada today when five tickets held there won the $114,510 each in the distribution of 50 residual cash prizes in the Irish Hospitals' Sweepstake.

The second group of 500 cash prizes of $100 ($445) each, then was drawn.

These were added to approximately $225,000, raised by the 250 dollar-held tickets worth $4,280 purchased yesterday by visitors and horses originally entered in the Cesarewitch. The race was cancelled because of the frost.

'TRUTH' ATTACKS COLONEL LINDBERGH

London, Oct. 21—(CP)—The Weekly Review "Truth" today attacked Colonel Charles Lindbergh as "the most ardent admirer of Hitler in the whole American continent and an enemy of any country which gave him asylum when his need was greatest."

Commenting on the airman's recent broadcast speech in opposition to participation of the United States Neutrality Act, the paper added Lindbergh derides his Canadian neighbors for taking a stand with the mother country. "He makes pitiable seem a bayard by comparison."

British Announcers Naming German Prisoners of War

New York, Oct. 21 (CP)—A new idea for getting the allied point of view across to the German people is being tried out by British broadcasters, the Columbia Broadcasting System said today.

Names of German prisoners of war were interspersed with news items in daily half-hour broadcasts from the studios of the British Broadcasting Corporation, announcer German, C.B.S. said. Twenty names are read during the broadcast from the previous day's list.

Modern Turkey

By the Canadian Press

Modern Turkey, new partner of Great Britain and France in a Mutual Assistance Pact, is an eastern land whose heart beat is attuned to the west.

Only three per cent of her 294,000 square miles lie in Europe.

But it is in that direction that her 16,000,000 inhabitants have looked during the 16 years since she emerged as a republic from the ruins of the Ottoman Empire.

Under the late Kamal Ataturk the country began shaking off Oriental customs and adopting those of Europe. Turkey's whole social and economic structure has been made over with a speed comparable only to the changes which have been made in Soviet Russia.

Her plains support textiles, paper, cellulose and sugar. Steel production is being stepped up and coal mines modernized.

On the military side, she has a trained army backed by a large force of reserves, including units of modern Air Force, the goal of which is 1,000 planes, is being developed.

As controller of the Dardanelles, gateway to the Black Sea and one of the most strategic waterways in the world, Turkey has been the object of ardent wooing by Europe's rival camps.

The Dardanelles, The Sea of Marmora and the Strait of the Bosphorus form a 172-mile long bottleneck which spills western Turkey and joins two of Europe's smallest waters, the Black Sea and the Mediterranean.

The southern door to this tempestuous waterway is the Strait of the Dardanelles, 35 miles of winding channel narrowing from four miles to slightly more than a half a mile across.

The northern door is the 17-mile strait of the Bosphorus ranging from 1½ miles to a third of a mile wide.

In between is the Sea of Marmora, of which Turkey has sole ownership.

The importance of this ancient sea outlet is reflected in the fact that it has been the object of continual warfare for its control since Agamemnon's 1,200 years before Christ led his Greeks against the walls of Troy near the Dardanelles' southern shore.

One of the first great war's big campaigns was fought here. The Allies battled for nine months and suffered 120,000 casualties in an unsuccessful effort to dislodge the Turks, then allied with Germany, to open communications with Russia and Rumania.

The Dardanelles were neutralized by treaty in 1920 but in 1936 Turkey received permission to refortify them.

Except for the 16 years in which there were demilitarized, Turkey has been in control of the Dardanelles since 1451.

TAKE A SMACK AT OLD NASTY

Tabloid Paper Prints Picture of Adolf Hitler on a Dartboard

London, Oct. 21 (CP Cable)—The tabloid Daily Mirror invited its 1,500,000-odd readers today to "take a smack at Adolf" and printed a full-size dartboard on its front page with a caricature of Adolf Hitler as a bullseye.

The entire page of the paper was used for its purpose and scores of thousands of dartboards to British homes ahead of time.

"Cut out this page out, pin it up and take a smack at old nasty. See that stupid mustache? See that silly face? See that ridiculous bank of hair? Well take the dart—and pink the blighter slick in the middle of his ugly kisser . . . any darts will do, even hatpins, but hard ones. Then read it, tear it up and repeated from the previous day's list. from the previous day's list.

RUSSIAN GOLD

Soviet gold is being taken in consignments at the present time from Russia to Germany. That is the unconfirmed report which is largely accepted. The report was brought up in the British House of Commons. The amount mentioned was seventeen and a half tons said to be worth over seventeen million dollars at the price of gold in the United States or about sixteen million dollars at the price of gold to the Bank of England.

Gold would enable Germany to buy goods, that is clear, but it is not so clear through what channel such foreign goods could travel in view of the British blockade. Hitler's government seized eighty millions of gold in Czecho-Slovakia early last spring and it undoubtedly went into the purchase of supplies including munitions. But the avenues of import are now restricted, that one wonders how Hitler is going to use the gold to any great advantage.

Neither is it clear why Germany is getting the gold. The Soviet will not make a gift, even to Germany. It seems certain. Some see in the gold shipments the price Russia pays for the German retreat from its Baltic aspirations.

Around Hitler are nations which are neutrals and which have a sort of barter system with Germany. But Germany has to pay with supplies or gold and she needs her own materials very much and has very little gold to spend on purchases from her neighbors or for purchasing foreign goods and then trusting to running the British blockade. No German ship dare run the seas and neutrals must be cautious in carrying contraband and the British blockade will be certainly more and more effective as months pass.

Russian aid in supplies, it is felt, cannot be effective for a long time, perhaps for twelve months. It may be that the gold it sent will be used to try to tide over the German needs or it may be the Russian idea of a bargain with Hitler paying in gold for what the Soviets get.

WATCHING AIR BATTLES

There is a thrill in movie air combats, and in their way they may be far more dramatic from a spectator's view than the actual dog-fights in the present war. The movie brings the air battle close to hand with heavy machine guns in front and back of the film but a real battle may be so high in the air as to be almost invisible from the earth.

To the citizens of Edinburgh yesterday's alarm was not dramatic but to the invaders and defenders it was real war though there were no casualties, and no bombs were dropped and there was no clash as the unidentified planes disappeared.

But these far-off aerial combats are real enough for the nations involved, for the fliers, and for spectators should a bomb fall. It is a human failing to be curious. British air warriors are said to be having trouble getting people to go into shelters or houses when the sirens blow.

Windsor Star remarks on this phenomenon:—

"In the last war, the people often preferred to remain in the open so that they could watch the progress of the raiders and see how the defenders fared against the opposing planes. Sometimes they were treated to a spectacular exhibition, in which planes would loop and swoop as they strove for advantage. And, when an enemy aircraft came tumbling down in flames, the cheers of the populace were so intense, they must almost have reached the ears of the victorious pilot, even though he was thousands of feet in the air.

"In some of the military hospitals in France, the nurses were provided with dugouts and other air raid shelters. On some occasions, instead of making for the protection the nurses would hurry to the roof so that they could have a point of vantage to watch the raid and its ensuing aerial combats.

"It may be safer in the dugouts, but a lot of people have that urge to want to see what's exciting."

U. S. RULE ON BELLIGERENT SUBS

Submarines of belligerent nations will have no access to the territorial waters of the United States except when they are driven to take shelter from storms and then they must enter with conning tower and superstructure visible.

British and French submarines will not be affected by this order of the United States Government for they have no reason to by lurking in and about territorial waters of the Republic.

There have been many reports of submarines sighted off the coasts of North and South America and these must have to refuel and re-stock possibly with munitions. At least submarines require supplies and henceforth the submarines will have to look for supplies from their own "mother" boats.

THE RAINS AND MUD

Poland was not favored by the September rains' season as was hoped, and Hitler's armies had the "breaks" as far as weather was concerned. The Polish nation had fondly trusted in its cavalry and inadequate mechanization, and trusted to the roads becoming boggy with rain to hold up the advance of German motorized transport and equipment but found that the fates were against them in this regard and conquest of the country with the entry of Russian troops was practically completed in about four weeks in spite of desperate deeds of valor by the Poles.

But on the western front the situation is reversed. The autumn rains are steadily falling and blighting any prospect of a major German drive, according to observers as heavy mechanism of the German army is becoming bogged in the roads. The River Rhine is rising and there is heavy rainfall between the Saar and Moselle Rivers.

France and Britain had their lines strengthened before the Germans who are still bringing troops up to the western front.

Every day that passes in comparative calm on the western front brings nearer the day of victory and at the same time saves man-power.

HOW WAR CHANGES TRADE

Although a single month of war is not of great significance as showing the trend of Canadian trade, yet it is very interesting to observe what has happened since hostilities commenced at the beginning of September, says the bulletin of the Department of Trade and Commerce Bureau of Statistics.

Canadian exports not only held their own but they increased quite definitely. The total of $81,461,000, exclusive of gold was a 12.8 per cent increase over September last year. To the United Kingdom at $29,189,000 its advance was one per cent and to the United States at $34,132,000 it was no less than 35.9 per cent.

There were very large increases in the exports to British India, 151.3 per cent, Ceylon 100 per cent, Denmark 344.6 per cent, Japan 281.9 per cent, Hawaii 298.7 per cent, Venezuela 146.2 per cent, British South Africa 88.8 per cent.

The exports to India were mainly automobiles and parts and aluminum, Denmark wheat, and salmon, copper and asbestos, to Japan nickel, aluminum, asbestos, copper, hemlock logs and sulphite pulp, to Hawaii almost all fertilizer, to Venezuela milk powder, newsprint and sewing machines, to Ceylon newsprint, and to British South Africa railway rails, automobiles and parts.

The following were the outstanding decreases: Russia 97.3 per cent, Italy 82.7, Germany 27.7, Hong Kong 55.2, and Malta 55.9.

It should be remarked that many Canadian consignments to countries mentioned were made before Canada had been declared in a state of war.

RULES FOR WINTER MOTORING

The United States Safety Congress has given a number of rules for motorists to observe for next winter's use, rules based upon results conducted last winter on frozen Lake Calhoun, Minneapolis.

1. Never drive faster than 20 miles an hour on ice, even with chains.

2. On slippery surfaces, always keep the car in gear.

3. Keep the car's load distributed evenly. Don't have three passengers in the front seat and one in the back.

4. Remember that non-skid tires are helpful on wet pavements, and to some extent on snow, but give no more protection on ice than smooth tires.

5. When driving on ice or snow, use chains on all four wheels. That will reduce stopping distances 40 to 50 per cent.

6. Chains on rear wheels help braking to 30 per cent.

7. Accelerate cautiously to avoid spinning the rear wheels.

8. Pump the brakes in stopping, even when using chains, to keep the wheels rolling.

9. Pump the brakes in stopping, even when using chains, to keep the wheels rolling.

8. If you start to skid, turn the front wheels in the direction the rear is skidding.

9. When it is slippery, try out the brakes occasionally to get the "feel" of the road.

10 Keep your brakes equalized.

The cause of freedom is identified with the destinies of humanity, and in whatever part of the world it gains ground, by and by it will be a common gain to all who desire it.—Kossuth.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

OCT. 21st., 1919.

In the Ontario Provincial election campaign the Conservative Government led by Sir William Hearst was defeated and the Farmers' Party will have the largest group in the House, which, by an alliance with those of the older parties and the Labor Party, can command a large working majority. In West Hastings, Mr. W. J. Ireland, Conservative candidate, defeating Col. R. D. O'Flynn, Liberal candidate, by a majority of 426. Mr. Nelson Parliament, Liberal candidate in East Hastings riding, was re-elected over Mr. Robert Norman, Farmers' candidate, by approximately 1,000. Mr. Henry Denyes, U. F. O. Candidate, claims a majority of about 450 over Mr. Sandy Grant, the Conservative Candidate in East Hastings. The returns are not all in yet, but it is evident that on the Referendum the province has voted "dry". The standing in the Assembly from present returns will be: U. F. O. 56; Liberal 19; Conservatives 26; Labor 11; Independent 1. To complete the total 90 members in the House prior to the election.

30 YEARS AGO

OCT. 21st., 1909.

Mr. William Bleecker, Reeve of Hawdon Township, and Warden of the County of Hastings, was in town to day.

One hundred and four years ago to day the great Admiral Nelson died, but his never to be forgotten words "England expects" and etc. still goes marching on.

Mr. A. Shearing left to day for Montreal where he will work with Mr. H. N. Shearing.

Mr. G. G. Pudlow of Kingston, Chief Instructor at the Dairy School, was in town to day.

Miss Blake Lockwood, who resides in the 7th. concession of Sidney Township, has taken up Intelligencer staff to day some peanuts which were grown on his farm. Mr. Lockwood is a Belleville variety, and Mr. Lockwood states that when roasted they are much better than the imported kind.

40 YEARS AGO

OCT. 21ST, 1899

In addition to those previously mentioned, the following members of the 15th Battalion have volunteered for service in South Africa: Privates George Phillips, F. Lynn, W. Newton, A. Bowen, N. Cunningham, E. Fry and Pioneer-Sergt. J. Patterson. Lieut. Gisnoce Hulme of the 15th Regiment, failed to obtain a commission when he volunteered a short time ago, but with true British heroism, has offered his services as a private. It is hoped, however, that he will obtain a position commensurate with his military ardor and ability.

Mr. R. Tannahill, Jr., of the Bank of Montreal, has returned to the city after spending some time in Muskoka.

Mr. H. E. Smith, Game Warden, is in Bancroft on business.

Miss Hilda, Lazier, and Gillen of this city are deer hunting near Bancroft.

50 YEARS AGO

OCT. 21ST, 1889

The water in the river is very low; ice was formed upon the water edge last night.

Mr. William Johnson of this city was elected a member of the Bible Society Convention of the Methodist Church of Canada, which was held at London, Ont.

Last evening several pages of slides were shown at Mr. S. Gross' rix's residence on Pinnacle Street were broken by boys throwing stones. The police department is looking into the matter.

Dr. H. Bowell, of this city, D. D. G. M. of the Canadian Order of Freemasons for the district, held an official visit to the lodge in Trenton last night.

The officers and party of Stirling shot three deer this week.

Two bears and one fawn disappeared recently. It is thought that some people are holding the deer for ransom.

Ultimate Disaster

Mr. Victor Podoski, now Polish Consul-General in Montreal, stated that revolutions will occur in both Germany and Russia, and he does not think that the Reich will last past next year, but not to the advantage of either party.

One thing is certain, and that is that Herr Hitler is doomed. He has signed his own death warrant when he ordered his troops into Poland. . . . He will finish what he has started in a long war, and he will meet the same fate as the ex-Kaiser and run for exile, if he lives that long.

But supposing this did not happen. Hitler would still be doomed. A long war cannot but weaken Germany so that it would be at the mercy of Russia whenever Josef Stalin said the word. Hitler is in Russia's power at the present time, and Germany war must be aware that it dare not say nay to the Soviet leader for that would only hasten the collapse of Germany.

Whether or not a revolution will take place in Russia is more uncertain. Stalin and Hitler have followed the same methods of liquidating all opposition, either by death or imprisonment, for more than they have ever been in power. In either Russia or Germany, when the two countries unite, the two dictators would be helpless to stop a revolution that was brewing in Germany. Russia is still the question mark.—Windsor Daily Star.

Fear in Germany

The German people are living in fear of Herr Hitler, reports Mr. John B. Potvin, immigration officer who, with his wife, is back in Windsor after spending a year on duty in Europe. Just recently the couple spent three weeks in the German city of Stamberg.

It is interesting to read such reports as these. Mr. and Mrs. Potvin can speak frankly. Their admission that they found the German people charming hosts proves that they are unprejudiced. They are merely telling what they saw and experienced.

One cannot minimize the importances of the attitude of the German people to their ruler; nor the effect on their morale of the spying to which they are subjected. It is apt to play an important part in the future history of Germany and come of the war.

It seems useless to say that men will fight more bravely, in a more determined manner, for a form of government they respect and admire, than for one which commands their loyalty by fear. Just as soon as the present war ends there will be front-line duty, or the effects of the British blockade, and within a year or now fear Hitler, just so soon will there be trouble in Germany.

Fear is demoralizing. It individuals, are charming. But it is difficult to see any great respect for a populace which tolerates an oppressive, and aggressive type of government simply because it fears to do otherwise. It is not to be suggested, however, that all the people support the Nazi dictatorship because of fear. There is a certain dramatic group which does so for other motives. It is this clique which keeps the people in a state of subjection. Be this as it may, the more people in Germany who fear Hitler, and the greater that fear, the better for the Allied cause. A government which commands the loyalty of its people is much less two strikes on it before a war even starts.—Windsor Daily Star.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

The Slow Emptying Gall Bladder Can Cause Mental Depression

An employee of a large financial institution was notified of his promotion to a larger branch where he would have daily contacts with prominent men wishing to obtain loans. As his present small branch presented many difficulties, he felt that he was unable to accept the promotion, was discouraged with himself, and instead of looking forward to the change he was more unhappy.

He finally visited his physician and told him of his lack of fighting spirit despite the fact that he was not sick. On questioning, the physician found that he had been having some abdominal symptoms — belching, pain on right side of stomach, sleeplessness, and an occasional desire to vomit. The physician advised a diet test and drug which showed that while the gall bladder "filled" at right time there was no evidence of stones, it was very slow in emptying. While this slowness might be accounted for by heavy or fatty meals, the physician believed that the management of the patient, due to his anxiety, was actually causing a spasm of the gall bladder, thus acting as a delay in emptying the bile stored within it. The patient was omitted from the diet and he had taken little or no exercise and had eaten too much rich food.

The physician pointed out that as there was no immediate need of an operation, that if the patient try not to worry, would eat smaller meals (eating regularly), and have regular "bending" exercises to "squeeze" the liver and stomach, the flow of the symptoms—dull pain, belching, and occasional vomiting—should disappear and he should regain his "fighting" spirit.

The patient followed some fat (as fat helps to empty the gall bladder), fruit juices and meat (which also helps to empty gall bladder) and plenty of starch food to keep him from losing his sugar. This is the diet often used when "spasm" is the cause of slow emptying of gall bladder.

The exercises consisted of bending from side to side, forwards and backwards, keeping knees straight. The patient was given the diet and exercises and had regained his confidence.

He no longer felt blue and discouraged, and your common sense tells you that happiness is the greatest tonic for feeling, ask your physician about getting a gall bladder examination.

Letters to the Editor

Editor Ontario Intelligencer,

Dear Sir:

In a recent issue of the Globe and Mail appeared an article headed "a practical way to help."

In the last paragraph are these words; "Whether or not an attempt is to be made to supplement the revenues of the Royal Commission on Dominion Provincial Relations Provincial Co-operation for the elimination of overlapping of services in the public service ought to proceed as a wartime economy measure."

This is a good advice still to make a beginning the railways should be amalgamated, nowhere is there so much duplication and overlapping.

It is time the taxpayer took in hand in the railway situation in wherever possible and if they can't be railway officials for short duration. Now is the time while the British are at war to do it, we need the money at home while the war is on.

LIVELY LINES

by

Arthur L. Burke

A friend of mine said, as with him I broke bread,
"I've a story I'd like you to write;
It concerns this old form, on which I was born,
The place I have worked day and night.

I work and perspire, with the chickens retire,
I'm up with the roosters at dawn,
Yet I wonder and sigh, when the year has gone by,
Where all of my money has gone.

I work like a horse, with main strength and force,
That's part of the every-day game,
When my taxes are paid, other settlements made,
I haven't a cent to my name.

It's a regular dog's life, for me and my wife,
I'm blessed if I know what to do,
Then he said, I believe, the old place I'll leave,
And give it all up, wouldn't you?

But I answered him "No, this fact you should know,
Your goods in this life may be few,
But your name always stood, for the right and the good,
Your convictions were honest and true.

Nor guarantee life for a day,
But the best things at large, are yours without charge,
If you make them your motto alway.

Now, each year as I roam, I visit that home,
And I'm met at the door with a smile,
They work just the same, on that farm up the lane,
For the things that are really worth while.

Was Hitler to Consult Stalin?

What has happened to Herr Hitler's threat to "consult" with Josef Stalin about "measures to be taken" in the event of France and Britain rejecting his peace offer?

Hitler was specific. Ribbentrop and Molotov had arranged by the pact signed in Moscow; it was up to the Allies to say whether they wanted to go on with the war, to face the prospect of Russia getting into it, and Germany with their plan, telling that they are going on with their job not a word comes from Italy.

There seems to be something odd, something a bit phony about those "Italianate, Talleyrand" "don't seem to stand up.—Ottawa Journal.

Scapa Flow Drama

Twenty years ago Scapa Flow recorded a drama of the war. The fished naval base in the Orkneys demonstrated the power day by a German armistice. Nov. 11, 1918, the German fleet, built at a cost of $300,000,000 to rival the British navy. The mighty ships were interned there as Allied statesmen debated the fate of the fleet.

Rear Admiral von Reuter, in charge of the captive armada, had his flagship, the Emden, built at a cost of $300,000,000 to rival the British navy. The mighty ships were interned there as Allied statesmen debated the fate of the fleet.

Rear Admiral von Reuter, in charge of the captive armada, had on June 17, 1919, he had dispatched to his officers a secret order for the scuttling of the armada. The order was carried out on June 21. Von Reuter had left that morning for torpedo practice. Only a few trawlers and two destroyers remaining to watch.

But it was too late. Shots were fired in an attempt to make the vessels stop in their tracks and close the valves they had opened to sink their ships. Thirteen of the sailors were killed.

By the time the British ships had been summoned German vessels had gone to the bottom of the Flow. Only four of the remaining one could be beached.

On June 21, Von Reuter heard that the Reich's proposals had been rejected by the Allies. The signal went out.

Twenty years to the day a London artist on a guarding trawler, who was sketching the Kaiser Friedrich der Grosse, noticed that the big ship was settling in the waters and that boats were being lowered. The alarm was sounded. Rattle messages were sent to the British fleet, but it had left that morning for torpedo practice. Only a few trawlers and two destroyers remaining to watch.

Germany's Food Supplies

One of the chief causes of the defeat of Germany in 1918 was the Allied blockade. Ever since his accession to power Hitler has been keenly aware that he has accordingly been to make Germany as self-sufficient as possible. With the exception of an Allied blockade shortly after the outbreak of hostilities last month, the question of how far Hitler's aim has been achieved is also a vital bearing on the outcome of the present struggle, should it prove protracted.

Data gathered by The Economist indicate that on the basis of the 1936-38 record, Greater Germany's own resources are sufficient to feed her needs after a fashion so far as the bread grain is concerned, with a large margin to spare (with the incorporation of Austria and the aid of Czecho-Slovakia) — at least in time only—and as regards meat. As to other foodstuffs, there would probably be more or less of a deficit from an early date. Fish supplies would probably fall off, as would tea and coffee.

But the problem would be most serious as regards fats and oils and fats. Although 11 per cent of Germany's total imports were devoted in 1936-38, almost three quarters of her corn supplies came from abroad. Unless Russia is able to help—which is far from certain—the only other producing areas accessible to her would be the Balkan countries. But even if she could draw all their entire corn surplus, her supplies would be inadequate in comparison with the situation with regard to fats is even worse. Old Germany was dependent on imports for 45 per cent of her total needs. Austria has not reduced her dependence, about 50 per cent of butter and milk before Anschluss were unimportant as well as barley. There is no reason to doubt that similar proportions of their imports, to prevent, or control shipments into Germany will be made and that the help they can now render her. Just as the pinch is now being severely felt in the Allied countries, the shortage threatens again to be most serious in fats.—New York Times.

Tweed

Tweed—Dr. M. G. Dales, M.O.H., made his regular inspection of Tweed High Consolidated and Separate Schools on Tuesday, and reports that they are in a very satisfactory condition with proper provision being made for heating, lighting, water supply and sanitation.

At Campbellford Lodge on Friday evening the Campbellford second degree team exemplified that degree to candidates from Havelock, Campbellford and Tweed, followed by installation of officers under the direction of Mr. Ed. Bentley.

At the banquet following, Dr. S. R. Beatty, past D.D.G.M. of Madoc presented to Jr. F.G. Geo. Lowry of Campbellford, a beautiful shield, which he had presented for competition to District 45 for the lodge showing the greatest increase in membership during the year.

Bro. Beatty also gave an interesting and impressive address bringing to the fore principles worthy of interest to members of the Order and to the world at large, and said that, if the spirit of true fellowship had been more general in the European countries we would not now be in a war to save the world for democracy, teaching people to preserve the freedom we enjoy as subjects of the British Crown.

Bro. Lacy in a few appropriate and appreciation said he felt the lodges would not fail to carry out the aims of the Order or the calibre of membership. He urged the members into the lodges in an endeavour to win this shield, but it be an incentive to go on to greater accomplishments in the Order.

A number were called on for remarks by N.G. Bro. E. Craighead and a solo was contributed by Wm. Hawthorne of Madoc Lodge. Bro. L. A. MacDougal of Tweed, congratulated Campbellford Lodge on winning the Dr. Beatty Shield, and asked the visiting brethren to stand and convey to Campbellford a vote of thanks for their hospitality. The National Anthem brought the evening to a close.

Installation of officers of Tweed Lodge No. 220 I.O.O.F. was held on Monday evening when D.D.G.M. Barlow of Springbrook and his installing staff paid his official visit to the lodge.

The following officers were installed:—

J.P.G.—A. C. Montgomery.
N.G.—J. Anthon.
V.G.—Thos. Graham.
Rec. Sec'y—L. A. MacDougal.
Fin. Sec'y—C. Ross.
Treas.—A. C. Blakely.
Warden—J. Baker.
Conductor—H. S. Foster.
R.S.N.G.—E. Belch.
L.S.—W.D. Courtney.
R.S.G.—W. E. J. Leal.
L.S.N.G.—H. Thompson.
R.S.V.G.—S. A. McCrary.
L.S.V.G.—Bradshaw.
R.S.S.—E. Pitchett.
Chap.—S. B. McGee.

Visitors were present from Springbrook, Madoc, Havelock, Campbellford, Pickering, Walkerton and Bellerville Lodges. During the social period at the close of the evening, musical items were given by a number of visiting brethren. Bros. C. I. Ross of Madoc and Jack Baker of Bonarlaw, sang a duet which was greatly enjoyed. Bro. Lacy also contributed the third degree on a candidate from Tweed.

Tweed High School received its official visit from Mr. S. G. Rendall, Inspector of Public Department of Education on Wednesday and Thursday. Inspector addressed the staff on the excellence of its work finding the students capable of any in the province. For this he paid particular tribute to Principal Mr. W. J. Deacon.

In connection with Fire Prevention Week an alarm was rung at Tweed schools by Fire Chief Wallace Moon and Chief C. C. Hayes. Both were complimented on the orderliness with which they emptied the buildings.

Beginning on Monday next, the pupils of the old Tweed Separate School will meet in the Convent hall, Tweed, which is conducted until the new Separate School is ready for occupancy. Alterations were necessary owing to the fact that the roof of the old building will be used on the inside walls of the new school.

Mr. and Mrs. John MacBeth left on Saturday for Toronto. For the past year Mr. MacBeth has been manager of the local Sebrite Store at Tweed. Angus Hunt is also transferred, has been appointed as Mr. MacBeth's successor.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Tummon and S. B. Hollins attended the Dominion Fire Chiefs Banquet Mitchell on Wednesday.

Eva Alma Kelly, second daughter of Mr and Mrs. Frank Kelly of Crookston, and Mr. Lorne Ingraham of Mr. John Wesley Moore, son of Crookston. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Kelly. The groomsman was Mr. Burton Moore, brother of the groom. The bridesmaid was Miss Ruth Kelly, sister of the bride in Crookston.

Mr. Ingraham is attending Business College in Brockville.

Fall Care of Lawns Ensures Good Growth

Proper attention to the lawn in the fall will help to ensure a good growth of grass the following year, and should be allowed to go into the winter with a considerably longer growth than is maintained during the summer. The cutting bar of the mowing machine is raised and clipping should be done less frequently than during the earlier part of the season as the growth is more rapid. Mowing should stop altogether before the weather turns cold.

The use of a fertilizer mixture containing a small percentage of nitrogen but considerable amounts of potash and phosphorus is recommended at this season. Such treatment will help to build up strong roots and the fertilizer should be watered in immediately after application. A heavy application of this type of grass may result.

Coming late weather should be abnormally dry watering of the lawn should be discontinued in the fall and normally rainfall is usually enough moisture to permit the grass to go through the winter.

On no account should coverings of straw, leaves, brush or manure be applied to the lawn for the purpose of preventing the accumulation of water on the lawn in the late fall or early spring.

Further information on specific insect problems and the care of the bent grass lawns, and bowling greens may be obtained from the Division of Forage Plants, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

AT THE BELLE

"The Rains Came"

Hailed as one of the truly great motion pictures ever made, Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "The Rains Came," the sensationally successful novel by Louis Bromfield, opens today at the Belle Theatre, with Myrna Loy, Tyrone Power and George Brent sharing stellar honors.

This powerful story of human emotions at the breaking point and human loves at the climax, while the untamed forces of nature ravaged the earth, has been faithfully filmed in this 20th Century-Fox film, in which all of Bromfield's colorful characters are brought to vivid life.

CANADIAN COW BREAKS WORLD'S RECORD

A new world's record for butterfat production on twice-a-day milking, over all breeds and all ages has been established in Canada.

The two records mentioned above together with the junior two year old production of 458 pounds of fat produced by Lady Eksteth, Tyrone Power has his most romantic role as Major Rama Jatti and George Brent plays the world-weary Tom Ransome.

Brenda Joyce, star-maker Zanuck's newest discovery, interprets the role of young Fern Simcox, while Marjorie Rambeau, Henry Travers and H. B. Warner.

Clarence Brown directed the production, which reproduces with breath-taking realism the earthquake, flood, fire and plague highlighting the novel. Philip Dunne and Julien Josephson wrote the screen play and Harry Joe Brown was associate producer.

Interviewed after his first showing of the film, Bromfield declared his delight with Zanuck's picturization of his novel and the experteuss of Brown's direction.

The Belle News of the World and a funny Terrytoon cartoon will be presented on the same program.

Convention Stresses Need of War Work to Help Allies in Struggle

FINE EXHIBITS

Mrs. J. Bailey, Eldorado, was re-elected chairman of the Belleville Convention of the Women's Institutes at the closing session of their annual meeting yesterday afternoon.

Officers for 1940 are:

Honorary Chairman—Mrs. C. Hoskins, Eldorado.

Chairman—Mrs. J. Bailey, Eldorado.

1st Vice President—Mrs. J. Black, Warkworth.

2nd Vice President—Mrs. R. Bush, Consecon.

Secretary-Treasurer—Mrs. A. Mitchell, Belleville.

Publicity Convener—Mrs. W. A. Hoskins, Cobourg.

Directors—Mrs. C. Holmes, Belleville.

Legislation — Miss F. Barker, Bloomfield.

Community Activities and Relief Mrs. G. Saunby, Trenton.

Peace—Mrs. O. McEaren, Melrose.

Canadianization—Mrs. H. Wicks, Cobourg.

Girls' Work—Mrs. G. A. Nelson, Wortworth.

Registration—Mrs. M. B. Weese, Wellerville, Ill. and Mrs. Saunby, Belleville.

Auditors—Mrs. N. Brown, Belleville, Mrs. M. Vandervoort, Stirling.

Meeting Sessions

Mrs. R. Bush, Cobourg, presided at Friday morning's session of the Women's Institutes convention meeting in St. Thomas Parish House.

Mrs. A. Mitchell, Belleville, read the financial statement of the previous annual convention. The report showed a balance in the hands of the treasurer's report which had been audited.

Miss G. Laundry, Hillier, in her report on Community Activities and Relief, said that many branches had already organized war work.

The report said: "We have showed a year of real achievement. The branches made generous gifts to the interests of the young people at heart by providing a large share of the Lyell fund. This fund is the form of field days, picnics, dances, oyster suppers, garden parties, pair basquets, "True or False" and "Artistic Needlework" contests. Various betterment libraries were organized and local improvements completed: Homes, sewing rooms, school fairs and courses. Friendly and charitable deeds received attention in many branches which attended to the needs of their own community and then extended their interest to other, worthy fields. Study could be made of community needs, as this side did not seem to be mentioned in the reports.

Stress War Work

Community activities will stress war work and while all should make every effort to do their part it is essential that all that makes life normal and happy should be continued. Sewing circles should aid handicapped children, cheer and comfort grown-ups, card and quilt parties will stress the social needs of youth and the education of adults should not be neglected. After the war will come the problem of nursing Canada back to work and it is hoped that intelligent study now will bring the country through this era without the tragedies of unemployment and relief.

Exhibit Program

What the branches are doing for health and for fellowship was clearly defined by Mrs. J. A. McDonald, Hastings, convener of this subject. Papers on many health and child welfare topics were discussed at branch meetings, and demonstrations given on this work. Mrs. McDonald, in an interesting manner discussed preventive measures and how Institute members could assist this work by spreading knowledge of health matters.

Mrs. F. J. Nickle, Eldorado, Provincial Convener of Health, in the absence of Mrs. Mitchell, read her report.

Girls' Work

The remainder of the morning's session was devoted to girls' work under the leadership of Miss Jean M. Scott, Lindsay, Miss Dorothy Coach and Miss Kathleen Giles, R. R. No. 1 Marmora. Miss Scott and Miss Scott on behalf of the girls expressed appreciation to the women for the co-operation given during the past year. The girls also were grateful to local leaders for their guiding interest in the work. This phase of Institute endeavour was enjoyed keeping girls and boys busy. The scope of girls' activities was outlined by Miss Giles for the attention of the audience by the program which followed. The singing of the girls including part amused and delighted their audience, being a conclusive proof of the value of girls' work.

Misses Helen Lowe and Hazel Minaker of the Young Girls' Club, Mountain View, demonstrated pottery accessories for the girls' room. Upon the stage they placed miniature furniture to completely furnish a bedroom, demonstrating cotton accessories for bed, dressing table, dressing chair, made in an economical, desirable and practical manner that would meet any girl's demands.

The Milk Bar

Miss Velma Peterson of Warkworth gave a talk on "The Milky Way" project undertaken by the girls of Northumberland. She explained the food value of milk and by means of a "Milk Bar" explained the various types of milk.

Miss Peterson also reported the activities of Girls' Clubs throughout the county, stating that many projects had been taken up and brought to a successful conclusion. The Garden and Canning Clubs were also mentioned and organized while "Dressing up Room Vegetables" was a popular study.

Conference Leaders

Miss Bridges, director of the Ontario Agricultural College's Agricultural School was a special guest speaker at the meeting. She said, the country is at war, a war for democracy. The base of the democracy is the home. The home as democracy believes in freedom of the individual and in the democratic family. A great deal of attention is given to Home Economics in the only form of education which broadly deals with the home. Also, that the girls and girls learned the subject of clothing, cooking, groceries, posture, how to choose becoming clothes. Also, how to make over clothes, homes attractive and cozy, both in furnishings and home atmosphere. The study of Canada's average person eats 77,000 meals in a lifetime, was an important part of Home Economics. In all the course there is a definite system of management that would give a girl poise, self assurance, initiative, self reliance and a definite system of usefulness.

Miss Kathleen Montgomery, Redneresville, described in detail the Girls' Conference at Guelph which she had the privilege of attending.

Delicious Meals

Delicious meals for the delegates were provided Thursday and Friday by members of St. John's Mission in the basement of the Parish House. The tables were beautifully decorated with fall flowers. An appetizing menu was served very efficiently by the ladies in charge. Mrs. Wm. Gay presided at the tea sitting officer Friday afternoon. Mrs. W. Newell of Trenton Department of Agriculture addressed the meeting briefly. Mrs. Newell was brought up in the previous reports and many helpful suggestions. Mrs. Newell reminded the hearers that the Women's Institute can be pledged to aid in time of peace, and all the government asked, in war emergency work. To present their job was to carry on splendidly as they had done in peace, to answer when definite call was made on their time and ability.

Mrs. C. Gillis, Trenton Convener, gave a splendid report on Historical Research which was done through special papers and discussions. Many older members of the community the Institute called gathered much valuable historical data.

She told how Hastings County Institutes had long been familiar to her by name. Introduced at a banquet held in the Bridge Street church during the last war. Working as a branch she was astonished to how pital that had been converted from a schoolhouse by funds subscribed by the ladies' organization. The room bore the name of a township, and furnishings one of the field hospitals and when she came to live in this district she was happy to become acquainted with the places that had subscribed to this wonderful undertaking.

Fine Exhibits

That the art of transforming humble articles into objects of beauty is well known to institute members was shown in the exhibits of articles made from sugar bags, including lovely bed spreads, everyday table cloths, scarves, Verandah and car cushions were made from rough bags. Other articles of home make were rugs, and kitchen dress ensemble all showing remarkable originality.

At the conclusion of election of officers there was a resolution of appreciation to all those who contributed to the success of the convention and suggestions were made for the 1940 gathering.

The Stars Say

For Sunday, October 22

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a happy one for affairs of the church and clergy. There is definite promise of promotion, preferment, honors and interest in the affairs of the church, superiors and those in high places. Investments are also favored, with genital sudden change, not entirely unwelcome or regretted.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year in which there are complications and contradictions. There are definite promises of promotion, favors and substantial tokens of preferment from superiors and those in authority. However, there also are signs of sudden upheaval and disturbance, which may not contribute to happiness or physical well-being. Those who are born

A child born on this day may be steady, persistent and successful gaining recognition and reward from its superiors.

For Monday, October 23

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a day in which affairs more likely to succeed are those with a fair degree of progress and satisfaction. This evening may not be sanctioned by a mind that is keen, alert and zealous in the pursuit of gain, and is warmly desirous of putting over greater programs.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a moderately successful year in the pursuit of gain. Health and mental facilities may be wheited by keen ambitions expressed highly stimulated, creative urges with verve and fine initiative. Splendid ideas and practical schemes may be incubating in the thought world. A child born on this day, endowed with splendid mentality, may be original, practical and ambitious, inventive, enthusiastic and indomitable. It should attain a good degree of success and happiness in life.

The story of one of the great women of the twentieth century is told by George Palmer Putnam in "Soaring Wings" (Harrap). Amelia Earhart. In this informal and intimate record, Mr. Putnam writes of his wife and the person behind the personage who became for them the symbol of courage and adventure. Here we see the aviatrix as a girl, a young girl who wanted to live life to the full and who did. From childhood days in Kansas, through high school and college years, the book reveals the growth to maturity of a distinguished character and reflects in its imagination by delightful anecdotes.

For those who wish to learn more about music, musical terms, and to stimulate interest in this radiocommanding generalities, Percival Horwood, has written his book "Music for Everybody" (Ryerson). Lecturer in Musical Appreciation for the University of Toronto and director of many musical programs for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, he has collected these talks that have resulted from his many years experience. His book is a complete survey of the field of music written for moderns who have neither the time nor the inclination for a more detailed study. Dr. Horwood outlines music for the listener, explains musical terms through counterpoint, harmony, the characteristics of each instrument, brief biographies of composers, and concludes his book with short analysis of popular symphonies. In short, the reader can find in this book the information on music, whether he listens in a concert hall, a theatre, or in his home by the radio.

"Beyond the sea" by Commander Edward Ellsberg is the story of those men of unusual courage and resourcefulness who have battled with the deep sea, some to save life, some to salvage ships, some to save themselves, sometimes treasure. The world beneath the surface of the ocean, its dangers and the literature of the under-sea, whether for terrors and legendary treasures of the deep, always have fascinated ocean floor. In his book, Commander Ellsberg has presented facts of gifts the human mind and reaches of Jules Verne. He begins with the modern divers who rescued the sunken treasure and the world's gold from the R.M.S. Laurentic sunk during the World War.

He tells the remarkable application of physics to industry and the conquering of the sea. Illustrations by George Russell Harrison in his book show the modern equipment of the department of physics and Director of the Research Laboratory of Experimental Physics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the man some of the practical achievements of whose life are the basis of discussion are its applications to agriculture, telegraphy, glass, metallurgy, medicine, aviation and the weather. Each topic is discussed in relation to the future of the future. Those who delight in speculation on the future may look to the information in such things-to-come as the self-answering telephone, cold light and television.

GILEAD W. M. S.

The October meeting of the auxiliary was held at the parsonage in Canniton. Mrs. Cameron gave a general business and made all welcome. Encouraging reports had been sent and after a devotional opening followed by Scripture reading by Mrs. Jones and music was given. Those taking part were Mrs. C. Cameron, Mrs. Bert Jones, Mrs. Ross and Mrs. Lawrenson a duet; Mrs. Armstrong sang a solo. Mrs. Armstrong served lunch and took charge of the meeting for the rest of the improvements.

The evening service and the autumn Thanksfforing meeting was held in the church. Mrs. Treverton presided at the opening service and introduced Mrs. Wm. Badgley as guest speaker, who gave a fine Missionary work in general.

Miss Hollie Clare sang a solo and the choir also rendered. Offering amounted to $7.50. Announcement was made for the social evening at Mr. F. Balcanquel's.

CENTENARY W. A.

The October meeting of the W. A. was held at the home of Mrs. Gay on Thursday.

The pot luck dinner served at noon was most tempting and all enjoyed the good things provided.

After a social hour, the president, Mrs. Holton called the meeting to order with singing the theme song. Hymn 364 was sung followed by prayer. The 23rd Psalm was read responsively. Mrs. Everett Elliott then favored with a vocal solo which was enjoyed by all.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and the roll call conferred. Several items of business were taken care of and the meeting closed with the Mizpah.

The W.M.S. meeting followed. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Holton took charge. The study "The Beauty of the Earth" was the opening hymn. Prayers were offered by Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Aikins, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Holton.

Mrs. Aikens read the Scripture after which the offering was received. Mrs. Edgar Ray gave an interesting missionary reading. This was followed by a duet by Mrs. Mercer in her usual fine voice. Hymn 349 was sung and Rev. Mr. Mercer closed the meeting with prayer.

AIKEN'S W. A.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Aiken's United Church was held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Sam Marshall. 2nd Concession with twenty-two members present.

The rain on Thursday, homes were guests at the dinner hour—helping to fill the coffee—the dinner collection being $10.

The President, Mrs. Fred Westover, opened the meeting with the theme song, Mrs. Marshall and Mrs. Hobbs assisting with the devotional.

The President expressed appreciation to the officers and members of the W. A. for their co-operation in work during her absence and gratitude for flowers, fruit and all remembrances sent during her illness. There were also words of appreciation from Mrs. Gerald Brickman for remembrances while in the hospital. The collection taken at the "gift day" was planned for the next meeting, when the fowl supper donations would be brought in.

Readings "The divine office of the kitchen" by Miss Ruth Spafford and "Thank You" by little Miss Marjorie Jean Conlin and an interesting talk on wool conditions by Mrs. W. H. Kells completed the program which was closed with prayer by Mrs. Thos. Irwin.

Dear Miss Fairfax

I have been over a year and a half to a young man and as we were continually running out of something or other and couldn't seem to get along at all, I broke off with him. We have been apart for ages, and now I hear he's going to be married to another girl very shortly. I think I still love him and I've heard that he still talks of me, so I've saved some money for a long trip, but I think I'll use it on a wedding present for him and his bride and I want to send something really handsome. What would you suggest?

Unhappy

First of all, my dear, I'm going to suggest that you take that money and use it on a trip, as previously planned. You'll be needing it after what you've told me. Give them a simple wedding gift. It will be in much better taste. Something in silver would be very nice—a dish or bowl perhaps—but much more may be had at the Jeweller's in the Congregation. He will probably be wouldn't advise you to spend more than is safe as it may be too revealing of your feelings toward the young man.

He Wonders If She's Really Serious

Dear Miss Fairfax

I have been going with for a long time doesn't like to admit her feelings to me, but I've become fond of her. When I ask for a date she always hesitates before she accepts, but never turns me down. Her indecision drives wild at times.

Do you think she really loves me and is only hiding her feelings? Please advise me.

Impatient

As long as she accepts your dates, why worry about it? You must make some allowance for the old-fashioned art of coquetry on the part of this "nice" young lady. Probably she considers you a trifle "fast" attractive if she showed her feelings more than she does. And if I were you I wouldn't take her hesitation so seriously.

Says He Wants Her Only as Friend

Dear Miss Fairfax

Recently I became acquainted with a very nice young man, with whom I became friendly, and before long I found I was in love with him. One night he became rather talkative and said he could never care for another girl, because one gave him what he called "a divy deal." Then he said I was to be a girl for him.

I told him I liked him well enough not to let this other affair worry him, but I could never be more of me than of any other girl he knew and would like to keep me as a friend. Since then he has avoided me. I've tried to forget him and go out with other men, but I keep more or less tears. And once in a while he leads me to believe he does care a little for me.

No Patience

Don't you think you have been a trifle hasty in your decision? It is possible he may get a job which will enable him to marry. As the other girl, he'll forget about her. At the same time, I wouldn't take him too seriously.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS HECKMAN

Mothers Sometimes Responsible for Children's Discourtesy

I cannot understand why a mother permits her husky son to keep his seat in the street car or bus when a white-an elderly woman—or, indeed, any women—stands in front of him or near him. Not many times in my observation have I seen a mother wake up to this absurd impoliteness of her son and bid him give up his seat.

Often I have observed that many mothers push their way into the bus or car ahead of their son by force, push a stalwart son in ahead of them so that the able-bodied youth is not invited to assist and can snatch a seat and comfortably install it in for the rest of the trip.

We probably should not be surprised that we are undoubtedly all worn out from playing football or the "Stock Exchange Game" if Mamma makes it possible and easy for him to capture a seat, why should he be expected to relinquish it? What does the selfish young man care about the comfort of others? Self-satisfied, he and his mother sit there, and the mother is proud of the efficiency of courtesy. What an advertisement he is of his mother!

Is it not chiefly unsuspecting and I'm leaving the matter of selecting a wife entirely to myself. Is that proper?

4—Concerning the ring itself, would you suggest natural gold or white gold?

Appreciative

1—Yes.

2—Yes, sir, when you have "popped the question and the Fair Lady has said 'Yes,' then it is natural and proper that you should go to see her in father or mother, or whoever is her guardian, and tell them of it. This person all questions that concern the future happiness of you both should, of course, be told. It is essentially straightforward correspondence. The only question that can be that way, for this will bring you respect and will start things off right.

3—The choosing of the ring is a very important matter. It is not only your fiancee, but it is such a personal matter to her that usually she should be consulted. Some men choose the ring, or you and she may go together to choose it. I would, if I were ill all her life, and so it must be "right" for her choice and taste.

COLLEGIATE NEWS

Last Friday afternoon, Mr. Wilson McDonald, the famous Canadian poet, once again thrilled the pupils of Collegiate.

Of absorbing interest was his school with Canadian poetry, in which he gave an informative account of the Canadian poets, beginning with Charles Heavysege, Isabella Valancey Crawford, Sir Theodore Hardy's poem, "Oxen of the Cross" and the "Oxen Rockers" by Pauline Johnson, and finally Robert Service's "Yaga-bond Song".

Following these, Mr. McDonald recited many of his own poems. By special request, his poem "Spring is Antioch" was given. We breathlessly followed him through "The Song of the Lark" and "Where the Red pines, and over the ski jump. Then came the stirring "Over the Top" poems", at the "elegant crow, and the infamous Hun at work.

All left the auditorium with a greater appreciation of poetry. Mr. McDonald's work in the Canadian poetry is among the best in the world, and he should be highly realized than in his own poetry.

Fashion Flashes

SOUND PICTURE is the bright name given to a trim taffeta frock. An afternoon model in black, it has the bodice shirred and has the shirring caught here and there with tiny bows.

The Arabian Nights mood is the inspiration for black white brocaded satin turban, the fabric caught in a twist and an elaborate jewel-led flower spray.

Glitter at night when winter comes. Let the fashionable coat be that of pastel ostrich has a snood that shimmers with rhinestones.

The younger fry is well looked after when it comes to fashions destined especially for them. Little sister rejoices in a new frock of navy, green, red and yellow plaid. Don't wear a pale blouse.

Dr. Chase's Kidney Pills

"My Back is Killing Me"

It is said that more people suffer from backache than from any other pains or aches. When the back aches the cause is usually traced to poisons in the blood that the kidneys have failed to remove. Or else it is considered a case of lumbago. Dr. Chase's Kidney Pills help to increase the activity of the kidneys in their work of filtering poisons from the blood.

REDHEADS ARE LUCKY

By Vera Brown

"He walked up for you last night," Mrs. Shannon said.

Shmike's face sharp too. But she managed to satisfy him with her story of the game. Then, shortly after she got into bed, Mary was awake and she had to report further. There was no escape for Mike.

Next morning, before she left the house, she wrote Handsons another little note, then slipped it into the box at Times Square, knowing it would reach him by mid-afternoon at the latest.

At noon, Mr. Downey asked her if he take some company to the boardroom where the receivers were meeting. That gave her a chance to walk past the desk, glance at Handsome's box. Her note of yesterday was still there.

Tonight was the dinner given by sporting fans to Handsome Jack. There he do speeches and presents. It was a stag dinner and Mrs. Handsome had been invited to the broadcast with Jimmie. "I'll feel better if he don't see me then."

Another day, Mike fled home to hear that Margaret put on the air. When Handsome's voice sounded with its grave laughing drawl, she had to make an excuse to leave the broadcast room. Her voice must bear it, so natural and casual.

Another day. And no word from Handsome. Mike knew that the hotel were beginning to whisper. Mike and Handsome! Why, the whole town's seeing him any more. Nobody had met her. Toward midnight Mike came by, stopped off to talk to her. Even Mike didn't dare call Handsome's room. Instead she wrote, shivering in the pale morning light, wept not only for Handsome, but for the woman he would never know.

Handsome was there stayed in town until nine-thirty and telephoned Handsons. Mike was not in. He was glad pleased to hear her voice. She did not go on to Charlotte because of business that could not be postponed. Morning, early, long before the sun, Handsome was in New York. He was there all day, and then flat in Brooklyn. Handsome's mother was dead. Mike sitting there, shivering in the pale morning light, wept not only for Handsome, but for the woman he would never know.

Handsome was there stayed in town until nine-thirty and telephoned Handsons. Mike was not in. He was glad pleased to hear her voice. She did not go on to Charlotte because of business that could not be postponed. He said it was not necessary.

Mike and Handsome did not come back to Manhattan. Or Long Island. Handsome was so much to do he hated to leave his father etc. But the thing which he had been dreading all day in the town was the fact that his mother had been bothering him again. He had to see the doctor about it at once. Handsome was dead. That week-end. Mike was wild with joy. She had a new coat to wear with her white suit, and a new evening dress looked well. Her mother had made a special trip to New York to buy them.

Thursday when the final sports broadcast was over, it was about four o'clock. Mike noted a dazzling blonde who smiled out from the broadcast booth at Jimmie pretty. And above the picture it was labeled "Mrs. Handsome." Just the type exploded: "So the Judge said to Ed Wall, 'I'll give you a month and the records almost without realizing what they meant!

Mrs. Handsome's Inferno Cafe was given a traffic ticket for parking in front of the Handsome's box at noon. When she explained that the car was Handsome Regan's Mike was just doing an injustice to the perfect pitcher, Magistrate Bolley, a bachelor, let her go with a warning.

Miss Hansen went to work on this year's World's Series, Miss Hansen, will you promise to produce Handsome's wife and Jimmie's a broad smile.

"Of course, I will," said lovely blonde Miss Hansen.

"I've lost him. I know it!" She could not put into words the panic. They had to stay piled there for all who might see them. The game was on around the hotel who knew Handsome and Mike were gossiping again. Handsome's mother coming. That would make everything all right.

"I won't give him up. Not without a fight!" Mike kept resolving.

Only a few little words could make the world seem so different. Yesterday she could sit in beside him in the handsome new car and talk casually for three hours. Mike blundered in everything she tried, she was so afraid of breaking down.

"I'm so sorry, Larry. Forgive me."

"That's all right. I was furious with you, but I'm over it."

"I suppose I was childish."

"You were."

His tone made Mike angry. "You'd have been angry at me under similar circumstances."

"Do I ever get mad when the boys take me for dinner."

"Well, you all but broke your pitching hand on Lee."

"You haven't socked Dusty?"

Before Mike could answer, he added, "By the way, you're the last night with Ralston? He's in town. I saw him with Carol today."

"No."

"Oh!"

"Please, Larry, let's not!" Then Mike broke down. It wasn't long before she to eat or sleep. I couldn't go home to face the family.

Her voice was so pitiful that even Handsome was dismayed.

"Mike, darling, I can't kiss you on Brooklyn Bridge in all this traffic. Move over, you. I'll stop crying!" Handsome was sincerely crying. He was appalled at the depth of Mike's suffering.

"There, put your arm around me, Mike. Handsome's mother was dead. I saw that crack in the paper today? That's all? Mike, I'll be at the Inferno will say anything to get their names in the paper. Iris is all right, just another blonde. A swell show girl!"

Handsome spoke her name so easily that Mike winced.

She keeps calling me up, says that picture in the paper is worth it to her career. Mike, I'll tell you that they dropped the subject.

CHAPTER XXV

At the house, the Shannons were all waiting for Handsome and Mike. Mrs. Handsome and Handsons seemed to have a good time. He insisted on taking her home for a short ride after the dishes were done.

"Tomorrow night we'll celebrate chicken. Sweet dinner, just you and me. Island home. Island home place! Kiss me! Feel all right now?"

"Yes."

"That's good. Now we'll forget all our differences."

In the days to come Mike wondered if she had. There was no grand celebration the next day. At noon, Handsome found Mike with she was having a sandwich in the drug store.

"Look!" He handed her a telegram from his father. It urged him to come home. His sister and mother was seriously ill.

"Mike, I should have known when she didn't come down for the Series that something was wrong."

Mike had never seen Handsome so completely upset.

"I'll take the 3 o'clock plane for Boston. Or I can get a plane to a plane at Lansing. He liked her good-bye in the drug store. "I'll write you and write you tonight or wire you, darling. I should be back in a few days at most."

But Handsome was not back so soon. Mike wrote him a letter a day. He wrote, now and then. It was obvious from his letters that Handsome was in the hotel morning, early, long before the sun, Handsome was in New York. He was there all day, and then flat in Brooklyn. Handsome's mother was dead. Mike sitting there, shivering in the pale morning light, wept not only for Handsome, but for the woman he would never know.

ARMSTRONG K.O'S RICHIE FONTAINE IN THIRD ROUND

Hammering Henry Scores Third Victory in Present Tour

MUCH TOO SMART

Fontaine on Canvass Six Times, Before Towel is Thrown in Ring

By GAIL FOWLER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Seattle, Oct. 21 (CP)—Three up and three to go, Honolulu Henry Armstrong was ready today to leave for Los Angeles and another title fight after turning in a three-round technical knockout over Richie Fontaine of Missoula, Mont., last night.

Armstrong, the world's welterweight champion who weighed 139½, bounced Fontaine to the canvas seven times before the towel came in from Richie's corner in two minutes and three seconds of the third. Fontaine scaled 141.

It was Henry's third knockout on his present western tour. He scored off Al Manfredo and Howard Scott during the last two weeks. On Oct. 24 he fights Bobby Pacho of Los Angeles at Denver, then will rest a couple of weeks at Hot Springs, Ark., before taking on Lou Ambers in New York Dec. 1.

Armstrong crashed a right below the ear with being the blow that put Richie on the canvas seven times. It landed in the second round as the two battlers were milling in mixing. Richie dropped to his knees flung a shot of cement, and declares he doesn't remember anything from then on.

Richie bombed to the canvas four times in the round, so wozy he didn't bother to stay down and take a nine-count. The knockdowns ranged from no-counts to four-counts before the gong saved him from a further hiding.

Rubber-legged, he staggered out for the third, and Henry spun him about at will, setting an opening. He finally found it and spilled Richie for a six-count. Fontaine struggled to his feet uncertainly and soon stopped a clever left jab that sent him flat on his face. The towel beat Referee Tommy Clark to the count.

MORE FIGHTING THAN WRESTLING IN MAIN BOUT

Joe Maich Wins Over Ed. Korrie, When Latter is Disqualified

BOYS QUITE ROUGH

Pedro Valdez Easy Winner Over Pugnacious Eddie Sobel

What was advertised as a wrestling show at the Hume Arena last night actually turned out to be a rough assemble more of a fist fight as Joe Maich, the former Canadian amateur champion, was awarded the main bout decision when his opponent 202 "Slugger" Korrie, of England, was disqualified in the final round of the main bout, after each had previously won a fall.

Korrie, a former boxer, repeatedly resorted to boxing tactics, but Maich proved equal to the occasion with the result he won the first fighting that wrestling seen in the main attraction.

For action and gorilla like rowser, it remained to have the semi-final bout about the show when Pedro Valdez, the fans' favourite from Mexico City, win over Eddie Sobel, the pugnacious and villainous Hamilton boy in consecutive falls. Sobel tried to rough matters with the lithe Mexican, who always proved equal to the opponents' attacks with his ring science, which ultimately triumphed.

Refused to Shake Hands

Sobel demonstrated his villainous attitude when he refused to shake hands with the courteous Mexican after the grapplers received ring instructions from Referee Faux. After much acrobatics and mauling, a figure-four armlock and with the flying cartwheel flattened Sobel for the first time in 17.34 - minutes. Although Sobel assumed the offensive and even went so far as to hang the Mexican in the ropes at one stage, once again bounced a figure-four armlock and won with a flying cartwheel, after levelling Sobel with a "Mexican boomerang" off the ropes, in 14.55 minutes.

Used Boxing Knowledge

To open the main bout, "Slugger" Korrie, a former boxer of note from England, used his fighting knowledge to assume the offensive over Joe Maich, of Brantford. While Maich resigned to the ring early in the first round as Maich retaliated and the contestants stood toe-to-toe and slugged it out Korrie went so far as to punch Referee Clark after the latter broke up the hysteria, bit the official floored Korrie with a right over the jaw. Finally Korrie kicked Maich in the groin and as the latter was writhing in pain on the mat, Korrie fell on his prostrate and helpless body for the fall after 20 minutes of rig bedlam.

Maich opened the second round with a series of flying mares and finally floored Korrie with a perfect flying scissors kick that left his victim easy prey for a press after only 7.10 minutes of fast action. In the final round the boys were content to stand toe-to-toe and each other unmercifully with their fists more than they used in the ring something like three such out-breaks Korrie snatched a towel from a corner post, and wrapping it around Maich's neck, dragged him around the mat until Referee Faux stopped the fight and disqualified Korrie, declaring Maich the winner on a foul.

Surf-Board Ride

Some fine comedy wrestling was seen in the preliminary bout that saw Young Tarzan, Hamilton Falls, win over Allen Buttlehanam of Hamilton to catch weights. Griffin won the match on inverted surf-board hold as he stood Buttlehanam on his head, shoulders on the body and feet dangling in midair.

During the show it was announced that Roy Doherty, of Hamilton, would meet Joe Gomella a suitable opponent from Winnipeg on next week's card.

TORONTO BOXER LOSES DECISION

Spider Armstrong Outclassed From Fifth Round in Bout With Bobby Green

Philadelphia, Oct. 21 (CP)— A savage body attack won Bobby Green of Philadelphia a 10-round decision last night over Spider Armstrong of Toronto.

Armstrong started fast, cutting Green's left eye in the first round and landing several hard rights in the second, but Green's body blows in the third made the Toronto fighter back up.

Green landed a hard right in the fifth and from then on Armstrong for the most part fought defensively with Green keeping in close and cracking left and rights to the body.

Armstrong rallied late in the third round, outboxed Green in the fourth, but in the fifth he was outclassed.

Armstrong weighed 136, Green 124 1-2.

PREMIERES OUT FOR THE WINGS

Players Report With Sore Legs After Standing Hours to See Lamour

Detroit, Oct. 21 (CP)—Premiers are out for the Detroit Red Wings from now on. Manager Jack Adams banned the Hollywood spectacles for his National Hockey League team after half a dozen reported with sore legs after standing around hours waiting for a glimpse of Dorothy Lamour, film star who attended the premiere of a picture here.

Don Deacon, Buck Jones, Syd Abel and others of the team retired to the theatre entrance about 6.45 p.m. hoping for a glimpse of the star when she went in around the scheduled 7.15 p.m. They didn't know their Hollywood stars. Lamour wasn't in sight at 8.15, and by then the premiere was so dense the players couldn't leave. She didn't arrive for another two hours.

When several of Adams' stars lacked their usual vim in practice, Adams called a halt and demanded an explanation. The shamefaced players told all.

Happy Emms to Be Playing Manager

Detroit, Oct. 21 (CP)—Leighton (Happy) Emms, once a star of the Windsor Bulldogs in the International Amateur League, will be the playing manager of a new hockey club in Omaha, Neb., it was announced here today.

Emms, a Barrie, Ont., resident, was a high-scoring defenceman with the Pittsburgh Hornets last year. The Omaha team yet to be named, is entered in the American Association. Emms is the property of the Detroit Red Wings of the National League. The Omaha club is a farm team for the Wings.

O. S. D. TROUNCE TRENTON 28 TO 6 IN LEAGUE GAME

USE AERIAL ATTACK

Game is Rough, Derry of Trenton is Banished for Attack on Referee Townsend

In a razzle-dazzle passing football game, and one for the O.S.D. score points in every quarter, Coach Frank Cunningham's O.S.D. gridders assumed the leadership of the Bay of Quinte Senior Interscholastic six-man football group by soundly whipping the Trenton High School crowd and 28 to 6 on the latter's home field yesterday. The win gives the O.S.D. abbreviated gridders a first and a first two games played.

When the final boys' took over the league leadership yesterday they did it the hard way on several occasions the homesters made matters rather rough for the visitors with the result that several flatly outbreaks resulted culminated by play-berry, of Trenton, attacking Referee "Red" Townsend and subsequently being banished from the game. Heavy tackling, falling on and rough play were the entire tussle, but the sturdy O.S.D. kids emerged from the fray unscathed and victorious. Coach Frank Cunningham announced today.

O.S.D. Score Early

After the kick-off Trenton forced the play and on power-play advanced the ball to the O.S.D. 30 yard line, but the kids from the "dear school" finally halted the onrush and gained possession. On the first O.S.D. down Steve Graziano went around left end and with some fine broken field running, galloped the entire length of the field for a touchdown and later on a forward pass from Kinikil, Graziano added four to the account. The first touchdown to make the score 21 to 0 at halftime.

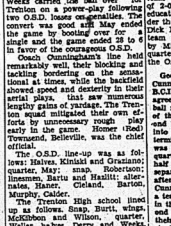
Graziano's Fourth

May punted to the deadline for a point and Graziano took a pass from May and ran rough-shod over the opposition for his third touchdown scoring effort of the game. Argue-Prents were stiff and fiddle outbreaks were seen all along the line until Weeks carried the ball over for Trenton on a power-play following two O.S.D. losses on penalties. The convert was missed and the score in the game by booting over for a single and Trenton ended up 16 to 6 in favor of the courageous O.S.D.

Coach Cunningham's line finds remarkable ability in blocking and tackling bordering on the sensational at times, while the backfield showed speed and dexterity in their aerial plays. They saw numerous long-length gains of yardage. The Trenton squad mitigated their own efforts by numerous fumbles, play early in the game. Homer Heid-Townsend, of Picton, was the game official.

The O.S.D. line-up was as follows: Halves, Kinikil and Graziano; quarter, May; snap, Robertson; linesmen, Bailey and Cleland; substitutes, Haner, Cleland, Barton, Murphy, Calder.

The Trenton High school lineup as follows: Soap, Burtt, Wray, McGibbon and Wilson, quarter, Weller, halves, Derry and Weeks, alternates, McCaughey and Wright.



PERMANENT LOSS?

For their second game of the season against Montreal Royals and for their third against Toronto Argonauts, Ottawa Rough Riders were without the services of Tony Golab, above, star backfielder, who is out for the rest of the season with an arm injury he sustained in the opener against Hamilton Tigers. Golab played with Sarnia in the O.R.F.U. last year.

TOPCOAT TIME: . . .

Just the time of the year when that extra warmth is badly needed without sacrificing a smart appearance—this is our cue to step into the picture with the season's newest TOPCOAT styles each one possessing style quality and warmth aplenty.

Frank Cunningham's six-man football squad from the O.S.D. took over the leadership of the Bay of Quinte senior Interscholastic six-man football group with a clean-cut 28 to 6 win over the Trenton High School on the latter's field yesterday. The lads from the "dear school" went to the air and passed for results consistently until they had the Trenton kids dizzy. It was no pink tea football either, two of three fistic outbreaks marring the tussle, but Cunningham's lads proved they are a sturdy lot and are now the king pins of the six-man interscholastic rugby group. At the same time the two senior squads from the B.C.I. met in an 12-man teams, met in a practice tussle on the school campus yesterday. Half of the game was played under conventional football rules and the other half under the abbreviated game regulations. The big team won both halves by a margin of 2-0 in each case, Ross Clare's field goal in the second half being the only O.S.D. losses on penalties. The convert was missed and the score in the game by booting over for a single and Trenton ended up 16 to 6 in favor of the courageous O.S.D.

Owners of the Toronto and Montreal International League Baseball clubs have given the league assurance they will continue operations next year, President Frank Shaughnessy said today. Despite rumors of war might interfere with future plans of the Canadian teams, Shaughnessy said "there is absolutely nothing to prevent Montreal and Toronto continuing professional baseball operations next year."

Orthodox wrestling was certainly sacrificed in the name of fist fighting during Joe Maich and Ed Korrie's grappling bouts at the Hume Arena, but the patrons did enjoy the bedlam that reigned supreme throughout the main bout that terminated in a stalemate between the contestants. Joe Maich of Brantford and Ed Korrie, combination boxer-wrestler from England. Korrie proved he knew something about boxing but Maich proved the better freefor-all battler and even though Korrie slugged and kicked around Joe's buddy neck and strangled him ferociously to be disqualified on the latter, Maich would have won regardless had the bout resorted to modern wrestling tactics. What pleased the fans, however, was to see Pedro Valdez, Mexican destroy Eddie Sobel's faith in human nature in the semi-final go. Sobel, an Italian guy was entered the ring quite satisfied of his superiority, especially after winning last week, but he ultimately discovered that rough ring tactics are the only qualifications of a wrestler, simply because, Pedro refused to ring antics and beat Sobel in just that manner.

For the first time in the memory of football fans, the University of Toronto senior Varsity squad did not break their annual trip to Kingston by remaining over night in Belleville on the eve of the Varsity-Queens game, in the old meanies, we'll call Varsity to the Quinte Capital the same and Western will trim McGill. The club is Bang-Bianch over Peterboro and Sarnia will surprise the Montreal Westmounts. We also are convinced Ottawa is the call for Eastern Canadian football, but as there is a play-off in the senior interprovincial we can't be sure. Rough Riders roughing it too much today, so Argos should win.

Max Baer's manager, Ancil Hoffman, announced today he had accepted promoter Mike Jacob's offer for a match with Tony Galento in Chicago or New York late in January or early in February. Hoffman said terms were agreed on in a telephone conversation with Jacobs this morning.

besides the parent New York Ranger's consi'ous. Manager Lester Patrick passed Frank Boucher, pivot man of the famous Boucher family of hockey players and assistant manager of the Rangers. Incidentally Boucher, Manager Lester Patrick and Trainer Harry Westerby are the only survivors of the original New York Rangers organized in 1926. Amateur hockey fans will remember Alfie Hughes who starred for the Winnipeg Monarchs a few years ago before they won the Memorial Cup. Alfie turned up at the Ranger camp this fall and has been handed to remain with the Gothamites.

AMBULANCE SERVICE

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma sent me around to the stationary store for 2 picture postcards on account of her having to write 3 letters and wanting to make them short, and I came back with them and gave ma 5 cents change and she said, What's this, I only told you to get your mom that 5 cents apiece for cards.

Why that's what you told me, I said, and she said, Then in that case there should be 5 cents more change.

O, ma, that's what I thought, but didn't want to scrape the paint by nudging me enough change, and besides there was nothing on some lady by that time, I said, and ma said, Now that's the last errand I'll ever send you on, and this boy simply must have a little self assertiveness instilled in to him, she said.

Absolutely, pop said. For Peet sake, Benny, it may be true but by the time they get it, judging by present indications, it won't be worth inheriting. A man to be successful has got to help out for himself, and here's a little example right here in this paper, and I'll read it to you. It's an interview with Hogshead Hogarty, a man who has achieved high eminence in his chosen career, pop said.

Then pop read what it out loud, saying, Looking up from his modest breakfast of 5 fried eggs with bacon to match, Hogshead remarked, do you know what I'm going to do to that big mazuma for morrow? I'm going to wade right into it for him with both hands and feet at the first sound of that old dinner bell and I'm going to smash it right in the kisser and then I'm going to go to that other big mug Sydney Riggo next month.

Never mind, never mind, I didn't say I wanted to see a gangster out of him for land sakes, I'd rather have him the way he is ma said, and pop said, Well, I'll tell you. Probably meaning that's the way I am.

20 YEARS IN PUBLIC LIFE

Toronto, Oct. 20—(CP)— Hon. H. C. Nixon, Provincial Secretary, and Hon. Peter Bowman, Minister of Lands and Forests, exchanged anniversary greetings today on their 20 years each as Ministers of Ontario public life.

"I started Oct. 20, 1919, with a minority vote of 1,200 in a three-cornered fight," said Mr. Nixon, "and in the last election my majority was 6,100, which proves something or other. I've been 10 years in the Government and 10 years in Opposition today."

CLAIMS HE SAW SUB OFF DAYTONA BEACH

Daytona Beach, Fla., Oct. 20 — (AP)—George Messer reported he had sighted a submarine several miles at sea off the coast this afternoon.

He said he could distinguish the conning tower and the outline of the boat's plane but no hoodlums, but could not tell its nationality. Clarence V. Hadan and John W. Good, who were fishing off the pier, corroborated Messer's statement.

129 MILES OF FIRE HOSE ORDERED BY BRITAIN

Akron, O., Oct. 20—(AP)—Two British Government orders for sufficient fire hose to stretch all the way around London were disclosed today by the B. F. Goodrich Company. The plant is manufacturing 120 miles of the hose, intended, it was indicated, for protection against fires from incendiary bombs.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK — By R. J. SCOTT

NOW HERE IN ALL NATURE IS A STRANGER DIFFERENCE, BETWEEN THE MALES AND THE FEMALES THAN IS SHOWN IN BONELLIA, A SEA-WORM!

THE PRACTICE OF COLD ROLLING STEEL WAS DISCOVERED BECAUSE A CARELESS WORKMAN LET A PAIR OF TONGS GO THROUGH THE ROLLS WHEN THE TONGS CAME OUT OF THE ROLLS, THEY WERE SHINY AND SMOOTH!

WHEN WORKMEN AT A VIENNA EXHIBITION HITS HAMMER-UP CRAMME'S DYNAMO BACKWARDS, THE RESULT WAS THE INVENTION OF THE ELECTRIC MOTOR.

Fat and Forty

By ELIZABETH ALDEN

Donnie hadn't been himself for days. He'd sit back of the store and whittle and let the boys wisecrack all around him without ever rising to the bait.

Donnie's an especial favorite of mine—he's so darned good-looking—and the first he came in when I was alone I asked him right out what the matter was.

"How would you feel, Mis' Harris, if the girl you was practically engaged to got crazy about a married man?"

"I s'pose you mean Idella," I said. "But, what's the matter?"

"Joe Lawrence."

"Heavenly day! Is that old bum-bile-bee still hangin' around? Why he was one o' life's dangers when I was eighteen, let alone now."

"Sure, he's old enough to be Idella's father. But he's lived in Rockton all these years and he's smooth. He's got all the girls running around in circles, but Della's the one he's didn't he? And she never did get another beau. But Joe couldn't resist turning the head of any silly girl he ran across, with that charm that didn't mean a thing."

Idella had taken it all in, though she pretended to be deep in gabbing with Annie. Her face was plenty red, and the different emotions on it would have given Hepburn lessons.

And then fate co-operated and I witnessed a little scene I hadn't expected. I was on my way home when I spied a couple on the fence under the courtin' willows. A couple that I should have taken for one person if it hadn't been for the voices.

"—flattered me," protested one voice. "I didn't really care anything about him. Why, Donnie, he's middle-aged and fat!"

"Okay," replied the other voice, "we'll let it pass. But from now on—"

I didn't see Donnie for several days, then one night he was back in his old place, swapping wisecracks with Bill and Charlie.

"Women," I heard him declare, "are a lot like bees. Apt to swarm and sting and, mean to bid for a fellow; but, boy, will they produce honey if you know how to handle 'em!"

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Puds Simkins were walking along just walking along and we sat down on a bench in the square, more on account of the bench just happening to be there than on account of me being tired, and I said, O, look at that guy over there, what's he doing?

Meaning some man on another bench moving his face as if he was talking to somebody without anybody being there for him to talk to.

Being a man with a white mustash partly yellow, and Puds said, O, the poor guy's talking to himself, imagine being so lonesome you have to talk to yourself.

G, and even then you dont get a answer, I said. Let's go over and talk to him a little while and make him feel better, I said.

Which we started to do, going over and sitting on the bench one on each side of him on account of him being in the middle already, and nobody said anything for a while and there were some birds hopping around on the drinking fountain and Puds said, Do you know what kind of birds those are, mister?

No, do you? the man said, and Puds said, No.

Being all anybody said for another while and then I said, It's a nice day, isn't it, mister?

It is, the man said.

Sounding as if he meant it was all right between me and Puds never over, and we couldn't think of any good answer, and after a while the man said, with a dozen empty benches in the square wholly a idea of coming crowding on mine!

The result being that me and Puds got off again as soon as we could without actually making it look as if we thought we were being chased off.

Proving the best way to be sociable with some people is to leave them alone.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, Oct. 21.—(CP)—The Toronto stock market concluded the week with a strong tone in the gold and industrial shares, especially the steels. Papers and senior oils displayed moderate strength. Base metals and western oil stocks traded slightly on the down side. Volume for the two-hour session was around 300,000 shares.

Point gains were registered by National Steel Car and Page-Hersey and fractional gains by United Steel, Bathurst Steel and Dupont issue. Strong spots in the papers included the Abitibi issues and Hinde and Dauch, Fleet Aircraft, General Steel Wares, Distillers-Seagrams and Imperial Oil posted fractional gains.

Uncertainty about the dividend for the current quarter, brought further weakness to Buffalo-Ankerite. The price was off 50 cents to $4.75 on top of Friday's loss of 10 cents. Hargreaves weakened 5 cents while gains of a few cents were marked for Preston East Dome, Kirkland Lake and Lake Shore. Trading, however, was light, around 20, up 2 cents, was one of the strongest of the penny group.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—A mild revival of the war-inspired buying interest in the stock market today and stocks, motor trucks, aircrafts and specialties were listed fractionally more than a point.

While extreme gains were shaded some cases at the close, many favorites emerged at the day's best levels with a handful at new highs and transfers approximated 600,000 shares, more than double last Saturday's total.

Motor trucks came to life on word the French had ordered some 2,000 heavy vehicles and were ready to take on as many more when production factures could supply them.

Tonight's new highs for 1939 were Studebaker, White Motors and Mack Truck. Popular most of the seven 52 week lows were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Curtiss Wright, Case, Northwest, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, North American, International Harvester, Sears Roebuck and Anaconda.

Canadian issues were mixed. Up fractionally near the end, were Canadian Pacific and Dome Mines. Distillers - Corporation - Seagrams was a little down. Canada Ws were off slightly in the Bond Markets.

Top-Grade Eggs Drop Cent a Dozen

Toronto, Oct. 21—A quiet tone prevailed on the egg market in Toronto on Saturday. Inspected shipments to North country points this week have been on the light side, and receipts were light for the first of these shipments. Grades A large and A medium were down one cent in the graded division of the market, but other sections ruled steady.

Buyers again remained aloof from the poultry market, but dressed birds met only a fair trade. Dealers are reported to be limiting their buying to current requirements, preferring to look forward to packing for storage almost any time. Supplies of turkeys and ducks were on the market this week-end in fair volume. Fresh broilers are practically off the market.

Montreal Produce

Cross Breeding Adds Vigor and Strength

We find in the history of the development of certain strains of live stock that deliberate crossing has successfully practised. The hope that prompted this action was to combine both the good characteristics of the particular line of breeding.

In the case of hog breeding the breeders have made the experiments prepared to accept the loss that they might result from a concentration of undesirable characteristics, which take the form of deformities such as rupture, hermaphrodites and ridgeback.

Cross breeding usually adds extra vigor and strength and also the crossing of different lines of breeding within the one breed.

Some good lots of hogs marketed by the Belleville district during the week of October 30, 1939, are as follows:

Buffalo Ankerite Bd. Defers Dividend Action

Toronto, Oct. 21—President G. Kinkel of Buffalo Ankerite Gold Mines, Porcupine district, announces that directors have decided to defer action on payment of quarterly dividend, due Nov. 1, until next directors' meeting about the middle of November. Directors desire it available to continue with completion of present development program and reason for deferment of the dividend would in no way curtail completion of plans. Shaft and winze have been completed and work is being rushed to open up the new ore levels near the 1,050 horizon.

The company has been on a 25-cent quarterly basis for the last two years and up to Aug. 15, 1939, had distributed a total of $2,125,184 since inception of dividends in August, 1933.

SIR G. CAMPBELL

No Harm in Gas

"But are we in no way sat at no time going to blame ourselves for prostituting science to our own ends?

"There is no harm in mustard gas until someone comes who is fiendish enough to use it on his fellow mortals. Death-dealing instruments are no less without human or inhuman beings to operate them. A gun is a gun and a machine-gun in a plane is but a piece of metal unless there is a human behind it. It is the human that matters.

"The Poles tell us that they found young German girls from 21 to 26 years of age dressed in uniforms and then from planes, Hitler wants all German women to bear children. No wonder their children of these women will kiss their parents or life them in the cheek when they want to be affectionate?

Sir Gerald said he believed Adolf Hitler's "uncontrollable temper" was responsible for the war.

FRENCH CABINET

Semi-official "sources reported last night to correspondents here assembling across the English Channel at the rate of three each night, that a "tremendous" of additional troops to take positions on the western front.

The meeting lasted three hours. Afterward Premier Daladier's economic problems had been discussed.

Little Activity

Little activity was reported from the zone of hostilities except for the occasional clash of small patrols. The French and Germans were said to be bolstering for position on isolated heights and in small woodlots in the neighborhood of their lines.

The regular morning communique of the war ministry spoke of "calm patrol action" and "harassing fire of artillery."

Military dispatches indicated that a muddy no-man's-land about a mile wide separated the rival armies in line positions of the opposing forces. The patrol operations were said to be "active" close to the area where the Germans attacked in force early this week-end east of the Moselle River and between Saarbrucken and the Franco-German frontier corner of the northern flank.

Military sources said the German defensive guard was on the alert to accept for a strip near the Luxembourg border and near Saarlautern.

100 Landings Made.

Semi-official military reporters said that about 100 landings of British troops had been made in the first month of the war, between Aug. 26 and Sept. 3. The British War Minister, Leslie Hore-Belisha, announced on Oct. 11 that 158,000 men had been landed.

Despite the British reinforcement, military observers expected the French to sit tight on the present alignments of the allied naval blockade of Germany.

The French navy assumed a large share of the duty of guarding the trans-atlantic troops movements and engaged in mine-sweeping and anti-submarine activity.

Ali Raids May Increase.

Many French observers expressed belief that German air and submarine attacks on Britain would increase as rains and the approaching winter make land operations increasingly difficult.

De Kerillis reported that German troop concentrations were massing at the northern flank of the line — that which parallels the Rhine — where there had been hardly any action since the war started.

Paul Faure, of the German Rhineland city, the French reported, the Germans have "a big army" but "we are not playing any more".

GERMANY ADMITS

could be satisfied to leave the Danzanelles in Polish hands.

May Assume Mastery

But now that Turkey, according to the Nazis, has allied herself with Britain, cause was given Russia to assume mastery not only of the strategic gateway but of Turkey.

They said they believed Turkey probably would be carved up as Poland was by Germany and Russia. A release Saturday by the German news agency which said that the challenge of Great Britain and France had been accepted was described authoritatively as introducing a new element into the existing situation.

Officials said it was intended merely to combat reports Germany was on her knees begging for peace.

A communique from the high command of the German Rhineland troops still occupied German soil told of patrol activity.

The communique admitted French troops held two heights close to the Siegfried Line north-west of the west of Saarbrucken, but it said there was only French fire directed on German soil.

(Previously, Nazi officials had said the occupied land withdrawn completely from German territory).

Nazi sources said meanwhile that Germany is not prepared to make any more peace moves.

Adolf Hitler made an offer to end the war once, sources close to the chancellor said, and if he has chet is to be buried now the initiative must come from the other side.

Accepts Challenge.

These sources said Germany had accepted what had been regarded by Nazis as the challenge of Great Britain and France.

Both DNB, the German news agency, and the Nazi spokesmen said there was no reason to assume on the basis of the Thursday war speech of Premier Daladier that making conciliatory gestures toward France.

The correspondent added that the German army had refrained from crossing the French border at a point where conditions seemed suspicious because of the withdrawal of French troops, official reports said, however, that the German armies are not withdrawing from near Luxemburg).

This was interpreted in some newspapers, it was said, as a sign that Germany hoped, by withdrawing, to induce the western powers to cease their offensive, to deal with France.

Informed sources, however, said Germany intended, by the concessions in the Saarlautern and French-British-Turkish mutual assistance pact, to demonstrate that German attitude is unchanged.

They declared that the DNB declared that the German high command was not weakening.

Reports that France have rejected the Fuehrer's outstretched hand" for peace "in order to take the gauntlet and Germany picked it up."

These previously had described Turkey as "British stooge," describing the alliance as "a dangerous route" by entering the agreement with Britain and France.

Although German political leaders professed to be unafraid of intervention against being drawn into war against Soviet Russia, it was said that the effect of the treaty were bitter.

Von Papen Reports

Franz Von Papen, German Ambassador to Turkey, conferred yesterday from Ankara, has delivered a report on the pact to Hitler.

Berlin morning newspapers, with unidentified sources, said Von Papen's action, devoted their entire front pages to allied pact-making. Berlin also noted a United States citizen and a survivor of the torpedoed Athenia, sailed.

"Athenia swindle unmasked before neutrals," declared Propaganda Minister Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter headlined a story ascribing the attack on the Athenia to three British destroyers.

MOSCOW PRESS

Pledged to Fight.

"Under the treaty Britain is pledged to fight on the side of Britain and France against Germany and Italy," he declared.

"It is said that the U.S.S.R. may not have to fight if Germany does not join Turkey with the British-French coalition. This is nonsense.

"The U.S.S.R. did not join this bloc and preserved neutrality and it is quite natural that neutrality is good from the viewpoint of the preservation of peace.

"However, the same cannot be said of Turkey, the agreement with which explicitly cannot but tell upon her policy in the very near future. Turkey's ally, the U.S.S.R. has no ground to regret what has been happening.

The editorial, accompanying the published text of the Anglo-French-Turkish pact in Ankara, began with an analysis of the circumstances leading to the conclusion on one hand, or Turkey on the other and the Soviet Union on the "aggressor's aid in the Mediterranean.

Tracing the history of British-French-Turkish cooperation, it said the western powers had become better acquainted with Turkey's sincerity understanding last spring and declaring that Turkey "in the present situation" the treaty accepted "particular significance".

Soviet Interests Interest

Izvestia acknowledges British-French interest in Turkey's strategic position in the eastern Mediterranean.

"However, certain circumstances lead one to believe that the new treaty is directed against Germany, beyond a mere pact with Turkey," Izvestia continued.

"British Prime Minister Chamberlain in his speech in parliament stated that British-French-Turkish negotiations virtually were concluded and three weeks ago and signature of the pact was postponed in connection with Chamberlain's conference at Moscow by the Turkish Minister of Foreign Affairs, Sarageglu."

Chamberlain pointed out that Turkey were entertained for conclusion of a parallel mutual assistance pact between the U.S.S.R. and Turkey.

"However, that proved impossible in view of the incompatibility of the terms of the Soviet-Turkish agreement with Turkey's undertakings under the British-French-Turkish treaty.

Trying to Divide Wedge

"From Chamberlain's statement it follows that British-French diplomacy placed definite bonds on Soviet-Turkish agreement. The Soviet Union, however, believes that the British-French-Turkish treaty represents a "test of Soviet-Turkish friendship."

"All this inevitably creates the impression that this treaty actually is a plan going to drive a wedge between Germany and the Soviet Union.

"It becomes clear that an unsuccessful attempt was made through parallel pacts between the U.S.S.R. and Turkey on one hand and among Britain, France and Turkey on the other hand. . . .

"The Soviet Union, in its policy of peace and protection of the interests of the Soviet State proved able to frustrate the British-French diplomatic move based on the conditions of the traditional friendship between Turkey and the U.S.S.R.

"The clear and determined position of the Soviet Union thwarted the artful plans of those who attempted once more to fan enmity between Germany and the Soviet Union."

PREMIER DYSART

Claims Example of Loyalty

In an earlier speech at Rigaud, Premier Godbout said that the province "has given an example of loyalty and unity. It has shown through taking steps "to protect the province and its territory by preventing the German Consulate at Montreal, by seizure of a Nazi newspaper and by closing its doors with the padlock law."

Premier Godbout left Lapointe charged at a Liberal rally in Montreal that the Quebec government had failed to take firm action with the Dominion government, although Mr. Duplessis had called a Dominion-Provincial conference to discuss the government of lack of co-operation."

Premier Godbout said that Mr. Duplessis had urged measures against war profiteering, but when Premier Godbout asked for such measures he was told that the Canada Trade Board had sought cooperation from the provinces in preventing profiteering "there was an affirmative answer from every provincial government except Premier Maurice Duplessis."

Raised War Issues.

Mr. Godbout, speaking at the same meeting, declared that Lapointe had declared that the Quebec government had failed to take firm action with the Dominion government, although Mr. Duplessis had called a Dominion-Provincial conference to discuss the government of lack of co-operation."

Premier Godbout said that Mr. Duplessis had urged measures against war profiteering, but when Premier Godbout asked for such measures he was told that the Canada Trade Board had sought cooperation from the provinces in preventing profiteering "there was an affirmative answer from every provincial government except Premier Maurice Duplessis."

Raised War Issues.

Mr. Godbout, speaking at the same meeting, declared that Lapointe had declared "war issues" because he hoped "to reap a few votes from the present situation of the country." The provincial Liberal head claimed that Lapointe "rallied the entire province of Quebec" through "wasteful spending in the province" in order to influence the voters and discuss his administration over the last three years".

Addressing a rally at Granby in support of Liberal firm, candidate in Shefford in the Oct. 25 elections, Mr. Godbout declared that the province of power "is already conceded to us by our opponents."

"We are going to twenty-five seats," he said. "With that, we can hold the balance of power and I assure you there will be no alliance this time."

(The reference was to an alliance in 1936 between the A.L.N., headed by Paul Gouin, and the Conservative party, with Mr. Duplessis as leader. The Union Nationale, which was consummated after remaining along with a short time.

Mr. Gouin insisted that the premier had raised the question of provincial rights in order to divert attention from the war issue in his campaign "only to mask his turpitude, his backbending in front of the trusts and his betrayal of provincial rights."

The "trust issue" never was mentioned in reports that the premier, Mr. Gouin said, because "the trusts are behind the premier." He also claimed that the trusts also were financing the campaign of Mr. Arthur Sauve "who is the sure winner, whoever is elected."

TIME, MANPOWER

(In Paris, semi-official sources said British transport and supply services in France at an average rate of three a night, landing thousands of men and tons of allied armies on the Western Front.)

Thousands of men, all from the approach of winter each week of waiting "makes the difficulties of the allies greater" the operations that much less."

Daily Sends Message

The new-mutual assistance agreement between Britain, France and France held first rank on the diplomatic front here with the press expressing "complete satisfaction and emphasized reports of German "peace offensive."

Prominence was given the King's message to the President of Turkey that "There could be no better proof than this treaty affords of the desire of the three countries to work in common accord for the maintenance of peace in Europe and good will among the nations."

On all sides the point was emphasized that the alliance was open for friendly relations between Turkey and the opposite side.

The Daily Sketch, saying the way to agreement was paved by Inonu's visit to the capitals of Germany's ambassador to Turkey, Franz von Papen and Paul Gouin's Gift to the British Foreign Office".

Hitler Worried

The Express said "Hitler is worried. In the East, Turkey has weve up the Mediterranean. In the West, he's lightning peace has pulled a strike.

"Within six month, he storms, he will destroy the British fleet and paralyze the British nation. On this day, 134 years ago, Napoleon made the same attempt at Trafalgar."

The public learned at least one happy result of the blackout—it has saved so much electricity the rationing of current has been eased. Householders are allowed as much electricity and gas as they were using a year ago.

Rationing of food, however, is drawing near. Distribution of ration books is to be started at the end of next week, and it was expected rationing may start about 10 days later.

Beginning tomorrow, light restrictions on the movements of printed matter in and out of the country will be relaxed, allowing newspapers, periodicals, books, circulars, maps and photographs.

Diplomatic correspondent of "The Da'," Herald predicted that Germany will offer France an armistice in the hope that it can then concentrate on the destruction of the British fleet.

Arms Quite Obvious

The said Hitler's arms in the east also are obvious.

"He is trying to push Russia into some adventure that will bring her into sharp conflict with Britain. What he wants is to bring the Soviet Union definitely into the war on his side. He has made trouble for us in southern Asia. He is therefore, trying to stir an Eastern front against Turkey, to start an eastern war in which Russia would have to do the fighting while Germany reaped the benefits.

"The treaty is a splendide benefit, for once England and Russia were committed to war Turkey would have to divert a lot or attention to the east, but Russia and Germany could take advantage of that in middle Europe."

SHIPS TORPEDOED

Survivors said the Yorkshire and the City of Manchester, in a convoy of 19 other vessels under the guard of British warships, had been dispatched from the two ports one day out from Gibraltar.

The 10,000-ton Yorkshire was the first to go down, torpedoed, passengers said, in a submarine which they identified as German. The City of Manchester was struck a few hours later.

Sub Came to Surface

Some of the 30 passengers aboard the Independence Hall said that a submarine came to the surface of the Mediterranean Sea after the Mandalay were being picked up a destroyer, apparently from the surface, causing those already aboard the rescue ship to scream with fear.

The submarine signalled "how many have you saved" and then submerged after remaining along with a short time.

The Independence Hall reached the spot where the Yorkshire sank about 10 p.m. The survivors, all of whom were in lifeboats, said the vessel went down in about seven minutes.

STORM-BATTERED

Most Injured in Dining Room

Most of those severely injured were in the smoking room when from the wave headed the ship over to starboard. Tables, chairs, glass and crockery were all scattered across the floor, pinning passengers against the walls.

Among the injured was Miss Elsie Bowes, 24, of Ilford, Avenue, New Westminster, B.C., who suffered a possible pelvic fracture.

Miss Bowes said: "I was thrown against the wall, my arm was broken and I was bruised and cut.

Captain Sidney Hudson, master of the torpedoed freighter Heronspool, who was rescued with his crew of 35, praised the President standing commander, Capt. James E. Roberts, for his seamanship.

"It was inside the wheel house when that big wave hit us and the ship heeled over about 30 degrees," Captain Hudson said. "The storm blew up out of the southeast. Captain Roberts handled his ship in a fine, seamanlike manner."

DAILY WAR SURVEY

Now that Turkey's position is clarified, Finland is the next nation in the diplomatic spotlight as Finnish negotiators prepare to return to Moscow for further discussions of Russia's demands on that northern Republic.

If Finland escapes with only minor concessions to Russia it will be a second set-back for the Russo-German combination. If Russia gains the strategic power over Finland as she already gained over the other small Baltic states, Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania another victory for the Hitlerian diplomatic methods of force and threat, not yet practised by Russia, will be marked up. If the two countries go to the war the consequences may be far-reaching.

In the last war the diplomatic position did not become vitally important until after nearly three years of fighting. Then, however, the armed forces carried on the struggle while waiting for the diplomats to complete their work.

PEACE

If a conference, however, was felt impracticable, Mr. Lloyd George urged that Britain should make clear her war aims. Phrases about the overthrow of Hitlerism were not enough in themselves. When it came to the colonial question, Britain must be prepared to make sacrifices for peace as well as in war. "We are not asking for negotiations with Russia after the guarantee to Poland a "pitiable spectacle."

"We dawdled and delayed for months and years and sent a man of no influence or position there to negotiate with no concessions. Instead we sent a fifth-rate Foreign office bureaucrat to discuss a vital question which was one of empire might depend. We also sent a thoroughly inexperienced politician there without any definite instructions.

Hitler had taken full advantage of these "gaucheries" and signed a pact with Russians. As a result Britain had been deprived of support of Russian armies of tanks and air force in the world war and had to face the task of an effective blockade of Germany —the weapon which has finally brought victory in 1918.

Strategic Defeat is Charge

This strategic defeat—the Russo-German treaty as not only a political victory but a blunder as to the Allies. The defeat, however, was by no means irretrievable, but it would take any serious peace proposals and thereby alienate the neutrals, although Premier Minister Chamberlain said he would not do so. Mr. Lloyd George was attacked in many quarters for making what Alfred Duff Cooper, Minister of Lord of the Admiralty, described as a "suggestion of surrender."

Mr. Lloyd George characterized the pact between the Franco-British-Turkish mutual assistance pact as a step against Russia.

"Let us follow this victory by coming to a better understanding with Russia," he said. "We want to accept the Russian idea of an international settlement.

Germany Protected by Russia

Commenting on Chamberlain, Mr. Lloyd George said, Chamberlain has been protected from criticism by the Russian pact and most vulnerable front."

Even the road through Rumania is blocked to Russia. The alliance with Turkey cuts off aid to at Germany through the, formidable Siegfried Line.

He asked why British trade negotiations with Russia were not published. "Russia is a tremendous factor and effectiveness as the Turkish alliance.

He argued that there still was time for a peace by a new peace conference idea of last February with the addition of the United States.

Produce Twilight Sleep By Giving Paraldehyde And Port Wine Cocktail

Philadelphia, Oct. 21 (AP)—A new way of starting twilight sleep with a port wine cocktail containing paraldehyde was reported to the American College of Surgeons today at a symposium on reducing the pain of childbirth.

The symposium indicated that twilight sleep, in three main forms, is coming into general use in the United States after years of controversy. Exceptions when it cannot be used were noted.

The first form of twilight sleep, which started in Germany with scopolamine and morphine, is still in use in the United States. The second method uses barbiturates, such as amytals or nembutal, and the third employs paraldehyde.

The new paraldehyde cocktail was reported today by Dr. Howard F. Kane of George Washington University, at the closing session of the convention. Paraldehyde burns more severely than the holiest pepper—a fact which has made it difficult to give by mouth. Yet that is the quickest way to get effects—about ten minutes being required to produce drowsiness. The port wine mixture, Dr. Kane said, solves the problem.

Paraldehyde is a form of alcohol, closely related chemically to drinking alcohol. Its use for twilight sleep, after originating in Boston, was started in Washington five years ago. Since then it has been used for about 6,000 mothers in Washington alone.

Pemmican for Admiral Byrd Given Roast Beef Flavor

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 21—(AP)—A Massachusetts Institute of Technology scientist said today he had packed a new energy wallop into the pemmican of Admiral Byrd's Antarctic explorers — and made the old Indian trail food as tasty as something mother used to bake.

Back from recent explorations through the cook book, Dr. Robert S. Harris reported he had developed a new formula, giving more calories per ounce of the concentrated hot-meal ration than anything in that line that has yet hit the rail in polar regions.

The new pemmican—three tons of which will be shipped for the admiral and his men on their coming Antarctic trek — has the further advantage, Harris said, of being pre-cooked and of having a "richer flavor" than previous trial dishes eaten by the adventurers.

To whip up a quick meal of pemmican while they are sashaying over the ice far from their base camps, the explorers will simply place a cake of the stuff in some melted snow, and stir the mixture just enough to make it into a gruel-like dish.

Pre-cooking of the various ingredients, said Harris, would eliminate the need of carrying large supplies of cooking fuel on long treks.

IN FINE FETTLE

Happy? Sure . . . he's going great at the training camp of Detroit Red Wings and this year hopes to stick with the team throughout a complete N.H.L. season. It's Don Deacon, by-and-out centre, who has been in before but has never been able to stick. He played well in last year's Stanley Cup playoffs and Jack Adams is counting on using him regularly this season.

ROADS TO WESTERN FRONT HEAVILY GUARDED

Heavily barricaded are the areas around which the French and British armies are entrenched on the western front. At the line of barricades troops are always on duty, halting and examining all vehicles that seek to head for the front lines. Here sentries run up to a halted car to question the driver and his passengers and scrutinize his cargo. This picture was passed by the French censor.

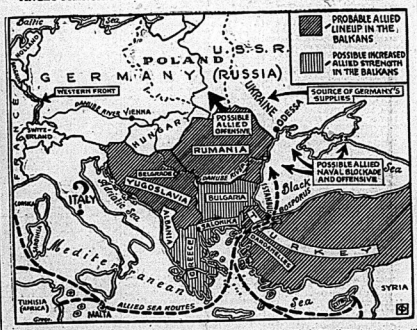
SWASTIKAED WAR BIRDS DOWNED IN SCOTLAND

One of the four German bombing planes that were shot down during the raid on the Firth of Forth, Scotland, is shown on the water of the inlet as the crew awaited rescue by a British destroyer. The admiralty admitted that the bombers had slightly damaged two warships in the Firth.

ANTI-TANK GUNS THAT HALTED GERMAN ATTACKS

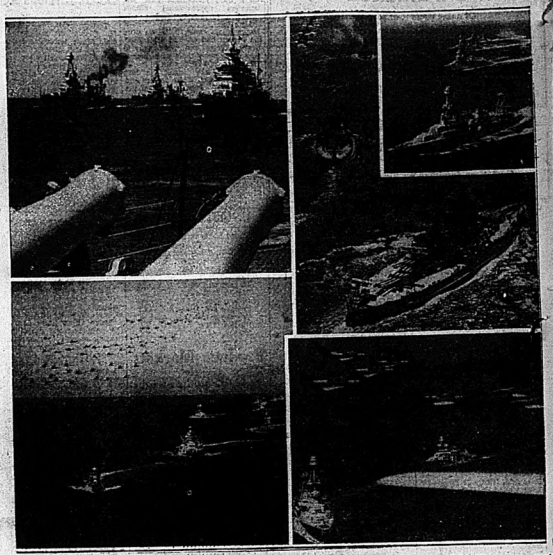
A picture passed by the French and British censors on the western front shows British soldiers bringing up shells with which to load the vicious anti-tank gun which has proved so effective in use against Germany's mobile forces.

ANGLO-FRENCH-TURKISH PACTS OF GREAT IMPORTANCE TO ALLIES



The signing of mutual assistance pacts between England, France and Turkey, against aggression in the Mediterranean or the Balkans, effectively blocks any Nazi designs on the Balkan states and safeguards the Black Sea zone. Military and political observers point out that several Balkan nations, now neutral, may throw in their lot with Britain and France now that Turkey has led the way. Italy now remains the question mark in the Mediterranean.

U.S. NAVY PRACTICES BATTLE TACTICS AS SENATE DISCUSSES NEUTRALITY



While guns roar in Europe and the United States Senate buries itself with a discussion of the arms embargo, the U.S. fleet efficiently and unobtrusively undergoes manoeuvres off the southern California coast. Shown from the starboard deck of the heavy cruiser Chicago, units of the heavy cruiser scouting force are pictured, deploying from line formation. UPPER LEFT: These cruisers, flanking heavier battleship divisions, cruise as submarine lookouts and to establish first contact with any enemy force. The super dreadnaught which are guarded from submarine attack by the cruisers and destroyers, are generally known as "the backbone of the navy". They are shown, UPPER CENTRE, with the powerful U.S.S. Mississippi in the foreground. As though actuated by a single puckle, a gunnette of ships wheel into battle line. UPPER RIGHT: With an armada of scouting and bombing planes roaring overhead, ships of the U.S. navy are shown speeding into "battle". LOWER LEFT and RIGHT: It is the duty of the planes to distract the enemy's attention and help break up his formation, preventing him from executing the manoeuvre known as "crossing the T".

Destined to form an arm of the first Canadian division to go overseas, the Toronto Scottish Regiment (M.G.) has been brought up to full war-time strength and is now undergoing a rigorous training course at Toronto. The regiment was recently visited by Lieutenant-Governor Matthews, who is shown, LEFT, with Lieut.-Col. G. R. Thompson, O.C., as the two marched smartly past the reviewing station.

BRITISH AIRCRAFT SINK TWO U-BOATS

German Air Raids Believed Feelers Of British Defences

Plane, Presumably German, Approached Shipping Centre Today but All Clear Signal Soon Given

13 PLANES DOWN

Planes Possibly on Reconnaissance Flights to Map Objectives for Wave of Larger Raids to Come

London, Oct. 23 (CP)—Air raid warnings were sounded in the Firth of Forth area today as a plane, presumably German, approached the important shipping centre. The all clear signal was sounded 15 minutes later.

An Air Ministry communique said the alarm was lifted when it was known no enemy aircraft was in the area.

The prevalence of the German flights over the North Sea toward vital British seaports and naval bases—alarms have been sounded every day except Thursday during the last seven days—was regarded by observers as a form of feeling out the British defences.

In other words, despite the downing of 13 German craft or detecting losses of about 25 per cent. of the invading armadrons, these were believed by many to be reconnaissance flights to map objectives before pushing on with the larger raids to come.

Nothing but the 13-word communique was immediately known of the latest foray of German aircraft.

The Air Ministry issued the following communique:

"The air warning given in the Firth of Forth area soon after noon was due to the approach of unidentified aircraft. The all clear signal was sounded about half an hour later when it was learned that no enemy aircraft were in the area."

The Great Flood! The account of the Great Flood given so vividly in Genesis has its parallels in stories of many countries, including those of the western hemisphere. All these stories relate to some great catastrophe, sometimes purely local, that happened in bygone ages. There is, however, in Mesopotamia, from which the Bible story came, further evidence of an archaeological nature. This consists of a layer of clay eight feet deep, beneath which are relics not found above this layer. This evidence seems to place the Great Flood at about 4000 B.C. The most probable cause of the flood is that a slowly moving storm accompanied by heavy and persistent rain and assisted by melting snows from the mountains swelled the banks of the Euphrates in much the same way that floods are caused in the lower Mississippi River.

Forty Dead, Missing In Spanish Flood

Madrid, Oct. 23—(C) P—Havas)—Forty persons were dead or missing today as Spanish relief organizations mobilized to send aid to thousands of families left homeless by flood waters sweeping Cartagena Province following days of torrential rain.

The city of Cartagena, one of the most important seaports of the southeastern coast, was inundated. Water was part of the city's streets in the low-lying sections of the city. Property damage was considerable. The basements and ground floors of the Red Cross hospital, Bank of Spain and Italian-American Bank were flooded.

MOTIVE SOUGHT FOR SLAYING OF A MILK DRIVER

BATTERED ON HEAD

Toronto, Oct. 23 (CP)—Police today sought a motive for the bizarre slaying of Joseph Albert George Flude, Toronto milk driver who disappeared last July 10, and began a nation-wide drive to apprehend a man who rented a garage in which the body was found.

Also sought for questioning were a man and woman alleged to have threatened Flude before he disappeared.

Body of the milkman, battered about the head by blows and strangled with a rope, was found Sunday in a shallow grave in a garage behind a home on Ossington Avenue in the west end of the city. An automobile stolen in Toronto the day Flude disappeared was found in the garage and traces of hair.

The corpse, so decomposed that physical recognition was impossible, was examined late last night by Dr. E. R. Cranklin, Toronto legal expert of the Attorney-General's department, who verified police finding that the head had been battered by the hammer and that then the man had been strangled. A double loop of quarter-inch rope was about his neck.

Every 'Hot Spot' in Paris Closed At Night Due to War Restrictions

(By Mannel Chaves Negales, Havas Staff Writer).

Paris, Oct. 23—(CP)—(Havas)—A millionaire could die of hunger in this city after 11 p.m. before he could find anyone to sell him a sandwich.

Paris the gold in the world could not get him a glass of wine. Such are the rigors of military rule in Paris.

After wandering nightly through the streets, I can testify that every "hot spot" in Paris is closed tight. Only at night clubs is champagne to be open. The only resort of night owls after 11 p.m. is a small hotel where you can get supper by registering as a guest.

The war has killed Paris' famed night life and suppressed all diversions of a lighthearted nature. Not a place left in the department of the Seine where you can dance in Paris at night.

Not that Paris has a tragic mien but the official French mind recalls for doing away with non-essentials, such as cultivated frivolity and superfluous pleasures. Even the performers now base their sales talk on the theory that puritans is a powerful disinfectant.

French entertainers are having a hard time trying to adjust themselves to this ascetic atmosphere. The well-known singer Georges Thil got off a new war song last night in the artists' dining room of the Bal Tabarin. It was a pretty air called "They Shall Not Win," but it didn't go. The climate is bad for topical songs.

Sing Marseillaise

All this grimness is justified on the ground of necessity. But the French are already showing signs of revolt. Even the police admit that practically all music except Chopin and Wagner has been put under censure, being half Polo, half French) and a petition direct from bored soldiers at the front to the French casting officials to relax their censorship. Last night for the first time since the war began we heard a tango overseas.

In spite of the war and in spite of the voluntarily austere habits which characterize Paris, the war is not all gloom. Paris is a city of lights and it is a city of shadows. Where you can get supper by registering as a guest.

QUEBEC CAMPAIGN NEARING CLIMAX; BITTER CRITICISM

Reports Circulate in Ottawa That General Election Will be Called if Duplessis Wins

HOUDE IN CAMPAIGN

Mayor of Montreal Running as Independent in Montreal-St. Mary

Montreal, Oct. 23 (CP)—Quebec's political campaign, growing in national importance with the approach of voting day, neared a climax today as party leaders began the second last round of speech-making before the election on Oct. 25.

While reports circulated in Ottawa that a victory for Premier Duplessis' Union Nationale would result in a general election before the next session of the Dominion parliament, the Quebec premier returned to the Montreal district which he visited last week before beginning a tour of central Quebec towns.

Election meantime, got respite from broadcast addresses that have filled the air since the campaign began less than a month ago. Under the Dominion election law broadcasts of political speeches are banned during 48 hours preceding an election.

The party leaders and two Dominion cabinet ministers accounted for more than twenty speeches in a weekend that saw public halls, market places and the air-waves taxed to the limit. Despite rain that drenched the Gaspe Peninsula and Gouin carried out a heavy schedule of addresses in south shore towns Saturday.

GENERAL BOOTH SAYS "GOODBYE"

London, Oct. 23—(CP)—General Edward Higgins Booth, the blunt-red and gold Salvation Army flag draped over her shoulders, yesterday bade a moving "goodbye" to members of the army whose command she relinquishes at the end of this month.

General Booth, who is being succeeded by Commissioner George L. Carpenter, looked young for an hour. At times she almost broke down. At one point she clenched her fists and declared: "I am not one a fighter; I am a fighter of evil." Last night she finished with fervor to "this flag of blood and fire" and then dropped into a deep hush: "I must say goodbye and farewell. I do not know exactly what I feel. I am looking on to the faces of many who have come with me down the path of time."

London, Oct. 22 (CP)—Sven Hedin, noted Swedish explorer, said in an interview today that Adolf Hitler's "dream" still was for Anglo-German co-operation to stop the westward advance of Bolshevism and dictate world peace.

Hedin, who visited Hitler last week, said in an interview published in the News Chronicle that Hitler "does not hate England and desires peace passionately."

Asked what had been discussed at their meeting, Hedin said: "I cannot reveal details. But my feeling are that if war is let loose, it will be terrible, resulting in the triumph of Bolshevism and an end to western civilization.

"One thing only can save us," he went on, "Anglo-German cooperation, which is Hitler's dream.

"Such a move, in my opinion, would break Bolshevism's westward advance and create a tremendous and terrible power which would impose and dictate peace upon the world."

Hedin was quoted as saying Hitler's dream might well be a western bloc strong enough to maintain peace, and recognize the world.

Hedin and Hitler were said to establish a semi-independent state "but she will not give up Czecho-Slovakia".

DUFF COOPER CAN SEE LITTLE HOPE FOR EARLY PEACE

Cannot Believe That Germany Still in Victorious Position Would Yield Single Point

EXPECTS REVOLUTION

New York, Oct. 23 (CP) —Alfred Duff Cooper, former First Lord of the British Admiralty, who is here today to launch a lecture tour says Great Britain and France are glorified for a fight to the finish—a fight which probably will not come when Germany's conservative elements overthrow the Nazi regime.

"National socialism is a revolutionary force, a form of Bolshevism, and now the outer mask has been dropped," he told interviewers. "It must be remembered that the right wingers in Germany are struggling now, and when the revolution will be launched by the right—the army and the conservative elements."

Mr. Cooper, who resigned his cabinet post as a protest against the Munich settlement of the Chechoslovakian crisis, often has been singled out by Nazis as a "warmonger." His sailing on the United States liner Manhattan, which docked yesterday, was kept secret lest German submarines attempt to intercept the ship.

SUPER-GUERRILLA WAR BY FRENCH AIDED BY FLOODS

RIVERS OVERFLOW

Paris, Oct. 23—(AP)—Early winter floods aided France's "super-guerrilla" war against Germany as the opposing armies settled down today in the approximate positions they occupied at the outbreak of hostilities.

The French, having relinquished virtually all positions on German soil seized in the first seven weeks of the war, indicated their tactics were aimed at sapping Germany's civilian morale, while avoiding any decisive clashes of their troops.

The only type of action now being waged on the front, they said, consists of a kind of guerilla war-fare involving skirmishing by patrols constantly seeking to chart enemy positions.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

The German air force appears to be systematically feeling out British anti-aircraft defences in its effort to determine whether bombing can effect appreciable damage on Great Britain's naval power and communications and whether the possible damage would be worth the cost.

Over the weekend the first German air raid on merchant ships travelling in convoy was reported. Four aircraft were shot down and no damage was done. That venture can be chalked up in the German Air Command's experimental ledger as a failure. Opposite it, however, will be the success achieved in last week's air attack on warships in the Firth of Fourth.

DE JURE GERMAN CABINET SET-UP IS TALKED OF

OBJECTS OF 'CABINET'

New York, Oct. 22 (CP)—The New York Daily News says in its copyright dispatch today that the British government is considering recognition of a De jure German government sealed in London. The News says the report is based on "information reaching New York from London which was passed by censors."

Pending announcement of the recognition would be accompanied by promulgation of a British peace proposal acceptable to the new German "cabinet," according to this report in the newspaper. It continues:

The strategy of such action would be twofold:

"1. It would make clear to the German people who would be informed through every available channel that the war was not

STUDY MANIFESTO OF 75 MINISTERS OF UNITED CHURCH

Order Given by Conant for Probe of 'Witness Against War' Manifesto

CONNANT'S COMMENT

C. Magone, K.C., Will Determine if Statement Contravenes Act

Toronto, Oct. 23 (CP)—Attorney General Gordon Conant has ordered an investigation of the manifesto issued by 75 clergymen of the United Church disapproving of "this or any other war" as "incompatible with the Christian spirit and ideal."

The Provincial Minister, it was learned, has instructed Clifford Magone, K.C., to study the manifesto and determine whether it contravenes any section of the Defence of Canada Act.

"If the cases under the Section I shall seriously consider prosecution and will leave the matter with Mr. Magone I cannot state definitely what action I shall take," said Mr. Conant this morning.

Attorney General's Words

"Pusillanimous' is the best word that I can think of to describe their action," he added. "Certainly there are not patriotic from what I have read. I don't think it is very helpful to recruiting."

Section 39 makes it an offence for "any statements "intended or likely to" cause disaffection to the King or to prejudice recruiting."

The clergymen assembled here behind closed doors Friday at what was described as a "witness against war" meeting.

Attacks Are Made Many Miles From Aircraft Bases

Accidental Discharge Of Gun Injures Wife

Havelock, Oct. 22.—Accidental discharge of a shotgun with which her husband was handling, caused minor injuries to Mrs. Ernest McDonald at her home about twelve miles east of here over the week-end.

Mr. McDonald was putting a cartridge into place when the gun discharged, the shot going through the side of the house and the dining-room and passing through an open doorway to strike Mrs. McDonald who was standing in the kitchen.

The shot injured her arm and side both legs, but the force of the discharge had been largely spent and the injuries were not serious. She was taken to a nearby nursing home. Mr. McDonald is assistant manager of the fish hatchery.

SIX FATALITIES DURING WEEKEND IN THE PROVINCE

Youth Killed While Hunting Pheasants in Oakville District

DEATH PROBED

By The Canadian Press

Six fatalities—one of the lowest week-end death tolls in the province this year—were counted today as police also investigated a mysterious slaying in Toronto.

The badly-decomposed body of George Flude, 31, Toronto milk driver missing since last July 10, was found Sunday buried in a shallow grave in a Toronto garage. A double loop of quarter inch rope was about the man's neck and a hammer with hairs clinging to it was found near the body.

Authorities sought a man who rented the garage for three months in June. He gave his name as "O'Brien." The owner of the garage, found in Miami Sunday as he had not been paid for this month, and he found the body.

CONDITION FOUND SATISFACTORY

New York, Oct. 22—(CP)— A medical examination had shown the condition of Baron Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, to be "entirely satisfactory" and he will leave here for Ottawa tomorrow night.

"The physicians are entirely satisfied with His Excellency's condition," a members of the vice-regal party said.

The Governor General came to New York last Friday for what was described as a "thorough examination." The nature of his illness was not made known.

PUPPET MAYOR MAKES PROTEST

Slaying of Chinese Policeman on Settlement Border Cause of Note

Shanghai, Oct. 23—(AP)—Pushing on, unopposed, deeper into Japanese-held part of Shanghai, will protest to the International Settlement Council, the murder of a Chinese policeman on the Settlement-Japanese border, Japanese-sponsored press said today.

Two other Chinese were killed and an undetermined number wounded in a thirty-minute fight between Japanese gendarmes and Chinese motorcyclists.

The Japanese military, which stepped in to end the fighting, will also make representations to the Settlement Council, the Japanese papers said.

Another outbreak of violence, terrorists invaded a Chinese weekly paper office in the International Settlement yesterday, firing 50 shots that fatally wounded four persons and injured six. They injured the bride and a number of guests.

Accidental Shooting Pilots Remain Over Scenes Where Submarines Disappeared and None Came to Surface After Depth Bombs Released

AIR ALARM CANCELLED

Two British Merchant Ships Reported Sunk — 14 Persons on One Missing but Crew of Other Saved

London, Oct. 23 (CP)—Royal Air Force planes made two attacks on U-boats — both "believed to have been successful"—the Air Ministry announced today.

The announcement of the attacks, which were made "recently" in the North Sea and Atlantic, came shortly after British naval authorities announced German U-boat attacks on allied shipping had again become commonplace.

It also followed reports of the unexplained sinking of two more British vessels, Britain's armed forces reported missing after the 1,692-ton steamship Whitemanair, shot down in the North Sea. The crew was saved when the 2,237-ton coastal vessel Sea Venture sank after an explosion.

Communique Issued.

The announcement of the attacks on U-boats follows:

"Two attacks on U-boats were reported made by Royal Air Force aircraft and both are believed to have been successful. One took place in the North Sea and the other in the Atlantic, many miles from the nearest land. In both attacks, the pilots remained circling over the area where the submarines disappeared, and nothing more was seen of the U-boats.

"'A reconnaissance aircraft sighted and attacked a submarine in position 56.30 north, 03.00 east. Depth bombs was dropped ahead of the periscope, which immediately disappeared.'"

Three Murderers Quickly Put to Death

Bellefonte, Pa., Oct. 23.—(AP)—A mild-mannered electrical engineer, beginning a double execution-ist's day, paused briefly in Pennsylvania's executionary, quickly put to death three murderers in Rockview prison here where the chair, today, then lighted a cigarette and remarked, "I'm not a bit nervous."

For his fourteen and a half minutes of work, 37-year-old Frank De Wilson of Pittsburgh collected $450—$250 for the first victim, Paul Eddie, 24, and $200 additional for each of the others, Willie Sharp, 21, and Bob Redmon, Philadelphia Negroes.

A man who believes the executioner is no more responsible for an electrocution than the judge and jury, Wilson was followed by Warden Stanley Ashe for the double-barrel job that Robert Elliott held for 16 years. Elliott died a few weeks ago.

BUCKWHEAT CROP BELOW NORMAL

While buckwheat of the district is practically as good a crop as that of a year ago, the yield will only be fifty per cent of a normal crop, George Bailey, prominent Prince Edward County threshing said Saturday night. Other grains have yielded a fairly good crop, although some damage was done by weather conditions in certain parts of the district.

ONE SHOT BRINGS DOWN FOUR DUCKS

The ducks swooped low over the blind just Pleasant Bay on Saturday. A gun blazed out of the rushes and four of the flock of Blue Bills fell into the water dead or mortally wounded. And Arthur Newman, local pilot, claims the record for the biggest bag of the season brought down with one shot.

Mr. Newman, hunting with Fred Key, of this city, brought home fifteen ducks as trophies of the day's hunt.

GLEN ALLEN UNLOADS LARGE CARGO SUGAR

Unloading twelve hundred bags beside several barrels and cases of sugar, the steamer Glen Allen left for Montreal on Friday night nearly loaded with foodstuffs goods from various factories of the district. The steamer will return for another large cargo of canned goods this week. It is expected the ship will make a record seven more trips before laying up for the season.

WORKMEN COMPLETING WORK ON HIGHWAY

With seventy-five men rushing operations on "shoulder-work" completion of construction on that part of Highway No. 2 extending from the eastern city limits to Shannonville is expected to be near future.

According to an official of the company construction of the highway from Shannonville to Marysville has been cancelled, due to war conditions.

Labor for the finishing of the work has been secured from the immediate district, it is stated, but no further help will be engaged.

SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY AT CHRIST CHURCH

Upwards of three hundred Sunday school pupils from Christ Church and St. George's Anglican Sunday schools attended the annual Sunday School Rally Day at Christ Church yesterday afternoon when Rev. G. G. Wright, rector of Christ Church, spoke to the children's gathering on the subject of "God's Free Gifts." An interesting feature of the rally was the conventional Sunday school activities at both Christ Church Parish Hall and St. George's, which dispensed with yesterday in favor of the Rally Day service. The small fry children from St. George's were transported to Christ Church by motor cars donated by the members of the parish and at the request of Rev. Mr. Wright.

No Criminal Cases On the Docket

Seven cases and two motions are entered for trial at the Fall Assizes of the County of Hastings, which opened at the Court House before the Honourable Mr. Justice Chevrier this morning with the grand and four non-jury cases as well as two motions for judgment before His Lordship, Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn summoned the jury.

Damage actions constitute the basis of the three jury cases listed for trial. The case of Post vs. Rislow is an action for damages, as the result of personal injuries sustained by the plaintiff, when a motor car owned by the defendant crashed into a barn door, entering several people last summer. The fifth case is undefended and does not represent the defendant.

The second case is also an action for damages as the result of a motor accident, while the third jury case is a civil action, of Quinlivan vs. Mullich et al, entered for damages in a civil action following injuries received during an assault at Point Anne last summer and entered by the plaintiff's counsel in Police Court. E. O. Butler, appeared for the plaintiff and the firm of Porter, Payne and Arnott for the defendants.

In the non-jury docket the case of Aylsworth vs. The Canada Slate Products Co. Ltd. et al. is set regarding the matter of royalties claimed by the plaintiff, Ivan, for divorce actions and a motion to continue an injunction will also be heard.

As there were no criminal charges listed for trial, Sheriff O'Flynn dismissed the Grand Jury without presence.

Police Blotter

City police were busied over the week-end investigating several matters of minor importance with little result that several inebriates appeared in Police Court today charged with intoxication. Disturbances at a local restaurant saw a private in the army arrested on charges of intoxication early Sunday morning. When he was arraigned in court today, Military authorities present stated that charges of being absent without leave were also pending.

M. J. Muir, 18 Johnson, St., reported the theft of a spare tire, tube and rim, removed from his truck while it was parked on his own premises some time last night.

Mrs. R. Ball, 2nd Concession of Thurlow, reported the theft of goods from a parked automobile on Campbell St. Saturday evening. The family road a meal some school books and other articles were reported taken.

RETURNS AFTER THREE YEARS IN ENGLAND

Miss Sylvia Tett, who has spent the past three years in dramatic work in England arrived in the city this afternoon to visit Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hill.

OBITUARY

JAMES J. MACCALLUM
(Formerly of Belleville)

James J. MacCallum, who for some years was a well known and popular resident of Belleville, died on Saturday, Oct. 21st., in the St. Mary's Hospital, Kitchener, Ont., in his 74th year.

The late Mr. MacCallum, came to Belleville from Toronto, close to forty years ago, when the Belleville Daily Sun was established and was connected with the printing department of the job department. After several years with the Sun Company he resigned and was employed as foreman of job printing at The Daily Ontario, after he began work as news and tobacco business here. Later he moved to Kitchener, where he made his home since leaving Belleville. Surviving are his children here Mr. MacCallum was a faithful member of St. Michael's Church. Old friends in Belleville will regret to learn of his death.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Emma Power; two sons, Mr. William D. MacCallum, Mr. John J. MacCallum; two daughters, Mrs. R. C. Hillard, Toronto, and Mrs. D'Arcy Hillard.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday morning in Kitchener.

LATE WALLACE D. SIMMONDS

Sunday afternoon the funeral of Wallace D. Simmons took place from the residence of his father, Mr. Ira Simmons, in Foxboro, and was largely attended by friends. The service in the home was conducted by the Rev. A. Armstrong, pastor of Canniffton United Church assisted by a former pastor of the same church, the Rev. W. Merrick of Selby, Ont., the Rev. E. Cooke, pastor of the United Church at Foxboro, and the Rev. F. R. Marston, of Oshawa. During the service a duet in keeping with the occasion was sung by Messrs. O. Dafoe and H. Dafoe.

Interment was made in Foxboro cemetery, the pall bearers being Messrs. Wilfrid Clapp, Elijah Horton, Charles Brintnell, Levi Latone, Scott and Cecil Dowsell.

The late rites of the Masonic Order were performed at the graveside by Mr. Frank Tulk, Worshipful Master of The Belleville Lodge, A.F. and A.M., No. 122.

LATE MISS ALWILDA A. MILLER (Foxboro)

The funeral of Miss Alwilda A. Miller took place from the residence of her niece, Mrs. Elsie Dow, to Foxboro on Sunday afternoon. The service in the home and at the graveside in the Foxboro cemetery was conducted by the Rev. R. Cooke, pastor of Foxboro United Church.

MRS. MARGARET (GRATHARD) MORTON (St. Ola)

After being in failing health during the past year, Mrs. Margaret Morton, wife of Mr. John W. Morton, passed away at the family residence at St. Ola, Ont., on Saturday evening, Oct. 21st.

The late Mrs. Morton was born in Trenton, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. John Grathard. For fifty-two years she resided at St. Ola and occupied a high place in the regard of many friends, to whom her passing has brought sincere feelings of regret. In religion she was a member of the United Church and when health permitted she took an active part in the activities of the organization in connection with the congregation.

Surviving her are her husband, Mr. John W. Morton, St. Ola, Ont.; three daughters, Mrs. C. E. Eggleston, Hamilton, Ont., Mrs. M. G. Cook, Belleville, and Mrs. C. E. Thompson, St. Ola, Ont.; one sister, Mrs. G. L. Johnston, Belleville.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday, Oct. 24th., to the United Church at St. Ola, for service at 2 o'clock.

POLICE COURT

Arrested on Highway No. 7 when allegedly in possession of a motor car said by police not to have been their property, two members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Pte. Daniel Vesterveit and Pte. Raymond Ray, were arrested by Provincial Constables A. Dymond and Chief Leonard of Madoc, on charges of joy riding. The vehicle belonged to Fred Simmons of Madoc and the accused men stated they had borrowed the car without Simmons' knowledge.

Today Vesterfelt and Ray appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., charged with joy-riding. No plea was taken, counsel stating as they were turned over to the custody of the military authorities pending further investigations.

Ronald Miller, Deseronto, appeared for sentence after being convicted of a serious charge committed against a young girl last September. "Of course this type of crime is a serious offence," Mr. Butler declares as in circumstances, which do mitigate this matter slightly," stated His Worship as he sentenced accused to two months in the common jail, it date from the time he or his arrest some weeks ago.

Several inebriates appeared on charges of intoxication and all pleaded guilty and paid fines. There are a lot of cash customers appearing today" suggested Crown Attorney C. Thompson, K.C. after a third inaccusation fattened the coffers of the court by paying fines forthwith.

IN LOCAL PULPIT

Bill Patterson, of Hamilton and formerly of Scotland, former communist and recently a convert to Christianity, was the guest speaker on communism which he had found to be a lie, when conducting which had been his ideal set about as he said to destroy itself, spoke to a large congregation in Bridge Street United Church on Sunday evening. He related how he had lost faith in the doctrins of communism for which he had struggled. Much of his life was spent as organizer and agitator. He has recently discovered that what he sought in society is to be found only in the Gospel of Christ, that Christ's way of living is the only way that can bring peace to the heart. "The lack of Christ in the people is the cause of all our trouble", he said.

A few months ago if anyone had said I would stand in the pulpit of a church and preach, a church I should have believed he was crazy" he said. "Up to last January I was a communist. I was not only a full fellow member of the communist party but an organizer, leader and agitator, a militant fighter for communism. I have agitated in every industrial city from Halifax to London. I have lost my little fights with the police."

He related how he had disliked the police and how churches had been to him places which he had hoped some day to lead working men to destroy them. He had declared clergy, priest and ministers. He said that this was the gospel he had preached. He said he declared, arrested with 300 or more others in Queen's Park, Toronto, in Manchester. He had been charged with blasphemy, he was out to destroy Christianity.

His Early Life

Mr. Patterson attributed to conditions in some coal mines in his native Scotland, where remuneration was low he said and where he declared families lived on a pittance. Such conditions smothered any "no religious training", he went on to say, "if I had been in those days to me." When he was eighteen and a half years of age he had begun to take his life in an industrial plant and the speaker had the responsibility of looking after 1,500 men, women, sex and his sisters. His mother and father had been Christians. Isolated from the company's house shortly after he left school with God and mother. In the end, he entered his soul.

He attacked the working conditions in the plant where he was employed and said he saw men driven desperate. He had left the plant after a strike and he said he could always talk. He had been invited to speak before a labor school at Glasgow where he was taught under a brilliant communist in the doctrines of Karl Marx. After the Russian revolution, he joined the communist party of Britain, being one of the charter members. He was also organizer in Manchester, and he recognized that he had to instil in the workers a simple gospel. He said that one of those engaged in organizing the strike in Glasgow was a Jew. He related methods the communists used to gain control of the labor unions, saying that the communists hoped, some day to the overthrow of the capitalist system. The inspirason said that we really believed that we were going to bring about an ideal society." This was the communistic dream and it is this dream that led communists to be prepared to die for communism.

He related how he had led a riot, he said, and lost his job and was ordered out of the country. He went back to Manchester but he came to Christ instead.

Loss Faith in Communism

"Why did I cease to be a Communist?" was the question he asked and answered. He said that he had his first doubt when the Russian sky was exiled from Russia. Trotsky had been a commander-in-chief during the Great War and was Lenin's right hand man. Why was he exiled. He had been a leader in the communist said Mr. Patterson, or by any class hatred but by a love for man that he had built. Mr. Patterson then had his first doubt.

He spoke in detail of purges which he charged had taken place among communists.

"Honestly I could no longer go out and support a movement like that was destroying those who built it.

He imagined that when he stepped out of the Communist party he would sit down quietly, but that did not work out. He found he he had nothing to believe in. He had lost his faith in Communism. He had no church, no God to turn to. "God to me meant only a bogey to frighten children. I had taught my children there was no good in religion and that religion was the opium, scientific. One day my little daughter went to her grandmother's, who was a good Catholic and saw a picture and asked her grandmother what mother told her it was God. The girl replied that can't be true, because my daddy says there is none."

He joined the growing band of helpless men and felt that life had no meaning. Then last week after week brooding until his wife in desperation said to him to go out and let men know he was still alive.

He said, "I can't. I have nothing to fight for. I cannot fight for a movement that crushes those who build it. Communism is a lie. I cannot go on living this meaningless life."

Then his wife said; "If you can't go back to Communism, now don't get mad at not. I have been praying for you." It was frightened of you. Your children are praying for you."

Something To Live For.

Then he said he asked the children not to pray for him. But he could not get rid of the word "God" going through his mind. He talked to a professor who arranged a meeting for him with Rev. Dr. Crossley Hunter of Hamilton. "Dr. Hunter after long hours was able to convince me there was something worth living for. He showed me that Christ is the only way that we could bring peace, that it was lack of Christ in the people that was the cause of all our trouble."

Then Patterson came to realize that Christ had taught the Gospel which if people only grasped held the key to the whole situation of society.

He realized, he said, that he could start all over again. The love and care of one's fellow men are fundamental. He had been trained to be subtle, to outwit the police, but then "I realized all the had to go. I realized that if I had really wanted to bring about better things, I had to get right with God and my fellow men. I went to a foreman and apologized."

He said: "You people have not had the background I have had, you have led semi-sheltered lives, you with your Christian background should realize that it had to go among my Communist friends and Communist friends and Communist meetings that I first realized I was nearly failed. I prayed to God to give me strength. I am quaking around."

He said many Communists were disillusioned by the course of Communism. "I would appeal to you people to pray for those who are lously. Surely it is not too much to ask you to do as the loyal boys of Christ."

Dr. Crossley was in charge of the service and referred to the evangelistic work of the late team of Torrey and Alexander and to the work of the son of the evangelist, Dr. Crossley Hunter, who had led Mr. Patterson to Christ.

Given 30 Days in Jail For Assaulting Officer

London, Oct. 22.—(CP)—Wilfred Pinkham, 37, was given a 30-day jail term today for assaulting trooper George Meinster, of the First Hussars, London.

The assault occurred in a downtown hotel when Pinkham accosted Trooper Meinster and a party of friends.

Pinkham started the argument and then socked me without warning," the soldier told Magistrate Hugh Graham.

Pinkham pleaded guilty and made no excuses.

5 KILLED IN BUS PLUNGE

Havana, Oct. 23.—(CP—Havas)—Five boys were killed and 16 injured today when a bus in which they were riding dropped over a 80-foot cliff. The boys were members of a baseball team.

PAIR CHARGED WITH ENTERING

Men Arrested While Incarcerated in the Barrie Jail for Local Offence

Arrested while they were incarcerated in the Barrie jail pending investigations, Arnold Drummond, 19, of Nova Scotia and Lucien Laverdure, of Montreal, appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in police court here today charged with breaking and entering the premises of the Superior Cleaners, Belleville, and steal therefrom a quantity of clothing. No plea was taken as Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., requested a week's enlargement to prepare the prosecution against the pair.

Drummond and Laveller were being held in the Barrie jail on suspicion when through finger print investigations by the police of the Superior Cleaners robbery, identity of the culprits of the men was established. Entrance was gained to the premises on two weeks ago when a number of suits of clothes and overcoats were stolen. Drummond and Laveller were sent up and returned with their prisoners, who today were remanded to the custody of the Belleville jail pending trial.

TWO MONGREL DOGS IN CITY POUND

Thomas Thorne, city dog pound custodian, is in possession of two mongrel dogs today. The dogs, a black and tan colored dog that was picked up on Front Street and wearing a dog collar and city dog tag of 1937 vintage. The license on the tag was given as 668. This canines will remain in East Bridge street and is now in the custody of the city dog pound, Mr. Thorne stated at noon. The other dog is a female mongrel pup that was abandoned on John street yesterday. Both dogs are awaiting recovery by their owners at the city dog pound.

ZANE GREY, 64, DIES SUDDENLY

Noted Writer and Sportsman Dedicated as 'Doctor of Dentistry'

Altadena, Calif., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Zane Grey, noted writer and sportsman, died suddenly today at his home of a heart attack. He was 64.

Grey attained fame and fortune through writing colorful stories of the West, most of which have been produced many times as motion pictures. His hobby was deep sea fishing and he spent many months in recent years following big sport in the South Seas.

Grey was born January 31, 1875, at Zanesville, Ohio, named after ancestors of his mother, Alice Josephine Zane.

He was graduated from Zanesville Schools, and in 1896, from the University of Pennsylvania, and practiced dentistry in New York from 1898 until 1904.

Deserts Others Fields for Writing

With the publication of his first novel "Deity Jane", he deserted other fields for writing and achieved one of the most rapid and long-standing reputations as a writer of popular fiction in the nation's history.

Within 35 years he published more than 50 novels, most of them with heavy sales.

Several of his books, such as "Riders of the Purple Sage", "The Rainbow Trail" and "The Heritage of the Desert", have become standards of western fiction.

His father's fond ambition was realized when the University of Pennsylvania awarded Zane Grey a diploma, making him a Doctor of Dental Surgery.

Twenty years later the same University with an honorary degree rectified the error and wrote "Doctor of Literature" in place of "Doctor of Surgery" in his purple-ribbon bordered parchment.

Triumphs over Discouragements

Most of the period that intervened was one of struggle, writing, almost hopeless despair. Few American authors struggled to the heights attained by Grey over such a discouraging course.

Six years of failure to make either a satisfactory living or a name as a professional writer in New York brought him the realization he had chosen the wrong career. Then, following seven years more of toil toil and failure as an author.

Reminding the civilian population that the sacrifices it may be called to make cannot compare with those made by German soldiers, Hitler told the Nazi leader gathering:

"It is not easy for our women to sustain in this war the same heavy losses as they suffered in the last war. But it is necessary to win the final battle, for a peace with England can be made to subjugate the German people. As a group of Nazi district leaders sprang to their feet, Hitler added:

"Germany will fight!"

A group of Nazi district leaders spent the weekend in Berlin, meeting with Adolf Hitler and getting briefing on methods to meet internal problems.

FINLAND RENEWS MOSCOW TALKS

Atmosphere is Considered Hopeful As It is Believed Russia Will Not Seek to Push Finland Too Far and Risk War

Moscow, Oct. 23 (AP)—A Finnish delegation headed by Premier Premier Juho Paasikivi returned to Moscow today to renew negotiations with Soviet Russia.

The atmosphere was considered hopeful by Finns as the diplomats stepped from their train and were greeted by Vladimir Dekanozov, Chief of Protocol in the Russian Foreign Office, a handful of minor Soviet officials and the envoys here of all the Scandinavian states.

Observers believed that Russia's declared intention of remaining neutral, expressed by Premier Stalin and Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov in the Soviet's domestic broadcasts following the signing of the Russo-German pact, would not stop Russia from pressing Finland too far and risk war with her northern neighbor. On the other hand, Finland was said to be prepared to yield somewhat to the Soviet's demands, especially by allowing fortification of islands in the Gulf of Finland.

The Finnish delegate expected to confer with the Kremlin this afternoon or tonight. They awaited word that Premier Stalin and Foreign Minister Ribbentrop-Berenthlow, according to reports circulated in New York, said the countess will seek a swift divorce from Count Haugwitz-Reventlow and a return of her American citizenship, after which she will wed the golfer.

TO WED COUNTESS?

Robert Sweeney, American golfer, who won the British amateur open golf championship in 1937, will soon become the third husband of Countess Barbara Hutton Mdivani Haugwitz-Reventlow, according to reports circulated in New York. It is said the countess will seek a swift divorce from Count Haugwitz-Reventlow and a return of her American citizenship, after which she will wed the golfer.

ed from Denmark, crossed the Atlantic with William Penn.

Colonel Zane, whose wife had Indian blood in her veins, was the father of four sons and a daughter, all of whom gained recognition in the revolution and frontier days.

In Ohio during his youth, Grey was noted as a baseball player. His services were sought by several eastern colleges and baseball scouts frowned a factor in his choosing to enter Pennsylvania.

First Atlantic Adventure

Grey's first attempt at writing was for a publication that was offering prizes. The rejection of his story, he was stated, both angered and discouraged him, but it awoke in him a consciousness that writing had an appeal for him.

Early in his writing career, Colonel C. J. (Buffalo) Jones, a big game hunter, took him on a hunting expedition to Arizona. From experiences on that trip he wrote "The Last of the Plainsmen."

Other trips with Colonel Jones followed and in them he laid the foundation for many of his later successes.

The prosperity that came with "Riders of the Purple Sage" enabled Grey to gratify his craving for travel and he came to know the great American desert, the mountainous wilds of western America, the Grand Canyon country, the islands of the South Seas as well as any other writer.

Of recent years Grey had lived most of the time at his palatial lodge at Avalon, Cal., but he also maintained his old home in Pennsylvania.

SPEAKERS TRY TO BOOST MORALE

Propaganda Minister of Germany Tells Women to Bear Sacrifices

Berlin, Oct. 22 (AP)—Nazi leaders, apparently convinced Great Britain and France intend to confine their immediate efforts mainly to the blockade against Germany? pressed today a campaign to build up home front morale.

Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels, in an address broadcast in many languages, appealed for sympathy abroad by acquiring Great Britain of sinking the British liner Athenia to enlist the United States on her side.

Goebbels challenged the First Lord of the Admiralty, Winston Churchill, to "go into the Lower House or stand before the radio and tell the truth about the Athenia."

"You could you say, Mr. Churchill," Goebbels asked, "that the Athenia was sunk by a German torpedo when you knew it went down under the fire of three British destroyers?"

Many Mass Meetings

The Nazi campaign to strengthen German morale in the face of the Allied blockade was marked by numerous mass meetings in which the conflict was characterized as a "war of nerves." It was predicted freely France and Britain would break first.

"We don't know how long this war will last," one speaker said. "Perhaps it will last several months, perhaps several years. But as long as it may last, never again will we be conquered by England."

Reminding the civilian population that the sacrifices it may be called to make cannot compare with those made by German soldiers, Hitler told the Nazi leader gathering:

"It is not easy for our women to sustain in this war the same heavy losses as they suffered in the last war. But it is necessary to win the final battle, for a peace with England can be made to subjugate the German people. As a group of Nazi district leaders sprang to their feet, Hitler added:

"Germany will fight!"

A group of Nazi district leaders spent the weekend in Berlin, meeting with Adolf Hitler and getting briefing on methods to meet internal problems.

Tweed High School rugby team gained partial revenge for the many defeats they had suffered in the past at the hands of their cleir-er Marmora rivals by handing them a 21-0 reverse at the local grounds on Friday afternoon.

The lateness of the arrival of Marmora boys forced a curtailment of the playing time to ten-minute quarters, with the ball and players alike being almost rushed from the side lines during the first quarter.

Mixing their plays well the locals were able to keep their opponents on the defensive for the greater part of the game. A forward pass from O. Wagar to fleet-footed Cournoyea scored the initial touchdown in the opening quarter. The visitors threatened in the second quarter but Tweed's defence was on the receiving end of a forward pass, eluding several tacklers he was well on the way to the goal-line when he was downed by O. Wagar, whose all-round play was a feature of the game.

Burrill proved to be the star of the last three quarters, scoring as many touchdowns. He accepted Wagar's lateral late in the second for a major score. This was converted via the forward pass route to make the score 11-0.

The second-half playing of the front line was a decided improvement over previous games. Paced by husky Doug Connor they forced Marmora to kick repeatedly on the third down, as their plunging backs failed to gain ground for them. Burrill's second touchdown was from a forward pass thrown by Wagar and converted successfully by his plunging as well as his running mates, the first five points of the game on a series of successful plunges.

Cournoyea, the two Leonards, Gray and Shannon were probably the pick of the locals, although fairly fors were nullified by the superior defensive and offensive play of the locals. Tweed completed five forward passes in seven attempts, Marmora's one attempt failing. Neither side had one pass intercepted.

Marmora: Hall, Gorman, Leonards; quarter, Shannon; halves, G. Leonard, E. Leonard; flying wingers, Hastings, Fleming, Trumble; middles, Jones, Bayley; ends, McInroy and Crawford.

Tweed—Flying wing, Doyle; quarter, J. Wagar; halves, Burrill and Cournoyea, Lunfiner; snap, Connor; middles, Meagher, Murray; middles, Price, Langevin; ends, Porritt, Rivers, Jones, Morrison, Vance, Larkin, Edwards.

Officials—Referees, T. J. Calnan, Tweed; Timekeeper, Marmora; linesman, E. C. Prentice, Marmora.

PRAY FOR KING IN U. S. CHURCH

Bible Presented to St. James Church, Hyde Park, N.Y., Dedicated by Rector with President Present

Hyde Park, Oct. 23— (AP)— The prayers of the United States at his ancestral pew in St. James' Episcopal Church Sunday asked Heaven the rector ask God's aid for King George against "all his enemies."

No sign of emotion crossed President Roosevelt's face as Frank Wilson intoned the prayer. The occasion was a special service and the ministers used a Canadian Church of England prayer book.

Normally a blessing for the President is invoked in the United States.

"O Lord, most heartily we beseech thee with Thy favor to behold our most gracious Sovereign, Lord, King George", the rector prayed. ". . . And strengthen him that he may vanquish and overcome all his enemies . . ."

Later Mr. Wilson told newspaper correspondents no political significance attached to the mention of "enemies" in the prayer, which he said was used "year in, year out" in the Anglican church.

The prayer for the King, head of the Church of England, was read from a Canadian Prayer book which the minister brought from Campobello Island, N.B., where Mr. Roosevelt has a summer home.

The service was built around the dedication of a Bible given the parish by King George commemorating the King's and the Queen's worship there last June 11 with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

On its flyleaf, in His Majesty's own hand, were inscribed: "presented to St. James' Church, Hyde Park, U.S.A., by George R.I. June 11th, 1939."

SOVIET PLANES SEEN IN CHINA

Military Aid to China Seen as Outgrowth of Trade Pact and Other Agreements

Hook Kong, Oct. 23—(AP)—Increasing numbers of Soviet Russian planes, guns and military technicians have appeared in China during the seven weeks which have witnessed new success for General Chiang Kai-shek's armies against Japan and revived strength in his air force.

Reliable sources today estimated five hundred Russian technicians already are in China and that at least additional supplies of tanks, anti-aircraft guns and other war materials were on their way from Russia.

Chinese spokesmen, both here and in China's provincial capital, Chungking, said the Soviet military aid was the outgrowth of a Chinese-Soviet trade pact concluded last June and subsidiary military and economic agreements reached before war started in Europe.

Some of those agreements never have been disclosed, but Chinese officials have said privately that they were promised Russian war supplies worth between $30,000,000 and $100,000,000.

VOTERS ARE TOLD OF THEIR DUTIES

Priests Read Communication to People to Vote Conscientiously

Quebec, Oct. 23 (CP)—Throughout the province, the Roman Catholic clergy told their congregations Sunday from the pulpit to "conform faithfully to the Catholic principles to safeguard the liberty and honesty of elections."

A communication, drawn up at the request of Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve and read in French on Sunday masses, advised Roman Catholic electors to vote "conscientiously" for the candidate "whom you believe to be honest and capable of fulfilling his duty to God and the state."

The communication warned voters to be "ever mindful lest the business of this world, which passes as like a shadow, should cause you to forget the one necessary business of preparation for an eternity of blessed peace and which is your last end."

Voters were told to realize that "corrupt practices" cannot help render an account of all your thoughts, words and actions during the election as well as at all other times.

The communication warned voters to "guard against perjury" It continued: "as to rightly expect that your liberty be respected, do not by any also respect the liberty of your fellow-citizens. Abstain, therefore from violence or violation."

Electors were told to avoid "drunkenness" and "selling your vote."

Dies Suddenly While on Walk

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 23 (CP) — While friends were organizing a bowling party to last night, Harry Lee today found the body of George Edwin Gilks, 61, on the North Perth Ackerswiller, North Easthope just outside the northerly city limits.

Mr. Gilks was believed to have died of coronary thrombosis.

Mr. Gilks left his home Sunday to walk to Hagerman's where he was to attend a church service along with members of Parkview United church, Stratford.

The discovery was not made until Mr. Lee began a search after friends had notified them Mr. Gilks was missing.

APPEAL ASSESSMENT

Sarnia, Ont., Oct. 23—(CP)—Michigan State Bridge Commission has given notice of its intention to carry to the Supreme Court of Canada its appeal against the $200,000 assessment on the Blue Water Bridge by the village of Point Edward. Four years have already sustained the assessment against the centre span within its municipality.

RETURNS FROM HOLIDAY

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—(CP) — Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of pensions and National Health, returned to the capital today after a three weeks vacation in the Southern States and said he felt "fit as a fiddle."

Mr. Mackenzie, former Pefence Minister, was on the job first thing today to take over the direction of his new department after the cabinet shuffle of last month.

TELL OF CLASH OVER CONVOY

Navy Officers at Press Conference Give Account of Saturday's Battle

London, Oct. 23 (CP)—An account of the clash Saturday between a British convoy and German bombing planes in the North Sea, was given today by naval press conference.

At last four Nazi planes were shot down in the engagement by British pursuit planes.

The naval account, referring to the encounter only up until the time its pursuit ships took up the battle, said that from time to time during Saturday morning enemy planes had been sighted scouting under cover of low clouds. These were identified as Heinkel 115s.

At 12.30 p.m. three bombers appeared under the clouds and dived, dropping bombs, and then disappeared once into the mist as gunners opened up at them.

Later as the weather clear'd two more planes were seen and the attack.

The leading escort ship opened fire from which the bombers turned away. Royal Air Force planes swept out from the land and "were last seen in pursuit of the enemy."

BELIEVE RUSSIA STAYS NEUTRAL

British Sources Confident No Military Pact Likely Between Russia, Germany

(By J. F. Sanderson Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 23 (CP Cable) — Authoritative sources in the government held firmly to the view that Soviet Russia will not supply warships, submarines and military munitions to Germany.

While official circles had no confirmation of Paris reports that Joseph Stalin had signed an antipathic "no" to a plea from Adolf Hitler for military assistance, authoritative sources here the view today that the Soviet leader would abide by his pledge "carefully."

These sources predicted Stalin would not give Germany warships with his Nazi diplomatic ally, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, who left Moscow today after signing a trade agreement with Russia. This policy, it was said, would include the current agreement to exchange British rubber and tin for Soviet timber.

2 MEN SENTENCED AFTER PETERBOROUGH

One Man Sentenced on Six Charges and Another on Five

Peterborough, Ont., Oct. 23—(CP) —On two of six charges, two of theft of automobiles and four of stealing articles valued at more than $25 to which he pleaded guilty Kenneth Mitchell, 29, of Peterborough was given two years in the Kingston Penitentiary, the sentences to run concurrently by Judge Hugh A. Langley today.

On five other charges of theft of articles under the value of $25 and the other of obstructing an officer, Mitchell was sentenced to three months' sentence in the penitentiary.

Cyril Hutt, 34, of Lakefield, pleaded guilty to five charges, one of car theft and others of theft of goods and was sentenced to 15 months in the Kingston Penitentiary. The eleven charges involving the two men concerned thefts in Peterborough, Bridgenorth, Crowe's Landing and McCracken's Landing.

SAYS ARGENTINA MAY REASSERT SOVEREIGNTY

Falkland Islands Question

Buenos Aires, Oct. 23 — (AP) — (Havas) — Argentina expects eventually to reassert her sovereignation sovereignty over the British Falkland Islands, two hundred miles off the Patagonian coast, the newspaper La Prensa said editorially today.

The paper said "The present moment is not propitious for bringing the issue forward, but warned that the Argentine did not intend to forego its claims.

Argentina has claimed sovereignty over the islands ever since their occupation by Great Britain in 1833.

COST OF LIVING RISES IN EIRE

Unemployment Also Increases — Blackouts Not Taken Seriously

DUBLIN, Oct. 23. —(CP)— The war has hurt Eire economically. The cost of living has been rising steadily and unemployment has increased.

In the first week after war started 10,000 Irish Reservists in the British army were recalled to England and thousands more enlisted.

Publication of a list of Irish lost in the sinking of the British battleship Royal Oak Oct. 14 was a reminder of what the war can mean to Eire whether she declares war or remains neutral.

Here in Dublin and in cities and towns throughout the country there are partial blackouts. The blackout is not compulsory but street lighting has been restricted. Only every fourth lamp is lighted and it is dimmed with a black mask.

Most hotels screen their windows but street cars and buses still run with lights burning.

Apparently no one thinks there will be air raids here. But stores feature blackouts materials and electric torches. War novels and books on the Nazi government have a popular sale.

Gas masks cost 10 shillings and six pence (about $2.30) and the store that sells them will build air raid shelters.

For the Christmas trade toyshops are showing miniature aircraft guns and Red Cross stations.

Four Unemployed End Hunger Strike

Vancouver, Oct. 23—(CP)—Four unemployed, awaiting trial on vagrancy charges following a three-day hunger strike in the city jail last night by eating Sunday dinner, ended their fast today.

The savory odor of cooked food was apparently too much for the men who missed twelve consecutive meals. They protest against being separated from sixteen unemployed companions.

The men were arrested last week after a six hour sit-down strike in the provincial relief office here. Sixteen were taken to Oakalla prison farm in nearby Burnaby and five to the city jail, pending court hearing.

The four men in jail started the hunger strike but one broke away late night when supperime came.

ANGUS MACINNIS INJURED

Kitchener, Ont., Oct. 23—(CP)— Angus MacInnis, Brockville, was critically injured near here early today when his automobile overturned. Passing motorists found him pinned under the car on a concrete south of Kitchener, on the Galt Highway, at St. Mary's hospital, Kitchener, it was said to be "grave". He is suffering from internal injuries.

SAYS LIFE IS THREATENED

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 23—(CP) — Since he issued a statement which charged that Communists in Ontario were conducting propaganda to enlist in the Canadian army, Harry Pollitt, secretary-general of the Canadian Ukrainian Citizens' Association, has received five threats against his life, he said here today.

Pollitt said the five threats were made over the telephone.

"If you keep on talking that way you'll be sorry to talk any long", he quoted one caller as saying.

A WARSHIP'S ANSWER TO BOMBERS

A diving bomber would never dare come close to the deck of a warship to see the details of a gun like this. But if one did get so low, the deadly fire of anti-aircraft guns on an unnamed British cruiser would soon put to the crew of the plane. German bombers have tried conclusions with British warships on numerous occasions since the start of the war, but so far the controversy as to whether planes can defeat warships remains unsettled.

HITLER'S REPATRIATION PLAN

One of the most sinister movements instituted by Adolf Hitler is the repatriation of German families and descendants of Germans who have lived in Baltic states as long as seven centuries. These people are leaving their homes for what Hitler now assumes is German territory as a result of conquest, the German portion of the crushed state of Poland, from which many Poles have fled. While the German families may have acted from another motive—fear of the possibility of Bolshevization by the Russians should the latter make their influence too greatly felt—the fact remains that Hitler is planting these people in Poland. He ejects Poles to find place for Germans who have been abroad or for families of German origin who have been outside German territory for many centuries. What of the Poles and what of the future when Poland is to be reestablished as a state?

Hitler in his mad idea of Germanization of Middle Europe would find Germany far too small if he were to bring back all who could return if they would. It simply means that he would conquer territory for the sake of providing these German nationals, from abroad with homes in conquered lands which he has already incorporated or intends to incorporate in the German Reich. For the sake of his "splinters of German nationality" he would eject peoples from their own lands on the fringes of Germany, and would upset the natural settlement of peoples.

Nazis like the idea of peaceful penetration by population of other lands. Other lands henceforth will be very careful in admitting Germans into their territories.

After penetrating a population in peace time Germany has used these minorities established in other lands to exert an upsetting influence as among some of the neighbors of Germany.

Hitler could not if he had all the power in the world adjust the settlements of various races in Central and Centre-East Europe. The various tribes which form the basis of modern nations in Europe had a checkered history. Race overran race, the Balkans particularly having seen migration after migration and the result is an intermixture of races along borders of islands, settlements or splinters of nationals. Then too there have been resettlements by moving of people in colonies, even after the development of nations. The ebb and flow of populations through war is another cause. One sees the beginnings of a great change in for instance, the Poles scattered in many countries of Europe, of a new mixture. It is probable that many of the Poles who fled Poland on the collapse of resistance will create new islands in the countries to which they have fled.

Hitler's collecting and bringing home of German Nationalists would consolidate Germans but the task would be gigantic. Nations about Germany would resist any interference with their population, particularly if Germany wanted people and their wealth, real and personal, transferred to the Reich.

The whole scheme looks like Hitler's old plan of world domination for the logical consequence of the incorporation of these "splinters" means war and for war Hitler did prepare. Such return of Germans out for expansion at the expense of Germany's neighbors.

In Centre Europe no one could sift the various national and racial "splinters" and make states of homogeneous units. It would be satisfactory, though the Soviets are said to have thought something along Hitler's line with regard to the Slavic races. But the Slavic races are not all Russians. The Poles, the Yugo Slavs, Bulgars are not, nor are Slavic but Russia has no claim on them.

The only cure for the recurrent troubles over boundaries and racialism would lie in a just understanding among the peoples if that ideal is possible. Then it would make no difference where the splinters were, for there they could remain. Hitler says these "splinters" cause strife. They do in a world where Hitlerism and Nationalism are rampant, but would not if the world would understand true democracy and justice. The Baltic states started out on an ideal and have advanced greatly in progress since 1920, but they are not strong in a military way and can easily be dominated by Soviet Russia. If power and force were not exalted today as they are in Central Europe, such little states need have no fear.

Hitler's way means racial selfishness and is a stepping stone to his plan of a pan-German octopus all over Centre and East Europe.

PLANET MARS RECEDES

Slowly the red planet Mars is retiring from view. Some months ago it was at its closest to earth in many years. At that time it was said by some who inclined to superstition that the approach of Mars heralded war on earth. Prognosticators seized on the situation, no doubt because of the human interest in such a possibility and some accepted and some did not accept the possibility of the influence of Mars or fear of inert matter on the thoughts and minds of men.

Now that Mars is slowly receding into space and the red planet appears so much smaller than it used to be people pay it little attention.

Some months ago there was a story published to the effect that Adolf Hitler, the dictator, kept about him astrologers for consultation on his destiny. From what the people learned of Hitler from the British official papers and how various sources it may very well be that the German despot, acting as he does in his fits of moodiness and his cool calculating of forces, would not overlook soothsayers and astrologers.

The planet Mars bearing the name of the pagan God of War because of its ruddy glow has been associated with strife and it is no surprising if some see in Hitler's action the influence of those who tell the Stars. The story of course cannot at this time be confirmed, but it was interesting while Mars was coming nearer and nearer to earth. Now that Mars is fast moving away from earth, the interest has dwindled in the story about the astrologers particularly as war has taken the place of war threats.

"It's the stars that govern our condition", says a figure in Shakespearian drama. But while man is restricted by the fact that he is a dweller in a material universe, he cannot shove the blame on a particular planet or star for his shortcomings. He has a guide in his own conscience and in the history of thought. If he throws that collective experience of the ages to the winds he is to blame himself and himself alone.

TURKEY STEADFAST

The calmness, reliance and confidence of the Turkish Government in the past six months have been a revelation to the world of a nation which stands firm in a world which has had too much jitters from the usual source, Adolf Hitler.

The Turkish nation did not quail before the present situation but has remained solid by its pledges.

While it is a Mediterranean victory, and also a Balkan and East European victory, it is a victory of national integrity. The Republic of Turkey has opened the eyes of the world. She seeks no opportunity to conquer.

Turkey has strengthened immensely the neutral powers of Europe.

THE 'SECOND BISMARCK'

Von Ribbentrop who is rumored to be under examination by the German secret police on his private activities, shows up in an unpolished light in the just published White Paper of Sir Nevile Henderson. This is the man whom Hitler trusted as a "second Bismarck" and who is said to have considered himself in the Bismarckian category. Everywhere Henderson and his staff were shown courtesy by the Germans, except on one occasion when Herr von Ribbentrop manifested his intense hostility. The 92-Ambassador says:—

"He kept leaping from his chair in a state of high excitement and asking if I had anything more to say. I replied that I had and if my attitude was no less unfriendly than his own, I cannot but say in all honesty that I had every justification for it. When I told him I would not fail to report his comments remark to my Government, he calmed down a little and said they were all his own and that it was for Herr Hitler to decide."

LIVING COSTS IN CANADA

The general level of living costs in Canada at the beginning of this month was nine per cent above the depression low of 1933, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics points out. It was 17 per cent lower than the 1926 average which is representative of the period of stable prices from 1922 to 1930 following post-war readjustments. In 1920 at the peak of post-war inflation, living costs reached a level approximately 50 per cent above August 1939 levels after doubling in the preceding seven years. The increase over that time came not during the war years, but in 1919 and the first half of 1920. Different budget groups contributed to these fluctuations by widely varying amounts, with foods and clothing being mainly responsible for major changes which have occurred in living cost levels.

The August 1939 index for retail food prices was 74.9 which compared with a 1933 depression low of 63.6 post-war peak of 149.7 in 1920, and a 1913 average of 66.2. Food price averages moved down more than seven per cent during the year ended August 1939. Although the retail food price index for that month was materially above the 1913 average, a great many food staples were cheaper than in 1913. This was true of lard, eggs, butter, flour, prunes, and coffee. However, most meats were higher than at that time, and so also were milk, cheese, bread, rolled oats, rice, sugar and potatoes.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

A Faulty Liver and Ops Form of Rheumatism

One form of rheumatism or arthritis is called osteo-arthritis, sometimes rapidly and at others times gradually. It is what is known as a degenerative conformans or rheumatoid arthritis. There is some muscular cramp, a feeling of heaviness and stiffness in the joints, some mental depression, following by pain, and then swelling of various joints,—fingers, knees, spine. We also have increase of the little lumps or nodules form in fingers, toes, wrist and elbow joints and sometimes in the Jaw.

While the cause of rheumatoid arthritis is unknown, heredity is believed to be a factor as well as infection of teeth, tonsils, ear, gall bladder and large intestine.

The most effective form of treatment seems to be the application of heat, then exercise, then rest for a time. Massage and anodine lamps help most cases.

Many practitioners do special work in arthritis are able to help many cases by a diet of fruit and vegetables, cutting out meat and completely on proteins—meat, eggs, fish,—and a large proportion of cereals, bread and sugar. The idea underlying this fruit and vegetable diet is that the body may purge the large intestine, thus removing poisonous matter from the system instead of allowing them to be absorbed into the blood and carried to the joints. The diet is also alkaline in reaction.

Another cause is one organ in the body whose duty is to filter or remove poisons from the blood. This is the liver.

That a faulty liver has much to do with the production of arthritis to occur was pointed out by Dr. W. B. Rawls and associates in the Journal of the A.M.A. of the dye test it was found that 73 per cent of the cases of rheumatoid arthritis gave evidence of a faulty liver. In a recent summer course in Medicine, Medicine, Dr. Rawls and Drs. S. Weis and Vera Peters, gave the diet in slow alkaline to selected cases of rheumatoid arthritis to remove poisons were present in the blood. Out of these cases showed that the liver was not removing the poisons from the blood properly or promptly.

The liver can be kept in its best possible condition to prevent rheumatoid arthritis or other ailments by avoiding constipation and by active bending exercises, keeping knees straight.

MOTIVE SOUGHT

The body was discovered by Sidney Smith, 19, living in the house, late Sunday, when he broke open the door. Police were called to investigate its contents after the man, who gave the name "Jack Fortune," failed to pay the October rent. The man rented the house in July for the months of July, August and September. Kirkpatrick said the man gave the same name that time.

Small Amount

Police said they believed Fiude was killed the day he disappeared and some time after the body was taken in the stolen car to the garage. It was found in the trunk of the car. A small amount of money on his person from collections he had made was found untouched but not sufficient to supply a murder motive.

Police believe that the identification of the corpse came from papers and receipts which had been stored in the back of the car. Then, false alarms were given to confuse police shovels completely covered the body with a windbreaker, bearing the daisy insignia on it was found in a pocket of which the name on it was found in a pocket of the windbreaker.

Later at the morgue, Fiude's wife, who since his disappearance has been in constant fear that he was murdered, identified clothing taken from the body as that worn by her husband at time of his disappearance. By her side was Sydney Fiude, son of the body, the rope still about the neck.

Complained of Headache

Previous to finding of the body, neighbors passing the garage within the past week or two had complained of a strong odor. Persons living in the vicinity of the garage order could have been committed on the spot and some remembered seeing flies in clouds of carcasses leaving the garage.

Victoria Korzak, 'teen - aged daughter of the garage owner, told police she was awakened at 4 a.m. one "man "with a distinct Irish accent" last July 7 and the sound of motor car. She appeared while taking collections on his milk route in suburban areas. He frequented the opposite side of the city to where he lived. Mrs. Fiude was employed by Draper of Toronto had announced that a reward would be paid to the person finding such committed Morris Gershon, Toronto poultry dealer, who had been enlisted to help find disappeared on a buying trip June 15. Police have not been able to advance. Gershon lived four hours from where Fiude's body was found.

Police Would Not say if they believed a link existed between the two cases.

Exactly one month ago today police reported that body of Baker, 37-year-old recluse of Clarkson, Toronto suburb, was under investigation in connection with the disappearance of the poultry man.

The announcement came a few hours after Baker, who had a police record, was arrested in a Toronto near suburban Erindale by a young woman who attempted to hold him up after ordering them from an automobile in which they were parked. The recluse died from blows on the head administered by the young girl, police charged.

Police visited Baker's small home in the village after his arrest and dug about the grounds in search of bodies. A large flock of chickens was found on the premises.

Overcome with Grief

Fiude's mother-in-law never was overcome with grief and became hysterical when she learned of discovery of the body. Fiude's wife, Eileen, collapsed when told of the discovery. Fiude's sister, Eileen, celebrated her 20th birthday anniversary on the day is the 30th. birthday of a brother-in-law.

Korzak, annoyed because the police had not been paid, said he went Sunday to the Oshington Ave. address given by the man who rented the house but found no one there by the name of O'Brien. His wife, however, told him the name, saw the grave and notified the police.

QUEBEC CAMPAIGN

Honde Enters Campaign

And yesterday Hon. Mr. Godbout joining in, they again sounded the appeal to the province that is most a dozen towns and cities. The Dominion Secretaries, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, K.C., and Justice Minister Ernest Lapointe, restricted themselves to three and two addresses, one at Yamaska Saturday night, Mr. Lapointe's birthday and to appeals by both last night.

The week-end saw the entry into the campaign by Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal, seeking election as Union Nationale Member on Independent ticket, and brought Premier Duplessis' Union Nationale Statement issued at Quebec City, declaring the party issues made by Mr. Duplessis in an address last Friday at L'Assomption.

In his fifth, and probably last address of the campaign, Mr. Lapointe attacked the Union Nationale's financial proposals in a record and charged that Duplessis called the election "in the hope of getting the vote and the confidence of the country to cover the abyss into which he has led the country."

Called Act of Suicide

Speaking from Ottawa over a Quebec network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the Justice Minister annulled the Quebec Premier's statement that the election was a "referendum."

"When the life and security of the nation are threatened, petty provincial quarrels must disappear and malicious representations become iniquitous," he said. "The referendum there - ... is called this electoral adventure is an act of suicide."

Mr. Cardin, speaking from Montreal, declared that Premier Duplessis' statement that Premier Lapointe, accused Mr. Duplessis with seeking a renewal of his mandate "to continue Hitlerism" was not a provincial election, yes, but our opponents made a sort of federal election out of it," he said.

Says Issue Is Simple

"In effect, I admit that a clever but hardly frank attempt has been made to change the issue of the provincial regime as if to hide it from your scrutinizing eyes and the spectre of things of war has been called to your aid.

"The issue is simple. It is the same as that which the electors of Ontario and Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia warned that if Quebec province refused to participate in the effort of conscription, the people should show their confidence in the Government at Ottawa "because it is there that the decisions are made."

Mr. Cardin declared that the cabinet ministers for entering the provincial campaign, "have been in the province want Quebec to be represented at the council of the ministers at Ottawa," he said, last night at Berthierville in the last of his five campaign addresses.

Right Not Recognized

"The affairs of Canada must be conducted by the people of Quebec through their representatives in the legislature. The people are the masters. We do not recognize the right of Dominion ministers to interfere."

In both Sunday and Saturday addresses Premier Duplessis referred to the anti-Communist legislation the government and cited examples

Concerts for the Troops

Gradually, the idea grew, until Captain M. W. Plunkett of the Y. M.C.A. took the Princess Pats overseas with him. He formed two other concert parties to form a division-al entertainment unit. The Dumbells were born. They carried on for the rest of the war, and they kept their stuff up to snuff, they were among the best of all concerts. So well did they do, they played some of the leading theatres in England after the Armistice and then toured Canada successfully a number of times. Some of the female impersonators, was international renown by their ability.

The value of the concert parties is inestimable. They give the troops a good laugh. Which is a real tonic after a tour in the line. —Windsor Daily Star.

New Turkish Pact

Germany and Russia are both said to want Turkey is no negligible factor, with her trained army of one million, her navy now double that number, and a powerful air force, as well as fortifications which are infinitely stronger than those that enabled her to defend the Dardanelles successfully against even the power of the British fleet in the World War.

Anglo-Turkish friendship was the keynote of Kemal Ataturk's foreign policy while at the same time he built up cordial relations with Russia, and on a far-sighted vision of the development of Turkish power. The Ankara Pact is prescience is rewarded, Turkey gets a good ally in Britain and a big one. The Allies' guarantees are as complete as they can be made, and will be forthcoming to meet her needs in cash, with which she can buy what she wants in the European market.

The new Accord provides the British and French fleets with a new tremendously powerful naval base in the eastern Mediterranean. Tchesme has been described as a second Gibraltar in its strategic and defence possibilities. It constitutes an effective barrier against Italian forces from the Dodecanese Islands, since it lies between those Islands and the Dardanelles and Bosphorus, sheltered from air attack by the Greek Islands of Mytilene, Chio and Samos.

The Turkish naval bases, which have been in process of development for some years, are nearer to those of Gibraltar. The magnificent harbor of Izmir also provides splendid accommodation for repair docks and for fuel storage and supply depots, and is also a base for naval aircraft. The strategic importance is rewarded, Turkey gets a good ally in Britain and a big one. The Allies' guarantees are as complete as they can be made, and will be forthcoming to meet her needs in cash, with which she can buy what she wants in the European market.

Crusade for Gravy

Crusaders in the ranks of the Canadian Bakers' association have hit on a policy of appeasement. Only in that way, it seems, can they bend the iron rules of ersatz caste, and open the way to polite recognition of the ancient and artistic business of soaking bread in gravy. They want "sopping" restricted.

They say it is "nutritionally sound," which is in the spirit of science and perfectly true. Only one thing stands in the road of revival—the social ban placed upon the practice by etiquette-conscious meals.

For a free and pioneer-conscious people, the Americans are curiously prone to the throes of snob official frowns. The bakers seem to be almost cowed in the face of them. They could have launched some splendid dietitian, sneered at the idea nonsense relishes had already, in the cause of cream-lining, swelled wheat surpluses and almost toppled bread from its privileged position in the food world. Instead, they lie down.

This shows just what etiquette, whatever it means, is capable of doing. It is in the totalitarian principle, and has no logic behind it. After all, about the best things in the world to eat are those which the world to eat are those which the public has had to help with in the process, viz., corn on the cob and spareribs. Nobody would dream of eating a meal of potatoes—and very few people, even today.

There are other methods the bakers could have adopted. They are strong in their country for publicity. Good writers abound. Good stories and more modern names for "sopping" and it is highly probable that with accompanying odes and articles, it would soon be the shiver of fresh in twenty-four hours.—Hamilton Spectator.

BACK TO EARLY MAN

Modern war may be mechanized, but its effect on the soil is apparently in the other direction. Behind the battle lines life grows primitive. At the front soldiers now they are using llamas and camels to carry supplies in mountainous areas, thus saving horses and gasoline. Farmers are reverting to using elephants from the zoos working on the farms. Dogs between certain lines are being commandeered assembly for hauling small wagons. These are being used in Senegalese Asia and Africa and the Antarctic regions of Australasian centuries ago.

Even then the llamas and elephants in modern Europe scarcely go so far back in the early history of the race as to require that the women and children in masks, bearing refuge in caves, building barricades of sandbags. We used to speak in formal terms of "going back to pastoral unloosed," but here is the stage setting in earnest—and the pastoral is all play.—New York Times.

TRENTON

WORK PROGRESSES AT BATA SHOE CO.

Fifteen Bungalows Nearly Completed While 12 Foundations for Others Laid

Trenton, Oct. 23 — (Special) — Building the Bata Shoe community continues to progress and fifteen beautiful little bungalows are rapidly taking form. While a dozen foundations are being prepared for the carpenters. The construction work is in charge of the McFarland Construction Company of Picton. Two of the houses have actually reached completion and the first families are expected to move in some time this week. Bata town lies between Glen Miller and Frankford on Highway No. 33, about five miles north of Trenton. When the first unit of the shoe manufacturing centre has been built, sixty-five workers will enter and a rubber fabricating plant will have been erected. The town is to be modern in every respect and each house is to be equipped with electric lights and running water. It is understood that the streets and sidewalks are to be started this week, when workmen are to commence digging sewers for the drainage systems. A well drilling outfit has been set up at the north end of the village and can be seen there daily for the vein that will furnish the community with a steady supply of fresh water. A few hundred yards to the east of the town proper is where the rubber fabricating plant is being built. Yesterday saw at least a hundred sightseers visit the project which is open to the public for inspection and at the same time protected against sabotage by a number of watchmen.

The President, Mrs. Geo. Cannon, opened the meeting with the Institute Ode followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison.

The Red Cross was started in England in 1870 and in Canada in 1885. Canada spent in the African War $50,000 and in the Great War $30,000,000. The Red Cross asks all societies incorporate so that they will be a great need for socks, sleeveless sweaters, pads, pneumonia jackets, hospital gowns, etc.

The Quinte Red Cross has made strong wash clothes, scarfs, knee caps and wristlets.

Mrs. Lasher said it is a good thing for each society to keep its own identity, but co-operating with the Red Cross societies the work can be carried on to a better advantage.

A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Lasher for coming to us and all know how busy she is in this great work.

Mrs. Monroe, convener, took charge of social programme and the splendid programme as follows was enjoyed by those present.

Collection was $2.90.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem. A dainty lunch was served by Mrs. Maguire and her conveners.

How To Relieve Misery of Your CHEST COLD

Massage throat, chest, and back with plenty of Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. Then spread a thick layer on chest and cover with a warmed cloth.

VapoRub's double action brings double relief. It acts as a poultice to penetrate the surface skin, and its soothing medicinal vapors are breathed direct to the irritated air passages.

Try it, to loosen phlegm—to clear air passages—check tendency to cough—also to relieve the tightness and soreness of chest muscles. Vicks

Talk Your Way To Beauty Laurels

By HELEN FOLLETT

SOPHISTICATION isn't fashionable any more. Maxim dim the glimmer change with clothes. A girl lives up to the kind of dress she wears! Now that human lovelies are arrayed in silky, feminine draperies, their poises in their evening wear are mannerly and subdued, assume charming poses and behave like ladies. That means they must mind their voices, which should be sweet and low.

A shouting woman is intolerable. A squeaky-voiced one makes you ear-drums. The mumblers drive you crazy. It's easy enough to cultivate a pleasing voice; the offenders just don't get the proper register. They pitch the voice too high or use too much volume.

The attractive voice has expression, melodious cadences, lights and shadings. The woman of polse inevitably possesses this attraction of charm. Shriekers are nearly always women who are lacking in stability; they are nervous, quick of movement, restless. The voice is a terrible giveaway, tells the story of a girl one is.

Give your self a test. Some day when you are alone, read aloud. Be critical of tonal qualities, enunciation, pauses. Do you run your words together? Have you the habit of making every statement sound as if it were a question. Not pretty; it is confusing to the listener.

Women have nails and pepper hair are forever bawling about it. Why? The state of feminine is not unbearable. Sometimes it is extremely charming.

Hearing about asking if the dark hair can be whitened. The answer is, no. Hair dye is not enough to make dark hair snow white is so obvious that it will weaken the locks. The matter must be left to old Father Time, who will do so in his own time.

Hair of this character responds to when pigtails were an institution.

An attractive girl with an attractive voice formal hairdress, no ringeled nonsense. Simply brush the shadow away with a swirl at the back, hair off the ears. Some of the uppity coiffures are fascinating. An undulation front, sides and back with a supple wave. Or a pompadour and soft rolls in the crown. It's a revival or 4 years ago and easier to achieve than a permanent.

Health to the Finger-Tips

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN a girl has the vermilion polish off long enough so she may display that fine finger-nails show fine ridges or that the shell-like substance is getting heavy and cracks, Stop Everything. Soak dreams aren't doing right by the nails. Soak or she has been using a soap that is too strong. A few minutes of the right soak and the nails are soft enough to bring a change for the better.

Then she can use a cuticle cream or fall back on our old friend, olive oil. By using one or the other, the cuticle substance will be softened. Friction will bring back a normal color. Triumph in the beauty aid, doing little circles on the flesh, stroking the nail up and down.

Perhaps you have the treatment given by the manicurist. If she brushes back the flesh and causes discomfort, cross her off your list of beauty attendants. To offset the drying effects of some liquid polishes, apply a little cream after they are on. It won't dim the glimmer and it will help to keep the claws in form.

Be a good child and eat your vegetables. They contain vitamins and minerals that do well by body, hair, complexion and finger-tip brushes. The finicky eater who curls her nose at the dishes set before her has more beauty griefs than you can shake a stick at.

No redhead should wear light blue, which drains her complexion of coloring. It's taken for granted that the lady with auburn tresses must never wear red, but that's a mistake. It she hits on exactly the right shade she looks stunning.

Black is effective because it brings out the lights of her flaming top. Brown, an old-time favorite, is seldom flattering. Jade green is smashing, though it should be used as a decoration rather than the fabric of the frock.

If the hair is a coppery red, the lipstick that is best today is an orange-red. Fuchsia makes a fair skin look sallow. Circles for the brunette, doubtful on blondes.

When doing your exercises, concentrate on the torso. Arms and legs get a certain amount of exercising but during the day's activities even if one is a lazy girl, but the midsection doesn't get a tilt.

Try torso twisting. Stand tall, hands on the hips, turn from side to side at the waistline. Stand facing a wall, up on your toes. Stretch your arms as high as you can, try to pull yourself apart in the middle. Lie on the floor, with the feet up for a hearty bout of luminary. Lift the upper portion of your body, lower it slowly.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Advice to the lovelorn 4.Roy l

Quite Contrary

Dear Miss Fairfax

I fell in live with a girl years ago and knew she was the one for me. She also said she loved me, and we considered ourselves engaged though without a ring. I had an excellent paying position, and we started to save for our little home and made all sort of plans. Then all of a sudden my firm went broke and of course I lost out too.

For two years now she has seemed indifferent. Sometimes she can be so nice to me, and then again she pretends she doesn't care. Then I found out she was going out with another man. I don't have much money now, and can't give her many good times, although we can take in an occasional movie or a concert. She says my home isn't one low, and has given me the impression she will wait. If I thought she didn't care for me any more I'd give her up, but there are times when she appears to be very much in love with me.

She doesn't want me to go out with other girls, and gets very jealous if I even mention one. I think this is selfish of her, as she is always going out with other men. She knows I love only her.

Sometimes I think it might be wise to go away for a couple of years, and then again I might try going with another girl, but I know no other could take her place.

Red

I hope by the time this letter is printed, you will have made up your mind as to what you will do. Have you tried any of the following suggestions?

Training classes, to try and help yourself in finding a better position, where you will get more pay, so that you can make plans for your marriage? This may be the cause of her indifference.

Maybe She Lacks "Oomph"

Dear Miss Fairfax.

Just finished reading your column and can't imagine why any man has difficulty in finding a nice girl. Take me, for instance. I'm single, 25, have a good, college graduate, yet I've been in the city for six months and haven't met a man who seems to care for a refined girl's company. Invably, they don't want these men who claim to want the society of decent girls of good character? Perhaps there's something wrong with me.

Wondering A!

It may be, my dear, that you lack what is called "oomph". A year or two ago we called it "It". Still farther back, the "come hither" quality was known as a combination of personality and charm.

Perhaps you don't exert yourself to have friends and just sit in a corner and expect to be sought out. But that's not the road to popularity. There is in your city an exclusive girls' club to which I urge you to belong. Join a smart dancing class. Learn to offer a little hospitality graciously, even if it's only a well-made cup of coffee. I'm glad you sent me your name and address, as I will write to you personally.

Did Not Resort to "Frilling" to Get Her Man

Dear Miss Fairfax

Please let me say that I enjoy reading your column and think the advice you hand out to girls is sane and wholesome.

As a happily married woman I want to tell you first of all that I did not powder, paint, bleach, nor rupt the minds and bodies of our modern youth, lowering their standards of living. At 29 years of age I don't suppose anyone would call me a flapper, but as an unmarried girl I never enjoyed parties to which my mother was not given by our classes in high school.

At 19, one year after graduation, I met my husband and our children is more fun—even with the worries that go with them—than all the dates which our too modern young men and women crowd into their lives.

After ten years of exceptionally happy married life, I believe I'm qualified to give the petters this tip.

Happy Wife and Mother

Now youngsters, will you "read, mark and inwardly digest" what this lady has to say concerning a happy home and a successful marriage?

A Riddle With An Answer

Dear Miss Fairfax

To settle an argument, will you be kind enough to let me what relation is my sister-in-law's husband to me?

Thank you.

Mrs. W. M.

A sister-in-law may be either your husband's sister or your brother's wife, or they may have no relation, though included in the family clan.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held on October 20, the third Friday as usual in the Y.M.C.A. parlors with the President Mrs. Moore, in the chair.

The hymns used were inspiring and challenging, "Faith of our Fathers", the temperance doxology or praise, the ensuing prayer to the the winds thy fears, Hope and be undismayed" and "God bless our Sacred Cause". Hymns were accompanied by Mrs. Denton at the piano.

Mrs. Ash led in devotions by reading Psalm 1 and making suitable and helpful remarks thereon and following with earnest prayer. Before the collection was taken this extract was read,

"I must set aside a portion of my income for the work of the Kingdom. God is counting on my help.

"I recognize that the Y. C. T. U. is one of the most blighting influences that lie in wait for the young. Therefore it is my duty to spread abroad, the certain and proved-by-experience information about the dangers of the social glass when it contains intoxicants. My money can preach this gospel of total abstinence far and wide if given to an organization for this special purpose."

The duties of the secretaries of the various departments of this organization were referred and stressed. Regret was expressed that so few are lined up for efforts to put down this evil of intemperance. Mrs. Grafton gave a little more than var and what about the lives and homes of those who are not? Mrs. Ash read an item in the social glass.

The late visit of a field worker, Mrs. Mulholland, was reviewed, she having given timely information all the "Y" Auxiliary meeting to a further meeting in Mrs. Wotten's home and in public schools.

Just here we would like to pay tribute to those men who by their cordial welcome and sympathetic assistance that they are the type of men that we are proud to honor.

Mrs. Mulholland spoke first of the use of alcohol in industry, then being used $100,000,000 worth annually and then contrasted this tragic evil as it is when used as a beverage in any form and in any amount.

Alcohol is a solvent—dissolves the covering of the nerves and then allows the blood and water to come the nerve proper—affecting these in the form of paralysis. Alcohol absorbs all the water within reach thus creating a desire for more continually.

"Alcohol" education proved to be an excellent health talk. She illustrated with pictures of athletes, who publicly state that no one who smokes or drinks can be expects in the line as for one's own sake and for the love of humanity these narcotics are given only be used for industrial purposes never inside the body.

Mrs. Grafton closed the meeting with prayer.

Dr. Dafoe's Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Early Treatment of Coeliac Disease Essential

Coeliac disease usually appears in early childhood rather than in infancy, and if treatment is not started at once the child has an excellent chance to develop into a normal healthy person. The disease appears during the ages of three to five years as unexplained indigestion especially as it begin. But if the child isn't treated he will become more and more stunted the kitchen all day taking continuously short periods of rest. It would be unusual to find a child suffering from this disease who hasn't an enormous appetite.

Soon after the disease starts they develop rickets to some degree. This is due to a lack of Vitamin D which is obtained in cod liver oil. This is a fatty material indigestible to these unfortunate children and so they excrete most of it. Without it they need instead of absorbing it. The result is the formation of more and more rickets until severe cases they not only show the wasted buttocks and distended abdomen but twisted legs as well.

As I said at the beginning, coeliac disease appears in early childhood rather than in infancy. However, it is often possible to detect at a few months of age a child who is going to develop the disease because of the developmental signs that I have mentioned are first added to the diet.

It is my experience that the disease appears much more frequently in artificially fed babies than in those fed by the breast. And so we chalk down another reason why mothers should feel their children the natural way if they can.

Early cases of the disease is most insidious and a child may have it for considerable time before the parents realize that anything is wrong. The huge appetite is, of course, very alarming.

In other columns, I have told mothers how the stools and vomiting of babies are an indication of their heath, for the onset of disease is often reflected there. This is true of coeliac disease for often the bulky, grey waste from the bowels is the first sign.

I've mentioned previously that medical science hasn't discovered a cure coeliac disease. It appears, however, that the child is cured, or five years old, then disappears. So the important thing to do is to detect the disease in its early and minimize any injury to the system during the time the disease is running its course. It is essential that the disease be detected early, and treatments started at once.

Eye Strain is Nerve Strain

Eye-strain wears down nervous energy at an alarming rate. You may suffer from dizziness, nausea, indigestion, constipation and sick headache and not realize that the real cause of your trouble is eye-strain.

If due to some defect in the eye itself the ocular may help you but in any case you can, with advantage, try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to restore the nerve forces to your system.

This food restores the nerves to healthy action when in a run down condition. It contains Vitamin B1 and the Nerve Food is also essential for restoration of the nervous system.

A "Recipe" for Bringing up a Mannerly Child

"Take one offspring, beat the imp out of him, sift through the conventions, sprinkle with a generous handful of pleases and thank-yous, bake with the oil of persuasion, add enough of the milk of human kindness to pour into a mold. See that it is not a hair-baked; turn out into polite society to cool."

This is an amusing and thought-compelling "recipe" I came across the other day, a formula for bringing up a well-mannered child. It looks simple, but every mother and father knows that it isn't.

And since this recipe is obviously meant to be more amusing than "instructive", it is obvious that it doesn't take account of the many other ingredients that must be added to taste—ingredients that nourish the individual reactions of individual children.

There is, however, a profound truth in the climax . . . "turn out into polite society to cool"!

Gift For Teacher

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

I have been closely connected with sports through my four years in public school, and I feel that it would be appropriate, at the last Assembly before graduation, for the girls to give a gift to the teacher in sports, to present our athletic teacher with some token of appreciation for her splendid coaching, and in remembrance of the happy times we have had with her.

Flowers are lovely, but they are not lasting, and we want to give her something that will be useful to her and at the same time a reminder of our class. We thought of a silver whistle with her name engraved on it, and either a card or an autograph book signed by the girls who contributed. Have you any suggestion as to what we could give her instead of this?

A—In the matter of your presentation: do you think it best that the gift be presented by other than a Senior? Why not a small Freshman boy or girl?

B—Should we, in some way, let the audience know what is in the package, or would that spoil the surprise for the receiver?

A—What should be said when giving it to her? Would this be correct to say—"In behalf of the Senior girls who participated in athletics, I am happy to present to you this silver whistle in remembrance of your fine work among the girls. And the happy time they have had with you?" Please suggest a better presentation.

The Girls

1—Your suggestion as to this gift is quite fine, and I think it would be so charmingly appropriate, and so personal that nothing could be better and nothing probably more welcome.

2—Yes, to "dress up" the gift a bit more, perhaps you'd like to put the gift-package in the centre of a corsage, enclosing both in a charming box tied with ribbons in your class colors. I like the idea of each contributor to the gift writing her name and a message of appreciation and friendliness on a separate page for an autograph book. This will treasure this!

3—No, I'm not a bit enthusiastic about anyone's presenting the gift but someone who is concerned with it. There would be no point in having it announced if the Freshman Class present a gift that is a gift from members of the Senior Class. And—hold you ear close—since you originated the idea, you should be the one who makes the presentation of the gift.

3—Give the package unopened to the teacher. Naturally, she will open it and show it, and thank you for it.

4—Like the idea for the gift, no one could suggest a better presentation-speech than the one that you have so beautifully expressed. It says just the right things . . . the "remembrance" and the "happy time together" . . . in just the right way, and with just the right number of words.

REDHEADS ARE LUCKY

By Vera Brown

The next morning, Braxton was in her office almost before Miss could get her hat off, and before Kenyon had arrived. To Braxton's determined questioning, Mike replied, "Well, know by noon, Mr. Braxton. We'll let you know just the moment we hear."

Before they settled down to the mail, a messenger came with a letter for Mike. She gave him a coin, slit open the envelope, peeped inside. Kenyon was talking over the telephone in a last futile effort. He slammed up the receiver.

"Mr. Kenyon, I want a promise from you: Please don't ask me how or where I got these!" Kenyon's eyes stuck out as Mike laid the two sets of tickets before him.

"Good Lord! You're a sweetheart! Promise? I'll promise anything—"

The telephone interrupted Kenyon's joyous declaration. It was Braxton.

"I'll check with Mr. Kenyon," Mike told him. She put her hand over the transmitter. "What shall I tell him?" Kenyon thought a minute.

"Tell him I said that I had the tickets."

Mike turned to the telephone: "Yes, Mr. Braxton, he has—Is this ticketa." Mike could almost hear Braxton's gasp of surprise. "Yes, They're here on Mr. Kenyon's desk." Mike hung up the receiver. "He says he's sending in for them."

Mike put the tickets quickly into an office envelope, throwing away the one in which they had arrived.

"What a secretary you turned out to be!" Kenyon said, looking at Mike in open admiration, admiration which included other virtues besides the ticket-getting.

That night when Mike got home to her small bedroom, there was a big box of flowers for her with Kenyon's card.

The night Handsome Regan received the award of "The league's most valuable ball player" at a huge banquet in his honor, Mike Shannon had dinner with her boss, Bob Kenyon.

What had happened in between is baseball history now. Handsome was more than ever the centre of the spotlight. His earnings were huge. Radio, advertising, shorts for the movies..., there was no end to it. Everybody was speculating on what his new three-year contract would be. Handsome had planned his team to another world's title.

When Mike sat across the table from Bob in a fine old restaurant, she was glad she had come. There had been little enough of beauty in the girl's life for a long time. The glistening chandeliers, the excellent food, the soft music, all warmed her heart. She loved the feel of the huge linen napkins, the array of silver, the heavy glass, the heavy silver.

"Now, we can relax. We're not likely to see any of the office crowd around here to spoil our talk," he said after he had ordered their dessert. Kenyon lifted his glass:

"To the loveliest redhead in all New York!"

"Thanks, Mr. Kenyon, that is charming."

"I've been investigating you, young woman." Mike's cheeks were scarlet. Wonder the office hasn't got all the gossip. It usually has. But this time, I seem to have a corner on it. She laughed at her embarrassment: "It's a funny thing, but I saw you once with the celebrated Mr. Regan at Bensiere's...couple of years ago. Didn't get much of a look at your face." He smiled into Mike's lovely eyes. "Now, we understand each other. Did those tickets come from Handsome?"

"You promised not to ask" Mike retorted.

"But I have to know. Mike," Kenyon used her old name naturally.

"Then the promise is off!" She managed to smile. "It really doesn't matter. I just didn't want people around the office chattering about her. That's all. The tickets came from Wish Malone. You know, the head usher."

"Great guy, isn't he?"

"The best in the world!" Mike's voice held a deep note.

"You haven't asked why I had to know about the tickets," Kenyon reminded her. Mike could not meet his eyes.

"You know already, Mike, don't you?" He put his hand over hers suddenly. "You've known from the first that I've been crazy about you!"

"Please!" Mike's eyes were suddenly dim. Why was life like this?

She hated hurting people.

"Look at me! You're all through with Handsome Regan? That's what I want to know."

"Yes." Mike could answer that honestly.

"Then for the rest, I won't worry. I'll keep after you until you take me in self-defense!" Then he stopped being serious. His had declared himself. Now he would let Mike get used to the idea. Bob Kenyon devoted himself to entertaining Mike. It was almost eleven when they left the big dining room.

Mike's go on to the Mirror. I don't want to leave you, yet." It was a magic name, Mirror, Dorothy, Mike went with him. The doorman knew Kenyon, and they got a comfortable table for two, over against the wall.

Bob pointed out the famous, the near-famous, and the notorious, as they flocked into the room. Their status was largely determined by the tables they were given. It was all amusing to the redhead.

Bob's infatuation acted like a tonic to Mike. It had been so long since anybody had so ardently admired her that she was like a school girl at her first party. A group of people came in, very dressy, obviously Park Avenue.

"Who are they?" Mike asked.

"The Dick Wentworths, I think. Wonder who the blonde baby with them is? She must be somebody," he commented. You could feel the air stir created by the arrival of the party. Bob turned to look at Mike. She seemed preoccupied. The party went on through a special room at the back of the club. Somebody sitting at the table next to Bob exclaimed:

"Know who that was? Iris Regan! Wonder if Handsome will be here later? Waiter!"

Mike sat immovable as the voice of the man at the next table asked for information about the Regans.

CHAPTER XXIX

"So that's the lady!" Bob remarked as the flutter of Iris's stunning white frock, the glitter of her jeweled bracelets disappeared into the small dining room beyond.

Mike did not answer. Mrs. Regan's theatrical beauty took away her breath. It was the first time she had seen Iris in person.

"She's beautiful!" Mike had to admit while Bob diagnosed:

"She's stunning, but very 'Broadway.' That's the difference between your type and hers, Mike. You're 'Park Avenue,' she's just another show girl with bleached hair!"

Mike's laugh was metallic as she answered: "I'm Brooklyn, not Park Avenue, Bob. Born and bred in Brooklyn. I suppose you'd call me Shanty Irish!"

There was excitement in the hallway. People were hurrying to the foyer. Excitement brought around the room as a group of men paused in the doorway. Mike got only a glimpse of a pair of broad shoulders. Handsome! The word from her lips seemed to rush to her heart.

Handsome and the rest were in evening clothes. People began to rush them. They'd just come from the banquet in Handsome's honor, were joining the supper party in the room beyond.

"Yes, Handsome!" somebody in the room yelled. Regan turned and smiled. Even in that brief glimpse of his face, Mike could see he had been drinking. The man at the next table waved and shouted again. Suddenly, across the room, Handsome's eyes rested on Mike. He stopped. Wentworth had come out of the smaller dining room to meet him. But Handsome shook off his arm.

"Just a minute! Got to see somebody." He started across toward their table. Bob half rose as he came toward them. Handsome was swaying slightly as he stopped in front of Mike.

"Well, Skipper?" Handsome's voice was low. He did not look at Kenyon, nor acknowledge the introduction which Mike made.

"Congratulations!" Mike told him, and her voice shook.

"Won't you sit down?" Kenyon offered. Handsome did not even turn his head. He did not seem to hear.

"I'm drunk. You know that!"

Everybody in the room was watching by now. Kenyon tried to get Handsome to sit down, his signalled to the proprietor to get the music going. People at the adjoining tables were leaning forward to hear.

"Yes, I'm drunk. Know why?"

"Handsome, please!" Mike was terrified.

Kenyon tried to quiet him, but he brushed that young man aside. "Who's he?" Handsome demanded, pointing to Kenyon. "Are you in love with him?" He leaned across the table, knocked off a half filled glass of wine. Mike, fascinated, looked not at Handsome, but at the trickle of red across the white cloth. A waiter came hurrying. He tried to get Handsome into a chair.

Handsome's voice was sharp: "I say, are you in love with him?" Kenyon's face was ashen. If he struck Handsome that would make things worse. Regan grasped Mike's wrist. "Answer me!"

"Yes."

Just then, across the room, came Iris and Wentworth. The little scene which seemed years to Mike had lasted only a few seconds. Iris was laughing and said, "Stop talking to strangers, darling."

Handsome turned and leaned heavily on the table as he peered down at Iris. "She isn't a stranger. She knows the better than you do."

Color blazed in Mike's cheeks. There was an awful silence over the dining room. Handsome seemed to shrink under Iris's baleful eyes. His belligerence disappeared as suddenly as it had blazed. He went docilely with Iris - and his host. Mike, white-lipped, tried to keep talking to Bob as though nothing had happened.

"My word!" Bob pulled her hand through his arm, kept murmuring comforting words into her ear. "We'll get out as soon as we can without being too conspicuous." When they walked out of the room, Mike's chin was up, her eyes straight ahead.

The Broadway columnists mentioned the scene the next day, without calling Mike by name. It was not until a week later that one person carried the following item:

"Handsome Regan has been missing for three days. Reason? Liker."

That was the first intimation sports fans had that Handsome was drinking again.

As for Mike, she never forgave Handsome that episode. And Mike? She was quite stricken. Regan had been right, she did know him. And she knew, better than anybody else in the world, that there was trouble ahead for Handsome.

"Sometimes it seems as though the public builds up a new hero just for the pleasure of tearing him down."

So philosophized Mike Shannon one bright summer day as she walked to work from her two-room apartment off Washington Square. For Mike's thoughts this morning were related to Handsome. She could think of him these days without that awful pain which used to be her in knock.

"Poor boy!" The sports writers were having a holiday with Handsome. They referred to it now as the "Regan Recession." Manager Ace Barnes and Handsome were feuding. From the first, Mike had known why....it was Handsome's drinking. That was the only answer.

Very correct in her sheer grey-green frock, just the color of her eyes, Mike walked briskly. Even the morning's news of Handsome's could not dampen her feeling of general well being.

She'd pulled through somehow.

"Isn't this where you're stopping?"

"Yes. Wish. Come on with me. I want you to see my happy home."

They went up to Handsome's suite. Iris was there, with several people, including a South American beauty whom there had been some gossip. When Wish and Handsome came in, Iris snubbed them both. She did manage to ask Handsome why he had not come back to the hotel for dinner. The situation was awkward. The guests, under the Handsome's lowering glances, left as quickly as they could. But Handsome insisted that Wish stay.

Iris was furious. "You come storming in here and scare everybody out. If you can't be agreeable, why don't you stay away?"

Simply because I have no other place to go. Wish, listen to this. I am broke. Don't that pretty?"

"Broke? What do you mean? Wish did not believe that Handsome could be serious. He must have earned $60,000 last year.

"He isn't. He just says that. Just to keep me from having the things I want," snapped Iris.

Handsome laughed and poured himself a drink. "Such a diamond bracelets. Do you know where my pay checks get cashed?"

Iris answered, "In a saloon! I should think you'd be glad to have me buy jewelry, since that's a little money you won't drink up!"

Wish was appalled. Handsome do you mean to say that you and Iris haven't saved a cent?"

Wish looked at her with a level pleasure. "I'm looking forward to be Manager Barnes wants it to be."

"Ace has been miserable to me, fined me five times. He knows I can't afford that. He's the one that has had it financially."

"And that nasty little cat, Carol!" Iris exclaimed, "you know she's tried to make trouble between Handsome and me! She tried to get Handsome to leave me now, he was here tonight! is my boy friend. That's the kind of girl she is!"

No, I think we ought to stay home and get the full benefit of it from the radio. Besides, there isnt enough room for me to stretch my legs at symfiany concerts. The last one I went to I got a terrible cramp and yelled right out. Nearly nobody noticed because it was in the mist of a Wagner number, but people around me opened their eyes now and I gave a yell during a soft passage from Ira Sankey. he said, and ma said, The orchestra conductor looked at me with a world's greatest chello player, Serge Kinisky and Misha Mink, my what a temper!

How's the betting going? pop asked, as he turned on the radio one night? I practically promised Herb Lewis I'd go to the fights with him tomorrow night. There are a couple of great artists on that program Chick Spinelly, Spike's better on his feet than any Rankin dancer you ever saw, and Chick has got a left hook that would put Joe Louis Mink under his chello for the rest of the week. You should of let me know before, he said.

Now Willyum I'm letting you know now, and furthermore as I said information I already have the tickets and they cost a dollarn a half not including the tax, and I was very lucky to be able to get them at that. Sitting right out in the same program as you may imagine, and I start early so dont come home like tomorrow of all days, ma said, and pop said I see what you mean, I understand we're going to a concert. Well, I'm glad you told me, I hate surprises, he said.

Diversified Attack by Ottawa Defeats Toronto Argos 18-7 Putting Roughriders on Top

QUEENS SCORE WIN

First Victory Since 1937 but Tricolor Lucky to Escape Last Minute Splurge

By JACK CALDER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

For two years Toronto Argonauts have ruled the Canadian football roost because you never knew what to expect from them and now Ottawa Rough Riders aim to take over on the same breathtaking principle.

The Rough Riders, after trying unsuccessfully for two seasons to win at Toronto, shot lightning through the line and through the air at the Dominion champion Argonauts in Varsity Stadium Saturday and emerged an 18-7 victory before 19,30 persons. When the Double Blue blundered against multiple-driving plunges of Danny Bridgewater, Ottawa turned to the equally effective passes of Orville Burke.

Fighting on Field

At the finish of one of the most thrilling Interprovincial Union encounters in years, the teams took to fighting on the field after a skirmish between Andy Feeney of Ottawa and Bernie Thornton of Toronto. The flurry ended quickly when hundreds of fans milled towards the scrappers but it indicated things will be happening when the clubs meet again this week in Ottawa.

The Riders remained one of three undefeated and untied Union teams in the east as the Westmounts continued their unspoiled record in the Ontario Union with a 12-5 victory over Sarnia Imperials at Montreal, while the University of Western Ontario whipped McGill 20-6 at London to take the long lead in the Intercollegiate series.

Plays Well Mixed

The customers have come to expect a highly diversified attack, with quick thrusts in the most unexpected spots, from the ground and high-powered plunging and line bucking from the backs. Now Ross Trimble has gathered at Ottawa Caesar and many of backfielders that Keats mix his power with aerial artistry and runs and passes on Telephone Pete to employ the element of effectively as anyone.

Tigers Win 4-3

McCAFFREY Bill Murrumbey's 25 yard placement field goal with less than three minutes to play brought Hamilton Tigers a 4-3 decision over the Royals at Montreal and left them in undisputed possession of third place in the Interprovincial. Until that time Bob Isbister of the Bengals and Gordie Noseworthy of the home side had engaged in a kicking duel with a rain-soaked ball.

A fumble gave the Westmounts their only touchdown, when Tommy Burns fell on the ball behind the goal-line, but there was no question about their superiority over the league champion Imperials.

Johnny Ferraro and Burns ripped off long ground gains that led Jimmy Riddell and Moon Mullins kick three single points apiece in the game.

Toronto Balmy Beach gained a second-place tie with the Imperials by shutting out the winless but fighting Orinas 9-0 at Peterboro. Bert Haigh's first-quarter touchdown and Eddie Thompson's four single points made up the Beach's scoring. One of Charley Krug's passes left the Petes just one yard from a touchdown at half time.

Joe Krol, who was supposed to be favoring an injured ankle, led Western's triumph over the 1938 Intercollegiate champions by scoring one touchdown and passing for two others after McGill had held the Mustangs to a 1-1 score in the first half. * Clem Paul added a fourth touchdown and converted three times.

McGill's touch was scored by Sleepy Telford on a four-yard plunge in the final period. Joe King, sophomore plunging fullback for the Mustangs, suffered a broken jaw that will keep him out of the game for two weeks.

Ding McGill's last-quarter field goal brought Queen's its first victory since 1937, by an 8-6 margin over the University of Toronto, at left Queen's. McGill and Toronto tied four points behind Western, having made it the way, Queen's had to fight back after a fumble on the two-yard line enabled Lou Somers to go over for Toronto's touchdown early in the fourth.

down. Both were converted.

An Edmonton fumble in the second half gave Brooks possession on the Edmonton 29. Hughes passed to Bishop to put the ball three yards from the line and Paul Rowe plunged for a converted touchdown.

At Regina, Roughriders took the lead in the first minute with a safety touch following a bad Regina punt. Then Harry Guest ran 70 yards for a Rider touchdown, unconverted.

In the second quarter Regina aerial play carried them downfield and Howard Cleveland completed the drive with a 10-yard forward pass to Lindsay Holt for a touchdown, Tiny Shrigley converting.

Hanson Leads Ball

Fritz Hanson led a bomber rally, making two runs of more than 20 yards to take the ball to the Regina three from where he scored a touchdown, converted by Greg Kabat, but Riders led 13-6 at half-time.

In the third quarter Springstein kicked a field goal from placement from the 30-yard line. Winnipeg's fourth-quarter rally brought another Hanson touchdown, this time on a 41-yard dash around right end, Kabat again converting.

Bombers lost Bud Marquardt, probably for the season, with a displaced shoulder. The Calgary game was costly, too, for Eddie O'Brien, star Edmonton end, suffered concussion and a possible broken nose.

Brilliant Winnipeg Player Sustains Dislocated Shoulder in Contest

Winnipeg, Oct. 23—(CP)—Unless Edmonton Eskimos can beat Calgary Bronks by a margin of some 50 points at Edmonton next Saturday, Bronks and Regina Roughriders will meet in a sudden-death game Nov. 4, the winner to engage Winnipeg Blue Bombers for the Western Interprovincial Football Union title.

Bronks defeated Eskimos 16-8 at Calgary Saturday to take third place in the standings with four wins and seven losses. At the same time Roughriders clinched second place by beating Bombers 16-12 at Regina for their sixth win in 11 games. It was Winnipeg's second loss.

Eskimos could tie Bronk's record of four wins by winning its final scheduled game but in event of a tie the Union constitution provides for a percentage of points scored for and against throughout the season will decide. Bronks have scored 144 to their opponents' 123 while Eskimen's record is 80 and 147 and no one expects them to overcome his handicap.

Calgary Always Ahead

At Calgary Saturday Eskimos took an 8-0 lead on two singles and Bill Matheny's 35-year touchdown run with Steve Olander converting.

In the second quarter a Calgary double kick clicked and Larry Hayes put the ball 40 yards for a touchdown. Then Bud Weaver ran for a 20-yard gain and Stan Robidoux threw a forward pass to Wolfie Hughes for another Bronks touchdown. Both were converted.

Regina Roughriders led Argos 13-4 and now leads the Big Four group without a loss.

HOLE-IN-ONE FOR JOE LEGAULT

Succeeds in Copping His Tee Shot on the 175 yd., Third Hole at Belleville Golf Club Course

The dream of every person who follows and swats "the little white pill around the golf course," was realized by a local golfer over the week end when Joe Legault, veteran Belleville golf addict, realized his life's ambition on the golf links when he made a hole in one.

It was while playing a friendly game with two club members that Mr. Legault stood in amazement and was practically speechless as he saw his drive to the third hole on the Belleville Golf Club Course roll into the cup to attain that coveted and perfect golf group, the hole in one class.

"It was the greatest thrill of my golfing experience and the realization of 16 years of trying and hoping to achieve this one," stated Mr. Legault this morning, when commenting upon his greatest golfing feat.

Joe Legault was playing golf with Harry Ridley, club champion and Cliff Maybee at the Belleville Golf Club when he teed off and had the satisfaction of seeing his drive ten minute in the cup. The shot came on the hole, a 175-yard drive. Joe was using a No. 3 Campbell ball and the club was a Lawrence Little spoon, the spoon being used in place of a driver on the 175 yard drive. His companions were, of course, the first to congratulate the modest Joe Legault, who admitted he never felt more joyous, but was unable to speak for a matter of seconds.

Joe Legault commenced his golfing activities in 1924- and had to wait 15 years for his first home in golfing circles, the hole in one. Congratulations have been in order throughout the local golfing realm since Mr. Legault realized his ambition of the golf links.

FRANKIE BOUCHER TO HELP PATRICK

Director-in-Chief of N.Y. Rangers Finds Job Too Big to Handle

Winnipg, Oct. 23—(CP)—Pressures of front office duties of New York Rangers hockey club have forced director-in-chief Lester Patrick to transfer part of his coaching responsibilities to the National League club to other hands this season.

Boucher, promoted from the ranks of New York Rangers' minor amateur farm, was a star centre with the N.H.L. club in his playing days and Patrick's faith in his protege hand man since he retired three years ago.

The farm system, largest in the N.H.L., includes professional hockey clubs, two amateur clubs, and an annual amateur school for which 25 to 30 prospects are selected.

FARM TEAM WINS OVER THE WINGS

Capitols of Indianapolis in Fine Condition in Beating Detroit 5-4

Detroit, Oct. 22—(CP)—Manager Jack Adams of the Detroit Red Wings predicted today one of the players ticketed to play with the Wings' farm team, Indianapolis Capitols, likely will find herths with the Wings before the National Hockey League season opens Nov. 2. His prediction came after the youthful Capitols defeated the Wings 5-4 here last night in an exhibition game.

Adams said the game, fast and brilliant after a slow start, had pleased him as it showed the Wings are in good condition. "But the Capitols are in better shape," Adams said. He expects barnstorming in several Ontario cities next week will improve the Wings.

Alex Motter, former centreman played defence "like a veteran," Adams said. He was pleased too with the performance of the entire line of the Michigan-Ontario amateur hockey league that saw Archie Wilder, Les Douglas and Joe Carveth, Jr., here. This line they would be ready for the N.H.L. season.

THIRTEEN TEAMS YET UNDEFEATED IN U. S. FOOTBALL

Michigan and Notre Dame Having Real Dog Fight in Mid-West

RACE WIDE OPEN

Cornell is Stand-out Team in East After Beating Penn State

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—Heading into the last week-end of October, traditionally the middle of the United States football season, those major teams that have managed to escape the plague of upsets finally have begun to line up in something like a championship manner.

The weaker or unluckier teams have been weeded out to the point where selection has a single leader or a small group of title contenders and a sizable band of challengers for top rank.

Considering the those which have obviously earned the rating of "major" teams, they line up something like this:

Undefeated and untied teams: East, Cornell; Fordham; Pennsylvania, Catholic University; South, Tennessee; Texas Christian; Mississippi; Mid-West, Notre Dame, Michigan, Ohio State; Southwest, Texas A. and M.; Rocky Mountain, Colorado Mines; Pacific Coast, Oregon State.

Undefeated but tied: East, Dartmouth, Princeton, Holy Cross; South, Tulane, North Carolina, Richmond; Mid-West, Nebraska, Oklahoma; Rocky Mountain, Utah; Pacific Coast, Southern California, University of California at Los Angeles, Santa Clara (tied twice).

Dukes Rise in Prestige

It's a small list, but the chances are the winner of this year's mythical United States title as well as most of the Conference champions will be found there.

Reviewing the situation by sections here are the prospects for the immediate future of the various contenders:

Cornell, routing Penn State 47-0, and Penn's 22-7 victory over Harvard, stand out among the "Ivy League" teams. Dartmouth whipped Lafayette 40-0.

N.Y.U. Back in Fight

New York University, beaten by North Carolina, bounced back into the running with a 20-0 win over Kentucky, 13-6 winner over Georgia. Holy Cross' Crusaders, victor over Villanova, 7-0, and Catholic University, victor over Vanderbilt 14-6 plays Auburn, 7-0 upset victim of Manhattan, and Alabama takes on Mississippi State.

Battle North Carolina visits Penn, and Clemson, in second place after Thursday's 27-0 victory over South Carolina, plays Navy. Duke's Blue Devils return to Southern Conference competition against Wake Forest. Duke trimmed Syracuse 20-0 in their Ivy Intersectional clash.

Mid-West: Ohio State faces Cornell, and Michigan, which routed Indiana 39-0, meets Pitt, sensational 20-15 winner over Army this week, leaving the Big Ten battles to be the best of the season.

Nebraska Quite Strong

Nebraska, which again stamped itself as the "powerhouse" of the Big Six Conference by its decisive triumph over the previously unbeaten Kansas State, meets Iowa State, which dropped its first game to Missouri, 9-7.

Southwest: The Texas Aggies continued undefeated as they trounced Texas Christian 20-6, but had the worst of its many surprises in the 9-8 to Sam Houston Teachers.

Pacific Coast: When Gonzaga upset Stanford 12-7 Wednesday, it left only Oregon State undefeated and untied among the coast Conference teams. That wasn't a Conference game, but the Santa Clara Webfoots remained on top of the heap while Oregon State's Beavers moved up alongside by beating Washington State 13-7 for its first win of the season. Oregon faces U. C. L. A. which warmed up by whipping Montana, 20-6.

Rocky Mountain: Utah, Big Seven leader, went outside the Conference last week and was held to a mere 35-0 by Idaho. The Indians come back into the fold this week to play Denver. 7-0 conquerer of Utah State and Utah leading rival for the title.

TOPCOAT TIME: . . .

Just the time of the year when that extra warmth is badly needed without sacrificing a smart appearance—this is our cue to step into the picture with the season's newest TOPCOAT styles each one possessing style quality and warmth aplenty.

What actually are the possibilities of hockey at the R.C.A.F. for this season, is a question we have repeatedly been asked of a recent date in Belleville and environs. Naturally there can be no definite or concrete answer for such a question, as the war in Europe carries the solution. No doubt in few weeks the activities at the Air Force will return somewhat to normal and then perhaps this all-important question can be answered, but at the present moment we would not have the audacity to approach Group Captain McEwen relative to this matter, as we feel it will take its own free course and doubtless prove beneficial to all when the time and the place arise. However, we have talked with some of the Flyers and they seem quite optimistic regarding hockey at the Air Station this winter.

We understand there are only three of last year's Flyer squad left at the Airport, Goalie Laurie Gibson, "Simon" Legris" and the fiery "Stan" McNab. All of the others have long since bidden adieu to Trenton Airport. However, there have been several outstanding hockeyists arrive at the local R. C. A. F. base lately. Foremost there are Aymer Burtch and Don Crawford, two of Wally Elmer's Junior O.H.A. champions of two years ago who are both rock and clever pucksters. Last week two former members of the famous Melville, Sask. "Millionaires" arrived at the Air Force, a goalkeeper and defenceman. Hockey lovers need no introduction to the Melville "Millionaires" as they having been for years one of the strongest senior hockey clubs in Western Canada. Other good hockey players have been reported as members of the Air Force and with the O.H.A. lowering the residence rule bars for military teams there need be no worry regarding the strength of the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" another season.

Local fans struck the camp of the Belleville juniors last week, when it was learned that Milton Shmyr, Sparkling, formerly of Kitchener and who took up residence here in August, was suddenly called home for military duty. It seems Spielgberg was connected with the militia in Kitchener and expected to be called up, but not for active service yet. It was "Dutch" has not signed for active duty there is an outside chance he may yet return-to Belleville to play hockey, but these chances are very remote, it has been reliably stated. However, Steve Hook, who played last year to play hockey with Toots Holway's kids and more recently enlisted in the Air Force, still hopes to team with Ross Clare on the local defence. He personally informed us over the week-end. Jack Bundy, shifty centre ice artist, is another who is also in Belleville and no need of guessing who.

Alice Marble is famous in tennis, but there was a time when the California blonde was a prominent newspaper. But the brief flurry, first in South Australia in years, soon melted.

Alice Marble is famous in tennis, but there was a time when the California blonde was a prominent baseball. She was mascot of the San Francisco Seals, and was so "crazy" about baseball her father brought her a tennis racquet with the idea of diverting her mind. It succeeded.

Hank (Old Golden-rod) Gowdy, coach of the Cincy Reds is the only player who participated in that all-time long-distance baseball game, the 6-inning Dodgers-Reds 1-1 tie of 1920, who is active in the major leagues today.

This lad Dave Khoen, of Detroit, who has been signed to meet Joe Malcolm in main bout of Friday night's grappling show at the Hume Arena, comes to Canada highly recommended as a top-notch grappler. Khoen has appeared in the larger centres throughout the U.S.A. as a main attraction wrestler and it was necessary to guarantee him more expense money in order to assure the appearance of such a noted ring veteran. Professional wrestling is gaining in popularity in Belleville and the present promoters are eager to please the fans in an attempt to make the weekly attendance. The signing of a local lad, Roy Doherty of Shannonville was another fine gesture to create better feelings, as Doherty has been meeting sturdy opposition around the district fall fairs where he wrestled the travelling grapplers, who meet all comers.

Congratulations to Joe Legault, who realized his life's golfing ambition when he made a hole in one while playing with Harry Ridley and Cliff Maybee at the Belleville Golf Club yesterday morning, in entering the coveted and select group. Joe made the hole in one on the third green, a drive of 175 yards. Mr. Legault has been golfing for fifteen years before he finally entered golfing's select class. Congratulations, Joe.

SPORT SPICE — Ottawa Rough Riders, Western Mustangs and Montreal Winged Wheelers all won defeated in their respective football groups following a week-end of grid upsets, headed by Queen's beating Varsity for their first win since 1937... Western's win over McGill proved rather costly when Joe King, plunging half of the Mustangs, sustained a fractured jaw. King's injury will leave additional backfield work resting on the shoulders of Wally Hilton, the lad who is playing steady ball for Western this season... The surprise team from Toronto Saturday when Ottawa beat Argos 18 to 7 and the game ended in wild confusion and a free-for-all after Andy Tommy, (Ottawa), clipped Sherrin Thornton (Argos), and a really rough "game..... There's no love lost between the Rough Riders and Argos at any stage of the game.

In the dark of the moon on the Cherry Valley Golf Links, Wharton (Tex.) High beat Bay City... Frank Cuzzo, wearing No. 13, drop-kicked a goal for the 13th and winning point... To make it unanimous, Bay City is known as the Black Cats.

Lefty Gomez has signed to be best man for Joe DiMaggio.....The new swimming pool at Jack Dempsey's Miami Beach hotel will be christened the "Tex Rickard Memorial Pool", and the sign over the entrance will read, "Million Dollar Dip"..... Western writers say Henry Armstrong has regained his old time zing.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, October 24
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE
ACCORDING to the stars and traditions, this should be a particularly lively and thrilling day, with much stirring in business, intellectual pursuits and in the social and affectional life. There may be surprises or suddenly precipitated events to make this a memorable or memorable time, but there are indications of running counter to the plans and objectives of supervisors or employers.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a lively, progressive and eventful year, with much thrilling adventure in the private as well as the cultural life. All pertaining to the writings should flourish, and affectional relations may prove of dramatic interest because of sudden and unpredictable developments. There is hint of opposition from elders, superiors or parents.

A child born on this day may be versatile, versatile and original in all artistic, cultural and intellectual expressions, with much inspiration and intuition being reflected in its work.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Pyramex, a painless or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist a package of Pyramid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Pyramid is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

Tweed United Church Has Anniversary

Tweed, Oct. 23. — Tweed United Church anniversary services were held on Sunday with Rev. J. A. Waddell, pastor of Western United Church, Ottawa, as special preacher. Large congregations were present at both services. The choir of twenty-two voices under the direction of Mr. W. J. Connor with Miss Lois Richardson as organist, rendered a splendid musical program. They were assisted by Dorothy Ingersoll Goldie, soprano soloist of George Street United Church, Peterborough.

The musical program at the morning service included the anthem "Praise Ye the Lord, O My Anointed" (Nichol), a four-part ladies' chorus "Thanks Be to God" (Stainer) and "The Lord's Prayer" (Malotte) most beautifully rendered by Mrs. Goldie. Mrs. Goldie as a fitting conclusion to the service spoke on efficacy of prayer by Rev. J. A. Waddell.

At the evening service the choir sang "Day Is Dying in the West" (Clay Speaks) and "Abide With Me" (Liddle). The solos in these anthems were very effectively sung by Mrs. Ross Young, Mrs. H. Connor and Mrs. Goldie. Following the sermon Mrs. Goldie sang "Peace I Leave With You" (Dicksen).

Two splendid addresses were given by Rev. Waddell, who covered his ministry at being given the opportunity of preaching in Tweed.

AT THE BELLE

Hats off to Darryl F. Zanuck for his magnificent and faithful production of "The Rains Came," the Louis Bromfield best-seller novel, which 20th Century-Fox is now presenting on the Belle screen, with Myrna Loy, Tyrone Power and Brenda Joyce starred at the head of a dazzling cast!

Rarely has a famous book, which has been read and enjoyed by millions, been transferred to the screen with such devoted fidelity, such unsparing time and effort, and such full spiritual justice. Here, indeed, is a great film!

All the fascinating characters of the book come to vivid life on the screen and every role is perfectly cast and brilliantly played, the evident result of the distinguished Clarence Brown's superlative direction.

Myrna Loy, looking more enchanting than ever, brings with the "perfect wife" tradition to play the amorous Lady Esketh and she is surely superb. There is great as the handsome, high-caste Hindu surgeon, Major Rama Safti, the first real love of Lady Esketh's romantic life. Brenda Joyce and George Brent gives a splendid account of himself as the world-weary Tom Ransom.

The colorful setting of Bromfield's mystical city of Ranchipur, India, is realistically reproduced with the earthquakes that highlight the novel—and the earthquake, the flood, the fire and the plague—are all reproduced with breath-taking effect. Indeed, in the opinion of this reviewer, there has never been anything in film history to match the spectacle scenes in "The Rains Came."

Zanuck's sensational new discovery, Tyrone Power, gives a great performance in the role of Young Fern Simon, the wastrel who becomes a man of grace on life, and splendid performances are also turned in by Nigel Bruce as Lord Esketh, Marjorie Rambeau as the Maharnal, Joseph Schildkraut as Prince Hari, Mary Nash as Miss MacDaid, Jane Darwell as Aunt Phoebe Dale, Henry O'Neill as Father Rank, Marjorie Rambeau as Mrs. Simon, and many others. Rev. Homer Smiley and H. B. Warner as the Maharajah.

Here is the news of the day and a funny Terrytoon cartoon will be exhibited on the same program.

AT THE CAPITOL

If crybody's Happy"

Spiced with a bit of melodrama, "Everybody's Happy," the Warner Bros. production opening today at the Capitol theatre with Irene Rich and Henry O'Neill in the principal roles, is mostly a heart-warming, thrilling tale about events in a typical American middle class family.

This family, like about every other in the nation, is made up of hobbyists. Every member of it has his or her own hobby, and each is pursuing it zealously devoted to the pursuit of said hobby.

Miss Irene Rich is poked at the hobbyists and their avocations, but she pokes it really on their wives. She constitutes a character who, shocking homily on the generally accepted theory that husbands and Americans for cultivating hobbies.

Miss Rich plays the role of a young wife who repeatedly tells her husband, Jackie Moran and Jean Sharon at their wits' end, her son and daughter, and Aldrich Bowker, as dad's rather thrifted brother, living at the house for an indefinite stay.

It is when dad and the boy get to the camping trip in the mountains, taking along respectively their photographic and short-wave radio equipment, that the fun and plot begin to pay dividends. For the radio is the only means of communicating with the outside world when a big forest fire breaks out, and then dad's camera with telephoto lens gets a picture of a pyromaniac who set the fire. Dad's picture leads to the payment of a $2000 reward for he capture of the fire-fiend.

Second Feature

Marking the return to the screen of Sigrid Gurie after a long, trying role, Universal's drama, "The Adventures of Marco Polo" and "Algiers," Gurie will be seen for the first time in "Last Express," in which it is declared to afford unusual dramatic opportunities. She is cast as a young wife who suddenly sees her husband acting about her when she becomes innocently involved in a murder.

Featured in the film's supporting cast of favorites are Donald Briggs, Eve Arden, William Lundigan, Elizabeth Risdon and Donnie Dunagan. Briggs, who has recently come forward as one of Hollywood's more popular young leading men, receives romantic honors with Miss Gurie.

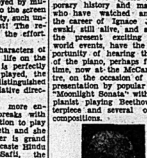
AT THE McCARTHY

"Moonlight Sonata" English Production Is Different

Features World Famed Pianist and Sterling Cast

Music lovers readers of contemporary history and many others who have watched with interest the career of Ignace Jan Paderewski, still very much in the present exciting whirl of world events, have the grand opportunity of hearing the maestro of the piano, perhaps for the last time, now at the McCarthy Theatre, on the occasion of the second presentation by popular request of "Moonlight Sonata" with the great pianist playing Beethoven's masterpiece and several of his own compositions.



"Moonlight Sonata" has everything of an entertaining nature, romance, comedy, romance, spice and did acting, little humorous touches and a stupendous background.

"Moonlight Sonata" is the first real only motion picture particularly dedicated to music, and will serve to perpetuate the face and figure of one of the great talent of the Polish pianist, for many of whom otherwise he would be but a shadowy figure flashing across the page of history.

While the musical genius of Paderewski has stirred thousands and millions, he will also admire his place in history. During the World War he worked as Minister for the cause of the Allies, organized a Polish army in the United States, and raised large sums of money from personal appearance concerts to provide comforts for soldiers at the front. After the war he helped to organize a government in the new Poland and became the first Premier giving valuable service to his country in a number of period of political intrigue and nation making.

In "Moonlight Sonata" Paderewski is himself, the great pianist and his performance for the screen constitutes a masterpiece in itself. He is shown at the piano in all the beauties of "Moonlight Sonata" with the great Polish pianist—Charles Farrell, supported by Marie Tempest, most popular of all English actresses and other talented English artists. "Moonlight Sonata" was filmed in England, which accounts for the artistic excellence of the production and the faithful attention to detail.

By his artistic personality, music lover or not, you are certain to be carried away by his work in this picture which is the theme note of the production with Paderewski at the helm of the camera. There have been more exciting films but none more beautiful or completely satisfying.

The story has been skilfully built around Paderewski and his music. It opens with the maestro after a decade of keen applause and fanfare. Attention is drawn to a happy young couple and their little daughter. Later in his club Paderewski tells the story of their romance, how he met his future wife and how his music brought them together again.

Altogether "Moonlight Sonata" is one of those picture presentations which linger in one's pleasant memory, good entertainment, and artistic masterpiece which folks who pride themselves on keeping up with the times cannot afford to miss, nor see too often and it is to be hoped that Belleville will respond as a whole in showing their appreciation of good entertainment and fill the auditorium of the McCarthy Theatre to overflowing between now and the time the engagement ends.

Prehistoric Discoveries At Abbey Dawn

Dear Sir,

In your issue of Monday, Oct. 16th., your editorial, "Where Did Prehistoric Man Live" has been the passing interest to the Province of Ontario in the matter of finding pre-historic site at Abbey Dawn, Pitsburg Township, Frontenac County, near Kingston.

The relics found at Abbey Dawn are so numerous and impressive that the collection, even now, may be looked upon as the finest ever collection of pre-historic relics ever found in "Indian Land" in northeastern North America north of Mexico!

The find of Mr. Gilbert T. Brewer, near Penn Yan, N.Y., as noted in your editorial, of stone hoes, stone hammers, pounders, polishers, mortars, pestles and so on, and the Abbey Dawn collection includes hundreds of similar objects. These are the Indian, and again, many of them may be pre-Indian. On the other hand, at Abbey Dawn there are extraordinary numbers of granite objects of many kinds not found, as far as we know, anywhere else north of Mexico, and they are obviously the work of some human race, possibly remote ancestors of the Indian, but which lived very long ago, as the American archaeologists claim that the Northern Indians couldn't cut granite spheres, like Abbey Dawn's Penn Yan find may eventually check up with the Abbey Dawn site and "Nobody ever found out much about mankind" as his father's still disclose in America—and the knee."—John Barrymore.

riddles will be solved.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Yellow Roses

By F. CROWDER

Monk had brought roses, long-stemmed and yellow. Lelia loved them above all flowers and Monk Earling above all men. There was about him an unscrupulous non-moral ferocity that hypnotized her. He was bold; he was handsome and mysterious.

Lelia would never marry him and he knew it.

She had shamelessly lured and bailed him; short of license — and vows, she had him landed. But she would never be able to close the door in Monk's face.

Sleek, pale, fastidious to the last dark hair on her regal head she was, on admitting Monk to her apartment.

A little untidy, decidedly flushed a bit tousled she was when a half hour later the telephone jangled imperiously.

It was Joe downstairs in the lobby.

She called Monk up by his code labels from the aeries.

"Darling," she said against his lips. "you'll have to go. It's that pestiferous Jo Knouse. Don't let her see you."

"Think she'll ever squeal to Guy?" Monk asked.

"She might." Lelia gasped, whirling away for his hat.

"She could queer me with Guy. She's still goofy about him."

She pushed Monk through the door.

"You'd better go down the stairs."

The buzzer caught her a split-second after she had thought of the roses in the open box on the table.

She was wavering between her and door when Jo stepped over the threshold.

Jo was pretty, too trusting and devoted for her own good. But today, Jo's eyes were steady with a contemptuous glare; her pretty lips were tightened into a bright line in her face.

"Not well, dear?" Lelia asked.

Jo's gaze discovered the box of roses and instead of flaring up, she seemed to will.

"So you're seeing him again." She sighed, dropped into a chair and stared reproachfully at Lelia.

"I thought you'd promised to quit him."

It was Lelia who flared. "I can't keep a guard at the door."

"You wouldn't if you could," Jo said.

"I saw him sneaking down the stairway. To bad my call disturbed you."

"But, my dear," Lelia reminded her. "I'm still entitled to certain licenses."

"Not when you licenses are breaches of faith," Jo retorted.

"You've promised Guy to have nothing more to do with Monk. You don't know what it would do if he found out—"

"If he found out?" Lelia interrupted, suddenly shrill with alarm.

"Oh, don't worry," Jo said. "I'm not telling him. Why don't you quit it, Lelia, Guy deserves an absolute square deal. And if I were you, I'd begin by disposing of those roses before Guy turns up."

"Not yet, darling. Guy's away until Monday."

Jo laughed nervously.

"Guy is on his way here. I bumped into him on the street not 10 minutes ago. He didn't have to go to Washington. He's expecting to surprise you."

Lelia's insolent nonchalance was badly shaken.

"Jo, you wouldn't kid me?"

"I just heard the elevator stop."

"For God's sake," Lelia whispered, "don't let me down."

"Are you decent? May I come in?" The masculine voice came through the door pushed an inch ajar.

Lelia's voice wavered in panic. "No—wait. Oh all right, come on."

Guy was in the room.

"Sprites!" he laughed and strode across to Lelia, dropping a wink at Jo as he passed. "Jo, pet!" he exclaimed as he kissed her. "I believe you are surprised."

"Well naturally," Lelia said, looking starched and sounding piqued. "What are you doing here?"

Guy, big, leisurely, amiable, explained why he hadn't had to go to Washington after all. He broke off suddenly, squinted at Lelia and then chuckled.

"Honestly sweetheart, I didn't mean to scare you to death."

Jo stood up to leave.

Lelia protested.

"Why Jo, you've hardly come."

"No, I really must run," Jo declared and walked to the door.

Her hand on the knob, she paused "My Revival Session I almost forgot them."

Lelia came to life.

"Why, yes."

She was at the box jamming down the lid, then bore it across the room to Jo's arms and saw her out.

With heart bounding free of fear she returned sparkingly to Guy.

"Who in thunder," he asked, "has been showering Jo?"

"She's taking them to her mother I think." Lelia said and offered a cigarette box to Guy.

He accepted one and then with the same hand plucked away something that clung to the coarse wool of the girl's plaid skirt.

It was the flat binding that had originally tied up the box of roses.

Guy lit his cigarette and then idly began fumbling with the binding tape as he talked.

His hands stood still; his attention with an accompanying dark scowl, was caught by the printing on the tape.

His eyes darted a question at Lelia, wandered thoughtfully and then returned to the tape.

"Funny," he muttered. "I saw Jo a few minutes ago on the street and I'd swear she wasn't carrying any box."

"Well, maybe she got it after she saw you, silly," Lelia suggested.

"No!"

Guy sat exact.

This tape reads 'Daltig's, 181 East Twenty-second Street.' That's 10 miles from here. That's the florist shop where Monk Earling's crowd rubbed out Gabby Fertig with a machine gun."

Slowly Guy's hands gathered the binding into a ball between them.

Guy stood up.

His eyes had no depth now.

They were cold as glass.

"You would never accept anything from Monk. Never! But you — you would, you have! Monk always brought you yellow roses."

Guy lingered brilliant.

"And then," Guy murmured, "you let Jo try to cover you! Maybe this doesn't classify you both." His eyes flashed once with fire "And maybe it does."

He plunged for the door snatching his hat as he went and called out, "Jo!" as if he thought his voice could find her.

Heronspool Battled Sub for Four Hours Before Being Sung

By GEORGE HARESNAPE

Wireless Operator Aboard S. S. Heronspool

New GYrk, Oct. 21—(AP)— The German submarine that sent the freighter Heronspool to the bottom with a torpedo Oct. 12 off the Irish coast did so only after we had battled it in a four-hour night fight.

We had been protected by a British warship convoy to a point about 300 miles off Ireland. We were on our way to Montreal.

At 8:30 p.m. only a few hours after we had left the convoy, we came upon the submarine as it was sinking the big French oil tanker Emilia Miguet.

The submarine was firing shot after shot at the tanker, and we started running at once, hoping to get away unnoticed.

The sub saw us, however, and started for us.

We had only one gun—I can't tell you what size because it's Admiralty orders—but we fought back as best we could. The submarine came to the surface and dived continually, firing with its guns. I think they wanted to save the expense of a torpedo.

"We zig-zagged all over the ocean. It seemed, firing back and forth at each other for four hours. Because of our gun the submarine didn't risk coming too close, and with the darkness adding to the confusion they failed to touch us with a shell.

At 12:45 a.m. the submarine commander must have become tired of this. Anyway he let go a torpedo — and the fight was over.

The torpedo struc' us so unexpectedly and we abandoned ship so quickly I didn't have time even to send an SOS for help. All 36 crew members got away safely in two lifeboats.

The submarine cruised about us as we bobbed in the sea swells but no one spoke to us. The Heronspool sank very slowly and we would have boarded her again if the sub had only left.

Finally, four hours after it was hit, the freighter sank. The sub stuck by us, however, for another hour until the American liner President Harding came into sight, then left.

The American ship, which was hurrying to the scene in answer to the French oil tanker's distress signals, saw us and picked us up. Two British warships meanwhile had come to the aid of the French tanker's survivors.

The Heronspool crew are in good condition. None were hurt when the hurricane hit the President Harding last Tuesday night, injuring many of her passengers and crew.

"It is a strange thing that human nature turns and destroys its own civilization every so often."

TORONTO STOCKS
Toronto, Oct. 23 (CP)—Mines and western oils shares were strong today on Toronto exchange. Declaim fair strength in golds, base metals and foods, industrial index showed a minor loss.
Announcement of improved earnings advanced Ahlmer 35 cents in the common and ¼ point in the preferred. Canadian Locomotive firmed ¼ and First Albert Oil added a minor fraction.
Gold shares improved to show sizeable gains in Kerr Malartic, Buffalo Ankerite, Pickle Crow, Aunor and Conlaurum, while base metals, Steep Rock was conspicuous, advancing in active trading to a new high at 1.52, up about seven cents.
Anglo-Canadian, Calgary-Edmonton, Home and Homestead Oil and gas were gainers in the junior oil group.

WALL STREET

New York, Oct. 23—(AP)—Utilities, Motor Trucks and Specialties managed to attract a few buyers in today's stock market but many issues were unable to get going on the upside. Near the end-of-the hour many advances and declines were about evenly distributed.

News from abroad was hardly of a character to whip up the speculative spirit, however.

Carrying modest plus signs at one time or another were Consolidated Edison, North American, Stone and Webster, American Water Works, Studebaker, While Motors, Mack Truck, Lowy Odacco, General Foods, Woolworth, Sears Roebuck, N.Y., Central, and Southern Pacific.

Consolidated edison in a little included Lake Shore, Distillers and Hiram Walker. Down moved in the opposite direction. Dominion Tar coasted along evenly in the Bonds Market.

LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Lamb trade featured early-afternoon dealings on the Toronto Livestock Market here. Better quality of cattle and weathers selling up 25 cents. Trade was fairly active on steers and cattle but dull on slaughter cattle. The calf and sheep sections were steady while no price was established. Cattle holdover from last week was 700 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Bureau of Markets: Cattle 6,700; calves 2,500; hogs 1,700; sheep and lambs 2,470.

Good choice calves brought $7-$7.65 and ordinary stockers made $5.50 to $7. A few choice butcher cattle ranged from 5.50 to $7.50 and butcher cows made $4 to $5.50. Canners and cutters sold at $3 to $3.75 and good bulls $5 to $5.75.

Good one and other lambs sold up to $9.50 delivered by rail and $9.25 by truck. Bucks and heavies were $6.50 at $5.50 and down $5.

Previous close on off-truck hogs was $8.75 fed and watered.

Choice veal calves sold from $10-$11 and heavy calves ranged from $6 to $8. Creamers were $4 to $5.50.

Sheep sold from $2.50 to $5 cwt.

Montreal, Oct. 23—(CP)—With the exception of hogs, all other kinds of livestock declined slightly in fairly active trading on Montreal markets today, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported. Trade declined 25 cents.

Receipts totalled 1,541, calves 2,320, sheep 5,329, hogs 2,570. Good steers made $7.25-$7.50, medium $6.50-$7 and common $5-$6. Heifers ranged from $5.50-$6.50. Good cow Bright $5-$5.50, medium $4.25-$5 and common $2.50-$4. Canners and cutters sold at $2.50 down.

Good quality veals made $9.50-$10 common light veals sold up to $6. Drickers were $5.50-$7 and growers $4-$5 with the bulk between $4.50-$6.75.

Good ewes and wethers were steady at $3.50, heavy lambs cut $1 per hundredweight, culls and bucks $2 per hundredweight. Spring lambs sold at $2.50-$3.50.

Bacon hogs ranged $9 fed and watered. Stocks drew $1 premium with regular cuts on off grades. Sows made $6-$7.25. Hogs sold on rail grade brought $13 hot weight.

Toronto Produce Prices Quiet Saturday

An easy tone undermined the egg market. Buyers continued to purchase cautiously, and receipts, in particular were difficult to move. Fresh receipts increased slightly. Butter, however, did not revise prices.

Quiet trading prevailed in butter, but prices held to former levels. Offerings generally were still light as a result of small arrivals of fresh make, and of no selling pressure on the part of holders. Top grade Ontario creamery solids were quoted at 28 1-4c per pound.

Montreal Produce

ECONOMY TO REDUCE DEBT—Bone

London, Oct. 23—(CP)— British naval authorities are endeavoring to keep their fleet secret to neutral ships passing through her blockade lines, Sir Archibald Bowman-s disclosed at a naval press conference today. It also was said with satisfaction that 1,000 ships from neutrality zone around the American coast have been intercepted and will do all it can to keep war away from the shores of America.

CAUSE OF SINKING

Saw Under Water Explosion.

"The air-gunner said definitely that he noticed a submarine under water explosion after the explosion of these bombs. The aircraft then turned about, flew over the submarine a second time, and dropped another salvo. Patches of oil were observed after the first salvo and subsequently after the second attack.

"Nothing more was seen of the U-boat."

The pilot of the Atlantic Patrol aircraft says:

"An enemy submarine was sighted some distance away. It dived and several heavy bombs were dropped on it. The first bomb should have been a direct hit.

"Dark objects appeared in the water after the attack, and air bubbles rose to the surface.

"A second bombing attack was made as near the same position as possible.

"We circled over the area for some time, but nothing further was observed."

Air raid alarms were sounded again today as an unidentified reconnaissance plane approached the important shipping area of the Firth of Forth but the alarm was cancelled when the machine failed to cross the coast.

British experts on naval affairs all held that from their standpoint the most significant recent war developments was the sinking of the German war planes on British naval units. Immediately it underscores the Nazis incurred in these raids in comparison to the damage they inflicted.

These experts asserted the Germans lost about 15 planes in the series of raids on Scapa Flow, the Firth of Forth and action in the North Sea, whereas so far only ship was damaged to an extent that would have kept it out of commission service. Hitherto the German losses had been computed at 13 planes.

No Ships Hit

No ship, the experts said, has been hit by bombs since the Southampton which was attacked Oct. 16 at Nore. It was severely scathed as a kind of glancing blow and the bomb did not actually explode on deck although there were casualties and a hole knocked in the superstructure.

Those actions, it was said, represented the first test between bombers and ships protected by modern aircraft guns and fighting planes.

"We mustn't assume that this is the end of the air attacks but the beginning has been favorable from the standpoint of view of a thousand raid.

As the war entered its eighth week, observers rated the Anglo-French blockade a more significant act as the greatest achievement so far but there was no slackening pride in the way British aircraft protected the British coast as a naval convoy in the North Sea.

Starting tomorrow, the House of Commons will be asked to give effect over such questions as the blackout, Government control of rail transportation difficulties and the method of removing children from danger areas. Prime Minister Chamberlain will give his weekly review Thursday.

13 Planes Downed

Counting four German planes shot down in the convoy raid Saturday and another off the Scottish coast yesterday, the Air Ministry estimated at least 13 enemy aircraft were lost in the week which brought air raid warnings somewhere every day.

The successful defence of the convoy in the first test test brought both praise and caution against overconfidence.

"The Atlantic air bases did badly," said The Daily Express. "The attack on the Firth after every did worse. That must be a surprise for those who used to predict a big new danger from the sea. But wait a little before you decide that the danger does not exist."

The press gave attention to Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels' attack on Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, "Goebbels lies for 37 minutes." The British broadcast a 37-minute reply of German Minister's broadcast.

Keys Up to Navy

The price of eggs went up about six cents a dozen and there were slight increases also in bacon, meat, fish and jam. Some 46,000,000 food-ration cards were ready for distribution and Nov. 13 was given as the probable starting date for rationing.

The Wool Control Advisory Council ordered a 25 per cent reduction in civilian use of wool, the cut to be made by using thinner cloth.

Two week end speeches by Dartmouth Geoffrey and War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha, were directed against each other. Mr. Lloyd George stuck to his guns in advocating peace negotiations with "you can be firm at a conference as well as on a battlefield."

Hore-Belisha said that "no peace proposals which rely for their sanction on a broken word can be considered" and stressed the point that time is on the side of the Allies.

GERMAN AIR RAIDS

Only Artillery Activity

The High Command's daily communique reported only artillery and reconnoitring activity on the western front during the last 24 hours. It added that a 10-motor-r Britain bomber Saturday over Sonsbeck, 15 miles from Aachen, and then disappeared over the Belgian frontier.

When foreign correspondents at the daily press conference inquired why no mention was made in the communique of a mine disaster to a German ship in the Baltic Sea Saturday and of an engagement between German planes and British vessels and aircraft in the North Sea same day, the reply was that "these matters are still under investigation, wherefore no statements can yet be made."

Political campaign meanwhile was launched primarily to strengthen the home front." Housewives will be urged to save on everything from foodstuffs down to the slightest bit of conservation and to refrain from grumbling.

Similarly, men in the factories and especially armament industry centers were being told that, as has been the case frequently in the past, they stand in the first line with the fighting troops.

DAILY WAR SURVEY

Having regard to the reported strength of the German air force, the series of bombing raids directed against Great Britain since the start of the war resemble the light but quick first round blows of a skilled boxer feeling out a dangerous opponent, seeking weak spots, testing out the effect of different punches.

Planes Are Costly

If such proves the full fury of Germany's air power is launched against the British Isles the attacking planes will be counted not in hundreds and not in dozens. But bombing planes are costly machines and the men who operate them are even more difficult to replace. Before sending over hundreds of planes the German air sive waves it is the part of wisdom to gain an approximate idea of how many may be shot down and to estimate how effective their attack will be.

During his European campaigns more than a century ago the Duke of Wellington was frequently chided for his conservatism in delaying decisive engagements with the enemy. His answer was: "I cannot risk losing that army and if it were lost the war was lost, that enemy armies could be replaced but not England's."

Germany is in a somewhat similar position now with its air force. To throw that force with the man-power and resources of the British Empire being harnessed for air warfare might prove fatal. The man air power will be slower and more difficult than in British air power.

DUFF COOPER CAN

The former First Lord of the Admiralty has a little critical ground for talk of an immediate peace.

"I cannot believe that Germany, if it is in a victorious position, would yield a single point," he said. "And it would be impossible for Britain and France to accept any so-called peace terms which would leave Germany master and the immediate prospects of Europe."

Should Not Give Germany Time to Organize Russia

"It would be folly to grant Germany time to organize Russia for the benefit of Germany by organizing genius, given a free hand by Stalin, to develop the vast resources, and certainly would confront the world with the most formidable combination of powers in history."

Germany, in the lack of decisive action thus far on the western front, has accepted and assumed the basic allied strategy which is to tighten the blockade on Germany and hope her to weaken the burden of offensive action against her people.

The ultimate revolution in German home front, Duff Cooper said, might well bring about a restoration of monarchy in Germany, with a sovereign chosen from the Hohenzollern or Hapsburg families.

Duff Cooper is a member of the Grenadier Guards, the regiment of the Archduke Otto, direct heir to the Hapsburg throne and a relative by marriage. It was rumored recently that Otto would be chosen as the "amazing genius of Europe."

Mr. Cooper said he had not read a complete official explanation of the Nazi-Soviet pact. Speaking at Scapa Flow by a German submarine, following the sinking of the battleship Royal Oak.

SUPER-GUERRILLA

Apparently pointing to a continued lack of large scale military activity was a war ministry announcement that beginning Nov. 1 men with France's armed forces would be granted ten days' leave of absence instead of seven.

Given Extra Leave

An extra three days was promised men who received decorations or in special cases involving deaths or births in their families. Men mobilized behind the lines still receive eight days vacation.

Withdrawal of French troops across their border along most of the northern end of the front released pressure on Saarbrucken, rich German industrial centre threatened from three sides since early in the war.

The French said, however, the city still was dominated by heavy artillery near Furbach and by troops on two small heights in the Warndt, forest. These heights, southwest of Saarbrucken, are the only positions on German soil now occupied by their forces, the French report.

River out of Banks

Heavy rains which sent the Bliss River out of its banks and washed out bridges east of Saarbrucken contributed to the natural strength of positions established by the French to meet German attempts to cross the border.

Small streams overflowed elsewhere along the northern end of the front between the Moselle and Rhine Rivers, curtailing military activities.

Some French sources expressed belief a Berlin conference of Adolf Hitler with Nazi leaders might end in a decision to attempt a big offensive against the Maginot line. Other observers expressed the opinion, however, the Germans would concentrate on intensifying their marine and aerial attacks on the British blockade.

TWO ACCIDENTS OVER WEEKEND

Only Single Cars Involved but Both Vehicles Badly Damaged

Two motor accidents occurred east of Belleville over the week-end, both shortly after 5.00 p.m. Saturday, resulting in none being enable property damage, but strangely enough single motor vehicles were implicated in each incident.

Proceeding north through the village of Milltown, an automobile driven by Donald Marsh, R.R. 1, Malinda Reserve, crashed into the cement abutment along the shores of the Salmon River and was completely demolished. Marsh escaped injury but the car in which he was riding was badly damaged.

Shortly after this accident, a car driven by Mrs. Ethel Highfield, Belleville, crashed into the rear of a horse and buggy driven by Mrs. Matthew Ave. Tweddle, who was also travelling in the same direction. Mrs. Tweddle was thrown from the buggy and received a broken arm and face. Charges are pending Provincial Constable Mc Mullen stated after investigating the crash.

Returning home Constable McBrien was informed another similar accident had occurred at the intersection of Bridge St. and Meachiner Ave. Investigation revealed a motor car driven by David Fred Meacher Ave., had failed to negotiate the turn at the top of Bridge St. and had crashed into the fence on the corner. The car sustained cuts and bruises on the right fog, the constable was informed.

MacDonald's Teeth To be Examined

Toronto, Oct. 22—(CP)—As Donald (Mickey) MacDonald's retrial on a charge of murdering James Wright resumed in assize court today, entered its second week today, Defence Counsel Frank Regan was granted permission to have MacDonald's teeth examined by the Don Jail physician.

MacDonald was convicted and sentenced to hang at the first trial but Ontario Court Appeal ordered a new trial.

"This dental examination is very important to my case," Mr. Regan told the court. "I am going to try to prove MacDonald doesn't answer the description of the man the police in their circular."

Mr. Regan said that the police bulletin issued after the murder described the No. 1 gunman as having decayed teeth in the lower jaw.

"I want my client's teeth examined by a dentist," he said, "I feel such evidence will have a definite bearing on this case." He added he couldn't get a dentist because "we have no funds."

Crown Counsel, Gerald D. E. O'Brien, K.C. and Detective Sergeant Charles Hackett, of the prison doctor for the examination and Mr. Justice J. C. Makins gave his approval.

SUB COMMANDER

Fired on Without Warning

Boston, Oct. 22—(AP) — Survivors of the French freighter Emile Miguet told today how a German submarine opened fire upon their highly explosive cargo without warning, with one shell cutting a gasoline tank. Flames that quickly allowed others of the crew to escape from the burning ship, were fought by Captain Robert Andrade of the Enoch Migues, the biggest non-passenger vessel yet sunk by German submarines, described the attack which left the ship a roaring inferno, as he and the other survivors were brought to safety here in the United States rescue ship, Black Hawk.

The French tanker was about two days off the French coast on October 12 and about 6.30 a.m. when the first shell screamed overhead. According to Andrade, the shells followed, Captain Andrade said.

"One struck the crew's quarters, almost cutting in half Joseph Lemaire, one of the youngest men aboard, he said.

"I hailed the submarine after they had fired the first shell and told him Andrade said, "and asked them to take my men off before the ship was sunk. The German commander replied that permission was refused. The thirteen of us crowded into the one lifeboat that was left after the shelling."

DE JURE GERMAN

to make war upon them and that Germany is not prepared to accept as able to a government other than Hitler's.

"2. It would serve as an effective basis for former Premier Daladier, David Lloyd George, whose peace group has been clamoring for carried out a policy of "peace with honor."

Germans 'Approved'

Germans now being in exile in England and France have been approved as a nucleus of the new German cabinet. According to the paper's information, a loan of 2-3,000,000 pounds has been offered the Archduke Otto, direct heir to the Hapsburg throne and a relative by marriage, whom he described as "a very remarkable young man."

Mr. Cooper said he had not read a complete official explanation of the Amazing Russian Coup de Force Flow by a German submarine, following the sinking of the battleship Royal Oak.

160 SUITS STOLEN

Toronto, Oct. 23.—(CP)— Clothing valued at $4,000, was stolen during the week end from the store of J. and J. Taylor, 325 Bloor St. West Ave. The loot included 160 suits.

Federal Action Against Communist Leader Forecast

LEAD ALL FEDERAL ACTION.

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—Earl Browder, secretary of the Communist party in the United States, was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury today on charges of false application for a passport.

Browder was taken into custody immediately after arraignment before Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey, who immediately increased a $10,000 bail. Not date was set for hearing.

The true bill was returned to Federa Judge Francis G. Caffey, who immediately recessed the Grand Jury for two hours.

The action against Browder, general secretary of the Communist party in America and former Communist candidate for the United States presidency, apparently was based on his admission before the Dieg committee investigating "Un-American activities" that he had travelled under a false passport.

The present Grand Jury investigation has widened an inquiry written in the year that pot three men in prison as an outgrowth of the notorious Robinson-Rubens passport fraud cases.

Records of World Tourists Inc., whose treasurer is Alexander Trachtenberg, reputed to be the Communist Party's governing committee, have been subpoenaed by investigators, it learned, and a guard put over the company's offices here.

New York newspapers said the Federal Grand Jury has issued subpoenas for the books of Communist groups in its investigation of "passport frauds" organized to facilitate the travel abroad of Communist Foreign spies with fraudulent and false passports.

The undercover inquiry was directed last night by an announcement by the Department of Justice in Washington that it expected "some definite results in a few hours" against Browder.

Woman Becomes Third Victim Of Car Accident

Truro, N.S., Oct. 23—(CP)—Mrs. Donald Wallace, 30, of Moncton, N.B., died in hospital today from injuries suffered in a level crossing motor accident which claimed the lives of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Williams.

Mr. Williams died yesterday and Mrs. Williams last night. Another critical injuries suffered when a motor car collided with a Canadian National Railways freight train.

WAR BRIEFS

Copenhagen, Denmark, Oct. 23.—The Berlin Tageblatt's diplomatic correspondent of the newspaper Politiken reported today that several shipments of light artillery of German manufacture have arrived at Finnish ports in the last few days.

Berlin, Oct. 22—(CP)—(Havas) The National Socialist Leader of Saxon, Marshal Hermann Goering's newspaper Angriff charged that Russia is systematically was cutting down the output of production and blames political moves behind the Allies for the reduction. Figures for the principal products of Russian campaigns were given in an effort to show that production in the first eight months totalled 3,663,370 tons this year as compared to 3,870,872 tons last year.

Halifax, Oct. 23—(CP)— The Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways Montreal-Halifax passenger train, held what is believed to be the largest single shipment under air raid precautions plans ever made in Canada. As the train approached the city limits, lights were extinguished and shades were drawn, leaving only a headlight, however, remained burning.

Levy Increased to Raise Atonement Fine

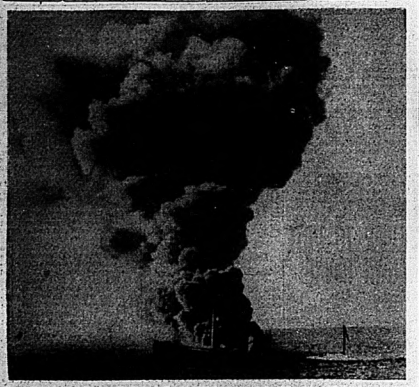
Berlin, Oct. 23 (AP)—The finance ministry today ordered a five per cent increase in the fine levied on Jews to raise the 1,000,000,000 mark "atonement contribution" imposed on German Jews for the slaying of Ernst Von Rath, secretary of the German embassy in Paris a year ago by Herschel Grynszpan, Polish Jew.

Originally a 20 per cent. capital Most, a levy on property of Jews in addition to all inherit taxes. To assure full collection of the new levy, the new levy, retroactive, was ordered.

SAILED LAKES FOR 57 YEARS

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 23.—Capt. Thomas Gordon, who sailed the Great Lakes for 57 years, died here today after a nine-month illness. He was born in Belleville River, Ont., and when twelve ran away from home and worked on a brother-in-law's tug.

He married his captain's decree when 22. He sailed the lakes for years. His last job, until he retired, was as captain of the passenger ship of the Wabash railway car boats plying between Windsor and Detroit.



Answering the distress call of the British freighter Heroespool, the U.S. liner President Harding sighted a pillar of smoke after rescuing 36 survivors of the Heroespool. Speeding to the scene of the smoke, the American liner found the torpedoed French tanker Emile Miguet in flames, but there was no sign of any survivors. Soon after this picture of the burning tanker was taken from the President Harding's deck, the ill-fated French craft plunged to the bottom—another U-boat victim.

ANOTHER SACRIFICE FOR WAR

A luxuriant head of hair, nicely groomed, is desirable in piping times of peace. But when tin hats, gas masks and such appurtenances of war have to be hastily crammed over the cranium, hair is apt to be a handicap. So the British Tommy sacrifices his crowning glory to the great god Mars. Here is a typical scene in a 'Tommies' barber shop" . . . somewhere in England, as the boys have their locks shorn before departing for France.

DANGEROUS JOB FOR NEUTRAL DUTCH

Old man sea himself is no respector of Dutch neutrality. He frequently violates that neutrality by washing stray mines on Dutch beaches. On such occasions the Dutch coast-guards are faced with the dangerous job of removing the mines and rendering them harmless. Here you see a coast-guard squad hauling a German mine to a safe distance before destroying it by gunfire. Those horns sticking out from the side of the deadly ball are the contacts. When struck by a ship, or by anything else, for that matter, these contacts break tubes of chromic acid into a glow cartridge, producing an electric current which sets off a fulminate of mercury detonator that explodes the charge of trogyl with which the mine is loaded.

READY FOR REICH'S ARMORED KNIGHTS

The much publicized armor of the German troops who recently attacked French positions in front of the Westwall is not proof against the bullets from this French machine-gun. Great quantities of these weapons are being held in readiness for the offensive that the Allied general staffs expect in the near future. This photo was made at an advanced French position on the western front.

Giving a Nation its "Household Words"

CANADIAN DAILY NEWSPAPERS have played a vital part in building demand for these nationally famous products

FEW indeed in our two and a quarter million Canadian homes fail to recognize as "household words" the names of branded goods manufactured in Canada and distributed by General Foods Limited.

Year after year, General Foods have placed a large volume of advertising in Canadian Daily Newspapers to widen the demand for their famous products, telling you that you can trust these foods and beverages for quality and food value—for convenience and reliability. Each year the growing demand has brought increased activity within a great national industry,—greater production in Canadian factories—employment to a greater number of workers.

And a most important influence on this progress has been the receptive attitude of the housewife towards the advertising in her daily newspaper.

One of a series of announcements featuring specific examples of the power of newspaper advertising to build business.

GERMAN CRUISER EMDEN CAPTURES U. S. SHIP; PRIZE CREW TAKES CRAFT TO RUSSIAN PORT

Oslo Story Says Deutschland Sank British Freighter

Admiralty Has No Confirmation of Story Showing That 10,000-Ton German 'Pocket Battleship' Sank British Vessel Stonegate

38 SURVIVORS

American 'City of Flint' After Rescuing Crew, is Seized by German Raider and Taken to Russian Port

Oslo, Norway, Oct. 24 (AP)—The 10,000-ton German "pocket battleship" Deutschland, was reported by authoritative sources today to have been the vessel which sank the British freighter Stonegate in the middle Atlantic.

Thirty-eight survivors of the Stonegate were picked up by the United States freighter City of Flint which later was captured by a German raider. It was the second German prize for the City of Flint which last month was boarded by survivors of the torpedoed liner Athenia off Malin Head, Ireland.

The British seamen were landed by the City of Flint's prize crew at Tromso, northern Norwegian port, and later proceeded to Bergen en route home after being visited by British officials.

Sank By Battleship Torpedo.

First accounts of the Stonegate's sinking attributed it to submarine. Persons who questioned her survivors, however, quoted them as saying it was the Deutschland which sank her with a torpedo.

(The three ships of the Deutschland class each carry eight 11-inch guns and can make 26 knots. Another of the three, the Admiral Scheer, was reported by Berlin radio to have been the raider that sank the British freighter Clement off the Brazilian coast Sept. 30. The third "pocket battleship" is the Admiral Graf Spee.)

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist.

Autumn fogs! At this time of the year we look for days that are clear; but in the morning for may be quite especially in the valleys. This occurs when the preceding day was rather warm and quiet and the night clear and still. Under these conditions a good deal of moisture has been evaporated into the air, and at night the earth and surface layer of air lose their heat by radiation to space, thus cooling the air next to the surface and resulting in the formation of fog. That is why these autumn fogs are called "radiation fogs", because the cooling is effected principally by radiation. Fogs formed in this manner are never found at sea.

Remember This Day?

By FREDERICK GARDNER
Associated Press Financial Writer

October 24, 1929, was that grim black Thursday at the end of the Wall Street rainbow when—

Countless thrifty Americans playing the Wall Street wheel for the first time saw visions of a racht and a modest 40-room villa dissolve in the thin air of collapsed paper values.

The sun set on post-war prosperity and the era of apple-selling and job-hunting began.

The front page was wreathed in black headlines as the golden glow faded from the stock lists.

Remember—

Most people said it was just a "healthy reaction." Prosperity had come to stay. Business and industrial activity was at record levels. Market experts chimed "ditto." Only those who were "sold out" in the first yells for "more margin" or more cash to prop a crumbling market—were skeptical.

Business and the market had been going up for five years. A lot of comfortable climbers had accumulated fat profits on paper gains and were headed for the third.

You gave the broker $1,000 margin—and promptly got back a ticket into $10,000, on paper. You borrowed on that paper, bought and pyramided the winnings. The banks said: "Sure!" when you came around for a loan. The sky seemed the limit, steep.

The Federal Reserve upped the cost of borrowing money. Business was getting groggy from the dizzy ride. A British promotion bubble burst, scattering ink in Wall St. A few wise men took the hint and began selling.

The historic slide started, slow at first, gathering headway in October.

When the gong rang on the stock exchange one morning in late October Thursday, the rout was on.

Boom the lickers were. By so far behind the market, it was almost useless-except as a record of what happened hours before.

That was the day, it seemed, the depression started.

Remember?

And About Time, Too!

Greensboro, N.C., Oct. 24 (AP) Readers of the Greensboro Daily Record could hardly believe their eyes when they turned to the society page. Instead of beautiful brides and bride-to-be, they found only pictures of grooms and bride-grooms-to-be.

DISORDERS OCCUR AT WILNO POLAND REPORTS STATE

Food Shortages Followed by Pillaging and Typhus Claims 12 Lives

Three Forced to Dig Own Graves' Before Execution After Beating Priest

Rome, Oct. 24—(CP)—(Havas)—Information reaching here by way of Riga, Latvia, Poland during had occurred at Wilno, (Vilna), the old Lithuanian capital ached, used to be returned to that country by Soviet Russia.

Dispatches said food shortages were followed by pillaging. An epidemic of typhus has claimed 12 lives, it was said.

Wilno was seized by Poland after the last war and was allotted by the Russia in the Soviet-German partition of Poland. The Mutual Assistance Pact recently concluded between Moscow and Russian Cabinet for the city's return to Lithuania.

Lithuanian troops have not yet occupied the city, however, and the delay gave rise to conflicting reports.

A Kaunas dispatch said a Lithuanian, military mission left for Wilno Wednesday to arrange the city's occupation. Lithuanian troops were reported to take over Wednesday, it was said.

Many acts of a number of persons had been killed in street fighting when military units took over the town, reports said.

Sabotage

Sabotage was said to have been committed against buildings and offices recently evacuated by Polish officials. Furniture was reported to have been thrown into the streets and burned.

Terrorism was reported against Polish citizens and priests. At Smirgova three men whose railway ality was not ascertained, were forced to dig their own graves before a priest after beating him. They were immediately arrested, it was said, and Germans who protested after first being forced to dig their own graves.

ANTI-CHRISTIAN CAMPAIGNS INCREASINGLY MENACING

Peiping, China, Oct. 24 (AP)—Travelers arriving here from the interior of China reported today that anti-Christian campaigns were becoming increasingly menacing both in sections dominated by the Japanese-sponsored regime and among Chinese Communists. Missionaries were said to be among those affected.

"The informants, who were American citizens, said the purges and the campaigns apparently was to drive out foreign influence."

2 WOMEN INJURED AT FALKLAND, ONT.

Woodstock, Ont., Oct. 24 (CP)—When their automobile failed to negotiate a curve on the highway west of Falkland, two women suffered injuries and were taken to hospital at Paris.

Mrs. N. Waite, Lake Benton, Man., suffered several broken ribs, a broken collarbone and severe shock. Mrs. Rita Bloomfield, Port Mich., escaped with bruises and shock. Mrs. Waite was thrown out on the curve, turned over and did a double roll before stopping in a farmer's field.

Germany is Determined to Conduct War Against Allies to the Bitter End

Danzig, Germany, Oct. 24 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's Foreign Minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, asserted tonight that Germany is determined to conduct the war against Great Britain and her Allies to the bitter finish.

Von Ribbentrop characterized the war with the western powers as "completely senseless." But held that Britain and especially Prime Minister Chamberlain's government had insisted upon it. He denied the charge that Germany had broken her word. He claimed that every attempt by the Fuhrer to come to an understanding with Britain, France and Poland had been frustrated by the British government.

Speech at Danzig

The immediate audience for his 45-minute broadcast address was formed of veteran fighters of the Nazi party in this ancient Baltic city, now incorporated in the Reich.

He claimed that "in the truest sense of the word the war has been forced upon Germany."

Von Ribbentrop declared that Germany and Danzig never more would be separated.

When Adolf Hitler in 1936 arranged a new orientation of east-European affairs, he left Ambassador Josef Pilsudski of Poland, the Fuhrer left no doubt that the basis of the Poles that sooner or later Danzig and the Corridor problems must be solved, Von Ribbentrop said.

Proposal a Year Ago.

"Precisely a year ago, on Oct. 24, on instructions of Hitler I resolved former Polish Ambassador to Germany Lipski at the Wilhelmstrasse," he said. "On this day I presented to him the suggestion of political union of Danzig and the Corridor with the Reich and the guarantee of Polish economics.

"The proposal also envisaged extra-territorial transportation connections to both separated Polish and German territories and provided recognition of frontiers for extension of the non-aggression pact of 1934 for a period of 25 years.

"These proposals were repeated by the Fuhrer personally in my presence and that of Ambassador Moltke and Lipski to former Polish Foreign Minister Joseph Beck at Berchtesgaden on Jan. 15, 1939.

Refused Discussion

"The Fuehrer observed at this time that he can see but himself would it be possible to renounce the Corridor in such a manner as the next day in Munich and on Jan. 26 in Warsaw this offer was discussed in detail between Beck and myself.

"On these occasions our proposals by no means were rejected by the Poles, but it was emphasized that in view of international difficulties it would have to be examined most carefully and the Poles would attempt to improve German-Polish relations.

Forced to Warn Poland

Von Ribbentrop said that "harassing of German Nationals, Polish Press attacks and anti-German demonstrations in front of the German embassy in Warsaw," forced him to warn the Polish ambassador on March 21, 1939. At the same time, he said, he repeated the German offer of settlement as well as inviting Poland to a conference for a "final settlement of all questions."

On March 26, he said, he was presented with a rejection of Hitler's proposals.

"It hardly appears believable that yet in fact" he said. He claimed that the Polish ambassador "told me any further pursuit of Polish proposals means the political return of Danzig to the Reich, contrary to Polish Poland."

The invitation to Beck to go to Berlin was rejected, Von Ribbentrop said.

JUDGE REBUKES DEFENCE COUNSEL

Sister of Slain Man Breaks Down When Mr. Regan Shouts at Witness

Toronto, Oct. 24 (CP)—Frank Regan, defence counsel at the recital of Harry Lipski at the inquest, charged with the murder of James Ross Hamilton, was rebuked today by Mr. Justice J. C. Makins for method of examining witnesses.

The rebuke came after Mrs. John Abramovitch, sister of the slain man, broke down during the cross-examination. "Please don't shout at me, Mr. Regan."

Earlier, she had said to Regan: "You are trying to get me to answer you to your satisfaction. I can't tell it that way."

The judge told the defence lawyer to discontinue "making comments and ask questions." Coroner Dr. Lovdahl described one comment as "a very objectionable remark".

BROWDER RELEASED

New York, Oct. 24—(AP)—Socially prominent Mrs. Hester Q. Huntington, who came to the aid of Earl Browder "as a matter of principle," posted $7,500 security today, freeing the United States communist leader from the Federal House of Detention.

Mrs. Huntington, who earlier produced a $5,000 government bond as security, turned up at the federal building with an additional $2,500 in cash.

Brower spent the night in a cell.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

The trend of recent war news indicates that Germany and France are quite ready to wait until next spring at least before attempting a decisive blow in the second Great War. As all authorities seem agreed time is on the Allied side the apparent slowness of the German High Command to strike a heavy blow is somewhat puzzling.

It cannot be for lack of a plan because the Germans have plans for everything. It may well be due to doubt as to relative efficiency of different plans, such as a direct attack on the Maginot Line, a blow at France and Britain through neutral territory or intensive air warfare upon Britain combined with submarine onslaughts of the British navy and merchant shipping.

The fact that Great Britain appears to be an easy target for continental air bombers. The distance is not great most likely.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The United States Senate working under an agreement curtailing debate, amended the Roosevelt administration's neutrality bill today to exempt ordinary commerce with Canada from the "cash and carry" restrictions of the measure.

The amendment offered by Senator Brown (Dem-Michigan) was approved without a dissenting vote after Democratic leader Barkley won unanimous consent to a proposal aimed at getting a final vote on neutrality legislation this week.

Brown's amendment was approved after Vice President Garner, who had been recalled by proceedings, apologized to the Senate for having gaveled through an amendment by Senator Pittman (Dem-Nevada).

Offered as a substitute, Brown's proposal was discussed. Pittman's.

As explained by Brown, the amendment would permit ships registered by inland waterways, rail or airplanes of any supplies, except arms, to Canada without the present need for first being required to obtain one by the United States shipping permits going by sea, however, could not be carried in United States vessels, and would require title transfer. Purchasers of arms in any case would be required to obtain title before shipping.

Brown said the effect of the amendment would be to permit the continuance of normal commercial relations with Canada and Mexico, affecting both countries alike.

U. S. State Department Looking into All Angles Of Vessel's Seizure

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—The White House took the view today that the United States ship City of Flint, was "on a perfectly legal and lawful voyage under existing laws" when she was seized by Germany and taken to a neutral port.

Commenting on the legality of the ship's voyage, Stephen Early, Presidential press secretary, said that he was speaking only of United States laws and that Germany or any other country had no right to seize the ship.

Asked whether it had been determined whether Germany, under international law, could take the vessel into custody and sail her into a neutral harbor, Early said the State Department was "looking into all those phases right now".

Strengthens Arguments.

The White House, like many legislators, apparently viewed the incident as strengthening the argument for amending the neutrality law now being debated in the senate.

The situation as regards the City of Flint, Early said, divides itself into these three parts of the White House view:

1. She was on a perfectly legal and lawful voyage under existing laws.

2. Under the neutrality act requested of Congress, she could not have sailed on that voyage to a belligerent port.

3. The State Department has sent cablegrams asking its representatives at various points abroad to develop the facts and report. The reports now are being awaited.

Before the government-owned freighter — the rescue ship which carried more than 300 survivors of the torpedoed liner Athenia to Halifax, N.S. last month—set about a rapid State Department inquiry into her capture under contraband rules and her detention at the neutral port of Murmansk, North Russia.

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP) — The United States Government was expected today to demand that Russia release the freighter City of Flint which was taken into the Soviet harbor of Murmansk by a German prize crew.

It was reported in official quarters the government would base this demand on international law, in the absence of extraordinary circumstances, had no right to send the 4,963-ton vessel into a neutral port, regardless of any contraband she might have carried.

ONT. TO EMPLOY PRISON LABOR ON ROAD WORK

Men Will Work on Uncompleted 112-Mile Stretch in Northern Ontario

ESTABLISH CAMPS

Toronto, Oct. 24 (CP)—The Ontario government has worked out a scheme of road construction by prisoners, designed to relieve the congestion in Provincial Reformatories.

Premier Hepburn announced the plan last night after a final meeting of the Provincial Cabinet Harry Nixon. Under the government's supervision, three camps will be established on Highway 11, designed to house 100 men each.

Prisoners recommended by reformatories' superintendents will be confined to camps where they will work on the uncompleted 112-mile stretch of the highway from the halfway between Geraldton and Hearst.

Decision to employ prison labor on the highway was made when the Federal government refused the Provincial government's request for the island takes in paying guests.

PELEE ISLAND READY FOR SHOOT

Marksmen from Canada and U.S. Invade This Hunter's Paradise

Pelee Island, Ont., Oct. 24 (CP)—Canada's greatest bird hunt gets under way here Friday with marksmen from Canada and the United States invading this hunter's paradise for the annual pigeon shoot. The shoot annually attracts the best shots and the big shots from the two countries.

Residents say birds are more plentiful than ever before for the birds is fair, ensuring exciting sport. More than 100 experts from neighboring officials gleefully anticipate rich revenue from special licenses imposed by the Province of Ontario for the shoot.

Pelee Island, out in Lake Erie, is seven miles from its nearest mainland port, Kingsville, and 20 miles parallel with the northern boundary of California, scene of one of the greatest bass fishing waters of the world. Here its fame extends beyond housing the greatest colony of pheasants in North America.

The 800 residents reap rich rewards through the shoot. First, the hotels, restaurants and general stores fill up at the tax rate. Then nearly every house on the island takes in

Hitler Advised to 'Read History' To Learn Britons Not Weaklings

London, Oct. 24 (CP)—The Daily Express today advised Adolf Hitler to "read history" and learn that Britons are "toughened by blows."

The Express was commenting on Hitler's week-end conferences with his chief lieutenants (Gaulieiter) and said that Britain would be able to withstand the attacks that many have been hatched in Berlin.

"What did the big boss say to the little bosses?" the Express asked. "What did Hitler tell the Gauleiters? Probably that the big boss is the little bosses said to the big boss. They said, 'yes'.

"Hitler told his trustees that this is decisive week. Down with Britain! Britain's power before the sea and land 'blitzkrieg'.

"Maybe we are in for a hard test of our fortitude as a nation. Maybe we are going to see a mighty German effort to smash us before our blockade strangles Germany.

"Well, how about our chances? We won't crack. Because this people is made of metal that is toughened by blows, not broken by them.

Balance Sheet In Favor of Britain.

"Read history, Hitler. We have good stuff to put into the air and on the seas. Fine fighters and skilful pilots. Anybody who needs encouragement can look at the balance sheet of the North Sea skirmishes.

"Besides, it is plain that Hitler's blow, if he launches it, will be the gamble of a man with the odds against him. He can't be happy about the game that Stalin is playing. He has taken defeat from the resolute attitude of the Turks. And it can be is in the grip of a British blockade such as we did not impose on the Germans last time until the war had run more than two years.

"The Nazis' blockade comes on top of his own blockade, of his economic policy abroad and of the Germans long before the war broke out. They tore iron railings from German dwellings. They issued ration cards. They could amass no huge reserve of gold to buy materials abroad.

"And all that before a shot was fired. A poor way to start a war? Yes, but also a good reason, an overwhelming reason to make that war a quick one if you can. Hitler can't. We will see to that."

HEAVY SNOWFALL SEEN IN ALBERTA

Northern and Central Areas Covered to Depth of Seven Inches

Edmonton, Oct. 24. — (CP)— Winter stretched threatening fingers into Alberta today as heavy, wet snow fell on most of the northern and central areas. The forecast was for more and heavier snow.

Approximately nine inches of snow fell in Edmonton yesterday, slowing traffic and tying up street cars and buses in many instances.

Many cars and trucks were reported stalled on highways in the central part of the province where the snowfall was whipped by 40-mile-an-hour wind. The temperature at Calgary dropped from 30 to 10 degrees.

Only 78 per cent of threshing is completed in Northern Alberta and the snow was expected to cause further delay. Edmonton's six new trackless trolley buses were stranded for half an hour at the city limits, Mossdale Hill where heavy ice and snow made travel impossible. Traffic was resumed after cinders were spread on the grade.

YOUTHFUL COUNTY ORATORS TO COMPETE HERE ON NOV. 1ST.

Youthful orators of the public schools of Hastings County will vie for championship honors at Shire Hall on Wednesday, Nov. 1st next.

Held under the auspices of the Agricultural Committee of the Hastings County Council, the public-speaking contest will be addressed by His Honor, Warden George H. Thompson, and other outstanding men of the county. The winner will be sent to Stratford, where it is understood the district public-speaking championship will be held in the near future.

Presentation of prizes to school fair and other winners will be made during the afternoon, while medallists of the county will also be honored.

Speckled with tiny blobs of yellow, Victoria Park yesterday presented an appearance that was more reminiscent of the balmy days of spring than of mid-autumn. Dandelions growing in profusion shot their bright-colored heads above the green of the grass, while the regular "blows" of predecessors denoted that presence of the yellow flowers had been apparent for some time past.

Last night's heavy frost, however, will in all likelihood put a finish quietus on the flowers' brave efforts to bring back the atmosphere of Spring.

POLICE SEARCHING FOR TWO ESCAPEES

Belleville police today were asked to assist in the possible recovery of two inmates of the Bowmanville Boys' Training School, who escaped from that institution last evening. The boys' names were given as Thomas Sullivan, age 15 years, height 5 foot 8 inches, weight about 125 pounds and James A. Whaley, age 15 years, 105 pounds, height 5 foot 1 inch. Both boys were wearing khaki overalls, issued by the institution, while working on the school farm when they are said to have run away.

Surviving her are one daughter, Mrs. George W. Bush, Sidney township, with whom she made her home; one sister, Mrs. John G. Knox, Saskatchewan; four brothers, Mr. John F. Harry, Mr. James Harry, Mr. Walter R. Harry, all of Sidney township, and Mr. R. K. Harry of Ottawa.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

MRS. EUSTATIA E. SANBORN,
Stockdale, Ont.

Mrs. Eustatia E. Sanborn, widow of the late George M. Sanborn, passed away in the Toronto East General Hospital on October 19, after a short illness.

The funeral service was held in the Stockdale United Church on October 21st and interment took place in Stockdale cemetery.

Mrs. Sanborn was the daughter of the late John and Christina Steenberg and one of ten children all of whom survive her.

She is survived by two sons, Lorne of Stockdale and George in Toronto, N.Y., and two daughters, Mrs. W. H. Drew of Kingston and Mrs. Ross Smith of Toronto also four grand-children and two great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Sanborn enjoyed fairly good health until twelve days prior to her death, when she took a chill, fracturing her right hip.

She had lived her seventy-ninth year and was born in Stockdale where she resided most of her life and was a life-long member of the United Church.

The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. J. F. Lane of Frankford.

Quaternion Y. P. U. And the Movies

About sixty young people of the Quaternion Y.P.U. met last night in the Front Road Church to study the subject of the Movies. Mrs. Mabel Burns in the absence of the president, had charge with Miss M. Brown as secretary. The devotional period was conducted by Miss Clelland opened with prayer. Miss Spencer sang a solo, accompanied by Miss Morton led in prayer and Miss Eva Smith read the devotional paper. After business the following papers were given: The Moulding of the Movies by Miss Helen Rivers; The Attractive Features of a good Movie by Miss Flossie Terry; Censorship by Miss Dorothy Ann Keay; Our Fair as Christians in the Movies by Miss Ruth Bateman.

A lively discussion followed, some thought that the emotional effect on the picture-goer was a permanent effect on character as it was only a show. This was answered by an array of unreliable statistics showing the enormous results in character of both good and evil. Some thought Movies encouraged reading as one was always anxious to read the book before the picture came. Others thought it hindered reading as it took up time and was more interesting to go to the picture. A recent picture in town depicting the life of Christ was criticized for presenting church members in an unfavorable light, also

Letter Written by H. S. Swindley Featured in London (Eng.) Chronicle

REFUTES GOEBBELS

London, Oct. 24.—(CP)—A letter from H. S. Swindley, of Isabella Street, Toronto, in which the writer declared he saw the submarine that sank the Athenia, was featured prominently today in The News-Chronicle as a reply to Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels' charge that Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, had the Athenia sunk in order to torpedo by three British destroyers.

"I looked over the water on the port side," wrote Swindley, 60-year-old survivor of the sinking, "and saw the deck and conning tower of the submarine, about 200 yards, on the port beam.

The Toronto man's account was sent to his son-in-law, Lieut.-Com. Trevor Hones, who forwarded it to the newspaper. After mentioning that he was one of 200 cars saved as the passengers were sitting on them and shovelling them all along the line. The holding capacity was forty in a boat and I was told on board the rescue vessel Southern Cross, that our lifeboat held one hundred.

"Shortly after getting away from the ship I began to feel sea sick and was taking water badly. I could find no plug and so baling began. I took off my boots and began bailing. A lamp was lighted and held aloft by a woman passenger. We were three or four hours using boots for bailing before we received a bailing pan."

NEW GREAT COAT

Ottawa, Oct. 24.—(CP)— A new great coat is prescribed for officers in Canadian Active Service forces by regulations issued today at defence headquarters. Trench coats are no longer authorized and the short "British warm" coats may not be worn on parade except by General Officers, Brigadiers and Officers of the Foot Guards.

For all other officers the new great coat follows the lines of the former great coat except that it has a plain storm shoulder double cuff and a plain cape collar instead of the present stand and fall collar. This permits the coat to be worn open at the neck or buttoned over to cover the throat when the collar of the back is omitted.

Officers of the present style great coat may continue to wear it. The same cloth winter cape authorized for other ranks will be worn by officers with badges.

While trench coats are not authorized a water proof coat of mackintosh pattern may be purchased with a detachable fleece lining may be worn but watches of rank are not worn on waterproof coats.

36 DYNAMITE STICKS AND BATTERY FOUND IN COAL CHUTE

Toronto, Oct. 24—(CP)—A special police search today revealed dynamite in coal chute of a north Toronto garage. Preliminary investigation led police to believe the dynamite had been hidden in the chute for safekeeping.

Unknown Man Found Injured in Automobile

Whitby, Ont. Oct. 24.—(CP)— An unidentified man was found lying sprawled behind the wheel of a stolen automobile early today, in a ditch on number 12 highway south of Myrtle. The car had skimmed a tree. The driver was unconscious when discovered by Samuel Thorndycke, a Whitby taximan. A slip of paper found in the brim of his hat bore the scrawled inscription, "the Decarconto kid." His injuries are believed critical.

U. S. HUNTERS LOST IN WOODS

Iowans Last Seen a Week Ago Leaving a Hunting Camp

Ottawa, Oct. 24—(CP)— Dominion Government officials today expressed interest—but not too serious interest—in a suggestion in Washington that the United States raise its legation at Ottawa to an Ambassador and an Ambassador dispatch to Ottawa.

Official comment on the suggestion as put forward in the Washington Press, said it would be virtually incumbent upon Canada to reciprocate should the United States send an Ambassador to Canada instead of a Minister.

It would mean elevating the Canadian Legation in Washington to the status of Embassy and promoting the Minister, Loring Christie, to Ambassadorial rank. At present there are nearly two dozen ambassadors to Canada from any foreign country.

A Minister is the highest ranking diplomat in Ottawa from any foreign country and Canada has never appointed an Ambassador to a foreign capital.

There has been no permanent United States Minister in Canada since Norman Armour was transferred to Chile several years ago, although David C. Roper was temporary Minister for three months during the Royal visit last summer.

Basketball to Be Popular Sport At the Y.M.C.A.

The trend towards indoor sports for the winter months is already in the fore at the Belleville Y.M.C.A. as autumn advances to its peak of beauty and the leaves begin to drift out in goodly numbers of late.

Basketball and badminton games are being planned by th' "Y" this season, according to information given out by General Secretary J. Z. Shortt this morning. A senior league basketball team and two junior players is being organized at the "Y" and a juvenile team and also a girls' league, from which the Belleville L.O.B.E. squad will subsequently be selected.

Last season the Belleville "Y" basketball team's unbroken record of cage squads advanced to the provincial basketball semi-finals, following a successful season in their respective district leagues.

Meetings of the various local basketball groups were to be held in the Y.M.C.A. all girls interested in playing city league to convene tonight at 7:30 p.m., and tomorrow the senior and older boys will convene to organize the annual "house league."

No Confirmation of Deutschland.

London, Oct. 24 (AP)—An admiralty spokesman said today there was "no present confirmation" of a report that the German "pocket battleship" Deutschland had slipped through the British blockade and sunk the British steamship Stonegate.

Naval circles said, however, that the combined navies of the world would be insufficient to put a complete blockade on the Baltic. These circles asserted that on a dark or stormy night ships could pass within 100 yards of each other without being detected.

LOOK FOR GANG OF YOUNG HOODLUMS

London, Oct. 24 (CP) — Detectives today were looking for a gang of young hoodlums who wrecked the interior of St. Mary's Kindergarten School. It was the fifth case of vandalism in this area in recent years.

The raid took place last night. Desks were rifled and overturned, a clock, photograph, records and other equipment were smashed, pictures were torn from the walls; books and records were defaced. Finally, the wrecked kindergarten was sprayed with a fire extinguisher.

FINNS BEARING NEW PROPOSALS FROM KREMLIN

PROPOSALS SECRET

Helsingfors, Oct. 24 (CP)—A Finnish government spokesman said today that the Finnish delegation negotiating with Russia will leave Moscow tonight to return to Helsingfors, bringing new written proposals from the Kremlin.

The spokesman said return of the delegation headed by Dr. John Paasikivi, which arrived in Moscow only yesterday, was "nothing alarming".

It would mean elevating the Canadian Legation in Washington to the status of Embassy and promoting the Minister, Loring Christie, to Ambassadorial rank. At present there are nearly two dozen ambassadors to Canada from any foreign country.

GOEBBELS REFUTED

Dr. Goebbels, propaganda minister in the Nazi Government, is again at work trying to shift from German Nazis' shoulders the atrocity which rests there for the sinking of the Athenia with a loss of life. His statement over the radio that Winston Churchill ordered the sinking of the ship with the object of getting the United States into the war is so preposterous and grotesque as only to be considered this statement of one who does not believe a word he is saying.

Goebbels gave a good description of the sinking as "the most primitive and criminal plot in modern times," but he was wrong in placing the blame where the plot originated. Goebbels as Minister of Propaganda, ought to know something of plots and must surely know it was the first flaunt of the Nazis' anger, when they realized Britain had entered the war against Hitlerism, because Polish neutrality had been violated, that caused the Nazis to sink the vessel.

In imputing to a British Minister of the Crown such a plot, the German has himself committed the crime of trying to place on innocent shoulders not only duplicity but a very great crime. British records are clear but the Nazi record has been a spotted in the past few years that no one has any doubt where the plan to sink the ship originated—in the mind of the Nazis.

Nobody but Germans, who are told little, would believe it. Churchill's name and British reputation are pure and unstained.

The British reply to Goebbels' attempt to blacken the name of Britain is made in quiet words. "The Nazi record has been refuted by Britain that German subjects were prevented from sailing on this ship "so that there might be no unpleasant witnesses," as Goebbels said. There were certain German citizens aboard, 6 Austrians, 23 Czechs and five Danigers. Four Germans were among the official list of victims, an official British . statement declares.

The sighting of a submarine by passengers of the Athenia and their report that the submarine fired a shell after cruising around the torpedoed craft are proven by the testimony of 12 Americans who saw the boat and should be proof enough. No British submarines were in the area of the torpedoing.

The reason is very clear. Goebbels and his master and the other leaders of the Nazis realize that there is a world sense of revulsion. They recognize that the neutral nations are watching the course of the war, weighing such incidents as the sinking of the Athenia.

The point remains clear, the German U-boat which sank the Athenia, is recognized as having committed an act likely to redound against the German reputation abroad. Goebbels knows that.

'ALL QUIET'

"All Quiet on the Western Front," is a familiar phrase these days. Every now and then there appears a story that there is expected a big German push, then there is another prediction that the armies will settle down for the winter largely in the positions the British and French occupy in front of the Maginot Line and the Germans along the Siegfried Line or Westwall or Limes as it is called after the boundary of Germany in the days of the ancient Roman Empire.

Whatever there is of news or lack of news on the western front—a name which will live among the Allies even though there is hardly an eastern front just now except in the mind and for the future, it is said there is uneasiness in Nazi circles about the situation. What the raids on naval bases in Britain and lack of raids on France by the Germans mean, the future will have to reveal. Are they feelers on the strength of British effort or are they just showing what the Nazis might do should Hitler order the release of his armed attack on Britain? Is there truth in the story the other day that German Navy may wish to pay the French away from Britain by offering a separate peace? The Nazis deny it, saying that the conflict must go on to a finish. Such an offer would be ridiculous as the French have long staunch theoughout the alliance and will not weaken now.

In very reality to the Germans there is an eastern front—the Polish front with Russia and there is the southeastern problem which according to all predictions which seem fairly accurate Hitler had set his mind upon without fighting the British and French, but their entry with Poland upset his calculations.

Is Hitler hesitating? Has he a blitzkrieg (lightning war) plan for the western front or has he dropped it?

Can he feel his ability to handle the blockade and the war on the west along with his plans in the east as commentators see them and with a greatly interested Russia looking on?

If Hitler had a free hand there is belief he would let loose the full force of German attack, but there are said to be signs that he does not feel free under the present situation.

There is a feeling among some of the commentators that the plans of Stalin may be changing. One view is that he may rest on the advantages already secured and so Hitler would be left with the war in the west on his hands. One result might be the sense of disappointment in Hitler's country in that the Polish campaign did not end this autumn's effort and progress and as interest shifts from the east to the west where Germans know from experience something of the prowess and strength of their foes.

A NOBLE FAMILY

A great name is passing out of the ranks of the Salvation Army leadership as General Evangeline Booth retires on account of age. In a few days she will relinquish the command of the most unique religious force of its kind in history. She succeeded General Higgins in 1934.

Daughter of one of the greatest religious leaders of all time, she has followed in his footsteps though after the passage of years.

By the ranks of the "Army" and the people of many lands this family's name will live forever. Great figures have come and gone, but the impress which was adopted and superseded, but the Salvation Army is a living force, which grows on the love it cultivates and generates in human hearts. It has proven its mission, it has made the religious facts of life clear to every one.

The farewell words on Sunday as the woman "general" said goodbye to her officers in London show the true inspiration of the Army. She referred to "this fire of blood and fire" and said, "God made me a fighter; I am a fighter of the word of God."

The zeal of the Booths for the saving of souls has been shown in the father, William Booth, in the son, Bramwell, who succeeded him, and latterly in the daughter, Evangeline, one of the most picturesque figures of womanhood in the whole history of religion and religious organizations. There has been a flaming fire of love and devotion to humanity which has led the Army on from leader to leader and from country to country until many lands of the earth know the messages of the Salvation Army's flag of fire and blood, apt symbols of the zeal and love for mankind which the Army exemplifies.

In these days the Army's work in the last war is still recalled. Nations paid honor to this organization which did so much for the personal welfare of the men at the front during the momentous days of the years 1914-18. Evangeline Booth was in charge of the war work.

A new leader takes on his duties, General Carpenter, with a wide experience. While the leadership changes the spirit of the "Army" moves forward to the conquest of new lives for service.

Mrs. Booth-Clibborn who also retires she will not lose her interest in the great organization and the individual work which have been the objects of her life. The millions of friends who know her personally and through her services to mankind wish her many years in which she can still help to carry the blood-red and gold flag of the Salvation Army.

To few families is it given to serve mankind as to the Booths.

Hitler took the gambler's chance when Russia loomed up as an ally. Hitler had been virtually standing against the world, at a time when he wanted another "blood-less victory" as he called it. He took the chance of loss. He has alienated any possible friends and he drew Britain and France to war upon him.

Readers of ancient Roman history of the time of the emperors, have almost shuddered across the space of many centuries to read of the epics which the Emperors of old maintained in households of wedding feasts. Often after nineteen hundred years people read of the German Gestapo or secret police, who are said to be so numerous that every few families are under the penetrating gaze of one of these secret officials. So much for Hitler's Nazi liberty.

The steamer Quinte owned by the Deseronto Navigation Company, was destroyed by fire on last evening near Deseronto. The steamer with Capt. Christie in command which plied between Trenton and Picton had made the trip to the bay and left Deseronto about 5.30 p.m. for Picton. There were twenty four persons on board, all of whom were passengers. The steamer had not proceeded over a mile and was nearing Grassy Point when fire was discovered in the hold. The engineer Thomas Kingsley set the pumps at work at once, but the flame had gained so great a headway that it was impossible to subdue them. The Captain at once orders to Mate Collier to beach the boat. Meanwhile the flames had burst out in all directions. An attempt was made to reach the shore, but it was found it could be reached owing to the flames. Mr. Collier accordingly steered for into the water and a number of them swam ashore, others were picked up by a small boat which had been lowered from a stage that was anchored near. The flames were seen in Deseronto and folks of all descriptions were soon on the way to the rescue and there was much sympathy felt as escape were taken to Deseronto for medical care. Five passengers are unaccounted for; they were either burned or drowned.

Gains in Cancer Control

Pittsburgh. — The prospects for the control or cancer in the United States are "very promising," Dr. Harlow Brinton, director of the government's Cancer Advisory Council, told the American Public Health Association.

The council, established by Congress in 1937, is assisting in the training of cancer experts, distribution of radium, in the development of research on the problem of cancer and in the education of the public, he said, and all four approaches to the cancer problem are yielding tangible results.

"Success in the treatment of cancer grows with the increase in the skill, experience and equipment devoted to clinical cancer service to patients and especially the earlier action on the part of the patient in seeking cancer treatment," Dr. Brinton declared.

The art of the cancer council is to try to provide treatment for cancer patient "no matter what his means or the stage of his disease may be," he added.

With the $750,000 appropriated by Congress the council has already bought and is lending $300,000 worth of radium, distributing it to hospitals and universities for cancer treatment and research and is now about to set up the new cancer institute under the Public Health Service, Dr. Rekteen reported.

He asserted that the institute was bringing together for the first time in one building thirty or forty competent scientists who are experts in physics, biochemistry, chemistry, biology, pharmacology, pathology and bacteriology to make a concentrated attack on the cancer problem and to correlate their findings on the problem of what causes cancer, what is cancer and how cancer can be cured.

In fact, the principal research projects now being carried out under the council's auspices are that of Professor E. O. Lawrence of the University of California, in which a cyclotron or atom smasher is used to produce radium by bombardment; that of Dr. Robert D. Evans of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, on the effect on cancer, and that of Dr. Louis Gray of the Hammersmith Hospital, London, on the effect of radium on living cells.

Another Public Health Service officer, Dr. R. U. Williams, described the group health and program of the Farm Security Administration, which he said specializes "has proven a boon" to more than 100,000 farm families in rehabilitating them.

Because of its persons who need medical aid may go on relief without it are now being cared for at minimum cost by the county Federal Government Dr. Williams added.

The electrical contact machine then automatically counts the colonies to sum up the number and at the same time destroys the bacteria.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Three Causes of Stomach and Intestinal Ulcer

In my student days, we used to make up tables of the symptoms of the various diseases of an organism that they do not understand. This characteristic is apparent even in these times. I would like a company where some are able to speak another language, suppose they start talking in it. If you have an inferiority complex, or are of a suspicious nature, you are apt to think that perhaps they are talking about you. The more you think of it the more you become convinced. Why would they talk in a language you cannot understand, if they are not discussing something not for your ears. As a matter of fact, they are concerned might only be engaged in idle gossip with no reference to you at all.

In wartime, all people are on the lookout for spies. The Frenchman hears some foreigner talking in a language not understood by the native of France. He is apt to think that this man, or this woman is a spy, and it would be very similar in Germany. No doubt some of the foreigners might be spies, but the vast majority would only be people unable to speak French, German, as the case might be.

Confusion of Tongues

Resident in Europe are under a certain inconvenience these days, one of which is the fact that most speak in the native tongue of whatever country in which they may be. In France, all speak in French; in Germany, all talk German.

Such regulations are to be expected in wartime. They are the result of a very human weakness. People are always prone to suspect that which they do not understand.

This characteristic is apparent even in peace time. I have known a company where some are able to speak another language, suppose they start talking in it. If you have an inferiority complex, or are of a suspicious nature, you are apt to think that perhaps they are talking

An Unbelievable Mistake

F. O. Lindley in The National Review (London): I was surprised at Hitler making the (Russian) agreement. It removes the main plank of his proclaimed policy and alienates, to our advantage, his friends and useful friends. Moreover, it is a striking departure from the programme outlined in such detail in Mein Kampf—a program which I respect as being fairly faithfully carried out. It is just conceivable that it is forced by the present because Poland to surrender without war, which have been "dished." In any event, it was a sign of the desperate plight of germany. Germany or Germany may get useful supplies from Russia, but she has given everything to keep the war going as long as possible. It is only disadvantage rests with the Allies. In that war, the moral side has vast importance; and we now have all those representing liberty, decency, mercy and religion ranged, either actively or passively, on our side against the Powers of Darkness. For all these things which to us are habitual in the Nazi regime have been borrowed direct from Moscow; torture, concentration camps, forced labour, secret police, the spy-hound systems, the suppression of all free speech and the persecution of religion. Let us have none of it rect from Russia. The only difference is that whereas in fact the fact that in the Soviet Union they have been accompanied by the wholesale massacre and bestialities far surpassing anything that has occurred in Nazi Germany, as yet, but was the first round. We shall win the second round, the war and the final round against revolution.

British Diplomatic Victory

Just when some were saying that all the diplomatic victories were by Herr Hitler, Stalin, along with comes Britain with a diplomatic triumph that is reminiscent throughout Europe. Thus Turkey, now joined to Britain and France by a 15-year treaty of mutual assistance, there is no stouter ally against Hitler.

Politically and strategically, this treaty is tremendous. Apart from steadying the nerves of the whole Balkan bloc of nations, it has definite military value. Control of the Dardanelles is given to France and Britain. Thus is constricted once more in the event of war spreading to the Mediterranean. This not only means that the Allies are placed in a position to fulfil their military obligations to Greece and Rumania, it means much more than that. The Dardanelles is the gateway to the Black Sea, provides the only sea route for all the exports of Russian and Rumanian oil to Germany from the ports of Batum and Constanza.

Most of the industrial raw materials Germany needs are provided in southern Russia and in the Ural districts, which make large scale exports through the Baltic—Ottawa Journal.

LABOR DISPUTE QUICKLY SETTLED

Cornwall, Ont., Oct. 24.—(CP)—The huge rayon mill of Courtaulds (Canada), Ltd., which employs the production today following settlement of a labor dispute which left one thousand workers idle since Saturday.

The men voted unanimously last night to return to their jobs after day-long discussions between representatives of the company and the Rayon Workers' Union, and accepted terms offered by Frank business manager for the union declined to make public the terms under which the men returned to work but said the men had been given a "substantial" wage increase and had been dealt with to the satisfaction of the employees. He stated workers will receive wage increase but that the amount not disclosed. While the dispute continued at the mill, the plant was not closed down as a protected scale as all workers were not affected. Supervisory staff and office employees from entering the mill but were allowed to enter the plant all to return to their jobs.

The dispute came to a head last Saturday when the men left their jobs. The dispute was termed illegal by the Labor Department while the union maintained it was a "lock out."

Roast Beef and Pie

A prominent botelman of the United States, Glenwood J. Sherrard, president and manager of Sherrard, president and manager of Sherrard, president and manager of the Parker House, Hotel Bellevue and Hotel Somerset in Boston and the Hotel Touraine at Montreal the other day as saying that despite the wonderful modernistic methods of cooking and the changes in appetites, roast beef and apple pie hotels is still strong for roast beef and apple pie, articles of food that appear to have retained their popularity for a century or more.

Mr. Sherrard was in Montreal to attend the annual convention of the Hotelmen's Association of United States and Canada. Evidently the reporter who interviewed him got a hint to get a first-hand opinion as to how the fancy meals of the present day standing up to the public estimation against the more prosaic diets of the days of long ago. According to Mr. Sherrard, there is no doubt that roast beef and apple pie and ice cream. A big percentage of the people eat with appetites and enjoy eating, resort to these articles of food regularly, and there is just as much popularity as ever in the new-fangled materials such as vitamins, calories, sweet soup, dates, figs and innumerable vegetables and fruits which the older generation of a few years ago knew little or nothing about.

Mr. Sherrard went on to say that he is a substantial eater himself and of food outlined herein. Women, however, have become notably discriminating in their choice of food and are sweeters did. They are mostly disturbed about taking on weight and are very particular about what is on the dining table.

Despite the fact modern eating is safer from the standpoint of health than was the system when men and women lived on fat meats, overeating, science has given a good deal of attention to the matter of eating. It has insisted on a more effective sanitation in preparing and serving food and has been effective in its campaign against unnecessary consumption of the material. The majority of dependable authorities on the subject assert that people ought to be sure to get variety in their diet including fruit, milk, fish, eggs, potatoes, green vegetables and fruit peelings and the cereal elements in healthful diet. There is more emphasis with regard to dyspepsia upon fresh fruit, vegetables and fruits but it is also pointed out that the protein substances in fish, eggs and fish are necessary also in limited quantities.

It doesn't seem to be much doubt that the average man or woman would be better off in selecting a reasonably healthful diet because of the advice of the various authorities who have studied the subject of food and its effects on the human body.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

The Genie of the Books

More spontaneous recognition can hardly be found of the freedom from pedantic control which is the glory that we cherish in the ideal librarian than was revealed in the remark of a small boy speaking of the character of his experience with schools and libraries. "A librarian is a person who never knows anything," he said, "except where to find things." That is one of the chief charms of a librarian. Long years after the first week in school, when the initiation into the kingdom of the printed word is accomplished, the librarian feels of her enthusiasm for books. Not so much as a literary enthusiasm, but even as a repository of encyclopaedic data. Librarians are the repeal them.

Librarians are the repeal them, as touchstones that may open up worlds of thought feeling and knowledge.

Now the adult education movement is pressing for the setting up of libraries and setting up new standards for the librarian's task. To take her place in "adult service for education," the library school must include in its educational theory, know something about the psychology of adults, about the methods of research, about "the community" as an incidental study, and about "reading skill-tests, interests, deficiencies, grading, testing."

Rather appalling and somewhat oppressive that sounds a formidable sound. Will our ideal librarian, under the stress of so much analysis and classification, be able to keep her vision and the magic of her wand? The sharing of this vision with those who need her services is the real task of the librarian. Here the librarian can make in the cause of adult education.

Strong and Weak Points of Local Rotary Club Discussed by Dist. Gov.

J. O. Herity States Crippled Children's Work One of Enduring Satisfaction

CONCLUDES VISITS

Discussion of the strong and weak points of the Belleville Rotary Club by District Governor Owen Herity, who concluded his official visits to the twenty-five clubs under his jurisdiction yesterday, featured the regular weekly luncheon of the local organization.

In a highly interesting address, "Home," interspersed with the typical Herity humor, the district Governor gave several highlights of recent visits throughout the big rotating sections of his district. He voiced appreciation of the "spontaneity and the enthusiasm of the reception tendered him by the home club".

Referring to the strong points of the club, Rotarian Herity pointed out that its crippled children's work, done under the chairmanship of Rotarian Charles Symons, was one of enduring satisfaction. All honor to the splendid children's work and its chairman," he said.

"Weaknesses, certainly," I can say that the singing of the Belleville club, is the best of any of the twenty-five clubs in the district", the speaker declared. "Credit must go to "Sandy" Burrows, who evidenced an enthusiasm that is contagious, and to Leo Riggs, whose artistry at the piano is excelled only by his splendid and abounding good nature. As a matter of fact, this artist supreme has refused on two occasions, positions in the musical world that carried remuneration of generous figure," he said.

Pays Tribute to Secretary Pinkston

Paying tribute to Secretary Orland Pinkston, the speaker said that "presidents come and go, but the good secretary keeps on working. His weekly letter is one of the best in the district."

In lighter vein, the District Governor stated that the club was unsurpassed in North America for heckling. "Not that it does any harm", he smiled, "but when coming from such superlative artists as Charles Spalding, Mack Roberts, son and Ed. Bernstein. It is an honor."

Turning to the weak points of the club, the genial Rotarian pointed out that the attendance was not good. "It used to be between 80 and 90 per cent," he said, "but I feel sure there will be a marked improvement in the near future."

Rotary Extension Lies in Smaller Centres

"There is some misapprehension among members regarding the opportunity for Rotary extension," he said, "but that opportunity now lies in the outlying districts of the city." Quoting statistics, he pointed out that out of 131 clubs organized in the U.S.A. and Canada last year, 52 were organized in places of less than 1,000 population; 56 in places between 1,000-2,500; forty in towns between 2,000-5,000; and the remaining 23 in towns of excess of 5,000. The ideal population of a village of 276 population is said to be "gratifying satisfactorily. Rotary can do as much good in the smaller communities as in the cities, rather that is part of Rotary International, he said.

"The extension movement is now to the smaller centres, and this club should put forth every effort to form organizations in these places" the speaker urged.

Net Military Organization

Rotary is not a militant organization, but works closely with the Red Cross, he said. "During the last war, the Toronto club, one out of two of them functioning in Ontario, did a notable work in this connection. Its objective was $250,000 but at the end of a four-day campaign it collected over $800,000." He was glad to note that a committee had been formed with this work in view and hoped it would go out and seek opportunity in that field. He concluded with an appreciative poem titled "Home."

District-Governor Herity was introduced by President Howard Clarke, while the thanks of the club was expressed by Rotarian Mack Robertson and that of the Kingston Rotary Club by its President, Ken. VanInven, a guest at the luncheon.

Other guests included Arthur Winn, who contributed two vocal solos; Mac McLean, George Hall Kingston, Ab Boynton and Tom Herity of Belleville.

Ameliasburg

The Women's Missionary Society held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. O. Titus on Thursday afternoon Oct. 19th with a good attendance. Mrs. A. S. Vanott, President was in the chair, opening the meeting and taking charge of the business. Mrs. Titus, Group Leader, then took charge of the program, taking the Study Book "Moving Millions" assisted by Mrs. James Lount, Fox and Sager. The prayer meeting by Mrs. Lount, then "All People that on Earth do Dwell" Mrs. Smith pronouncing the benediction.

On the occasion of their return from a honeymoon, spent in the United States, Mr. G. Archibald Eddy, clerk of Owbridge co-proprietor of the Drug Store at Bunker's Hill and his bride (nee Enid C. Smith) were entertained at a surprise party in Trenton, when they were made the recipients of a considerable array of beautiful and useful presents.

Another surprise party awaited them on their arrival at Ameliasburg on Thursday evening when members of the Ameliasburg and Mountain View congregations entertained them in the church hall at Ameliasburg.

After a program of instrumental and vocal music, recitations and the reading of an address by Mrs. C. Sager, President of the Ladies' Aid Society and signed by thereof and Mrs. Chas. Spung, the Sec. Treas. of Mt. View church. Mrs. S. Vanott, Mrs. C. Spencer, Mrs. J. D. Keeley and Mrs. B. Hamilton, handed Mr. and Mrs. Eddy a number of costly presents including silver and fancy chinaware and one of the expensive "Kenmore" blankets.

The happy pair briefly expressed their thanks on behalf of their kind and deeply appreciated welcome and gifts, by assuring singing "For they are jolly good fellows." Games provided much merriment, and refreshments concluded a very enjoyable evening.

Hillier

He (Mr. Chamberlain) says that Britain will always be glad to examine any peace suggestion, on its merits, but knowing Hitler as it does, there is no inclination to believe that his character has changed for the better or that he could now can be depended on to say whether there was then or now in his previous professions of satisfied mind.

Unfortunately, Mr. Lloyd George added a note of indecision when he suggested, in reference to Mr. Chamberlain's statement, that it might be advisable to summon a peace conference to examine the terms offered by Hitler.

Another member of the House aptly characterized Lloyd George's remarks as suggesting a spirit of surrender. However, there is no indication on the part of the British people to lose sight of Hitler's notorious record of deception and bad faith. They are not wanting to prolong the war by a single day but they are determined on this point, that it is impossible to discuss peace with Germany so long as that nation's general conception as to international relations and human liberty is represented by a government of which Hitler is the moving spirit.

Even an offer by Hitler that he will send cables to the rulers of government to Herman Goering can be taken as a characteristic duplicity that could not mislead even a child. It is like a notorious robber looking for opportunity for his gang by declaring his own innocence and announcing that his leadership had been conferred on a colleague as deeply involved in guilt as himself.

There have to be some act of renunciation on the part of Germany more impressive than the retirement of Hitler, before there can be serious expectation that Chamberlain and Paine will give credence to the confession.— Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Mrs. W. D. Bedell, Mrs. C. Bedell, Mrs. M. Trumpour and Mrs. A. N. Defoe attended Area Council meeting at Belleville on Thursday and Friday last.

Herb Ryan of Bethesda spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Defoe.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mr. and Mrs. G. Smith who were entertained at a surprise party in Trenton, when they were made the recipients of a considerable array of beautiful and useful presents.

Another surprise party awaited them on their arrival at Ameliasburg on Thursday evening when members of the Ameliasburg and Mountain View congregations entertained them in the church hall at Ameliasburg.

England Meeting Challenge Says Rev. A. B. Payne In Addressing Kinsmen Club

People Calm and Grimly Determined to see War Through

AVENUES OF DEFENCE

The calmness and grim determination of the British people, England in wartime; efficiency of the defensive measures for the civilian population; the solidarity of the nation and its services, were parts of a colorful description of a recent holiday spent in England by the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, vicar of St. Thomas Church, given to the Belleville Kinsmen Club at its regular meeting last night.

In simple yet forceful eloquence the guest speaker brought out to the full his observations of a country at war. His description of the Air Raid Precaution and Auxiliary Fire Corps were highlights of an address that was colorfully interspersed with information of the various phases of wartime activity that at present is appearing in the British country.

"We arrived in England in May," he said, "when the country was in the throes of another crisis, but by this time crises were nothing new. That among me was the extraordinary activity in every phase of preparedness. One not only sensed it but witnessed it."

"Conscription," the speaker, "brought out the vast difference between 1914 and the present day. Gone was the only voluntary idea in the typical Great War sergeant major. Now the whole strength of the army, the navy and the air force. They were a people in the crowd, but they were mobilized on the principle that total peace called for a different output altogether to that of 1914.

Avenues of Defence

"The thing that struck me very forcibly was the avenues of civil defences," Mr. Payne asserted. "There were the A.R.P. (Air Raid Precaution) and the A.F.C. (Auxiliary Fire Corps). I remember when I saw the development and organization of a body of civilians to whom had been given the responsibility to make provision to protect people. Nothing was left to chance—nothing haphazard. Everything moved like clockwork.

No Sign of Panic

So important are the Air Raid Precautions that police will not permit civilians abroad without gas masks. One is absolutely not permitted in the streets without the protection the state provides. A notice is given seven minutes after the first warning sounds, and anyone who does not run. There must be no sign of panic. The homeguard organizers provide protection against splinters and concussion bombs, and therefore imperative that gas-masks be carried at all times, the speaker pointed out.

One of the main parts of the civil defense are the balloon barrages, he said. Balloons sway with the wind and are held in their place by different angles. Raiding planes must swoop low to hit their objective and as a consequence, balloons strike the cables with dire results to the planes.

Men not called for military duty, the speaker said, are organized in the Auxiliary Fire Corps, Mr. Payne said. "The women drive trucks and the whole is an essential help to fire brigades of the nation. So efficient are these corps that men can assemble tanks with the capacity of 200,000 gallons in a period of four hours. These tanks are emergency water supplies.

Everyone Doing a Part

"It is most amazing the way everyone is doing his or her part. Men and women, girls and boys are having an enthusiasm that it is pleasant to see. There are schools of information Oct. 19th with a pamphlet of instruction as to what to do are sent to every home. On the top floor of every house are two pails of water, one pail of sand, a shovel, and a spray. These are in readiness for incendiary bombs, and each householder has his instructions as to what to do.

The only realization that far in England has been gasoline, gas and electricity. Most of the city council's services must come first, so people cannot run around the country pleasure-bent. Motorists are allowed seven gallons of gasoline a week, and this is very conservative. No one is allowed to have a gasoline reserve. I understand that there is now a surplus of power in England due to the blackouts and the rationing of electricity has been stopped," he said.

"There was no rationing of food when we left England," the speaker said, "although the first thing that is likely to be rationed is sugar. Other than that there are ample supplies."

National registration is practically complete, the speaker said. "Everyone must register, for one cannot get food in a hotel unless he can show his registration card.

Evacuate 3½ Million Children

Evacuation of the aged and inefficiency of the nation was shown in the evacuation of three and one-half million children from London to the safe areas. "This was accomplished in five days without a single casualty," Mr. Payne said. "People grossed with the evacuation occurred, and wanted their children back, but the government persuaded them to leave them where they were."

Referring to the censorship of news, Mr. Payne advised his listeners, "not to believe everything you hear. Anything sent from the front is liable to get into enemy hands, and what is not said cannot be repeated. We know very little, but what little we do know is from twenty to seven times, and it is to our advantage. Don't get downcast when you do not get the news, because the enemy will get it first if it is sent to us," he warned.

Troops Transported

Further evidence of the thoroughness and efficiency of the British was the transportation of 158,000 troops and thousands of tons of equipment and material to France without a single casualty, the speaker said. Such solidarity, efficiency, and you can see that plans are well laid and well carried out," he said.

In Paris prior to the declaration of war, Mr. Payne said that there, as in London, everyone showed an almost indifference. Berlin papers flashed the news that threatened capitals were in a panic, but Paris nothing of the sort, he said. "They took the news as if it were a big joke, and in France men were happy-go-lucky. They merely exchanged the white enclectic bulbs for blue ones, and carried on their business. In England it was the same. Every one was calm, with that feeling of confidence that the government was a forerunner of the present state of efficiency."

"When the time comes and Canada will be called to the colors," Mr. Payne concluded, "I am firmly convinced that it will not be a repetition of 1914-18, but be a greater answer under the headship of the King. I believe that when that time comes Canada will be there and whatever the job is, you and I must do it. If we face the problem and heritage of the British Empire every man of us must do his part."

Following the battle order: "England expects every man this day will do his duty" still stands good. This is the day. Let us face the problem and heritage of the British Empire every man of us must do his part."

Following the battle order: "England expects every man this day will do his duty" still stands good. This is the day. Let us face the problem and heritage of the British Empire every man of us must do his part."

Kinsmen Norman Garbutt and Hubbard Kinsmen Cleo Collins, President William Hurst received the congratulations of the club on being presented yesterday with a bouncing baby boy.

Kinsmen Dr. Ralph Bird briefly reviewed the work of the eye clinic now in operation in the Belleville Nurse E. A. Earshman for her invaluable assistance in the public schools of the city.

CHINESE NOTED FOR INGENUITY SAYS DR. LIND

Speaker Does Not Believe That Japan Will Ever Conquer China

DRAWING TO END

The conditions that prevail in China, its characteristics and customs were all a collective subject of enlightenment in an educational discourse given by Dr. E. B. Lind, of this city who for six years was connected with medical and hospitalization work in Chengiu, China, when he spoke to the local Y's Men's Club at their weekly meeting last evening.

"The Chinese are noted for their ingenuity, but they are far from ambitious and noted for their procrastinations. For every one person working in China you will find four others sitting looking on, but that doesn't mean there is unemployment, simply because it seems to be the custom. They are a happy race and possess a keen sense of humour and lastly are honest, when dealing outside of their own realm" assured Dr. Lind.

"The biggest problem we of the medical profession faced in China was the fight against tuberculosis. Our hospital in Chengiu had to serve 2,000,000 inhabitants of the district and the Chinese only look upon foreign hospitals as a last resort. Leprosy and cholera are the other dread diseases of China, but with the employment of Western medical science we are slowly winning," assured Dr. Lind.

Reference to War

In reference to the present Sino-Japanese war, Dr. Lind stated that to defeat China was exactly like—"poking holes in the quicksand," and he was assured the Japanese government was at last realizing the uselessness of their war efforts. "Both Napoleon and Alexander the Great gazed longingly at China and said—'leave it alone' and with the radical Japanese military leaders losing prestige at home, the war in China is rapidly drawing to an end," predicted Dr. Lind.

"If, however, you want to stop the war in China more rapidly, do two things—stop buying silk stockings for six months and refuse to sell your scrap iron to the Japanese," assured the speaker in conclusion.

Annual Dance

President Harold Vaughan announced the club members of the Y's Men's International District convince, for the Central Ontario zone, which is to be held in the Belleville Y.M.C.A. next week end. with delegates present from all parts of Ontario President Vaughan announced the annual Y's Men's dance would be held this year as a costume ball on Hallowe'en, draw being optional, however.

The Y's Men's Club will hold their annual Hallowe'en frolic, for the kiddies of the city, one week from tonight at the Y.M.C.A. Favours for all attending in costume will be given, while prizes for costumes and the customary stunt night impromptu program in the "y" gymnasium have also been announced.

ROUTINE BUSINESS AT BOARD MEETING

Routine business constituted the fortnightly meeting of the City Parks Board held in the City Hall last night, with reports of the park activities well on the wane the Board's efforts were confined to the passing of accounts, which had been incurred during the year's period of major expenditures. All accounts were reported in order, however, Commissioner C. J. Symons was given power to replenish the number of tulip bulbs needed for Autumn planting, which will commence immediately throughout the various city parks. With Chairman W. A. Woodley absent from the city, Commissioner H. Armstrong occupied the chair with Commissioners Symons, Keeley and Callaghan being present.

Delicacy is Last Word in Make-up

NAN GREY . . . . follows the new trend for delicacy in make-up

By HELEN FOLLETT

WITH FABRICS going fluffy in a big way, the mask-like, porcelain complexion is on its way toward the realm of forgotten beauty whimsies. New tactics call for make-up that has delicacy. If a foundation cosmetic is used, it must be patted into the flesh so that it disappears; the powder must be as light as the fluff on a butterfly's wings.

To condition the complexion for best possible effects, use cool and warm water at night, followed by a gentle creaming of the cold water and an astringent in the morning; have an ice rub before dressing up for dinner. All sorts of beauty sorrows are the price we pay for neglecting the facts: greasy-blackheads, acne, crinkles and creases, large pores. Do your pulling-chores daily, rain or shine, no matter if the roof caves in or the chimney falls down.

Drink plenty of water, take fruit juices. Avoid fried foods, an excess of sweet and pastries. The daily bath does wonders for the complexion, stimulating the functions of the skin all over the body go the delicate glands of the face haven't so much work to do.

Take time by the cowlick, and the oncoming years will find you with a youthful complexion. Fight skin blemishes before you get them. Keep the complexion still carries remnants of tan, it sometimes happens that a mature or lavender powder can be applied with gratifying results. It is particularly effective for evening use, giving a transparent look to the skin when the bright lights are on.

Old-fashioned flesh tints are returning. They mean that you can have youthful complexion still carried them on lightly with the lamb's-wool pad, then tap the flesh with the finger-tips. Use the small brush on eyebrows and along the forward eye line, putting a little brilliantine on the bristles of the brush to produce a pleasing glitter.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Only 22, But Set in His Ways

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We've been sweethearts for four years, and expected to marry next year when he will be 23 and I 22. But he's become so difficult, dissatisfied and sarcastic, that I hardly know what to do.

He has a good job that pays $20 a week, winter and summer, but he's interested in a new fad which I'm afraid won't last long. They're offered him $150 a month. In addition to this, he is very careless about his dressing, won't wear a necktie unless it's a special occasion. Even his mother criticizes him for it, but can't do anything unkind. Even his slovenliness.

My parents are very sharp on this subject. They are completely disgusted with his appearance. When I beg him to be a little more neat, he says "Men don't like to have girls tell them what to wear." Do you think if I say less it will help? I would help? I can't be a buffer between him and my parents much longer.

Unhappy Peggy.

When a young man, not yet 22, is dissatisfied, sarcastic and grouchy, it's not a very bright outlook for his wife's future, should he be married. In addition to this, your young man is very unkind. Slovenliness has kept many a girlfriend man from recognition, even when his natural gifts would send him to the top. You ask my advice, Peggy. I'm sorry to say, but this boy does not sound like a good risk to me.

Chosen Wife is Unreasonably Jealous

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I provide to the best of my ability for my family, work hard and regularly, spend an evening every week with them. But when we are out together and I speak to some girl that we both know, my wife claims I'm flirting. I try in every way to change her mind, but she is utterly unreasonable.

Now, Miss Fairfax, I love my wife and she loves me, but instead of being entirely happy as we could be, our home is ruined by her unreasonable jealousy. Can anything be done with a jealous wife?

—M.

Some specialists contend that jealousy is a form of mental disease. And when we read in the papers the crimes which are committed on account of this fault, one is inclined to agree. Jealousy is a form of fear. Your wife distrusts her ability to hold your affection. Therefore, she indulges in tantrums when you speak to another girl. Try and teach her to have a little more faith in herself. The genuine article is always self-confident.

Seems to Glory in His "Bad-ness"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Fairly nice looking, I dress well, am a good dancer, but as an orphan and brutually kicked around, I have developed a hatred for everyone and everything.

To an observer one would say I was crazy, as I usually go "steady" with several and have an eye open for more. In every case they all I can, which includes their money. To me love is a thing unknown, but as a means of making a "chump" out of every girl.

Some years ago I met the best of her sex, and helped me to get on my feet, gave me a start, has remained true all these years, thinking that eventually we would be married. Yet I don't love her. She's spoiled my life, her health, her belief in humanity. If I married her, would I be giving her only one more dirty deal?

C. C.

This is a rather mild version of the young man's letter, and I can't help wondering if he hasn't been sending-up on his "badness" to shock me. If he's gone through the wild oats he claims to have sown, he's not the man to offer any decent girl a home, unless. Better let the best girl he's ever known go up the aisle accompanied with C. Q. to experience, and find salvation through some one or something else. Meanwhile, the young man who seems to have everything else for wishing, might turn his hand to fiction.

Water Babies in Beauty Swim

By HELEN FOLLETT

EVERY GIRL should be a water baby, down five or six glasses of water a day.-Water helps to build energy because of its refreshing qualities. Lack of it has a bad effect upon the circulatory system and the properties of the blood. Middle-aged women, especially, need it. The soft tissues of the skin and the muscles need it in their business. If they become debilitated the skin shrivels, and the face lines.

Water clears away impurities and noxious membrane from 30 feet of digestive canal; it acts as a health-giving tonic to the kidneys. It helps the skin to function normally as a body eliminator. It keeps the inner machine working properly, the complexion has a better chance to be at its best texture and have a smooth surface.

Girls who suffer from sallow skin or acne should try the water cure. These conditions show that somewhere in the body there is deficiency of wastes. Drink one or two glasses of water, cool or warm, between the other two meals, one at bedtime.

Water acts favorably upon all the tissues of the body, regulates the body temperature, help the blood to carry nutrition to the cells, hurries along wastes to the excretory organs. It is a "wet" and cut down the beauty expense.

How do you carry your purse? Do you let it hang limply from your arm, or do you clutch it close to your tummy as if you were afraid somebody intends to grab it?

These little matters have much to do with appearance. Every movement, every pose, should be graceful if we are to make the good looks grade.

Watch your manner of walking. Try to walk lightly, balancing the body perfectly. Don't throw your head forward. If you do, you'll get round-shouldered. Let the arms swing naturally. Don't throw the knees buckle. Pose your fingers prettily when you carry your purse. Good appearance starts in the mind. Feel sassy and splendid, and you'll look that way.

Sleeping on a high pillow is one way to get a double chin. Keeping the head lowered is a cordial invitation for a chin to go tandem. An excess of fattening foods will build it in short order.

If you have trouble from constipation it might use it to hold a band of gauze that has been dipped in ice astringent. A cold moist compress held closely to the flesh will prove an effective treatment. Exercise it takes up the slack in the flesh and hardens it.

It is possible to presto-change two chins into a single one by rubbing the flesh between thumb and finger, a treatment that dissolves fat cells. Ice friction should follow.

WEDDINGS

KEEGAN—GDYER

The Church of Saint Michael the Archangel was the setting yesterday for a wedding when Norma Agnes Geyer, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Goyer, became the bride of Mr. Francis Keegan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keegan, of this city. Rev. J. J. Collins officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charming in her wedding gown of Alencon starched lace over ginger satin in ivory shade, with fingertip length veil in princess lines with sweetheart neck line and long sleeves extending to a point over the hands. Her long tulle veil was caught to her head with a cluster of white gardenias and she carried a bouquet of deep pink roses and fern.

Miss Lillian Pointer was bridesmaid in pink net over taffeta and carried a pink tulle muff with a cluster of pink roses on it and she wore a shoulder length veil of pink tulle caught to her head with pink rosebuds.

Mr. Gaylord Goyer, brother of the bride, was groomsman for the groom.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride to immediate relatives and friends, after which the young couple left on a short wedding trip, the bride travelling in a fir green wool crepe dress, fir green hat and accessories and wore a seal-skin jacket. Upon their return they will reside in Belleville.

Every Little Facial Helps

By HELEN FOLLETT

STAY and again you hear women say, "If you start having facial treatments you have to continue them if you don't, you'll get wrinkles". A lot of nonsense. The purpose of a facial is to circulate and stimulate. Every one of them helps in the 100-year war against Old Mother Time.

Under the skin are masses of tiny fibres, beneath them are interlacing muscles. If a woman has health fibre, wisely, gets plenty of sleep and eats a nourishment mind, the facial structure will stay smooth and firm, but things happen. Things are always happening. Along in the forties there are signs of wear and tear. Reasons to reason that something can be done in the way of restorative treatments.

After the face washing at bedtime, rinse with warm water, fold the towel around the hands and do quick upward pats. Apply a muscle cream or a heavy emollient. Pinch it from collar bones to the forward hairline, from chin to temples. With the finger-tip force the cream into the surface of the nose, over the little crinkles at the eye wings, where blackheads lodge.

Don't wash away the cream. Keep on with the friction until it disappears. In the morning freshen the complexion with cool water, sponge on an astringent. Which you will do.

When you discover a hangail, do you bite it off? If you do, you get a bad girl. It's sure to make a horrid wound, and a wound may mean sepsis.

Soak the finger in warm soapsuds for several minutes. Put a drop of olive oil on the nail, work up the surrounding cuticle with an orange wood stick. Then push it back. Do little circles as you lift the flesh gently.

Snip off the shag with the needle-pointed, curved scissors, holding the ends toward the nail save. By that means you'll be able to remove the hangnail entirely without tugging a wound. Touch the flesh with alcohol.

If you are wrestling with a high coiffure, you had better put it properly to bed every night. If there are rolls and sculptured curls it is the thickness to get them in a set in the morning.

You will find, in cosmetic department, cute little rings shaped like a flying helmet. You can wear one when changing your frock, and your locks won't get trampled. It fits any head because there are lots of shirring in the back. Made of a light net so you can't be keep her promise to raise a family. "I annul this marriage on the ground of fraud." Judge Matthews ruled in the case of Leo and Rose Egbert of Newark. "The evidence there is that this woman before her marriage made up her mind she would not have children although she told Egbert otherwise. Her conduct strikes at the very essence of marriage.

"I'LL GIVE YOU MY COLD"

By McKEOWN'S DRUG STORE

You're heard people offer to sell, or give, you a cold many times, but never so mercilessly, but serious in fact. People do transact business when they offer colds. The gift is a costly one.

Colds and bronchial infections are treacherous, devitalizing, enervating.

Avoid the society of afflicted persons, keep up your vitality, live sensibly, moderately during bad weaves. Exposure is serious, but not as much so as an exhausted condition of the system.

Your physician can advise you how to prevent these colds, how to alleviate them if they do strike at a weak moment.

A well attended organization meeting of the Bridge Street Young People's Union was held last evening in the ladies' parlors when the plans for the year's work were discussed.

The meeting opened with a sing song led by Jack Dickens after which Marjorie Lamont conducted the worship service. Election of officers and plans for a Hallowe'en party at the next regular meeting were made. The officers elected were as follows:

Honorary presidents, Dr. Semple, Taylor Franklin; president, Perry Everett; vice-president, Marjorie Lamont; recording secretary, Betty Anderson; corresponding secretary, Betty Clarke; press secretary, Norma Hawley; literary convener, Margaret Semple; pianist, Bryson Leslie; assistant pianist, Jean Hawley; social committee, Marjorie McBurney, Gertrude Lasler, Mrs. Reynolds, Bob Pickering; visiting and membership committee, Myrtle Reid, E. Easton, Murray Clare, Wilma Clark; recreational committee, R. Jack, Jack Dickens, G. Munn, Jean McCabe; Pianist, Dorothy Dickens, Dorothy Dick; Myrtle Reid, Perry Everett, Doris Williams, Irene Benny.

GOOD MANNERS

Show Appreciation to Child

Happily, all of us know by experience the magical effect of a word of appreciation and encouragement. "Well done" are gloriously beautiful words to our ears, as inspiration to our spirits. A high-hearted word of encouragement is the up the ladder go our spirits.

In the home especially this grace of appreciation is valuable and beautiful. Appreciation, when it is deserved and appropriate, softens the life of a child. So the generous and discreet use of this grace in parents will pleasantly change the flavor of what so easily becomes routine, and quite unconsciously discipline.

Notice the word "discreet" above. For there is, of course, a medium way between constantly deluging the child with commendation and trying to say to him about his behaviour and a judicious sparing of "well done" when these bright and heartening words are his due.

Respect vs Toasts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

We are just entering the prime of the middle class, and our entertaining is done very informally along the line of our family dinner type of entertaining. However, before dinner people like to have a cocktail or a liquor cocktail, and at the evening parties we always serve. Almost always someone suggests some little toast, such as "May we always be the same close friends as we are," or "To our most charming hostess". I do not wish to offer a list of toasts to such remarks, but I feel that something should be said. Is a mere "Thank you" quite enough, home for you all.

—M.

Some specialists contend that jealousy is a form of mental disease. And when we read in the papers the crimes which are committed on account of this fault, one is inclined to agree. Jealousy is a form of fear. Your wife distrusts her ability to hold your affection. Therefore, she indulges in tantrums when you speak to another girl. Try and teach her to have a little more faith in herself. The genuine article is always self-confident.

This definitely is a problem, this gracious response to "Thank you" that we say and we say it in the gracious manner, the friendly bow, the "inclusive" smile. But just "thank you" doesn't. I agree, seem quite enough, especially among such close friends.

There is one expression, simple enough indeed, that covers all circumstances like this you will find extremely helpful and delightful to use. It is very kind of you" always gives one a head-start on saying something gracious, courteous and appreciative. For instance "Thank you so much for those kind words. It is so kind and friendly of you to be so gracious, and I appreciate it. It makes me very happy indeed."

It is a charming idea for a hostess to rise and offer a toast to the health of friends about her table. Saying, for instance "Let us all raise our glasses to you, my dear friends, and tell you of my happiness that always is in our home for you all."

Fashion Flashes

Point up a dark dress or suit with color. For black or dark blue, add a bright bag and gloves in such rich shades as amethyst, burnt sugar brown, firehouse red and green grape.

Birds are decore for many little hats this season. A black felt model in the shape of a sailor has around it is almost completely obscured by the body of a bird in bright colors, the head coming to the centre front and the body extending across the back of the crown.

Evening greys include a beautifully draped gown—in moire, the fabric is usually used for a bustle bow just below the waist in back.

It is a fact that a good fur-trimmed cloth coat is the best investment a girl can make for a single season. Fur-trimmed cloth coats are far more serviceable than any garmented sugar is also simple in form and may be worn in the street. It is the acute stage of the disease is passed.

Usually, when we doctors are called to see a child with coeliac disease, it is already pretty far on in years and the child will be in the midst of what we call an exacerbation. That is to say, he has sudden-

Diet Necessary to Cure Coeliac Disease

As I have already told you, science doesn't know how to cure coeliac disease. The body won't absorb fats and carbohydrates when the child has this affliction, and the only treatment of the disease is directed toward giving food that can be digested and which will help to overcome the other defect in diet. We just haven't been able to discover a way of enticing the body to absorb those fats and carbohydrates. Well, even we know that fats won't be digested, the first thing we must do is remove them from the diet and from the diet. We also know that the more complex sugars will not be broken down into digestible form as they should be ,so we leave them out of the diet, too.

When I say complex sugars I mean cane sugar, starch and the like, a variety of other simple types. This rules out most of the cereals for a time, but a simple sugar is necessary for a single season of several sugars in complex form. Fortunately, however, we have a food so far for a simple sugar to replace these. Corn syrup is one of the simple sugars that can be absorbed readily even by children who are suffering from this disease. Ordinary granulated sugar is also simple in form and may be allowed in the diet when the acute stage of the disease is passed.

Usually, we doctors are called to see a child with coeliac disease, it is already pretty far on in years and the child will be in the midst of what we call an exacerbation. That is to say, he has suddenly started to lose weight, to pass stools we described before and occasionally to vomit. This child is at the acute stage of the disease and he immediately must be placed on a diet containing practically no fats or sugars so that he will get rid of them out of his food as possible. As a rule, we start these children on a diet of meat with nothing else added until they improve.

Protein milk powder, such as Plinkenstein and is sometimes known as Plinkelstein' milk. It is made by removing the fats and most of the carbohydrates from ordinary cow's milk, leaving the relatively high in protein. Usually this is the first food the child is given in these cases of course the child won't gain weight on this diet, but there will be a definite improvement in the stools, which will be less fatty and bulky. Along with the improvement in the stools there will be general improvement in the child's health. When the stools are back to normal, further additions may be made to the diet to add the child's weight.

Usually the next thing added to the diet in these cases is a mixture of curds of milk. Not many people with normal digestive tracts care for these curds, but as a rule, it is hard for a child with coeliac disease to take them. If there has been no upset in the stools when these curds have been added, we begin by adding vegetable purees especially made to contain almost pure protein. Later we may add the whole of ripe fruit also is high in protein. About this time we add the first of the simple sugars we mentioned a few paragraphs ago.

REDHEADS ARE LUCKY

By Vera Brown

CHAPTER XXX

The famous pitcher sat with his head in his hands now. He paid no attention to Iris's chatter which went on and on. Iris liked her grievances to Walt.

"He argues that money all the time. Why think of money debts all the week....Instead of a thousand, I've got a hundred and fifteen. It was Ace that made me come along on this trip. Goodness knows, I didn't want to!"

Handsome reared himself out of the chair and started toward Iris. "What do you mean by luck, Iris, gone?" He thrust his hand into his pocket and brought out three pennies: "There's my luck, sister! Neither you nor anybody can take them away from me!"

"You fool! You've lost five grands already!"

"Yes, my luck! And I had it before I met you."

Iris grew bland. "I suppose it was that redhead who jumped up. I know where those pennies came from now. She gave them to you. What's her name? I was standing close to Handsome.

"What do you mean?" He swayed back and forth.

Iris was alone herself with Cary. She dashed at Handsome, grabbed the pennies from his hand. She rushed to the window and with a gesture threw them out of that twenty-dollar window. "Down into Washington-Boulevard below."

For a moment Handsome was too stunned to move. Then he rushed to the window. Iris had turned away and was sobbing. It was a one terrible moment. With thought he was going to chide the girl. Handsome stood there staring at her shallow, pretty face aflame with her temper. Then he said, they hurried for a long time. Search, on the sidewalk and in the gutter. Handsome was in a highly excited state. Never a penny was to be found.

Handsome described them over and over. They were just ordinary pennies, with holes punched in them. Handsome was running through the "O" that spelled out "One."

He was like an insane man. Half the hotel staff joined in the search for the day's work. Handsome himself went on for hours. A guest who was an engineer figured out mathematically just where the pennies would have fallen.

Finally, the night manager whispered orders to one of the bell boys. He ran back to the lobby as desperate search went on. Dick, the head bellboy, called out, "Guess I got one of 'em!"

Handsome leaning out of the ballroom window, heard. He scrambled down to the front door. Dick was on his hands and knees in the little parkway across the pavement where he had found the penny. Handsome, dropped down beside him, found a second one. He was wild with joy. Dick had tipped all the boys, Handsome had no money.

Malone said, "Come with me, stay in my room. I want to talk to you, anyway." Handsome was clutching his pennies in his hand. They went up to Malone's room. Handsome went over to the desk and sat down. He counted the coin. Then he turned on Malone.

"You said that. Which these aren't my pennies. They're dated 1934. Mine were 1933." He thrust some slumped into a chair. With tried to deny that it mattered. It meant it for the best. But I knew I would never find them again. It was the last thing he could do to hurt me. I'm through, Mike."

Malone got him to bed finally. In the morning, they'd talk the whole thing over again. As for Iris, Walt would recommend she be sent back to New York straight-way."

In the morning, when Walt awakened, Handsome was at his own some's bed. He lay there wide awake, his eyes red-rimmed. He did not bother to turn when Walt sat up and spoke to him.

"Well, here I am, 27 years old, and through! Done!" Walt tried to talk to him. He said, "Forget it. "Ace might just as well release me. I'm finished!" And besides that, I haven't a thin dime."

x x x

Malone's job was to keep an eye on Handsome. He was afraid the pitcher might take off a jump from a window, so deep was his melancholy. It took old Walt's persuasion to keep Manager Joe Barnes from suspending Handsome then and there.

The sports writers had a little private dinner that week for Handsome. It was in Cleveland. They ate by one, they stood up and, instead of the usual testimonial speeches, they took Handsome apart, limb and torso. When all had spoken: "You are still the greatest pitcher in the league, if you'll only have yourself, leave liquor and women alone."

Regan took it like a soldier. He was grateful to them. But he persisted in the belief that he was through, that his luck was gone. Doctors thumped and X-rayed him. They tested and tested. There was absolutely nothing wrong organically with Handsome.

If you'll remember, Handsome was in the headlines most of the last year. The Cary Handsome luck was always on the pan. There was talk of a divorce pending between Handsome and the scandal of the 40 cts. cab to stop. She could see Handsome's name in the front headlines. "HANRSOME REGAN RETIRES."

CHAPTER XXXI

"Handsome Regan Retired."

Owner Crisp had put Handsome on the active list, hoping retired list. He had his ticket back to Charlotte, Michigan. Crisp made a short statement that Handsome's arm had not been necessary, "We feel such a drastic measure will best serve the team and Regan."

So they'd kicked him out just when he was ready to behave himself. Mike dropped onto the davenport beside him. He patted bracelets and a bottle of whiskey," Ace is all right?"

But that was not entirely so. With felt. The snap was gone between Handsome and Malone. It was gone. He seemed content living with his wife.

Just how Handsome got hold of Mike's address Walt never found out, but one evening he disappeared before dinner. He set out to find Mike on an errand he noticed and Bob Kenyon were dining out.

They'd left the hotel together, quiet and cool, for they'd driven through the Jersey meadows and rested in the country. The drive back by moonlight had been perfect. Handsome, for the first time, had promised Bob they would be married in the fall.

Kenyon was happy and made all sorts of plans. They'd go ahead and not have a honey in the country when they got home. And Mike agreed. She was quite sensible and had definitely made up her mind. Bob kissed her good night in the morning, sat in the car in front of her apartment building and watched until she disappeared into the lobby

TENNESSEE VOLS VOTED BEST TEAM

Stand at Present Finest College Football Team of Season

New York, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Mercer College of Macon, Ga., has reconciliated—it's going to be beaten next Saturday, barring one of football's greatest upsets, by the best team in the United States, the Volunteers of Tennessee.

By a wide margin the Vols stand acclaimed today as the finest college football crew of the season. In the second weekly Associated Press poll, the talented southern juggernaut received 93 first-place votes out of a possible 131, to roll up a total of 1,203 points.

If there is any team that could beat the Vols, in the opinion of sports writers, it would be Notre Dame. The Irish received 13 votes for first place and a total of 923 points for second place in the rankings.

Of the first-place votes not centralled by Tennessee and Notre Dame, eight went to Michigan, five to Ohio state, six to Texas Aggies, four to Oklahoma and one each to Cornell and Tulane.

Wrestling Last Night

(By The Associated Press)

Wilmington, Del.—Jim The Golden Terror, 208, defeated Nano Singh, 218, Calcutta, two of three falls.

One of the biggest mob scenes to take place at a Canadian sports event in some time—and what might have developed into one of the biggest riots—took place at the conclusion of the Big Four rugby game in Turnpin, in which Ottawa Rough Riders defeated Argonauts, 18-7. Shortly before the game ended Andy Kenney, Ottawa ball punched Argos' Bernie Thornton following a tackle, and when Referee Red Blew a number of noncombatants made for the Ottawa player. Soon almost the entire field was covered with a milling crowd, part of the more than 19,000 who witnessed the game, and it was some time before order was restored. The cooler heads prevailed in the crowd and little damage was done, although for a time it looked serious. The picture shows part of the crowd with Andy Tommy and an Argonaut player struggling on the ground in the circle.

CLARY FORHAN: Westmount's initial win over Sarnia may presage an upset in the race for the O.R.F.U.

ROSS TRIMBLE: His Rough Riders appear to have the set-up strength to end Toronto Argos' rule.

Three teams battling for titles in the eastern Canada gridiron warfare have yet to lose a game or be tied, and their leaders are known here. All three were not far from winning last season, and with added strength in all cases, are favored to come through this season. Ross Trimble's Ottawa Rough Riders gave Toronto Argonauts their toughest games in both 1937 and '38, and this year won the first game between the teams, to go to the top of the Big Four standing. Clary Forhan took over Westmounts reins in the Big Four and has them perched at the top of the O.R.F.U. standings. Last year Westmount's predecessors, Nationals, played two tie games with Sarnia but lost out in the playoffs. This year they won their first battle with the eighth time champions. If scores mean anything, Bill Storen has one of the best teams ever presented to the college town. It beaten each of the other teams once with the smallest margin of victory being 19 points, and will probably succeed McGill as champions. Last year he led Mustangs to the Montreal school in a sudden-death playoff.

LOCAL WRESTLER TO SHOW WARES

Roy Doherty of Shannonville Signs for First Pro Appearance

Roy Doherty powerful Shannonville amateur wrestler, recently affixed his signature to a contract to meet George Cheeseia, the Polish grappler from Winnipeg in the preliminary bout of Friday night's professional wrestling card at the Hume Arena. Doherty will be making his first professional ring appearance following a season of accepting the challenges of travelling carnival grapplers throughout Hastings County.

Doherty, a local lad, is in his early 20's and stands 6 feet four inches tall and weighs well over 200 pounds. Although the Shannonville giant's wrestling activities have been confined for the greater part to challenging carnival ring appearances, Doherty has been a close student of the modern art of wrestling for some years past, having recorded several outstanding non-notch professionals during their ring appearances in Belleville. Cheeseia comes to Eastern Canada unheralded and unknown to local wrestling circles, but promises, in the fancy opposition to the local boy. This bout opens a three-bout card.

The complete card is: Preliminary, 45 minutes limit, one fall —Roy Doherty, Shannonville vs. Georges Cheeseia, Winnipeg, catchweights. Semi-final—no time limit—best two in three falls—Tiger Daniels, 215 of Regina, vs. Pedro Valdez, 172 of Mexico City. Main bout best two in three falls, one hour limit —Joe Malay, 198 of Brantford, vs. Joe Khoon, 194 of Detroit.

Boston Bruins Name Third Front Line

Hershey, Pa., Oct. 24 (AP)—After watching Boston Bruins of the professional Hockey League in two practice sessions today, Manager Art Ross announced he had decided on Charley Sands, Art Jackson and Gordon Pettinger for his third line.

Ross also agreed to discuss terms with two amateur forwards, Hugh Liddi and Gordon Bruce. In the event the pair decide to enter the pro ranks, they will be optioned to the Hershey Bears, along with Red Hammill, Jackson, Pat MacKenzie and Frost, to give the Bruins two intact reserve lines on their farm club.

The Bruins abandoned the one-session daily plan and started two hours when they learned Eddie Shore's Springfield Club had beaten Montreal Canadiens 2-0 in an exhibition game. The Stanley Cup winners will play Springfield in exhibition contests in Boston next Monday and Tuesday.

SPORT SPICE—It was a ball player at the Bill Hurst's and a tennis player at the Harold Reids yesterday when the two came to town and congratulations are in order. Jay King, Wellington plunging halfback, will not be with the Mustangs for the remainder of the season, the result of a fractured jaw sustained last Saturday. Pirk Hines, former Peterboro punt coach, is back with the Baltimore Orioles, as is Bill Calladine and Ned Vitsgalis. Captain Red Horner, of the Leafs, proved the first club casualty, being forced to the sidelines with an infected foot. Toronto Maple Leafs are harnessing in Northern Ontario this week.

By BILL RITT
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer.

New York Oct. 24—Now that the world series business has been wrapped up and delivered and the boys are gathering around the old base burners for their first stove league sessions to hand out the parsnips and pans for 1939, there's one guy they better not overlook.

He is Leo Ernest Durocher, the 34—better known far and wide as "Lippy."

This gent Durocher has done just about as nice and daffy a job as was performed by anybody in the recent baseball wars.

As manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Durocher in his freshman year as a big league pilot, changed a scrub-place club into a third-place fighting ball team which brought more than 1,000,000 rabid customers through the turnstiles of Ebbets field.

Durocher overcame many disheartening setbacks. He lost his first pitcher, Whitlow Wyatt, through a knee injury—when he needed him most. He had to revamp his outfield in mid-season. He had only one 300 hitter. And yet he finished behind only the two outstanding contenders—Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Improves His Batting, Too

To top it all and to "prove once his a teller what works more than he worries—Leo helped himself to the best batting average of his entire career and his play in the field was the spark that made the Dodgers' inner guard glitter all season.

Brooklyn cannot possibly improve as much next season as the club did for the last half of this year without winning the pennant. And those 1,000,000 Dodger fans are beginning to smell a flag.

It was just a year ago that Larry MacPhail, Dodger baseball manager and go-getter of the most energetic type put a bunch of his in motion and gave the Cardinals four players for their weak-hitting outfield. A week later he made that shortstop, who was Durocher, managed.

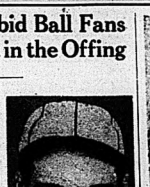
The Dodgers in training camp last spring looked like the usual Brooklyn team—just another also-ran, doomed to wind up deep in the second division.

Manager Bill Terry of the Giants then made the statement (almost a habit with him, it seems) —he picked the Dodgers to finish a bad sixth. This made Durocher see red and finish in fifth. Manager Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs finished a game behind him.

Durocher, of all, at least from Durocher's viewpoint, the Dodgers roared by the Giants and Cubs in the standings and when the season had ended there they were—safe in third place while Mr. Hartnett's Cubs mourned in fourth position and Mr. Terry's Giants in fifth.

Best of all, from the players' standpoint, is that juicy cut of world series money which they will get for finishing third. Each Dodger will receive 756. And they are the first Dodgers since 1932—and that's a long time—who have had a look-in on that world series pot of gold.

Yes, that Durocher fellow's done right smartly in his first year as a manager and we wouldn't be surprised if he'll have something to say about the disposition of Leo National league pennant next year.



LEO DUROCHER

figured the Dodgers would wind up last. This, of course, made Durocher madder.

Muttering something about the "two wise men." Leo set to work, his team responded and the latter Dodgers into playing like a real ball club. To spur them on he took a tough example in the field. And Brooklyn got going. Their rise to fame as the season sped into September they had become the terrors of the league.

Split Top Teams

In the last eastern series of the baseball season's two clubs, the Dodgers startled the league by knocking down the up-and-coming Cards three straight and snagging the second place money, the league-leading and eventual pennant-winning Reds.

The loss of all, at least from Durocher's viewpoint, the Dodgers roared by the Giants and Cubs in Latest sensation of the American gridiron, whose most critics—hs usually sight unseen—will be rushing to put on their mythical all-American teams, is Tom Harmon, ABOVE, halfback with Michigan University, who has scored 45 points in his team's last two games. Against Iowa he counted four Michigan touchdowns and three converts for his team's entire score as it won 27-7. Then last Saturday against Minnesota he scored two more touchdowns, three converts and a field goal for 18 points. This was against Chicago, the final score reading 85-0 for

Training Camp Briefs

Around Montreal: "Welcome home Marty Barry." Marty cavorted long ago around Montreal pastures as an amateur but ... Hughie Miller will try let him slip through their fingers and he went to outside fields to star. Last year Detroit Red Wings released him outright and Montreal Canadiens grabbed him up.

Look for Clint Smith to be a 20-goal man again this season with New York Rangers. Clint, in scoring 21 goals last season, was one of only three players to be entered the 20 mark. He demonstrated last night he has lost none of his accuracy by scoring twice as the Rangers defeated New York Americans 4-3 in an exhibition game at Winnipeg.

Evidently Mike Karakas has "starred" his job with Chicago Black Hawks. Reports had it that Mike, who slumped last season after a brilliant year in 1938, might go out of the lineup. But Paul Thompson, Hawk Manager, sent goalie Paul Goodman to the Pacific coast league Providence Reds last night, indicating Karakas would be the Chicago netminder.

Hunch: That Doug Young, if his injury jinx doesn't "get" him, will be the find of Montreal Canadiens. Young, released outright by Toronto Maple Leafs last fall, starred during the past two seasons. But only this season has Manager Jack Adams of the Wings called the Calgary player one of the "most underrated" defencemen in the N.H.L.

Reginald (Red) Horner, who stacks at inefficity, is in a Toronto hospital today with an infected foot and will miss a list of Toronto Leafs exhibition games in Northern Ontario. The big defenceman was operated on by the physician.

Between the Lines

It's either win or else—or else elimination—for Albert College in their senior interfaculatic football game tomorrow against Belleville Collegiate. With only three two teams in the Bay of Quinte group of the C.O.S.S.A. a four-game schedule was arranged last month with provisions for a fifth and final game in case of a tie. However, the "Collegians" have triumphed over Albert College in their first two meetings and only need tomorrow's victory to clinch the group honors. Both squads will be handicapped through loss of players through injury in their third meeting, however.

Gord Farquharson, Coach Eddie Schrieder's powerful backfield plunger, sustained an ankle injury last week that has kept Farquharson away from practice for a full week and it is doubtful if he'll be back inside another seven days. A torn cartilage is reported to have put Farquharson on the injured list. The injury was sustained in the second play of last week's game with Albert, Coach Pete Beach's Albert College squad will also be minus the services of one of their star backfielders, Jack Cole, who sustained a dislocated ligament of the shoulder while playing six-man football at Trenton ten days ago. Ruddy is still on the injured list so each squad will be handicapped through the loss of one secondary lineman. The clubs will be down tomorrow as Eddie Schrieder, "Collegians" ace strives to make it "three in a row" over their Albert rivals, who in turn will win or face elimination in defeat.

Louisiana State university stages a great show between the halves of home football games. The great 215-piece band, led by three drum majors, marches up the field to the 50-yard line. Stadium lights then are turned out. Red, white and blue lights on the bandsmen's caps and uniforms flash on and off colorfully. Lights are turned on again and the band spreads itself in front of the field, spelling "U. S. A." Then the band plays "God Bless America", as the lights go off once more.

Big (Win) Pedersen, a captain of the University of Minnesota football team, aspires to play every minute of his team's eight games and will, if he can help it. The lineman stands 6 foot 3 inches and played 60 minutes in seven games last fall.

Just how a local amateur wrestler will stack up against a professional grappler will be determined Friday night in the Hume Arena when Roy Doherty, of Shannonville, meets Georges Cheeseia, Polish grappler from Winnipeg in a match arranged by Doherty's manager as the first step in a series of matches which, if successful, will result in the Shannonville giant being matched with one of the leading professionals in the game. Doherty possesses the ability and knowledge of the mat game, that was enjoyed by Taylor, we cannot say, but Doherty has plenty of courage and for the past two years has been meeting carnival wrestlers who usually are no push-overs, with more than average success. Cheepeta and Doherty open a two-bout card featuring a no time limit bout between Tiger Daniels and Pedro Valdez, the classy Mexican grappler. Remember this is a fight to the finish and no time limit.

The Canadaian hockey club of Montreal suffered inroads on its defensive corps prior to the opening of the National Hockey League season possibly never being equalled in hard-luck annals. "Babe" Siebert, who was to have been the club's mainstay on defence, was drowned by drowning; Dess Smith was picked up by Chicago Black Hawks and Murray Evans, sturdy performer, retired.

After Doc Prothro was made manager of the Phillies last winter, he looked up his predecessor, Jimmy Wilson, at the winter baseball meetings and said he would like to know something about the players he was taking over. Jimmy shook his head and said: "I can't tell you, Doc; it would be unfair. You'll have to view them for the first time with an open mind."

"Hm," Jimmy, there must be something you can tell me about them," said either as players or as individuals." insisted Prothro.

Wilson again refused any information. "Look, Doc, ages ago I made up my mind to let them yourself. Doc, they you'll brew," said Jimmy.

Wherever they have met this past season, they didn't say a word to each other, merely exchanging glances. Prothro has given Wilson some kneeling looks as much as to say, "Jimmy, I know, now."

As the Yankees were outting the ball on the Browns at Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, in their double-header, Joe Dimaggio, churning out hits and runs in an apparently unending succession, several inills of the city's fire apparatus roared past the park. Sirens were going at full blast, and it was difficult to hear the crack of the Yankee bats in all the confusion.

A press box was then broke in with a gem: "Well, I guess calling in the fire department in the only way to get those Yankees out."

Washington, D. C., the capital of the United States of America, is to see its first ice hockey game this season. The Washington Eagles, as the club is known, has been admitted to the Eastern U. S. Amateur Hockey League and is being coached by Bob Gracie, former Kingston, of Peterboro, was once offered a position with the Eagles but whether the star Peterboro forward accepted or not we cannot say at present.

Walter A. Simmons, Sioux (S.D.) Argus-Leader: "The broadcast of the Apostoli-Garcia fight had the boys blinking with their eyes.... Which automatically caused them to close their did it with their feet."

The first and only screen appearance of the world's greatest musical genius Paderewski in "Moonlight Sonata", by popular request is now playing a return engagement at the McCarthy Theatre.

Music lovers will be particularly impressed with the fact that in "Moonlight Sonata" Paderewski's greatest, the most famous in the musical world and able to be watched closely as though they were seated beside him—a feat that the highest expensive seat at a concert program could not possibly afford.

In "Moonlight Sonata" the much adored maestro plays as only the great Paderewski can, Liszt, Chopin, Polonaise in A Flat, Opus 53; Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 2; his own Minuet in G, and the immortal classic from which the film derives its title, Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata".

Charles Farrell, Marie Tempest, Barbara Greene and Eric Portman are the featured players with the maestro in the production that is the most delightful screen entertainment of this or any year.

"Jerusalem" in Color.

In beautiful Technicolor, including, in addition to "Moonlight Sonata" the McCarthy Theatre presents "Jerusalem", one of the most outstanding travel subject ever filmed, the scenic wonders of the Holy Land and the "Jerusalem", presenting many places mentioned in the Bible, including "The Mount of Olives", "The Holy Sepulchre", "Mt. Zion", "Garden of Mary's House", and "The Wailing Wall". This subject is one which should be seen by every person living in Belleville theatre patrons something really out of the ordinary from the usual presentations made by the camera-eye.

AT THE BELLE

"The Rains Came"

Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "The Rains Came", the sensationally successful best-seller by Louis Bromfield is now on the Belle screen, with Myrna Loy, Tyrone Power and George Brent in the leading roles, and what occasion was one of which the producer may well be proud.

For a truly great motion picture "The Rains Came" has missed only the story of a handful of humans, torn from the world in the colorful mystical city of Ismala in India—their emotions at the breaking point, their lives at the ultimate, and all restraint swept away as the unseen forces of nature lash out on the earth. All the fascinating characteristics of India vividly in life and the earthquake, fire and flood scenes are reproduced with breathing realism that will live in the memory of the writer.

Tyrone Power plays the "perfect wife" role to play the amorous part of the native prince, even entrancing than ever as the lady of many loves. Tyrone Power has his most romantic role as the dashing Major Rama Safti, the handsome, gallant Indian with whom Lady Edith finds the only real love in her life. George Brent is splendid as the world-weary Major Baldwin, a ghost out of Lady Edeth's past.

Featured in the perfect supporting cast are Brenda Joyce, Nigel Bruce's best discovery, who triumphs in Fox Film's "Drums", and Jane Darwell, Marjorie Rambeau, Henry Travers and H. B. Warner.

Popular Demand

Two extraordinary days will return to the Belle Theatre, when the complete concert of Ignace Jan Paderewski's "Moonlight Sonata" will be presented next at the Belle with the lovely romantic stars Marie Tempest, Barbara Greene and Ralph Bellamy in the leading roles.

Romance, action, and scene stunning spectacle are revealed when Frank Capra's mighty production of the great James Hilton novel, "Lost Horizon" featuring Ronald Colman, Jane Wyatt, John Howard, and Edward Everett Horton, when you missed them, see them this time, if you enjoyed them see them again.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop and ma are going to the concert tonight on account of ma having bought the tickits before she asked pop if he wanted to and this morning at breakfist ma said, That was an intristing talk Cesar Peebles the music critik gave on the air las evening, wasn't it, Willyum?

I shouldn't be surprised, I was reading the paper the time, pop said, and ma said, Well the main point of his talk was the importance of eating to music.

That's intristing, pop said, I suppose soup and coffee take the place of the wind instruments and celery and toast correspond to the drums and cymbals, he said, and ma said, How rediculous, he claimed that overeating is the worst enemy of music, and he said it's an artistik crime for people to gorge themselves with a hairy meal of several courses and then go to hear a great symfiney with all their finer sensibilities blunted and stupified, and that gave me an dea for tonight's menu, Willyum, I mean the tickets they were kind enough without paying to the further expense of cancelling their effectiveness with a heavy costly meal, so I thought we could just have something on the light eathstik side such as a nice cheese sandwich and cake.

But yee gods, how about Benny, he's not going to the concert, why should he suffer? pop said, and ma said, He wont have to suffer, as he can eat I can eat something at home.

Well, okay then, sut now that I come to think of it I better meet you at the Auditorium, I expect to be working late, pop said, and ma said, Working your jaws, you mean. Now Willyum I dont intend to watch you fall asleep at my side with those expensive tickit stubs in your pocket. Suppose we have little fizzy stake with mushrooms? she said.

That's berd, pop said. Wich he was.

OTTAWA MERCHANTS ARE CONCERNED

Ottawa, Oct. 24 (CP)—Some Ottawa stores have a complete line of German-made Hallowe'en false faces which, together with Canadians' patriotic reluctance to buy Nazi goods are causing the merchandise a fair share of concern. Actually these goods were paid for before the war, so if people don't buy them, the loss is theirs," said one store manager today.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

The Old House

By RUBY H. MARTIN

Dan Butler knew he could not explain to Helen his purchase of the old Webster place. He had spoken up impulsively at the auction, when he saw the mean face of the alien bidder for the dilapidated property, which lay in the heart of the pleasant valley, and had been seriously surprised when it was knocked down to him at that low figure.

"Saddled now!" he muttered as he trudged cross-lots towards home.

Thought of Helen came to Dan Butler, for he loved her better than place or money or acreage. She was vacationing at her grandmother's cottage on the lower road, and ever since Dan had overheard her vehemently expressed scorn for Rockrake and its country-folk, he had determined to get clear of his home farm, enjoyment and make his approach to her heart as a city man. Never again should she have opportunity to laugh at him! And now he had saddled himself with the rackety old Webster place!

At the top of the hill Dan turned and looked back. Below, the closely-cropped pasture of his father's farm, the fallow fields of the Webster place, stretched away to the weed-grown yard which surrounded the weathered, rickety buildings.

Dan could hardly believe his eyes when he saw Helen's slender, blue-gowned figure come around a corner and cross the solitary, weed-grown yard. While he watched she unlocking the wide front door and, pushing it open, disappeared into the old house.

"Those doors are not safe," muttered Dan anxiously. He knew that ever so mild a wind or caution would bring forth her peppery scorn.

Slowly the thunder heads boiled up before the sailors' clouds that led to shroud the summer sky. Lightning began to glow and gleam and a dull roll of thunder tumbled through the sultry air. Still Helen did not come out.

Dan had thought his heart stout enough to keep him from her scorn, but now he could not look at or hear her locations, and fled down the pasture slope with a flying stride of his long legs. The wide door burst open at his touch as another peal of thunder reverberated through the rapidly darkening air.

"Helen!" he called. "Helen!"

The old floor boards swayed under his heavy shoes. Was that a rustle of ghostly crinolins on the shadowy stairs? His voice had fled the emptiness with wavering sound, and a faint silver-cane from behind the closed door at the far end of the long hall.

Dan pushed. Shutting the door had jammed in the sagging frame and made her partner. He put a sharp exclamation of amazement as he catapulted into the bare, wide room under the unnecessary force he had exerted. Helen crouched against the grimy, stained wall, staring toward him with wide, frightened eyes.

"Who are you?" she gasped.

He laughed grimly. A roll of thunder shook the house.

"It is time we were getting out of here!" he said, when it was possible to be heard.

"Tell me who you are!" she demanded.

A flash of lightning made every corner bright. Dan never forgot Helen's loveliness as she faced him boldly, one slender hand still spread on the old, stained, hard-finished plaster wall. Then, suddenly, she was lost in the blackness and the crashing thunder. Regardless of the swaying, rotten flooring, he went straight across the room to her.

"Dare, you know Dan Butler," he said.

Her hands clung to his shirt.

"I couldn't see," she cried, broke my glasses, and just didn't dare move on this spooky floor."

"We'll move right along now," began Dan, cheerfully, surprised dear she was! The nearness of her made his head swim. The touch on his arm snapped some barrier within his doughty soul.

"Helen, I love you!" he cried.

Her fingers clung closer.

"Suppose you're going to run away?" she whispered. "You're not going to run away from this dear old house?"

"You wouldn't stay in the country," he faltered.

"Stay here! Don't you realize the precious maidenhair, and priceless hardware in this old house? I just fell like kissing you country folks for letting treasures slip right through your clumsy fingers! I've loved and prayed that you'd have the strength to hold on, and when I heard you'd bought the place I was so glad I stole the key that grandma had in her bureau drawer and came to imagine how I could make it lovely—"

"I've us!" Dan added.

Then the storm rushed upon the old house in all its tempestuous fury. The wild wind tore shutters from their fastenings, flashed blindingly, and the thunder crackled in fearful snaps. But hand-hewn, oak timbers skeletoned, the building, and they held firm. And with Helen in his arms amidst the storm, Dan was silent before the depths and the touching strength that filled his heart.

WONDER BABY

By WALDO THAYER

"Sot?" The word was a withering epithet as Pberg said it.

"How can dis niker? Insultuk asking me, adn seeing de kid only vonce you sign her up for a test. Hahh!"

Perched on the producer's desk, Garrison waved one hand impatiently and demanded:

"Well what of it? I told you I listened to her singing records before I made the agreement. I, I, she's a positive wow, and think what a real child star could do for us right now! With Shirley Temple the year's big hit and every one hollering for 'clean' pictures, it's just what we need most."

"Vell, dats in ait's so bad a idea. Vhen is it she's coming?"

"Today—she's here now. I wanted you to see her before anybody else snapped her up."

Together they entered a miniature auditorium. In the last row of seats facing the small stage a child with fluffy golden hair sat with her father.

"Mr. Dugan," Garrison said, "this is Mr. Joseph Pberg, our production chief. He's going to hear Virginia sing."

"If you don't mind, I'll sit up front there. It'll give her confidence."

Distinctly, Dugan called out:

"All right, Virgie—begin."

From the stage came a crooning, childish voice that yet held an element of wise helplessness. "You're Gonna Lose Your Gal" was her song. She sang with a charm, an originality, a fresh insouciance such as none present had ever heard before. As the last note faded away, Pberg was on his feet, crying:

"Ligh'st I ain't needing no more, night now I give it to her a contract at five hundred a week, and vs start her foist starring picture immediate."

In fifteen days everything was ready. Dugan guarded the child's interests but made no unreasonable demands, insisting only that he be allowed to conduct Virginia's rehearsals in private.

When actual production commenced, thms father was always present and remained close by the child.

On the sixteenth day Dugan and Virginia failed to appear. Word was at a standstill. Repeated calls to the Dugan home was unanswered. At 5 p.m. an Pberg fumed impotently, his secretary entered to announce that a man was phoning him long distance, about Virginia.

Snatching the instrument, Pberg answered crisply and heard in measured tones:

"My name doesn't concern you, but I am now Virginia Dugan's guardian. Her father was shot to death in a gambling game this morning. According to his will, I must immediately withdraw Virginia from all performances."

Briefly the producer was left speechless; then words cascaded from him:

"That! Yes mean she ain't gonna go on vit' dis picture after two hundred t'ousand dollars ve're spending on it already? Listen, I got a contract vat's absolutely legal and de kid's got to fulfill it and she don't. I can go to court and—"

"Chuck it, J. L.!" a voice at his side cut in coolly. Pberg whirled in his chair, to face Carrigon.

Slowly the producer replaced the phone and waited for Garrison to continue.

"I've been working," the latter said, "on a pr... Trying to dig up background ... some stuff on the youngster. ... What—what are you talking about? It don't?

"Twenty years ago," Garrison interrupted evenly, "Virginia's father was killed all over the British empire as the Great Dugan, World's Premier Ventriloquist."

six months ago they lived there, with an old deaf-mute Indian woman. He spent that time training the kid in pantomime and keeping her away from people. Virginia can only say about ten words."

For a long moment Pberg stared at the other man, mouth wide. Finally, in a thin gasp, he managed:

"What—what is it you're talking about? It don't?

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 24.—(CP)—On Toronto market today Mining shares ruled higher and Industrials and Western Oils were slightly lower in early action. Some of the Golds registered an active demand and feature traders of the group were Preston East Malartic, Coniaurum, Kerr-Addison, MacLeod - Cockshutt God's Lake and a few other cheaper issues, all selling at higher prices.

Sleep Rock was a leader of the Base Metal list and it advanced to a new high at 1.56, up 3 cents. Sherritt, Fend Crevlle and Noranda were stronger. Home Oil, Calgary-Edmonton and Anglo-Canadian were mildly soft spots in the Western Oil list.

Trading lagged in the Industrial group and the index showed a drop of .25 at noon. Steel, Paper and Foods were inclined to weakness.

WALL STREET STOCKS

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Speculalties put on a rallying flourish in today's stock market, along with steel, tire and aircraft issues after an earlier hesitant list turned around and showed gains plus running to two or more points. Near the fourth hour activity broadened a bit.

While stimulation from Europe's war was found in leading issues, buyers found plenty of optimistic developments at home also piled away on the front. A number of stocks responded to boosted or extra dividends and bright earnings statements, and commission houses were somewhat encouraged by the recent obvious lack of any real selling inclination.

Backward during the greater part of the proceedings were General Motors, Chrysler, Texas Corp., Westinghouse, Montgomery Ward and J. I. Case.

Hiked up a notch in the Canadian section were Hiram Walker Distillers and Lake Shore. Pair demand developed for Dominion 6s in the bond market.

Egg Prices Ease On Small Demand

Easing tendencies developed on the egg market with limited demand. Fresh receipts arrived in ample volume to cover requirements. Graded shipments declined to 80 cases of the A-large, 36c for medium, 26c for pullets, 24c for cooking and 22c for grades. Prices to the retail trade remained at previous levels. The Dominion Department of Agriculture has discontinued quoting prices on ungraded eggs, grade A, grade A.P.R., etc.

The butter market held well in view of prevailing quiet trading. Fresh supplies of the Ontario make were still light, and enough demand appeared to absorb these offerings at steady prices.

Montreal Produce.

Butter — First grade creamery prints, 30c; second grade prints and grade solids, job price, 28½c.

Cheese—Ontario white, current receipt price, 13 11-16c to 14 3-16c; Ontario colored, current receipt price, 13 13-16c to 14 3-16c. Receipts, 1,158 boxes.

Urges Tolerance For German - Canadians

Leamington, Ont., Oct. 24.—(CP) Miss Mabel Dunham, Kitchener librarian, urged tolerance for German-Canadians while Canada is at war, Sunday school here was told yesterday. "People of German blood today in Kitchener are as loyal as anyone," she told the Leamington Literary and Musical Society.

She said German residents of some cities may feel more closely attached to the Reich than to Canada, but as a whole that is not true. "It is deplorable that innocent men serious harm having a German name causes many people to see 'red' today."

CITY OF FLINT

While this international aspect of the seizure of the United States vessel was fast developing, the White House was represented to have taken the view that, in so far as domestic law is concerned, the City of Flint—which brought more than 200 survivors of the Athenia torpedoing to Halifax, N.S., last month—was on a "perfectly legal and lawful voyage."

Explanation by Secretary Stephen Early, Presidential Press Secretary, explained that in making this statement he was speaking only of United States laws and did not mean that Germany had no right under international law to seize the freighter.

The question of right of seizure—apparently supported by the Germans on their belief that contraband was aboard—was being investigated by the State Department.

The first move of the government, however, will be to seek release of the ship and her crew of 42, in command of Captain Joseph Gainard. The City of Flint was captured by the German cruiser Emden as a prize of war last week. She was out of New York, bound to Glasgow, Liverpool and other English ports.

Moscow and Berlin Questioned.

Already the American Embassy at Moscow has asked the Soviet government what became of the crew and at Berlin the Embassy sought an explanation of the seizure.

In requesting Russia, as a neutral, to release the ship and crew, under such conditions as storm, lack of provisions or a break down of machinery forced her into port, the government will rest its case on a traditional United States attitude.

Russia, on the other hand, may rely upon Article 23 of the 1907 Hague convention on neutrality to enable her to contest the probably United States claim.

This article stated that "a neutral power may allow prizes to enter its ports and roadsteads, whether under convoy or not, when they are brought there to be sequestrated pending the decision of a prize court. It may lay down the prize taken to another of its ports.

"If the prize is convoyed by a warship, the prize crew may go on board the convoying ship.

Russia's Attitude.

When the United States ratified the Hague Convention it immediately declined to accept article 23.

Russia, therefore, may claim that the City of Flint can be detained in port until a German prize court decides her fate, but the United States will say that such detention is illegal.

The most celebrated case decided by the United States Supreme Court on this point was quoted by experts today as that of the British steamer Appam, which was captured by the German raider Moewe and brought sent into Hampton Roads, Virginia, with a prize crew aboard. Also aboard the ship were crew of seven of the vessels which the Moewe had sent to the bottom.

As a result of a suit for the release of the boat filed by the British Government, the case came before the Supreme Court which decided that the ship must be released, together with the various crews.

The forty-two crewmen of the City of Flint were still safe aboard the vessel when she disappeared Saturday, bound for Kola, a Russian port on the Murmansk coast, where she arrived Sunday night. The German prize crew was interned by Russian authorities.

Transfer at Sea

One theory advanced at Moscow was the German had stopped another vessel at sea, taken off the crew setting the City of Flint and put the United States crew aboard her.

Authorities here said that before she was stopped by the Emden the City of Flint had picked up from Gibraltar, bound for Port Stonegate who said their ship had been torpedoed and sunk a week before the American ship's arrival here.

Authoritative sources at Oslo reported the 10,000-ton German "pocket battleship" Deutschland as the vessel which sank the Stonegate.

Twenty-four hours after the Stonegate's seamen were taken aboard by the American vessel, the cruiser Emden, bearing the same flag and one of the largest German raiders of the last war, seized the City of Flint, said Norwegian authorities.

Declared Contraband

The Emden's commander declared that the City of Flint's cargo of foodstuffs, lumber and copper ingots consigned to Glasgow and Liverpool was contraband and placed a prize crew on the ship.

The Norwegians said the German flag, reached Tromso the commander of the prize crew asked the Norwegian permission to land the Stonegate survivors. He classified them as prisoners of war.

This permission was granted and the Stonegate survivors were landed. The British sailors later were sent to England by way of Bergen after the British Government had provided them with clothing.

Crew Taken on Later

The prize crew also was permitted to take on fuller in accordance with international law covering seized ships taken to neutral ports.

Norwegian authorities ordered the City of Flint's captors to take her out of territorial waters within twenty-four hours after a Norwegian boat escorted her beyond the three-mile limit Saturday morning.

She stood by, however, until the late evening when she disappeared in the north.

The survivors from the Stonegate said they had had only a few minutes to leave their own ship before she was torpedoed. They were reluctant to trust their long battle with the North Atlantic when their lifeboats were picked up by the City of Flint.

Asked About Crew

Moscow, Oct. 24.—(AP)— The United States embassy today asked the Russian Government for information concerning the forty-two members of the crew of the American steamship City of Flint brought into Murmansk as a war captive with a German prize crew in command.

Results of the inquiries were not made known immediately. Ambassador Laurence Steinhardt was understood to have had difficulties in locating any foreign office official because today is the Soviet "free day," a holiday.

There are no foreign consulates at Murmansk and the Soviet local authorities had to make their inquiries through regular channels here.

Flint.

The 4,963-ton vessel was taken late last week by a German naval vessel somewhere between New York and Liverpool—presumably near British waters. The capture was not known last night when the Maritime Commission announced the City of Flint had been taken by a German prize crew to Kola Bay, 125 miles above Murmansk, Russia's War Office said.

The Soviet Telegraph News Agency, said Murmansk port official declared the ship for the time being and internal duty, and that there was no information here as to the disposition of the ship's original American crew of about 36.

The State Department asked the British Government for all available information about the seizure. It made the same request of the German Government. It may be the German crew had put the freighter into Kola Bay, Russia, Norway, for a short time Saturday.

General Cargo

The City of Flint was carrying 4,963 tons of general cargo, destined for Liverpool and Glasgow. It was assumed in Washington that the Germans considered the cargo as contraband.

International law governs the examination and detention of a neutral vessel found to be carrying contraband. If 51 per cent or more of the City of Flint's cargo were held to be contraband, the ship could be condemned and forfeited with her cargo.

The freighter, the Maritime Commission said, were such items as tractors, lard, cereals, canned goods, leather, cotton, lubricating oil cotton, sewing machines, typewriters, radios, and farm machinery, silk, commercial chemicals, automobiles, fertilizers, rags, coffee, lumber, gasine hair and wallboard.

Situation Complicated

The fact the City of Flint was taken in the Russian area rather than to Germany complicated the situation, in the view of legal experts. They said that only exceptional circumstances, like extreme need of repairs or lack of supplies —warranted such action.

The State Department ordinarily tells the prize crew to move the ship out of the area for repairs or supplies taken. Otherwise, the prize crew would be sent to be interned, but the original crew must be released and permitted to return home.

This was the first instance in which a United States vessel had been taken over by Great Britain or France since the war against Germany. Britain requires every neutral craft to call at certain British contraband ports. If she goes are held to be contraband. The ship and cargo are then held for Capture of the City of Flint aitted no particular surprise in Washington because it occurred just before the climax of the Senate neutrality debate. Proponents of a "cash and carry" system of sales of munitions contended that the incident was argument for their side, because it would be better United States trade than German seizure.

Course Not Known

The course of the City of Flint in the few days before her capture by the Germans, was not known in the United States. The New York Maritime Exchange, keeping close track of the lists arrivals and departures of merchant vessels, reported the freighter reached Manchester Ship Canal, United States Line, to which she was chartered, on schedule. Information but did not know whether she later left for Glasgow and Liverpool, Glasgow or Dublin.

The City of Flint, built more than 20 years ago, was commanded by Captain Joseph Gainard. She was one of a similar international but did not know whether she later left for Glasgow and Liverpool, Glasgow or Dublin.

5 GERMAN SHIPS IN BELGIAN CONGO PORT

Brussels, Oct. 24 (CP)—Belgium announced today that it had seized the Steamship Elisabethville reported having seen five German ships in refuge at the Belgian Congo port of Boma, where they were said to have fled from the French submarine Surcouf.

The Surcouf, Belgium says, is a 4,300-ton Surcouf is the largest submarine in the world. Completed in 1934, she is 787 feet long.

HITLER MAY SOON CALL REICHSTAG

Formal Declaration of War Will be Made Against Britain and France

London, Oct. 24—(CP)— Ralph Peel, London correspondent of the Daily Mail, reported today that Adolf Hitler may soon convene the Reichstag and make a formal declaration of war against Great Britain and France.

The Fuehrer's conferences with chief district leaders on the morale of the population gave him some cause for reflection, the correspondent added. He said it was nevertheless apparent that his radical group of advisers, such as Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels and Police Chief Heinrich Himmler, had for the time being avoided losing their influence with their leader.

Questions Discussed

The Berlin consultations, Izard said, dealt with the following questions:

1. Monarchist-nationalist tendencies among the military officers, which reportedly took on new strength after the Soviet-Nazi pact. In this connection, it is believed that Himmler took the forcesounding name aristocrats into the front-line trenches. This would explain the death of Prince Oskar of Prussia, grandson of the former Kaiser.

2. Catholic resentment of the new German friendship with the Soviet Union.

3. Growth of Communist sentiment among the workers.

Distress caused a large part of the population by lack of food, fuel clothes and need for working long hours without holiday.

6. Growing scarcity of raw materials, with the closing of many factories.

Izzard predicted that the next few weeks would see little hard fighting on the western front but that Germany would direct her fire and air war against Britain, in accordance of propaganda in the Reich Press.

NO DOMINATION, HUNGARY WARNS

Under-Secretary Antal Says Nation Won't Stand Interference

Hegyhalom, Hungary, Oct. 24—(AP)—Hungary and her neighboring towns were told today by Istvan Antal, under-secretary for justice, that the country would not stand for foreign interference and would not become dominated by any "great power."

"One thought forever stranger to Hungarian minds," he declared, "is to give orders to the Hungarian people. We will not stand for domination by foreign interference and would not become dominated by any 'great power.'"

Their official newspaper, Magyarsag, said Hungary had been sold ago ingratiated themselves with the Hungarian people. They should be permitted to retain thousands of acres each despite land reform laws.

ADVANTAGE NOW LOST TO GERMANY

'Ian Hay' Says Propaganda Advantage Enjoyed by Germany is at End

London, Oct. 24 (CP Cable) — Major-General J. H. Beith, Britain's Director of Public Army War Office and widely known to the world as "Ian Hay," is confident that the propaganda advantage enjoyed by Germany in the war of propaganda is now at an end.

"The general impression about the preponderance of German news propaganda is false," he declared. "The press and other publications, German and Russian had by this time declared" fact was inevitable for the following reasons:

"The Germans had present war; we did not. Publicity is one among the most powerful weapons of war, the aggressor had the initial and temporary advantage.

"While we were moving our forces into position, reticence and even reserve were thought to be commendable. What would Hitler have said—and what would have been said of him?—if, while he was massing his armies in France, the masses of stories and photographs of their movements had been circulated in the press?

Mask Thrown Off

2. "Since the throw off his mask, Hitler has had a good deal to describe and explain—in his own words. The ferocious campaign in Poland gave great opportunities for sensational reporting both verbal and pictorial. Some of it, incidentally, had come the allied cause no harm despite editing by propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels.

4. "Hitler does not mind telling lies. We do." No explanation, General Beith declares, is as good as remedial action, and he maintains that that was done the moment it was possible.

"We can never pander to mere sensationalism, but we are most anxious to satisfy readers about truth," General Beith declared.

Foreign Exchange Board Grants Concessions to Aid Business Transactions

Ottawa, Oct. 24.—Special permission may be granted by the Foreign Exchange Control Board for operation of foreign currency bank accounts and inter-company accounts between companies or their branches, other than those of financial firms, under new regulations now public here.

Such permission, accompanied by qualifications and conditions, may be granted only to meet the necessities of ordinary business transactions.

Concessions will also be made to stockbrokers and investment dealers for settlement of accounts with their clients in the ordinary course of business and, to trustees, executors and agents for non-residents in connection with business carried on solely on behalf of non-residents.

The rules governing these were formulated and enacted at a meeting of the Foreign Exchange Control Board Oct. 14 last and published in an extra edition of the Canada Gazette issued today. Detailed instructions to the authorized exchange dealers and the public are in course of preparation.

MORE THAN 110 FOR SAILORS AND AIRMEN PRISONERS

London, Oct. 24 (CP)—More than 110 German sailors and airmen have been captured while "a mere handful of British airmen" are prisoners in German hands, Vice-Admiral Colbon, under-secretary to the War Office, told the House of Lords today.

Two German airmen were picked up by warships and landed on the east coast today. They said their airplane had been shot down and that they had been at sea in a rubber boat for three days.

HITLER'S SPEECH IN TOY BALLOONS BLOWN INTO BASLE

Basel, Oct. 24 (AP)—There had been a carnival last night at the nearby village of Riehen so nobody paid much attention to the arrival of a few brilliantly colored toy balloons drifted down on the village streets.

But when children who caught them found excerpts from a speech by Adolf Hitler printed in French on the balloons, the Riehlen police went into action.

They confiscated 20 balloons, which apparently had been released by the Germans in Baden, despatched two French soldiers across the Rhine.

CANADIAN FACTORIES SPEED UP PRODUCTION ON GOV'T ORDERS

Ottawa, Oct. 24 (CP)—Scores of Canadian factories are speeding up production for government orders of military equipment, the Defence Department announced at week end.

Up to Oct. 12, contracts let by the Defence Purchasing Board called for 120,000 pairs of boots for the Canadian Active Service Force and 20,000 for the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Orders also went out for 150,000 pairs of wool socks and textile mills are completing a preliminary run for nearly 300,000 yards of khaki serge for uniforms.

Meanwhile khaki serge stocks which the government had on hand rapidly are being turned into uniforms. The serge is 90 per cent wool, Canadian wool being used where obtainable, supplemented by Australian or other British wool.

Like the R.C.A.F. Canada's new army will wear black boots instead of the brown of the last war. A pair of short canvas leggins replaces the old puttees.

Each man's equipment will include one uniform, one great coat, one cap, one pair of boots, three pairs of underwear, three flannel shirts and three pairs of socks. The old straight razor of the last war has disappeared, giving way to the safety razor.

BRITISH PRESS DISPLAYS SEIZURE OF U.S. STEAMSHIP

Many Points of International Law Raised by City of Flint Seizure

BRITISH SINK U-BOAT

London, Oct. 24 —(CP)— As Great Britain announced further success in her war against German submarines, the press gave major display today to seizure of the United States steamship City of Flint by Germany.

Prizes and a ship that aided Athenia", was the essence of the headlines.

Press and shipping sources said they were informed the City of Flint was launched at an in-the United Kingdom after sailing from New York Oct. 3, and therefore have been sunk somewhere off the British coast.

Under the New Maritime Register listed the City of Flint as a 4,963-ton vessel built in Germany in 15, sailing from there for Liverpool and Glasgow.

Since the Flint was under charter from the United States Maritime Commission to the United States Lines, shipping circles said the incident involved many points of international law.

Another Submarine Sunk

The British Government announced that warships had sunk another submarine the while it was engaged in a fight with a merchant vessel. This was added to the two submarines listed yesterday as attacked at sea by British planes. The Air Ministry said the plane attacks were "believed to have been successful."

(In Lisbon, a wireless message for help was picked up last night from the British freighter Baron Forbes, which said she had sighted a submarine in the Atlantic. The position was not given, but the vessel has been in the Spanish trade).

Blackout in Daylight for Planes

To prevent airlines passengers seeing such things as ship construtions, the Air Ministry introduced today a daylight "blackout" on planes flying between London and the north. Windows will contain only two small tickets a week. A landwich will count as half a ticket. A Cabinet Minister said: "We indeed doubt that many persons would exceed their meal allowances in that fashion.

Many dramatic possibilities are among the auguries of powerful planetary forces for this day. It is probable that private rather than public interests may engage the attention, as symbols of friendship, courtship, romance and adventure are visible. Certain subtle dangers may arise from intrigue, rash impulse, misplaced trust or deliberate plots or schemes. With discretion, good judgment and wise counsel of faithful friends, pitfalls may be avoided.

Those whose birthday it is may look forward to an eventful, stimulating and surprisingly happy year, if they will exercise prudence and sound judgment, and take the advice of trustworthy friends. Romantic, sentimental and dramatic affairs are likely to keep things at a thrilling tempo, but at the same time there are onsets of plots, schemes and perhaps sinister pitfalls or treachories. Keep the emotions under tender discipline and exert mental pressure in peculiar situations."

A child born on this day may have a kindly, generous and appreciative nature, but it may be "easy" and carried away by emotional stresses or succumb to dubious lures.

War is No Mere Adventure But Vital Job to Be Done Says Maj.-Gen. McNaughton

Ottawa, Oct. 24 (CP)—This war is no mere adventure but a vital job that's got to be done, to the end, the commander-in-chief of the Canadian overseas forces declared.

"If we're going to be able to enjoy civilization and live as we like, we must put Hitler and those who think like him out of power," Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton said today. "But let's get done with it; once and for all, and get back to do the things some of us want to do."

General McNaughton voiced his belief in taking sufficient time in preparation to organize and train a field force of undoubted efficiency.

"People were apt to become impatient at the lack of spectacular action in the preparatory stage, he explained, but Canada's defence policy in the last twenty years had failed to maintain even a small, highly trained force and take adequate steps to counteract geographical isolation for time to expand that small army if danger threatened.

"Canada has relied on its geographical isolation, and had every right to do, to provide time for training a larger force if it became necessary. Everything has been based on that element of time and that is what we are talking about age of now," he said.

"The men who have formed the First Division are breaking up their lives, sacrificing much, to take part in this fight. That will be done, he said, but they wanted to see it done once and for all, finally. There had been no suggestion of reluctance to place themselves at the disposal of the state but "twice in a lifetime is twice too often."

General McNaughton said great care is being taken in the selection of First Division staff to get the best men available, especially experienced men in the possibility of expansion which would mean promotion of able men with early experience.

He added that the Canadian Active Service Force was only one part of the country's war effort, that a lot of outstanding ability and training had been given other jobs, where they were then in the public eye than they might be if they were in uniform but where they are perhaps playing a really bigger role.

Upper Canada Bible Society Meeting Held In Stirling Church

Stirling, Oct. 24—Opening the Bible to Africa was the subject of the illustrated address delivered to a large congregation at St. Paul's United Church on Sunday evening by Rev. Allumit, representative of the Upper Canada Foreign Bible Society through its Canadian Branch the Upper Canada Bible Society. Motion pictures depicting the activities now in progress in the foreign mission fields of Africa added much interest to the service. During the course of the address revelations languages had been added to the list of those in which the British and Foreign Bible Society has published and circulated the Scriptures bringing the total up to 172—Wongo, Hengasa, Nuer, (Eastern Sudan) Kanuri, Bura, Kitsha, Thiv, Mori, Ikum and Jakuno (Western Angola) five for Africa, three for Asia, and one for America. New Testaments have been completed in 15 more languages. Lamba, Bura, Mori, Ngwana Lualaba and Hausa are one more complete Bible in Nandi completing a remarkable year's work in that organization. Depression was present for the three major churches of the village Rev. St. John's Church of England, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and also St. Paul's.

Records still in the hands of the secretary reveal that nearly 40 Bibles have been collected by the Stirling branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society for more than seventy years under the direction of a long list of capable officials. Directly after the service a brief meeting for the purpose of receiving donations was held with Mr. Fred Houchin of St. John's Church, President of the local branch, directing the organization.

Officers Elected

The secretary's report was presented by Mrs. R. Rollins and a hearty vote of thanks extended to the executive committee for their work during the past year. The election of officers for the coming year resulted in the following being and gentlemen being selected to direct local activity for the ensuing year:—President, Mr. Fred Houchin, Honorary Presidents, Rev. W. J. Scott, Rev. R. V. Walker, Rev. Father McConnell. Treasurer, Mrs. Nora Wescott. Secretary, Mrs. H. Rollins. Selected from the laymen of the various churches the following Presidents were Mr. H. R. Tompkins, Mr. Andrew Hubbs, St. John's Church, Mr. R. Macklin, St. Paul's United Church and Mr. A. E. Strickland, St. John's Anglican Church. The last three officers with Mrs. Rollins constitute committee on recommendation by several former officers to provide executive committee which in later years Presidents may be selected.

Presentations

On Friday evening, friends and neighbours held a surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jordan Latchford, Fifth Concession of Thurlow, (Gilead), to spend a social evening and say farewell to them as they soon move to Ontario.

A pleasant time was spent in dancing.

The following address was read by Mrs. Fred Leavens,

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Latchford,

It is with friendly feelings we come to say good-bye to you at this time.

During your sojourn of six years as our neighbours we have learned to respect and esteem you both and regret that it is necessary for you to leave our community.

We look on our friendship we ask you to accept these chairs and this table, as a small remembrance your friends at Gilead.

We trust that the same sunny smiles make new friends for you in your new home and ask God's blessings on both, happiness and prosperity will follow you and your family through the coming years.

Signed on behalf of the community, Mrs. Norma Balcanquel, Mrs. Ruth Leavens.

Mr. A. Balcanquel then presented the gifts, a rocking chair and occasional chairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Latchford then thanked their friends in a few words showing their heart-felt appreciation for their kindness and good wishes for their success.

A tasty lunch was served and enjoyed by all.

Hitler May Dissolve R.C. Church in Germany Before End of Year

London, Oct. 24 (CP)—The Daily Sketch said today that Adolf Hitler will dissolve the Roman Catholic Church in Germany before the end of the year and establish himself chief of the German national church.

According to the newspaper, the Fuehrer has ordered Dr. Bernhard Rust, education minister, to take appropriate measures in preparation for the Catholic church's dissolution.

Next January, the Daily Sketch said, the Nazi religious group known as the "Deutsche Christen" (German Christians) would announce creation of a Reich church of which Hitler would become the head.

Quebec Political Leaders in Home Ridings on Eve of Election

DUPLESSIS BITTER

Quebec political leaders returned to their home constituencies today to close out a month-long campaign for election to the Quebec legislature tomorrow.

Question of conscription and provincial rights, main issues before the election, were brought forward again yesterday by Duplessis, Godbout and Gouin in a series of speeches in widely separated sections of the province.

Quebec's autonomy was threatened, Mr. Duplessis told the Montreal gathering, adding that as long as he had "one breath of life, no minister in Ottawa, will govern the province of Quebec."

Quebec did not want a quarrel but was not scared if our rights are not respected."

"This is a battle for survival, not for the success of one man, one party or one government. It is the battle of a province, of a race."

Against Conscription

At St. Jerome, Mr. Godbout said his government was prepared to "do all in its power" to find "other means of conscription. The Quebec Liberal party has promised to stand against conscription but less than two years ago they had decided they were opposed to Canada's participation in this extra-territorial war, he charged.

Mr. Gouin warned at Sherbrooke that if Ottawa tried to impose conscription it would "split the nation."

"Let us be united," he said, referring to statements of the Quebec federal representatives that would resign if the Liberal party is not elected. "We will break away from the pact of Confederation first."

There was no need for conscription, he declared, a major issue in the campaign, Mr. Gouin said, "for all parties are against conscription."

Allied With Trusts Charged.

The A.L.N. leader charged the Union Nationale administration was allied with the trusts. Old age pensions, mothers' allowances, needy mothers and agricultural credits, which Mr. Gouin said were the major 1936 electoral promises Mr. Duplessis fulfilled, "have been forgotten because they did not interfere with the interests of the trusts."

Mr. Duplessis also referred to the conscription issue, telling Montreal supporters a major issue in the campaign, Mr. Gouin said, "for all parties are against conscription."

WAR BRIEFS

Gibraltar, Oct. 24 (CP)—The 2,598-ton British steamship Ledbury was reported officially today to have been sunk by gunfire about 50 miles west of the Straits of Gibraltar. No further details were given.

Copenhagen, Oct. 24 (AP)—The newspaper Ekstrabladet today reported that a German warplane had fallen in northern Jutland late yesterday saw four large warplanes apparently on the way to Jutland or Heard heavy gunfire. Hanstholm is on Denmark's extreme northwest German coast, facing the Skagerrak and the North Sea.

Bucharest, Oct. 24 (AP)—Hungary began air raid drills today as police took precautions against sabotage. Hungarian Premier Count Pulsch during the excitement of a blackout. Similar precautions ordered last spring was called off because of Nazi pressure. Such precautions would try to provoke disorders.

Berlin, Oct. 24 (CP-Havas)—The Nazi Westdeutscher Beobachter—the Nazi Westdeutsche Beobachter—the newspaper Observatore Romano, accusing it of "crude falsehoods" British and French influence. The newspaper's violent attack came after a protest was against the treatment of Roman Catholics in Poland.

Bucharest, Oct. 24 (CP-Havas)—Reports were received here today of an armed clash between Bulgarian troops and a Greek steamship police near Sarzandlar in Dobrudja, Rumanian province claimed by Bulgaria. After an exchange of rifle fire, the report said, the Bulgarian vessel withdrew.

London, Oct. 24 (CP)—Sinking of the 4,584-ton Greek steamship Konstantinos Hadjipateras in the North Sea was disclosed today with the landing of 15 members of the crew by lifeboat.

The Captain was quoted in an account passed for publication as having said three members of the crew and the English pilot were missing. The account attributed the sinking to a submarine.

HOW TO SERVE

Inexpensive Delicious and Different "TEAS"

(Let's quietly top the wire and listen to this conversation 5 a-twixt two popular young Belleville hostesses.)

"Oh, Ann. Wasn't that a lovely tea that Edna served yesterday? It was so different. I never realized how refreshing it is to drink a big, cool glass of fresh milk instead of the usual beverages."

"Yes, she does everything well.

Every day more and more popular hostesses are becoming aware of the "different" qualities of Montrose milk. They are finding that the same qualities that make Montrose milk indispensible for ordinary meals can be used for parties and other "entertaining" occasions.

Milk, either as a fresh, cool, revitalizing drink or flavored with chocolate or fruit juices, is an excellent way to vary the beverages you serve. You'll find that everyone enjoys Montrose milk!

Double Murder And Suicide Coroner Believes

Reno, Nev., Oct. 24.—(AP)—A middle-aged New York matron, her estranged husband, and her woman travelling companion, were shot to death in what Coroner Francis Cunningham said today apparently was a case of double murder and suicide.

Mrs. Lillian Alexander Webster, the matron, had expected to sue for divorce in Reno tomorrow.

Mrs. Webster's lawyer here, Albert Young said he understood Webster had come to Reno in an effort to effect a reconciliation.

The shooting occurred on a highway near Pyramid Lake yesterday after the party had left Reno on a ride in an automobile driven by R. L. H. Forrester. Webster asked the driver to stop the car and leave the party together for a short time, and when Forrester had waited 100 yards from the car, Deputy Sheriff Ben Davis said, pistol shots caused him to turn back. The two women were dead and Webber was fatally shot.

Coroner Cunningham, who examined bodies of the victims, said Webster shot the women and then himself. He set an inquest for tomorrow.

CITY OF FLINT TAKEN TO TROMSO, NORWAY, AS 'UNSEAWORTHY' DUE TO LOSS OF MAPS

2 Nazi Warships Roaming Atlantic Sources Indicate

FIVE SHIPS SUNK

Four British Merchantmen and One Greek Steamer Sunk, Three Near Gibraltar — 45 British Boats Already Sunk

London, Oct. 25 (CP) — Great Britain was confronted with the prospect today that German surface raiders are ranging the Atlantic in the fashion of 1914.

The United States freighter City of Flint has been seized and taken into a German port by a German warship, Admiralty officials announced.

Three losses raised the total of belligerent and neutral vessels sunk by U-boats or mines in the past week to 45, which is more than 100,000 gross tons of shipping.

Four British merchantmen and one Greek steamer were sunk, three of them near Gibraltar, the Admiralty announced. The known loss of life amounted to 1,774.

Information from Norway, where the City of Flint was taken by her German prize crew before going to Murmansk, Russia, indicated at least two German warships were roaming the Atlantic.

They are the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Deutschland and the 6,000-ton cruiser Emden, namesake of a famous raider of 1914.

Britain reported the loss yesterday, 80 miles off Gibraltar, of the 4,315-ton Greek steamer Ilissos, and the 2,474-ton Menin Ridge, and the sinking of the 7,356-ton Clan Chisholm.

Sunk Off Spanish Coast.

The Press Association said the Clan Chisholm was "sunk off the Spanish coast, presumably by a U-boat, while on a homeward voyage to Britain."

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Forecasting peace and war is the big difference between forecasting weather in peace and in war is that when all northern hemisphere countries are at peace, the weather has the maximum amount of data available; but when even a part of the world is at war, as at the present time, a great many observations are not taken, and so taken are withheld. The weather forecaster at the front has even greater difficulties than the forecaster in peace countries. The latter may get all available data, but the army forecaster often can not do nearly as well because communication lines may be loaded with other matter cutting out the much required observational data, and he is obliged to insert and extend what he has according to his best judgment.

Battleship Near Newfoundland From October 5th to 15th

Oslo, Norway, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The newspaper Aftenposten today said the German pocket battleship Deutschland operated south and east of Newfoundland from October 5 to 15. According to the paper, the 5,800-ton Norwegian steamship Storegate was sunk Oct. 5 and the 1,818-ton Norwegian steamship Lorentz W. Hansen on Oct. 14, both by the Deutschland, which also hailed two other Norwegian ships but allowed them to proceed.

COURT ALLOWS SEQUIN TO GO

Suspended Sentence on Woman Accused of Spreading False Information

Sudbury, Ont., Oct. 25.—(CP)—Fred Seguin, young watchman on the Sudbury Air Harbour base at Ramsay Lake when an airplane was stolen two weeks ago today was placed on suspended sentence on charge of spreading false information.

Seguin at first told the police he was held up, bound and gagged by Joseph Farrendon, Timmins' mechanic who had pleaded guilty to theft of the plane. He said he had given Farrendon some food, split a bottle of rum with him on the night before the theft. He denied having anything to do with the theft, which he said was Farrendon's idea after he was tied.

Magistrate J. S. McKessock described Seguin's part in the affair as "a foolish act" and freed him on suspended sentence.

Farrendon pleaded guilty to a second charge of attempted theft of a plane at Larder Lake. The plane he stole from Ramsay Lake was found damaged in the Pickerel River fifty miles south of here. Farrendon claimed that he thought that his correct name is Joseph Forsythe.

Britain May Follow up Trade Pacts With Russia With New Agreements

London, Oct. 25 (CP)—The government disclosed today that it is studying the possibility of new trade agreements with Russia.

Emmanuel Shinwell, Labor, asked in the House of Commons whether the government appreciated the "urgent need for resuming trade discussions with the Soviet government". The Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, R. A. Butler, replied:

"The possibility of following up the recent agreement with Russia for exchange of timber against rubber and tin by further arrangements suitable to war conditions is now under examination."

The fact that the question was being studied "at the present moment", he said, showed the government's interest in the matter.

To another question on whether the government would publish details of its unsuccessful attempts last summer to draw Russia into the Anglo-French peace front, Mr. Butler said:

"The British government never hides itself."

William Gallacher, sole Communist member, claimed that in negotiations with Russia the government had "refused proposals for the defence of Poland." The Soviet was but Mr. Butler replied: "I cannot accept the statement".

French Still Hold Narrow Salient on German Soil—Loudspeakers Silenced

CHEER UP TROOPS

Paris, Oct. 25 (AP)—Sporadic artillery fire boomed along the Western Front today as small infantry patrols skirmished in the cold and mud west of Forbach, where French troops still occupy a narrow salient on German soil.

Through the sullen rumble of the guns, loudspeakers in the German front lines blared a monotonous refrain:

"Frenchmen, lay down your arms and make hands. The Germans don't want to fight!"

The French soldiers shouted back: "Change the record!"

The French General Staff announced in the afternoon in a terse communique this morning, saying that "on the whole the night has been quiet." The communique noted "patrol and artillery activity on the front of the Saar."

NEEDS OF CANADA AND THE ALLIES CLOSELY STUDIED

Attempt Made to Avoid Any Marked Disruption of Agricultural Industry

MEET DOMESTIC NEEDS

Ottawa, Oct. 25—(CP)—Agricultural officials here are finding it difficult yet to estimate the extensive an adjustment will be imposed upon Canada's production of food stuffs by wartime needs of this country and its allies.

An attempt will be made to avoid any marked disruption of the agricultural industry, so that Canada's domestic needs will be met normally and the end of the war will not create a crisis for Canadian agriculture, but production will be adjusted to meet the requirements of Britain and France as far as possible.

Until the food control authority of the United Kingdom is in a position to estimate more specifically its food import requirements for the next year or two, however, Canadian authorities will be unable to give definite and greatly detailed advice as to the prospective wartime markets overseas.

Daily War Survey

DAILY WAR SURVEY

By The Canadian Press

The recent French retreat from German territory along the western front between the Rhine and the Moselle rivers is not necessarily an indication the French command looks for a big German offensive this fall. It may be regarded as a precautionary measure in line with the general Allied policy in this war of conserving men and materials.

On this front the area between the main opposing fortified positions on either side of the boundary ranges in width from five to 25 miles.

That area is one in which troops may skirmish and manoeuvre with a certain degree of freedom but also at a certain risk.

In the early days of the war when fighting in Poland was under way there was little activity on

Seems Certain Mussolini Sees Chance to Ease Bonds of German Pact

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

It is not surprising to hear reports that Premier Mussolini of Italy is quietly trying to form a neutral but self-defensive bloc with the Balkan States, presumably involving his adoption of a more friendly attitude toward the Anglo-French allies who are making war against the axis partner, Herr Hitler.

It is not surprising to find that one of the chief purposes of such a bloc would be to stymie Germany, as well as Russia, from extending their influence over southeastern Europe which, they regards as their rightful preserve.

High Command Claims Last French Soldier Withdraws from German Soil

SPEECH PLEASES

Berlin, Oct. 25 (AP)—A threat that Germany next year would probably would be an attempt to shower bombs on England was printed today in the Nationalsozialist newspaper Nationalzeitung of Essen.

This day it will be known to be especially close to Field Marshal Hermann Goering, Nazi Air Minister, it said.

"The moment has come when the English people will see the bombs down upon the British Isle itself," Nationalzeitung said.

"The patience of a people has limits. In their boundless indignation the German people is a man now turn again the British war incitors in order that a terrible hereafter will be relentless, to create the necessary conditions for their security from such irresponsible machinations."

The last German troops west of Voelklingen yesterday, a communique claimed, five weeks after the withdrawal of the French "rear guards" across the border.

These "rear guards" were said to have made up for the one French division still on German soil as a result of operations on the western front which, it was understood, will be extended to their home constituencies on election day.

With the exception of this action, the communique said, there were "no special actions" on the western front.

T. R. Godfrey Remanded on $5,000 Bail After Two Are Killed by Car on Lakeshore Boulevard

Toronto, Oct. 25 (CP)—An automobile struck four persons on the Lakeshore boulevard early today, fatally injuring a man and a young woman. Police afterwards preferred a charge of manslaughter against Thomas Robinette Godfrey, 26, son of Mr. Justice John M. Godfrey of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Jean Gaylor, 21, and Edward Glass, 33, both of Toronto, died of their injuries.

Olive D'Arcy of Toronto escaped injury, while his brother, Lester, received an injury to the shoulder, cuts and bruises.

Godfrey was arraigned in police court on a charge of manslaughter and remanded under $5,000 bail until Nov. 15. Godfrey, named after Thomas Robinette, retired Canadian lawyer of the early years of this century, was admitted to the bar himself several years ago. He is associated with the firm of Godfrey and Corcoran here.

WET CANTEENS SOON TO BE READY

Strict Military Control Will be Exercised at C.N.E. Grounds Camp

Toronto, Oct. 25 (CP)—Military officials of this district announced today arrangements have been completed for the opening of wet canteens, under strict military control, at the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds where units of the Canadian Active Service Force are billeted.

The Department of National Defence at Ottawa has ruled that commanders of the Military Districts in which canteens are to be established could be opened and that the individual commanders could make by-laws governing conditions of sale, placing of civilian beverage rooms across the street.

It was learned today that civilian beverage rooms in this district will be ordered out of bounds only if it is learned that any of the places are operating in an unsatisfactory manner.

The number of canteens to be opened has not been definitely decided but all will be opened with the authority of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario. They will be open seven days a week.

BELIEF CLIENTS IN CLEVELAND MUST GIVE UP MOTORCARS

Cleveland, Oct. 25—(AP)—Cleveland relief clients must give up their motor cars before receiving relief, except in certain cases, will get no more relief checks and automobile license plates have been suspended, it was announced today.

Relief officials said the move would be an incentive for clients to have public rolls. Supervisors estimated between 8,000 and 10,000 automobiles were owned privately by persons in relief families.

Only clients who need cars in pursuit of their trades, such as paperhangers and painters, will be excused from the rule.

Canada-U. S. Relations So Friendly No Use Trying to Improve Them

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—Relations between the United States and Canada are so friendly, in the opinion of Senator Borah (Rep., Idaho), that there's no use in trying to improve them.

Borah told the senate that a number of Canadians had asked him to try to do so. He inserted one of his replies in the congressional record, saying:

"Let's travel along undisturbed the path which we have so gloriously marked out for ourselves, peace, friendship, and commerce, with just a little modification of our trade agreements, if you find it possible to let us have it. Then we will not quarrel with you even about that."

Chamberlain Denies Poison Gas Sent To Poland by Britain

London, Oct. 25—(CP) — Prime Minister Chamberlain told a questioner in the House of Commons today that he was grateful of the opportunity to state "categorically once more that poison gas has never been supplied by, this country to Poland."

Arthur Henderson, Labor, asked the Prime Minister whether in view of the "repeated official German allegations that gas was supplied to the Polish Government by His Majesty's Government and in breach of the Geneva anti-gas convention of 1925, he would make a statement."

Mr. Chamberlain replied that War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha already "had caused a most explicit denial to be made of this imprudent and transparent falsehood."

"I am grateful, however, for the opportunity of stating categorically once more that no poison gas has never been supplied by this country to Poland in any form."

Mr. Henderson then asked whether it is the view of the government that these allegations "constitute propaganda to justify the possible use of gas by the Germans themselves?"

Mr. Chamberlain said, amid laughter, "We have known similar instances in the past."

Advice on How to Act If Bombs Burst Near

London, Oct. 25 —(CP)— The man who started the Royal Navy's submarine service, now a retired Admiral, gave some advice today on how to behave when a bomb explodes close by.

Form defensive to the bomb legs apart, advised Sir Reginald Bacon, who was commander of Dunkirk during the last war.

"If you are 15 or 20 yards off, you have time to turn sideways," he said. "This takes about 1-10th of the time needed to fall flat."

JAP TROOPS IMITATE GERMANS

Shanghai, Oct. 25—(AP)— Japanese troops today began a "peace offensive" campaign, using loud speakers. They called Chinese troops in the vicinity of Nanpoint to abandon their anti-Japanese resistance, according to the stereotyped plea of Wang Ching Wei, former Premier of China, now co-operating with the Japanese.

Radio Talks of W. J. Cameron Discontinued by C.B.C.

Ottawa, Oct. 26 (CP)—Canadian Broadcasting Corporation officials said last night that the radio talks of W. J. Cameron of the Ford Motor Company during the Ford Sunday evening program will be discontinued as broadcasts in Canada, under the year-old ruling of the C.B.C., Mr. Cameron's time to broadcast personal opinions.

QUICK THINKING SAVES CHILD

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 25—(AP)—Five-year-old Eloise Adock owes her life to a nimble, quick-thinking uncle, Warren Daniel.

Daniel saw a large old pine, under which Eloise was playing, snap in the wind. He dashed over and scooped up the child as the trunk and the tree crashed—two feet behind them.

Report Says Germany Claims Prize Crew Should be Released Because it Sought Refuge in Neutral Port for Reasons of Safety

U. S. PROBES SEIZURE

President Tells Press Conference He Had No Information of Whereabouts of American Crew of 42 on Board 'City of Flint'

Berlin, Oct. 25—(AP)—The German Government informed the United States today it was communing with Russia the question of the American ship City of Flint, taken to the Russian port of Murmansk by a German prize crew.

The information was given to the American Charge D'Affaires, Alexander Kirk, when he was received by Baron Ernst von Weizsaecker, Secretary of State in the German Foreign Office.

The ship was seized, inquirers previously were told unofficially, because it carried war contraband.

According to the German report, the City of Flint was taken into Tromso, Norway, as "unseaworthy" because the German crew had put certain maps essential for navigation out of the way before the Germans took charge.

Lacking these maps, it was claimed, the ship could not be navigated through the North and Baltic seas, it was said, therefore it was taken to the far north.

At Tromso the prize crew attempted unsuccessfully to obtain the missing maps, according to the Nazi version. The City of Flint then was taken to Murmansk, where it presently will be being "detained" pending negotiati-ns on how to handle it, when a body explodes close by.

Turn sideways to the bomb legs apart, advised Sir Reginald Bacon, who was commander of Dunkirk during the last war.

"If you are 15 or 20 yards off, you have time to turn sideways," he said. "This takes about 1-10th of the time needed to fall flat."

MODIFIED DEMANDS

Helsingfors, Oct. 25.— (AP)—A Finnish delegation en route home from Moscow was reported in authoritative quarters today to be carrying modified Russian demands for cession of parts of the Helsingfors government.

Plane at large, without official word as to the nature of the "political and economic" talks at the Kremlin, save the Foreign Office, reported to have only a vague outline of the Russian demands, eagerly awaited the arrival of their emissaries.

FISHERMEN REPORT LIGHT "LIFTS"

So light are catches of Lake Ontario fish in the fishing grounds off Prince Edward County, that commercial fishermen are withdrawing their boats and gear, and giving them an overhauling in anticipation of the heavier "lifts" that are usually encountered in November, a Wellington fisherman stated this morning.

Trout usually seek the shoals during the latter part of October, and the early part of November, although of late years catches have been very light, he said.

Y.P.U. GROUPS OF UNITED CHURCH TO MEET AT CONSECON

To be featured by an address by P. C. MacDonald, principal of Belleville Collegiate Institute, and Vocational School, the Young People's Unions of the United Church in Prince Edward County will meet for their annual convention in Consecon United Church on Friday of this week.

Another highlight of the convention will be an address by Miss Bessie Gordon of Tweed, who will tell the gathering of her experiences while attending the Youth's Congress in Holland. Prominent ministers of the county will also speak.

RECOVERS PURSE BUT $5 MISSING

James Downley, R. R. No. 6 Belleville, was much appreciative when he recovered his wallet, which was lost yesterday, but he did not relish the losing of a five-dollar note from the purse he formerly Belleville police last night. In some unaccountable manner Mr. Downley lost his purse in a local restaurant yesterday and while searching for it a stranger advanced towards Mr. Downley and handed him his wallet, he told police. The stranger then vanished after being thanked by the appreciative owner of the property. Mr. Downley examined the contents of his purse, however, he

PLENTY OF SUGAR NOW AVAILABLE

Majority of Grocers State Restrictions on Quantity Sold to Purchasers to be Removed

With wholesale companies of the city reporting a plentitude of sugar, the majority of retail grocers this morning stated that restrictions on quantities sold to purchasers would be removed. Only a few retailers have stated that they would sell limited quantities to customers.

Although restriction on the sale of sugar has not been the policy of every grocer in the city, many of the larger chain stores have been limiting purchases because of their ability to secure adequate supplies. This situation, however, has been remedied, and plenty of sugar is now available.

While the majority of grocers of the city rationed their supplies to meet the immediate public demand at first, they stated that the main trouble was that certain people moved in a practice of making a "store-to-store" canvass for the purchase of sugar. By the time all of the grocers to fill their needs gave rise to the rumor that a severe shortage was imminent.

Large Sugar Beet Crop

Some time ago, a wholesale company official stated that refineries could take supplies care of the fact that ships carrying sugar cargos had been commandeered by the Admiralty. Coming to the rescue of this situation was the big harvest of sugar beets in the southwestern part of the province. One official estimated that over one million, three hundred thousand pounds of beets would be harvested from these areas to alleviate the condition then apparently existing.

At present, it is stated, there is plenty of this kind of sugar and also of the Indian cane variety on the market, so that there is no immediate prospect of a sugar shortage.

Tom Irwin, Sidney Farmer, Wins 2nd Sweepstake in Two Years

Word Has Been Received He Will Receive Over Five Thousand Dollars—Irwin Family Very Fortunate Having Won Two Sweepstake Tickets and Two Cars Within Recent Years

Lightning has been said to have never struck twice in the same place. That may be true literally but Tom Irwin, prosperous Sidney farmer will tell you that it is far from being so in a figurative sense.

For the other day, the second time in two years, Dame Fortune, or whatever guiding light it is that handles the fortunes of Irish Sweepstakes, turned a smiling countenance on the Irwin household and presented slightly over four thousand dollars into the family exchequer.

The prize was one of ninety-five won by holders of tickets on horses in the Cesarewitch, famous English turf classic run annually in the Mother Country. War conditions this year, however, caused a departure from the usual procedure of prize-money division. Instead of the usual graduating amounts given to holders of tickets on the winning horse, second horse and on, the race was run in two divisions, with the ninety-five holders of tickets receiving a flat sum of prize money qually.

Two years ago, Mr. Irvin received a second slightly in excess of three thousand dollars when he "clicked" as he terms it, in another sweepstake.

But Dame Fortune has not reserved all her smiles for Mr. Irwin alone. They have been more or less distributed among other members of the family. Previous to winning the first sweepstake ticket, a son of Mr. Irwin, who sold tickets for a draw on an automobile, sold his sister a winning ticket that brought a new automobile to the home. As his reward for selling the ticket, Mr. Irwin's son was presented with a new Ford.

As long as Mr. Irwin continues to win in the sweeps, a Belleville newspaper will have no cause to complain. For the same man that sold the winning ticket two years ago to Mr. Irwin, received a handsome cash reward because of his performance this year, and in the future will receive a cheque for his part in the affair.

Aviators in Air Nearly a Month

Lancaster, Calif., Oct. 26 (AP)—Tomorrow afternoon, if they're still flying overhead, two young Long Beach, Calif., aviators can claim a new world endurance record. Cecil Schleper and Wes Carroll took off Sept. 29 in quest of a light plane mark and kept flying when they passed it.

They said their pontoon-equipped ship with its 50-horse-power motor was functioning perfectly and expressed confidence they could establish the mark.

At 2:43 p.m. (5:43 p.m. E.S.T.) tomorrow they will equal the record of the Dole flyers set in Mississippi four years ago, of 653 hours, 23 minutes, 57 seconds, then they must stay up at least an hour longer to claim a new standard.

INSTAL OFFICERS OF ENCAMPMENT

District Deputy Grand Patriarch J. Stacey of Trenton is Officiating Officer

Last night the above Encampment held their regular meeting in the I.O.O.F. Temple and were favored with a visit from J. Stacey of Trenton D.D.G.P. of District No. 20 for the purpose of installing the officers of Moira Encampment for the coming term.

The very impressive installation ceremony was very ably conducted by D.D.G.P. Stacey, assisted by the following Patriarchs and Past Officers of Trenton D.D.G. Sr. Warden C. Garbutt; D.D.G. Jr. Warden, J. Thoro; D.D.G. Rec. Scribe, R. C. Clegg; D.D.G. Fin. Scribe, F. W. Smith; D.D.G. Treas., G. VanAlstine; D.D.G. High Priest, G. C. Sprental; D.D.G. Inside Sentinel, C. Croft.

The following are the officers installed and who will carry on the work of lodge for the next year:

Chief Patriarch, Geo. F. Yonker, Sr. Warden, Geo. H. Thompson; High Priest, J. MacKenzie; Scribe, A. Kerry; Fin. Scribe, L. W. Pollitt; Treas., W. H. Brooks; Rec. Scribe, Jas. Exley; Guide, R. H. Ketchenson; 1st. Watch, G. A. Morton; 2nd. Watch, G. VanAlstine; 3rd. Watch, Wm. J. Kelly; 4th.—Watch; A. G. Cooper; Outside Sentinel, J. Geo. Sprental; Inside Sentinel, Wm. O. Taylor; 1st. Guard of Tent, E. T. Thompson; 2nd. Guard of Tent, G. S. Sharp.

After the work of the lodge was completed a number of the visiting Patriarchs were called upon and spoke briefly to the Past Chief. After which all repaired to the banquet hall where refreshments had been prepared by the social committee, and where a very enjoyable time was spent in social intercourse.

The evening came to a close, all voicing the sentiments that a very successful evening had been spent.

Bloomfield Family Awakens to Find Home is on Fire

Picton, Oct. 25. — (Special)—A serious fire late Saturday night completely destroyed the home occupied by Louis Peterson in Bloomfield. When the family awakened the whole upstairs was a mass of flames and the staircase was in dangerous condition and soon gave way. Mr. Peterson and two children made their way down. Neighbors succeeded in removing some furniture from the lower rooms. There was no insurance. Two neighboring houses were in close proximity, but before the fire was brought under control.

Lt.-Col. and Mrs. Sherman Young spent Monday and Tuesday in Toronto.

Pork and beans are being canned this week in the factory of Bloomfield for the first time.

Mrs. D. J. Minaker is slowly recovering at her home on Queen street, from the effects of a recent accident. She is under the care of two nurses at present.

Mrs. Gerald Allison has taken an apartment in Kingston for the winter and Mr. Allison is attending a medical officer at Barriefield.

Family Escapes with Bruises

Mrs. Whatsam and two children escaped with bruises and a shaking up when their car was badly damaged in an accident on Main St. East early Friday evening.

Miss Helen McDonald of the staff of P. C. I. School entertained a number of guests, a jolly party, Saturday evening, at her home in Wellington.

Belleville Canse of Fire

The firemen were called at four o'clock Monday afternoon to extinguish a blaze in the home of Mrs. Coleman Whattam on Mary St. West. Whattam was not home when burning leaves and some of them set fire to the trees in the garden, causing setting it on fire. An electric refrigerator in the adjoining kitchen was also badly damaged before the fire was extinguished.

The regular meeting of the W. A. of St. Mary Magdelene's Church met in the home of Mrs. Clarence Sutter on Monday evening. Following routine reports and business, the January meeting in Belleville, the evening was spent in sewing for the bale. After the hostess served refreshments assisted by Mrs. Maher, Mrs. Mallon, Miss Steet and Miss Franklin.

Picton, Oct. 25.—The annual meeting of the laymen's Association of the Church of St. Mary Magdelene was held Monday evening in the Parish hall, with a large number present. Fully as president A. J. Keech is first vice-president and C. G. Sutter, second vice-president, with Wm. Tait as secretary-treasurer. The executive committee includes Leonard Jonas, W. E. Vick and Ed Rankard.

Monday night's meeting and banquet at Christ Church at Belleville on November 1st, is the Layman's Association of the Hastings and Prince Edward Deanery, when Prof. W. J. Dunlop of the University of Toronto staff will be the speaker.

The Prince Edward County branch of the Canadian Red Cross will next week start a quantity of wool to each of the War Emergency Committees which have been organized in the various townships of Prince Edward County, for knitting purposes. These groups will have charge of the distribution of the wool to persons who will knit for the Red Cross.

Adolphus St. County Society has 150 persons who have paid the dollar membership fee. Dues are not compulsory, however, but a campaign will be launched in the drive to secure a membership of one hundred.

Mrs. T. J. Webster has been elected head of the Picton committee and the county has already begun work on the sewing buildings where work may be done.

The Dorcas Society of St. Andrew's Church at their meeting on Wednesday afternoon had accepts from the rummage sale on Saturday amounted to $35.00.

The Tennyson Club held their first meeting of the season Tuesday night when Prof. E. J. Pratt, professor of English at the University of Toronto, was guest speaker. His subject was "Modern Poetry." The meeting was at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Gordon and assisting Mrs. Scott were Mrs. Elmer Huff and Mrs. J. H. Wallbridge.

Bride-to-be Given Showers

Miss Barbara Shurie of Wellington, whose marriage to Mr. George Noble, takes place next month, has been much feted. Events in her honor include two kitchen showers, cup and saucer shower and a handkerchief. The wedding, to take place in St. Andrew's Church Wellington, will be an unusually large one. The groom, a Wellington boy, is with a pharmacy in Toronto.

Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Ostrander, Mary Street, celebrated their Golden wedding anniversary on Tuesday.

Erect Plant

The Dominion Bridge Co is proceeding with the erection of their plant here after a delay of several months.

Regiment News

The recruits of Hastings and Prince Edward, who were sworn upon to do kitchen fatigue duty at the armouries, pending the time the officers still wear the leather belts and will do so until the canvas belts arrive.

It is also noticeable that the recruits of the 15th Hastings Highlanders, Capt. R. W. Abraham, Quarter Master, are in the process of receiving the Royal Scottish and 46th Highlander Regiment.

EXCYCLICAL TO BE ISSUED

Vatican City, Oct. 25—(AP)—Publication of the first encyclical of Pope Pius XII is expected soon, possibly on Saturday, by Vatican circles.

Vatican officials declined to forecast the coverage, but authoritative sources said it probably would be devoted largely to troubled world conditions.

GERMANY

Washington, Oct. 25—(AP)—Full information about German capitulation of the United States freighter City of Flint was sought today before the Government took any formal steps to obtain her release from a Russian Arctic port.

Secretary Hull called reporters yesterday he hoped to get back the vessel, one of the 21 German cruiser while carrying alleged contraband to Great Britain. Last month the freighter made a special call at Halifax with 200 survivors of the torpedoed liner Athenia.

A report from the United States Ambassador in Moscow, Laurence Steinhardt, he said, explained all the facts which are not known there. Mr. Roosevelt added he had no information as to the whereabouts of the American crew of 43, supplanted by Germans on the trip to Murmansk.

Prize Facing Used

Washington officials expected no difficulty from Russia in getting the City of Flint and her crew released. They pointed to three factors in support of their view:—

1. Word from Moscow that Russia had interned the German prize crew aboard the freighter.

2. A statement at the same time that the ship was being detained only temporarily.

3. The willingness with which the Russian Government promised Ambassador Steinhardt to get all possible facts from Murmansk Port authorities.

The case appeared to some officials to be a likely means of clarifying Russia's position, either as a neutral or as a sort of ally of Germany in the war.

U. S. Position Defined

The United States contends that a neutral country should not permit her ports to be used as a repository for ships taken by a belligerent. If Russia permits her ports to be used as a refuge for German vessels and their prizes which are unable to reach Germany because of the British blockade, she, in the American view, would be going beyond the limits of neutrality.

What would be done here in that case is a matter of speculation, although it is not improbable that there would have to be made in the President's neutrality proclamations some changes to meet the facts.

This would cut off shipments of war materials to her under the present law, and would prevent Miss Helen Lough.

Some from this neighborhood attended the chicken supper at Redneersville on Wednesday night.

Miss Doris Minaker of Belleville spent the supper hour on Thursday night with Miss Bertha Minaker.

New York Paper Sees Suggestiveness Of Peace in Speech

New York, Oct. 25 (CP)— The New York Herald Tribune today said that Berlin denials notwithstanding, "there is a certain suggestiveness" of peace in Joachim Von Ribbentrop's categoric rejection of the great concessions Hitler was prepared to make for an "alliance" with Britain."

Commenting on the German Foreign Minister's speech at Danzig last night, the paper added that "when it is remembered that it was Herr Von Ribbentrop who convinced Hitler that the British would fight, this distrifbe against Hitler's insatiable will to war is above all a furious confession of his own tragic mistake."

The Herald Tribune found the Foreign Minister "added nothing to Hitler's Reichstag speech of three weeks ago. Von Ribbentrop's endeavor to separate Britain and France, the paper said, was "too obviously, too clumsily" done.

POLISH VOLUNTEERS MAY LEAVE SOON

Montreal, Oct. 25—(CP)—Belief that Polish volunteers will be leaving Canada before the end of November to join the Allies was expressed today by Dr. Tadeus Bressendzki, Polish Consul in Montreal.

"Of course I do not know how many will go yet from Canada," he said in a statement. "At present they are registering Polish nationals from all over Canada, here in Montreal, with a view to their going overseas sometime next month."

DYNAMITE STICK FOUND IN CITY

Picked Up by School Child and Taken to His Teacher Who Notifies Police

A stick of dynamite was found by a public school pupil on Coleman Flats in Belleville yesterday. Investigations by police failed to reveal the source of the explosive. The air raid dugout from sundown yesterday until early this morning while Japanese planes ranged northwest province in the heighborhood.

Upon investigation it was disclosed that the dynamite stick was sixty per cent explosive, a higher percentage of explosive than generally used for construction work.

City Engineer Chas. A. Mott said that all dynamite used in the city was of the fifty per/cent high explosive type. "I could very much if there is any sixty per cent explosive dynamite to be purchased in Belleville" assistant City Engineer Clifford Matthews stated.

"Chief Kidd notified all district guards. The stick of dynamite is now in the possession of the police, and will be further examined by experts.

Those speeches probably will be the first of a series by Cabinet Ministers.

INCREASE FOOD PRODUCTION ON KING'S ESTATE

London, Oct. 25—(CP) — Measures approved by the King to increase production of food on his private estates were announced today by the Ministry of Agriculture.

Early this year, in response to the government's appeal for increased domestic food production, 50 acres of grassland were put under ploughs on the King's Sandringham estate. Since the outbreak of war an additional 50 acres have been, or are about to be, ploughed. In addition, the acreage of arable land on the estate was increased by 30 acres early in 1939.

Additional land will be placed under plough at Balmoral, but its extent has not yet been decided.

Permission has been given for 20 acres of grassland at Norfolk Farm, Windsor Park, to be ploughed.

The royal gardens of all the King's estates will plant a considerable area in vegetables.

OTTAWA BANK ROBBED OF $300

Bandit Drives Up in Taxi and Orders Driver to Wait for Him

Ottawa, Oct. 25.— (CP) — A bandit robbed the Bank of Toronto branch in the West End here today and escaped with between $300 and $400.

He drove up in a taxi and ordered it to wait for him while he entered the bank.

There were two clerks in the bank at the time of the holdup and Constable Tothmy Daley, star beckfielder of the Ottawa Rough Riders football team, was on his beat at a nearby school.

The robber walked into the bank from the taxicab, walked up to the teller's cage and unceremoniously put note which read "This is a holdup. Give me all the money. The big bills first, be quick, quick."

The teller, who said the man wore dark clothes and carried a gun, handed most of the money from the till. The bandit then walked into the taxicab and told the driver to drive off.

NOW IT IS BRITAIN

Adolf Hitler's sudden change of attention is one of the features of this figure who has occupied the world's eye some years. Some years ago it was the French who were looked upon with bitterness by the Nazis. Even last year it was Britain with whom Herr Hitler signed a statement suggesting that there would never be war between Germany and Britain.

Adolf Hitler at that time was delighted with the Sudeten issue. He did not seem to mind Britain so much after that. He signed a treaty with France to make eternal the Franco-German boundary as set at the close of the World War and prided himself on that. But since last March when Britain and France began to organize the anti-aggression pact to halt Hitler invasion in the east, Hitler has turned on Britain now the full measure of his enmity.

A few days ago there was a story that Hitler might offer peace to France and not to Britain, and while that has been denied and may not be fact, yet it gives a fair impression of observers as to the attitude of Hitler to the effect of the British navy in blockading Germany. Hitler sees the terrific power that Britain is building up in the air and on sea and how she is helping to contribute to that grand army which France has put in the field and is constantly increasing, the greatest armed force in the history of the world.

Modern war has put in the hands of nations potent arms. Germany has never been a seagoing power and while she built up an empire before the Great War it was not the sort of an empire which required a great navy, for the Germans really did not develop it. Germany has always depended upon land. It is true that in the last war the Germans did have a navy whose history was ended by the Scapa Flow surrender without a sign of glorious record in the more than four years of war. Hitler knows what the British power on the sea, bolstered by the seapower of France, did away back over twenty years ago and no doubt realizes that the blockade is one of the greatest threats to the Nazi resistance.

It is then, no wonder that Hitler vents his spleen on Britain and his lieutenants vent theirs upon Britain. Of these days there have been mild attempts on British coasts by the Germans while none has been reported against France.

Observers are wondering what Hitler means to do now, whether an attack on the west front or an air raid of mammoth proportions before the weather of winter makes large scale actions impossible. There is a general opinion that the Nazis know that Britain will be accelerating her pace so greatly in aerial strength as to take the world lead in number of airplanes that the German dictator must be anxious. So far he has not made a good impression as the Russian absorption of half of Poland nullified much of the effects of the German conquest and as other events have been making their impression on the people of Germany, those who really lead the thought of the people.

ALFRED DUFF COOPER'S VIEWS

Alfred Duff Cooper, former first lord of the Admiralty, believes that the war in Europe will end with revolution in Germany but it is impossible to say when it will come but when it comes it will come quickly, he says. "I am sure of one thing. Revolution will break out in Germany." But he sees no indication of early peace possibilities.

He holds belief that such a revolution will not be a Communist rising as some people have feared but a rebellion of the conservative elements which have become embittered by the Hitler accord with Stalin. "A revolution from the right, and very likely a monarchical revival," he declared it would be.

The right in Germany is religious, he states. The accord with Russia has shown the resemblance of Nazism and Communism and so the religious people of Germany resent this, he believes. Germans had been led to believe that Hitler's regime was a safeguard against this very thing. The British statesman sees the possibility of Bavaria and Austria forming a Catholic country and Protestant North Germany another after the war.

Somewhat similar opinion is held by some other observers who hold that the British campaign of leaflet dropping in German Junkers of East Prussia as being no friends of the Nazi regime and of the fear of the German Industrialists in the Rhenish area over the trend of Germany under the present situation with Soviet Russia making momentous gains without a fight but with diplomacy while Germany is battling with the democracies and finding her diplomacy failing as for example that of von Papen at the capital of Turkey.

Many believe that the older German army men and officers who remember the old imperial order of things and took pride in the old Empire, do not care a rap for the newcomer, Hitler, and his socialist-policy.

The imperialist Germans probably can spare very little sympathy and hold very little attachment to the man who sprang up and seized with a throttling grasp the Reich which was once the realm of Kings and emperors, to him it handed over to a man who has never travelled, who knows nothing but a narrow section of the German mind and who has steadily pulled down German resistance to his warped ideas of internal politics, by his crushing of the Jews, by his hatred of other nations, and particularly by the influence of that group of men who are the Nazi cabinet, a sort of shadow body which imitates Hitler and leaves him the last word in everything. The old Prussian type of military leaders never did take to totalitarianism and absolutism and despotism as Hitler has demonstrated it in as far as regards the control of the army.

On Saturday there was published the view of Hugh Gibson, veteran U.S. diplomat, to the effect that Germany contains now no fewer than forty million aliens within the Reich who are a real threat, because of their hatred for their oppressor and taskmaster. These people have to be looked after, they eat up an immense amount of food and require a great deal of goods and if they are not an effective cog in the Nazi machinery they may well slow up the German rehabilitation of loss every day the war goes on.

If these views of a future revolution in Germany come true, it will probably be after the bitter conviction is borne in on the Germans by the hopelessness of their cause and by their turning on Hitler. To bring this about, Britain and France are planning that inevitable retribution on the Nazis which will bring a real peace to Hitler-plagued Germany and Europe. Britain has no enmity towards the German people, it has been made clear, but she wants an enduring, just peace. To prevent this Hitler stands with a Nazi ideal of snatching bit by bit at regular intervals pieces of Europe which he would try to fit in with Germany and steadily lead the way to domination of Europe and then—what?

On the sea Hitler is making every effort to shake the grip of the British navy and the Royal Air Force on Germany. His trial flights of bombers to the British coasts and the attempts to send British shipping to the bottom of the sea are signs. But the consensus of opinion is that the U-boat campaign against the British-French blockade is slowly losing its effectiveness as much less has been achieved by the U-boats after years of preparation than in the former war when the British losses were heavier. Commentators forecast an immense development in the British air force in the next few months which will give Britain an overpowering leadership it is believed. It is said that the Allied plans indicate determination to force Hitler to launch the attack against the Maginot Line.

AGE NO BAR TO HIS SERVICE

The Maharajah of Bikaner is sixty years of age and wants to go to war. He served a quarter of a century ago in the Great War in France, Belgium and Egypt. In his words, though he is not as strong as he used to be, no rajput is too old to fight and "by God's grace I do not feel I am so old or in such bad health as to be debarred from doing my little bit for King and Country."

The loyalty of India was demonstrated twenty-five years ago and has been demonstrated today in no uncertain way.

The spirit of the Maharajh is the spirit of the Allied forces. The deep rooted thought is victory over a political system which menaces everything that is worth while.

"War is not a time when any keen soldier desires to sit at home in ease and luxury," the Maharajh says. "For him the only place is on the battlefield," he adds as he expresses the gearest wish of his heart is to take his place in the fighting line for long age he had offered to place his sword and that of his son at the disposal of His Imperial Majesty, the Emperor of India.

Named deputy under Frank was Arthur Seyss-Inquart, minister without portfolio and a former governor of Austria. They will assume their posts after the military withdrawal, under in Poland is relieved of administrative power by Hitler.

Since Sept. 30, Frank has been governor of Poznan, a part of Poland now incorporated in the Reich.

Authority to proclaim law by decree in occupied Polish territory is vested in Frank, the Ministerial Council for National Defence and the director of the four-year plan. Existing Polish laws are to remain in effect insofar as they do not conflict with German laws.

Not Final Peace.

Principal subject of interest in Germany was Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop's speech last night in Danzig. Authoritative quarters in Berlin interpreted the address as having definitely put the seal to foreign reports that Germany is seeking peace under all circumstances.

Newspapers featured the address under big headlines. Hitler's Völkischer Beobachter said editorially "The clear terms" Ribbentrop used in the Hamburger Fremdenblatt characterized Britons as "war agitators" and said Germany is waging a war "forced upon her".

The Berliner Lokal Anzeiger, in an editorial headed "Final Settlement", said: "The war which Britain and France unleashed against Germany is not a war for the liberation of Poland, but a war for the annihilation of Germany."

SCOUTING TRIPS

An official commentary characterized Ribbentrop's address as a "clumsy attempt to divide Great Britain from France". The statement said the Ribbentrop speech "did not voiced "the same stupid falsehoods about the aggressive intentions of Great Britain —intentions which everyone outside Germany fully understands" and "only the imagination of Herr von Ribbentrop and other members of the Nazi Government".

Continue Same Course

The British commentary said "Britain and France will continue on the course they have set themselves in the autumn of 1938 and the German Government undergoes a change".

This stand was echoed by the News Chronicle, which commented: "The first part of the speech can only be described as a tissue of falsehoods, and the remainder as a confession of failure."

Referring to von Ribbentrop's assertion that the war would prove "the doom of the British Empire", the Daily Express said: "They (the Germans) must resign themselves to a long war if that is their goal," the Paris Ribbentrop! He never did understand us."

The Mail declared von Ribbentrop had "given the world another farrago of distortion, half-truths and untruths".

"The truth is thrown more clearly into relief against the background of Nazi falsehood", said the paper.

Hostline Seizure

In London newspapers the speech shared attention with accounts of the seizure of the United States steamship City of Flint by a German sea raider. Headlines reported "Anger in the U.S.A." and "American Anger—Neat Blunder".

Five German ships were brought down in recent raids, turned up on the English coast, and two were reported to have landed in Denmark. Also reached from the North Sea were seven members of the Royal Air Force, unreported for four days after the fight in which they were forced down at sea. Two of a disabled British flying boat was caught in a storm.

SAFETY ADVICE CLOSE AT HAND, SAYS SPEAKER

Belleville District Branch of Industrial Accident Prevention Association Meets in This City

FILMS ARE SHOWN

The origin, aims and achievements in industry of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association of Ontario were outlined in a most highly informative address given last night in the Belleville Intermediate auditorium to the recently-formed district branch of the Association by Mr. W. McRae, its chairman, and assistant works manager of the Canadian General Electric Company's plant at Peterborough.

The meeting which was well attended by representatives of the district, which extends from Picton to Bancroft—from Napanee to Trenton, Brighton, Cobourg and Port Hope, and embraces 361 firms, was held in the Board Room section and taking pictures which included a film dealing with the actual workings of the organization, the dangers of carelessness about minor scratches which lead to infection, and a timely picture regarding "formation driving" of automobiles on the highways of the continent.

"The tremendous cost of industrial accidents since 1915 has amounted to 128 millions directly and 515 millions indirectly to business, not to mention the terrific cost to life and limb, Mr. McRae pointed out in his address. "In 1937 accidents claimed the death of 1,233 workers and produced 192 orphans," he said.

Prevention Pays Handsomely

In 1913 employers formed the Accident Prevention Association and with the result that difference in figures in 1938 and 1937 were 414 killed and 2729 injured as against 246 killed and 2,315 injured. "This is conclusive proof that Accident Prevention pays and pays handsomely" he asserted.

"Accidents do not happen, they are caused," he said, "and if the cause is removed they cannot happen. The management is largely responsible for these accidents—but the worker has his fault, hence their responsibility."

Mr. McRae urged the formation of accident prevention programs in all plants, the fundamentals of which he said must be carried on part of all concerned, and must be backed by policy regulations by all members of the staff. Unless this is done, he warned, there will be result in disappointment. The staff especially must be convinced the management is behind it.

There were various sources of safety information as regard the prevention of accidents, he declared, and mentioned Mr. Jack Brooks, your district inspector who is always available to guide you and there is the Mutual Fire Insurance companies which are prepared to help you. The Canadian Safety advice is no farther away than your telephone or letterbox.

He suggested employers hold informal talks with the staff, that their suggestions for they can do more for you than you can for them," he said.

Action Plans Planned

An important step toward accident prevention is "good house keeping," the speaker asserted. "A clean plant is a safe one, and a safe plant is a clean one. You will find fewer accidents in healthy surroundings."

He urged the careful selection of competent foremen. "They are an important cog in the industrial machine and should be efficient, he said. Supervision is another accident prevention, and repeated of a personal touch with the men."

The speaker was introduced by Mr. J. H. Legate, superintendent of the Belleville branch of the Canada Cement Company, who also explained the aims of the organization in his remarks.

He urged that all present "do something about it" regarding prevention, for by study we can get at the cause of accidents and by so doing at the cause, a large percentage of accidents can be eliminated."

The speaker was thanked for his address by Mr. Matson, a member of the executive, who was responsible for the highly informative film and lecture features seen and heard by the audience.

Want More Lively Hands

The Nazi Air Ministry chose at home to call for new steps to speed up the soldiers. The press insisted that radio stations change their programs to suit the taste of the troops, who have been calling for more jazz music.

Admiral French circles declared Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop's speech last night in Danzig was an admission of internal decay under the Allied blockade.

Does Removal of Gall Bladder Bring Relief from Symptoms?

I have spoken before of the patient who underwent operation for ulcer of the stomach expecting that all his symptoms would disappear, never to return. He was greatly disappointed when his physician told him that if he didn't stop worrying, eating rapidly, and not getting enough rest, he would likely "grow" another ulcer. Operation for ulcer of the stomach is not now so common since it has been found that the patient's "personality" is usually the underlying cause.

What about operation for removal of gall stones and inflammation of the gall bladder; will operation prevent return of symptoms?

Drs. E. L. Eliason and J. P. Nerth, Philadelphia, in Annals of Surgery report their follow-up study of 364 cases from one to four years after operation. They found that only 5 per cent. (sixteen cases) were not relieved of the symptoms for which they underwent operation. In four other cases the relief was delayed and in others the patient complained of "a new ache or pain" or bladder disturbance.

Now 5 per cent is not a large percentage to fall to get relief after removal of their gall bladders, but Drs. Eliason and Nerth investigated these cases and found that in half of them (8) there was no gross or outstanding evidences of gall bladder disease at time of operation, but in the other half (8), the surgeon found a diseased gall bladder with stones yet in it. Here was not found relief after the removal of the gall bladder.

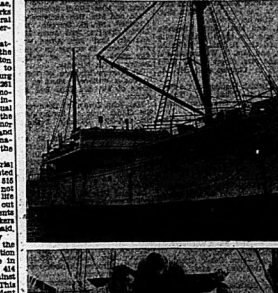
Why did these eight patients not obtain relief despite the removal of the gall stones?

The explanation is that sometimes conditions other than gall stones can give similar symptoms "since many gall stones are 'silent' ones".

The lesson here then is that despite the mistaken physician may make and the inability of a patient to properly describe his symptoms, practically 19 of every 20 cases undergoing gall bladder surgery obtain relief from their symptoms.

For those then that are suffering with gall bladder symptoms, especially those with the terrible attacks of gall stone colic, the fact that operation gives relief to such a large percentage should not only allay their fears of operation but should give them great hope of obtaining relief from pain and keeping free from symptoms thereafter.

READY FOR ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION



Scheduled to leave for the South Pole on Nov. 1, final arrangements of the Byrd Antarctic expedition are rapidly nearing completion. DRIVES FROM BEHIND WHEEL NOW

Former Britain and American champion golfer, Pam Barton, now does all her driving from behind the wheel of an ambulance, in convoy with thousands of British women, Pam volunteered for ambulance service and is now assigned to the West London station for training.

"Hibbentrop credits England, persecuted by Chamberlain, with all the ambitions and perjuries which his wife, Beatrice managed to reach a point few miss behind the Nazi leaders," he remarked for two days before being sent back.

In that time, he said, he transported 31 wounded or ill soldiers to the rear.

Opponent of Arms Embargo Repeal Concedes Defeat

Senator Gerald Nye Says Repeal Will Get Up to 60 Votes

CHARGES UPHELD

Washington, Oct. 25—(AP)—A leading opponent of arms embargo repeal conceded defeat today as the United States Senate, prodded by Vice-President John Garner, rapidly approached a final vote on the Administration Neutrality Bill.

Although expressing hope the House of Representatives would uphold the embargo, Senator Gerald Nye, (R.), North Dakota, agreed with Democratic Leader Alben Barkley, that the Senate's decision would come late this afternoon or tomorrow and added that repeal would get from 55 to 60 votes. Nye's estimate would give the opposition from 36 to 41 votes.

Under changes in the "cash and carry" sections approved yesterday, United States vessels could transport no arms anywhere. Such shipments to belligerents would have to go in foreign vessels and would have to be paid for and title transferred to the purchaser before they left American shores. The non-military cargoes could be transported in American ships almost everywhere except to actual warring countries in Europe. This would not have to be transferred until the goods were delivered at their destinations.

Canada Gives Advantage

Overland and inland waterway trading with Canada also would be allowed. Under the changes approved yesterday, ships could continue in the Pacific and Indian Oceans, China, Arabian and Tasmanian Seas, and the Bay of Bengal, with New Brunswick and Western Nova Scotia ports in the Gulf of Maine and Bay of Fundy, Bermuda, Central and South American and across the South Atlantic to Cape Town.

Should any of these areas become infested with submarines, the president could designate them combat areas in which American ships would be barred.

The amendment to permit United States ships to call at Saint John and Yarmouth was sponsored by Senator H. C. Lodge of Massachusetts.

OBITUARY

LATE MRS. MARGARET (GOTHARD) MORTON

St. Ola, Ont.

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Morton, wife of Mr. John W. Morton, and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Gothard, took place from the family residence at St. Ola, Ont., on Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 24th, to the St. Ola United Church where service was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. James Wood.

Interment was made in St. Ola Cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. James Phillips, David Mawson, James Sprackett, C. E. Eggleton, M. G. Cook and C. E. Thompson. The last three mentioned are sons-in-law of the deceased.

The funeral was largely attended and the floral tributes were beautiful and many in number.

FRED W. B. RUSSELL
(Ameliasburg)

Fred W. B. Russell, a prominent resident of Ameliasburg Township, died Thursday night, passed away at the family residence near Roblin after a lingering illness. Mr. Russell, an illness of one year's duration. Many friends and acquaintances in Prince Edward County and elsewhere his passing has brought sincere feelings of regret.

The late Mr. Russell, who was in his 61st. year, was born in Ameliasburg Township, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. George F. B. Russell. All his life was passed in the township where he was born and he was held in high esteem in the community. In the affairs of the township he took an active interest and during the years 1936 and 1937 he served as a member of the Township Council. In religion he was a member of St. Alban's Anglican Church at Ameliasburg, and fraternally he was a Past Master of Lake Lodge A.F. & A.M., Ameliasburg; Moira Chapter R.A.M. No. 7 and the Order of the Eastern Star.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Nellie Sagers, one sister, Mrs. Emily Wilson, Rawdon Township; two brothers, Mr. John W. Russell, Buffalo, N.Y., and Mr. William Russell Toronto.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

The Canadian Press To Have Correspondent With Canadian Army

Ottawa, Oct. 25.—(CP)—Action of the Canadian Active Service Force in France will be reported by a Canadian Press staff war correspondent, W. Rupert Davies, president, Tuesday told the semi-annual meeting of the Board of Directors of The Canadian Press.

Mr. Davies, who made a three-week tour of Central European capitals immediately before the outbreak of war, said that Canadian newspapers were being provided with the most complete coverage of war news on the war available to any group of newspapers in the world. In addition to the services of The Canadian Press London Bureau there were available for use the reports of the Associated Press, United Press, Havas News Agency and The Press Association, cooperative news body of the United Kingdom newspapers.

The three-day meeting of directors discussed business of the Association, including the matter of increased costs due to outbreak of war here.

In connection with the service of 15-minute radio news bulletins provided without charge to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for use across Canada, these have been and, once at night, the Board expressed its appreciation of the services of Major Gladstone Murray C.B.E., general manager, that these bulletins would be made available to all radio stations in Canada.

J. A. McNeil, general manager, expressed appreciation of the "most reasonable and accommodating" attitudes shown by W. S. Thompson, chairman of the Censorship Co-ordination committee, in dealing with various matters arising between him and the newspapers.

The next divisional meeting of the Maritime Members of The Canadian Press was set for Halifax, November 2.

HORACE WRIGHT TO HEAD CLUB

Men's Club at Christ Church Holds Organization Meeting

Organizing for their activities of the ensuing year, the Men's Club of Christ Church held its annual meeting and election of officers in the church Parish Hall last evening. The year's business was discussed and a financial report submitted by Treasurer David Bradford which was most encouraging.

The result of the election of officers for the Christ Church Men's Club for the coming year was:

President—Horace Wright.

Vice-President — William Kempson.

Secretary Treasurer—David Bradford.

Auditor—Fred Chamberlain.

Upwards of 40 members of the club were welcomed to the season's initial meeting by Rev. A. E. Wright. The future activities of the club were discussed, following which carpet bowling and a social evening was thoroughly enjoyed. The Christ Church Men's Club is open to all young men of the city who are desirous of fraternizing occasionally in a men's organization that is both religious, as well as social.

PRESENTATION

On Thursday, Oct. 19th, a delightful evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Logan, Herchimer Avenue, when about 50 friends and neighbours gathered to offer congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. George Logan (nee Maud Grimpson) who were recently married.

Amusing games and contests were played and Mr. Ernie Ridley led the community singing. Midway through the program the guests of honor were consulted by a prominent position in the living room and Mr. Farnsworth read an address.

To both Mr. and Mrs. Logan replied thanking their many friends and invited them to visit them at some future date. A very delightful lunch was served and a social hour spent, all the close all joined hands and sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and "Auld Lang Syne." Acquaintance be Forgot." The address follows:

Belleville, Ont., Oct. 19, 1939.

Mr. and Mrs. George Logan, Herchimer Avenue.

Dear Maude and George:

We your friends and neighbours have gathered here tonight to extend to you our congratulations on this auspicious occasion and to wish you many happy years together.

George, you have grown up in our midst. Many of us have known you from your early days and at all times we have found you willing to help in all church and community activities.

Having been brought up by parents who possessed qualities you have developed a fine, upright character and we honor you for it.

Although we have not been acquainted with you as many years, Maude, you have kindly and happy disposition has won for you many friends and we are glad to know that you are to make your home with us.

May God bless you both and give you strength to overcome any difficulties that may confront either of you through the coming years.

Poem "Hand in Hand" By Edgar Guest.

Read by Mr. H. A. Walkom.

We've had to bear our sorrows,
Hand in hand and heart to heart,
All the way to brows of snow.
Hand in hand we've met all weather,
Rain or shine, blue sky or gray,
Hand in hand we've shared our joys,
Hand in hand along the way
We'll go bravely faring.

All the way to sunset land.
Hand in hand we've wandered,
Side by side and hand in hand.
Held by Cupid's tether
Once we danced in early May
Hand in hand to remember;
So we'll trip the miles away
From to December.

Let the years go fleeting by!
Stay the sands that fall and fill
Still recalling smile and sigh
Hand in hand behind us.
And though feeble we may grow,
Worn by wind and weather
Till the way to age we'll go
Hand in hand together.

Along with our best wishes we ask you to accept these gifts as a token of our esteem.

Signed on behalf of the friends, neighbours and young people of the community.

CARMEL W.M.S.

The October meeting of the Carmel W.M.S. was held at Mrs. H. Howes.

The President, Mrs. Simmons, opened the meeting with a poem and a hymn followed by prayer. A reading was given by Mrs. Elijah Horton "Etiquette in China." Business part brought before members. Invitations to attend a social evening at the Salem W.M.S. also the W.M.S. of Presbyterian church. Both were accepted. The thankoffering is to be given at the November meeting. Mrs. Chas. Brintnell sang the last verse of a solo filling in her home. Hymn 26 was sung and 79th Psalm was read alternately followed by prayer by Mrs. (Rev.) Armstrong.

Mrs Sidon Homan group leader, took charge opening this part of the meeting with hymn 338 and prayer of Thanksgiving read in unison. Mrs. George Moorman read a poem "October."

Mrs. John Homan and Mrs. Belton Homan gave well prepared talks on the thoughts that appealed to them most in the first chapter of the Study Book "Moving Millions." A closing poem at the last chapter, "I love to meet the common folks who travel the Indian Road" was given by Mrs. Seldon Homan.

A piano solo was rendered by Miss Ruby Howes. Mrs. (Rev.) Armstrong and Mrs. M. Ross gave interesting talks on the Missionary Conference held recently in Belleville which was full of information and a need of deeper consecration was stressed. After hymn 42 the meeting closed with a prayer. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and a social half hour spent together.

Rawdon

Rawdon — Dr. T. B. Nash and Mrs. Nash, Buffalo, N.Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Panning enjoyed a trip over the week-end to Deer Lake where they viewed the fish hatchery where Mr. Ernest Macdonald is assistant manager.

They also paid a visit to Cordova Mines and viewed the new mill filled with gold ore ready to begin operations this week. The ladies each brought home a piece of the gold ore as a souvenir. They report a wonderful trip with beautiful scenery all along the way.

Rawdon friends were sorry to hear of the accident which befell Mrs. Ernest MacDonald and hope she speedily recovers.

Mr. Neil Bedell of Minto quietly celebrated his 85th birthday at his home on Monday. He is still able to be about his farm and in fair health. Rawdon friends extend birthday felicitations.

Miss Edith Hagerman recently enjoyed a visit to Toronto and Tillsonburg.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Sine, Webster, Mich., visited a number of relatives in Rawdon last week.

GIANT LINERS CLOSELY GUARDED

Tip Received Sabotage Planned Against Queen Mary and Normandie

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—A doubled police guard today protected the Queen Mary and the Normandie, largest passenger liners in the world, against possible sabotage.

Squads of 25 police and two sergeants were assigned to day and night pier guard duty after Lieut.-Commander Coddington of the United States Naval Intelligence reported his office had learned one of the two ships would be sabotaged "within the next few weeks."

The $1,235-ton, 975-foot Queen Mary, camouflaged a battleship gray, and the 83,423-ton, 981-foot Normandie, still displaying her bright red funnel, are tied side by side in their Hudson River berths.

Both ships have been retired from passenger service by the war.

The mysterious tip to the Naval Intelligence Department did not say whether an attempt would be made to blow up the vessels, scuttle them or disable their engines.

High police officials made a personal inspection of the ships and assigned squads of detectives to each. Motorists and pedestrians were forbidden to approach the piers. Two police launches patrolled the river to keep harbor craft at a distance.

Only a skeleton crew manned the Normandie, which the marine officials believe has been ordered to remain here until the war is over. Seven hundred crew members still were aboard the Queen Mary. Three hundred others left Monday for England.

WAR EXPERIENCE GRAPHICALLY TOLD BY MISS E. ASH

Exchange Teacher From Collegiate Staff Speaker at Kiwanis Club

LARGE ATTENDANCE

Emotional yet with a tenseness one could feel, Miss Eileen Ash of the Collegiate Institute and Vocational staff told her experience of war to a large attendance of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at the Queen's Hotel on Tuesday, the occasion being Past Presidents' Day with P. C. MacLaurin in the chair. Miss Ash was an exchange teacher in Ireland but the declaration of war changed the plans of the Department of Education and she came back to take her place again on the teaching staff but with an experience that she will always remember. The speaker, professing not to be a public speaker, held her audience spellbound as she recounted the exciting preparations made for war in England and the cooperation given to get a job well done. The appreciation of the club was expressed by A. B. Collins, who hoped that she would see his birth place, London derry, Ireland, in a better light on her next visit to the old land.

Past Presidents' Day.

There were eleven past presidents of the club present including Jack McIntosh, Cliff Saragar, A. B. Collins, P. C. MacLaurin, Joe Inlach, Albert Boynton, George Lee, Eddie Shapiro, Frank Domanico and George Griffin, with P. C. MacLaurin in the chair. The first ballot for the directors of the club for the ensuing year were counted with Albert Boynton, Eddie Shapiro and George Lee as scrutineers and the twenty voted to go on the next ballot were Bill Anderson, Jim Barclay, Bill Cook, Herb Fox, Frank Follwell, George Forbes, George Fordyce, Dr. Jim Forrester, Len Foward, Ted Hughes, Fred Lewis, Bill Lynch, Bruce Lattimer, Jack McVeigh, Herb Mole, Ivan Scott, Harold Seldon, Ron Silver, Jack Trudeau and Morley Wegman. The final ballot will be counted at the next luncheon. More than twenty Kiwanians will journey to Watertown, N.Y., next Tuesday for an inter-club visit leaving by bus early Tuesday and spending the entire day in the United States. A fine program has been arranged for the Belleville club. Earle Ward, Kiwanian of Kitchener and C. O. McLaughlin of Detroit, Mich., were guests of the local club at luncheon and welcomed by the chairman of the meeting. Jack Trudeau collected the fines with Jack McIntosh as song leader and Leo E. Biggs accompanied at the piano.

Introduced By Chairman.

The speaker was introduced by Mr. MacLaurin, who stated Miss Ash had been a teacher at the Collegiate for three years taking her M.A. degree at Columbia University at New York. "Her work has been so entirely satisfactory that she was selected by the Department of Education as an exchange teacher to Ireland and I am sure she has a real story to tell the members of her experience in the war zone," said Mr. MacLaurin. Miss Ash stated she left New York on the Queen Mary on August 9 and there was no talk of war when I landed. "There appeared to be a hangover from the last crisis," said the speaker. "I visited the air raid shelters in London and other preparations for war if it came and then went to Warrington outside of Liverpool. This village is a typical English one and the attitude of the people seemed to be just another job to be done."

Miss Ash stated the war tension began to be felt on August 25 when the radio started announcements of blackouts and evacuations and in passing the speaker stated, "It was just marvellous the way the system worked in the evacuation". The blackout in England and especially London was perfect, in fact it was so good there were many accidents resulting from the blackouts. The speaker declared the day she left for Ireland from Liverpool there were four bombings by the I.R.A. Miss Ash described Ireland as a "beautiful place". "I was in church when war was declared," said Miss Ash, "but the people took the news calmly—and I realized then it would be better to come on home than meeting my exchange teacher. Unfortunately all the passages were booked for weeks ahead but when the Athenia was torpedoed there was lots of room as people were afraid to take the chance."

Had To Accept Arrangements.

The speaker stated that applicants for passage had to accept the company's arrangements and be on call at any time to sail. Going back to London in war time, Miss Ash stated that all preparations were carried out with precision and the balloon barrage around London was a wonderful sight. Miss Ash told her audiences everyone was required to carry a gas mask at all times and one was brought back by her and passed around so the members could examine it. The speaker said the laws were very strict and Germans were not allowed to roam more than five miles from their domicile. Doctors were brought in from the provinces to man the larger hospitals as frightful air raids were expected.

Describing her trip home on the Duchess of Athol, Miss Ash stated the steamer was painted grey and virtic regulations were in force. The Duchess of York was in the same convoy and a torpedo passed between the two boats without striking either ship. Some of the Athenia passengers were aboard and their story of the torpedoing of that vessel was most harrowing. The story was a most interesting one and rapt attention of the members was given every word.

Completing the Picture of a GOLDEN WEDDING

Mrs. Allen Quickfall, of Bridgeport, Ont., had just arranged a huge bouquet of Chrysanthemums, their Golden Wedding Remembrance from assembled children and grandchildren, when the telephone rang. It was a call from Kindersley, Sask., and the voice of Roy, her son, greeted her. What a surprise on such a day! Mrs. Quickfall writes: "We like to pass on to other sons and mothers the value and satisfaction to be obtained through the medium of telephone contacts, particularly so when the dear ones are scattered over the country."

Why wait for a Golden Wedding? Next time there is a family celebration call up by Long Distance. Make it a real surprise. And remember this, it costs so little, you too, will be surprised!

25 MILLIONS FOR RAIL EQUIPMENT

Ottawa, Oct. 25.—(CP)—Preparing for expected abnormal traffic demands, the Defence Purchasing Board has placed contracts with five Canadian companies for about $25,000,000 of railway equipment required by the war emergency.

The orders, which call for construction of 4,575 freight cars and 45 locomotives, are divided between the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway, about $15,000,000 to the C. N. R., and $10,000,000 to the C. P. R.

Announcement of placing the contracts was announced last night by the Defence Purchasing Board. The announcement said the Board has reached an agreement with the five equipment companies regarding basic prices.

The companies to which the orders were allotted were the Eastern Car Company, Trenton, N.S.; National Steel Car Corporation, Hamilton, Ont., The Canadian Car and Foundry Company, Montreal; Montreal Locomotive Works, Montreal, and the Canadian Locomotive Company, Kingston.

Orders Forecast

Placing of the orders for $35,000,000 worth of new equipment was forecast some time ago. At that time a high-ranking official of Transport Department said that the high insurance and ocean freight rates and the scarcity of shipping would make it necessary to haul across Canada all the freight which normally would go from Vancouver through the Panama Canal to Europe.

This source said the railways were equipped to handle business offered "but we want to be prepared for the future. Not only will there be an increase in trans-Canada freight but the volume of freight from Central Canada to Saint John and Halifax for shipment to Great Britain after the St. Lawrence route closes (for the season) is expected also to be abnormal."

Orders Allotted

The orders were allotted as follows:

To the Eastern Car Company—1,075 box cars for the Canadian National.

To the National Steel Car Corporation—10 mail and express cars for the Canadian Pacific, 300 refrigerator cars for the Canadian Pacific, 590 box cars for the Canadian National, 500 box cars for the Canadian Pacific.

To the Canadian Car and Foundry Company—1,100 box cars for the Canadian National, 500 flat cars for the Canadian National, 500 box cars for the Canadian Pacific, 100 auto cars for the Canadian Pacific.

To Montreal Locomotive Works Limited—15 locomotives for the Canadian National, 12 locomotives for the Canadian Pacific.

To Canadian Locomotive Company—10 locomotives for the Canadian National, 13 locomotives for the Canadian Pacific.

ALL FIVE CLUBS IN M.-O. LEAGUE MUCH STRONGER

London Mohawks Appear the Most Improved Team in the Loop

THIRTY RECRUITS

Pontiacs, Winner of Loop Last Year, Loses First Forward Line

By the Canadian Press

New players figure prominently in the lineups of all five clubs in the Michigan Ontario Amateur Hockey League as the training season gets into full swing, London Mohawks seem the most improved club, Detroit Pontiacs the most weakened, and Windsor Chryslers the least changed of the clubs.

Stratford's club has a wealth of new talent turning out, while Detroit Holmbaugh expect to start the season with about the same team as they had last season.

Managers around the circuit predicted today the clubs would be faster than last season and competition likely will be closer. Last year London Mohawks lost a string of games right at the start of the season. Manager Harry Garside's team, now working out at Oail, Ont., includes an impressive list of recruits to make the going tough for any club in the circuit.

30 Recruits at London

London Jubilee Detroit Holmbaugh in Detroit Nov. 6 in an important test of strength. Sammy Pexworthy, a professional with Kansas City coach is back in the amateur ranks. Creighton Lawther, Nova Scottian forward, is expected to add scoring punch to the team. Nearly 30 are working out with Lendins.

Holmbaugh has Joe Turner, formerly with Guelph, Ont., Ontario Agricultural College team, in goal, but there are few other changes. Dait Holmes and Dick Hamby both with the Toronto Native Sons of Canada last season, are out with Holmbaugh.

Pontiacs, who play Windsor Nov. 4, the other half of the double bill, lost the league's all-star line of last year, Leo Douglas, Archie Wilder and Joe Carroll, to the Indianapolis Capitols. But they have some promising recruits including left winger Big Reay, 21, and centreman Herb Barron, both players on the St. Boniface Seals of 1937-38, two Canadian junior championships. Reay was with Calgary Stampeders last season. Barron with Brandon Elks, Senior Manitoba champions.

Thompson Chief Recruit

Johnny Thompson, last season with Hershey in the Eastern League, is the chief recruit for Windsor where most of the players are veterans. A shake-up may come after the exhibition game Friday with Toronto Goodyears.

Stratford is the unknown factor in the league. On paper the team looks much stronger, except that defence strength is needed. Centre players are numerous, including Hank D'Amore a holdover, Smack Allen of Niagara Falls and Bobby Hales of Chatham. Swat Mason formerly of Guelph and Niagara Falls, and Bill Woodward, former Stratford Midget, are likely to play right rims this season.

Governors of the league will meet in Detroit Oct. 30 to make final arrangements for the league's operation.

JOE DIMAGGIO MOST VALUABLE PLAYER IN LOOP

Star of New York Yankees Easily Wins Most Coveted Award

FOXX IS SECOND

Bob Feller, Speed Ball Ace of Cleveland, an Easy Third

By TOM SILES
Associated Press Sports Writer

CLEVELAND, Oct. 25 (AP)—The American League's most valuable player for the 1939 season was Joe DiMaggio, the star of stars on the New York Yankees world championship club.

His selection by a committee of 24 members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America announced here today by Ford Frick, that power dominates the junior circuit.

DiMaggio's past season with the Yanks was the best of his four with the big-time, his bat carving out a .361 marks, tops for the league.

He knocked out 30 home-runs and drove home 126 runs, by far his most brilliant season.

Jimmie Foxx, 20 years DiMaggio's senior, was second in the most valuable award and only once has a pitcher been given the honor—in 1931 when Robert Moses Grove, then of Philadelphia, was the recipient.

Polled High Vote

DiMaggio polled a total of 220 points out of a possible 336, getting 15 first place votes out of 24. Each first place vote counted 14 points, second place votes counted nine points, third place eight points and so down to tenth place which was worth one point.

The Yankee star received four first-place votes, three second-place votes, three third, one fourth and two fifth.

Jimmy Foxx, Boston's slugging first baseman and most valuable player three times already, was second in the voting with 170 points, although only one writer gave him a first place mod. Bob Feller, Cleveland pitcher, collected three first place votes and a total of 156 points for third place.

Ted Williams, Well up

Ted Williams, Boston rookie gardener, and Charles Ruffing, Yankee pitcher, placed fourth and fifth respectively, with 136 and 116 points, but neither was given a first place ballot. Bill Dickey, Yankee catcher, ranked sixth with 101, including three top votes.

Dutch Leonard, Washington pitcher; Bob Johnson, Philadelphia outfielder; Joe Gordon, Yankee second baseman, and Mike Kreevich, Chicago outfielder, rated next in that order with 71, 53, 43 and 38 points respectively. Leonard, who won 20 games for a sixth place club and Kreevich, got one first place vote apiece.

MONTREAL BOXER DECISIVE WINNER

Maxie Berger Punches Out Win Over Norment Quarles at Bronx Coliseum

New York, Oct. 25.—(CP)— It looks like brighter days for Maxie Berger.

The Montreal welter gave new proof of his flistic talents when he punched out a decisive victory last night over Norment Quarles, New York chiropractic student, in an eight- round main bout at the Bronx Coliseum before 10,000.

Maxie's punching shows he has developed into an excellent defensive boxer. Although he lacks a knockout punch, his deft footwork and powerful lefts give him enough to win.

Leo Wyman, Berger's manager now wants to match the Canadian with some top-notch welterweight contender, such as Jerkins, Baby Arimendi, Sammy Luftspring of Toronto, Cal Cagni and Vic Dellicurti.

"Shy" boy is 22 and is reaching his peak." Leo explained.

Berger's style is to keep backpedding, taking blows to the body and as his opponent opens up, counter with his powerful left and right cross.

Eddie Shore to be Absent On All Road Games of Bruins But Team Expected to Win

Only Four Changes Made but Each Replacement is Significant

WEILAND TO COACH

Ross Will Quit Bench for First Time Since He Took Over Reins

By BILL KING
Associated Press Sports Writer

Boston, Oct. 26 (AP)— Since Boston Bruins suffered their way to the Stanley Cup with a comparatively young team, the hockey faithful naturally would expect them to sit tight for 1939-40.

But such is the reverse of what they are going to do. True, they won't make any changes (so far to be exact) but cash is significant.

The most marked difference the Bruins will display on the road during the coming season will be Eddie Shore's absence. The great defenseman, a hockey magnate in his own right, since he purchased the Springfield International-American League club last Spring, will not be seen in action on the road this season.

Eddie's latest contract with the Bruins permits the club to keep him in 18 home games after December 15 as well as all of the postseason conflicts, before making him a free agent next May 1. All of which means that the majority of the National Hockey League fans will have a chance to see competition for the last time.

Ross off the Bench

Second significant item is non-appearance in the other six league games will be Manager Art Ross' absence from all benches, including his favorite perch in the Boston Garden. After all the many years Ross has decided to take a tip from Conn Smythe of the Maple Leafs of Toronto Maple Leafs, and turn the active coaching over to a competent assistant, in his case, the canny Cooney Weiland. Ross' decision to abdicate came about the same time that Lester Patrick elected Frank Boucher assistant manager, to run New York Rangers from the bench.

With Shore unavailable most of the time, the Ross-Weiland forces will have Captain Dit Clapper and the equally rugged Jack Portland as Boston's first line of defence. Such a decision recalled to the minds of old spectators Art Crawford and big Jack Shewbuck, the only newcomers. They fought it out for the Pro-Fessional's last season ago. Those four giants will co-operate in protecting Art Brimsek, and perhaps the most spectacular Brimsekian goalie in hockey history.

Three Speedy Lines

In front of them three seasoned and speedy lines will go about the important business of trying to score more goals than their rivals. The famous Kraut Line from Kitchener", Milt Schmidt, Woody Dumart and Bobby Bauer, Boston's best all-star operate as a unit. So will such playoff heroes as Bill Cowley, Roy Conacher and Mel (Sudden Death) Hill.

Training Camp Briefs

(By The Canadian Press)

Jack Adams is stressing youth for his Detroit Red Wings this season, and the young fellows seem to be clicking in fine fashion. Three of them went to comparative newcomers as the Wings defeated Indianapolis Capitols last night in an exhibition at Niagara Falls, Ont. Gus Giesebrecht, Kenny Kilrea and Eddie Wares each got a tally. Syd Howe kept the locals out of the lead in by scoring the other goal.

Tip to Hector (Toe) Blake of Montreal Canadiens: Watch out Toe, for Syl Apps and Gordie Drillon of Toronto Maple Leafs this season. Both are back in top-flight N.H.L. scoring title won last year by Blake, in the 1937-38 season. Drillon came first and Apps second. They are back in that "one-two" form as they demonstrated last night in each scoring three goals when Leafs split into two squads for an exhibition game at Kirkland Lake, Ont.

Somebody has to come last, but

Paul Thompson doesn't intend it to be Chicago Black Hawks again this season. The Hawks, who lapsed badly last season after winning the league title the year before, displayed a smooth passing attack last night in defeating St. Paul of the American Association 7-1 in an exhibition game last night.

A touch of the "flue isn't keeping little Claude Bourque from his hockey. The 18-year-old Montreal Canadiens centre from Halifax, and Gordon Bruce, 20, a left winger from Ottawa.

BETTY SHOREY TO HEAD GROUP

"Y" Girls' Basketball Team to Function Again in Provincial Competition

Commencing where they left off last spring full of ambition and energy, the Belleville "Y" ladies' basketball team, 1939 L.O.A.B.A. semi-finalists, met for the first time for their organization meeting last evening at the Y.M.C.A.

Following detailed reports of last season's activities the Belleville "Y" girl cagers voted to again enter the provincial ladies' basketball realm in competition in the Lake Shore league that included two teams from Peterborough, Cobourg and Belleville "Y" last season.

The officers of the club elected for the coming year were:

President—Miss Betty Shorey.

Captain—Miss Laura Mabbitcut.

Coach—Jack Dickens.

Sec'y and Manager—J. E. Shorit.

In order to interest more girls and young ladies in playing the present system of basketball, as laid down by the L.O.B.A., the Belleville "Y" girls' team will operate a girls' league with games to be played weekly at the Y.M.C.A. in an effort to develop a number of players or individual players desirous of playing in the proposed series should get in immediate communication with the above officers, or with the "Y".

The initial season practice will be held at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium Monday evening following which efforts to formulate a girls' basketball league in Belleville for city league purposes and general interest into community will take place.

It has been said—"there is safety in numbers"—and also—"the more the merrier". Apparently the "Y" girls' basketball team has not reckoned for the past two seasons in the L.O.B.A. as a single unit feel they need additional numbers if they are to get anywhere in this provincial basketball business. Last night at the "Y" the girls commenced the organization of a city cage league, but need one more team to complete their loop. It has been proposed to operate this city or house girls' league at the "Y" from now until the end of the year and from the roster of this league select the better players to form the Belleville "Y" in the L.O.B.A. next winter.

Generally the outlook of basketball is brighter than has been its lot for the past two seasons. Jack Dickens will again coach the local girls' team, while old and veteran will return to the cage game in the O.B.A. as efforts to place Belleville in the intermediate "A" group of the Ontario Basketball Association are now under way, according to Secretary Joe Shorit of the Sixth avenue playground area as Art Cole, Al Wickerson, Owen Atkins, Herb Barley, Farley Spencer and others are becoming slightly itchy under the basketball bug, who coupled with some of the younger players, who have advanced from the junior ranks, should give Belleville a strong intermediate squad of hoopsters for 1940. Aside from this senior intermediate basketball will be played at the Belleville Collegiate again this season, following three years of the inter-form games. All the intermediate O.B.A. squad desire is an adequate grounds floor, preferably not including three Kingston teams. A Lake Shore group would be quite welcomed in Belleville cage circles.

Saw Ab Hinton, former goalkeeper with the Belleville Bedrock pacesetting briskly down the main thoroughfare last evening in the uniform of the R.C.A.F. Ab recently joined the Air Force and will doubtless be battling for the goalkeeper's position with the Pyrites. Hinton's appearance in the King's uniform gives the airmen three tried and proven goalies—Laurie Gibson, Hinton and a lad from Melville, Sask. And don't forget there are only 90 more shopping days till Christmas.

William Long, a guide at Buck Horn Lake, near Peterborough has had the unique experience of shooting a duck and a partridge at the same time, with the same bullet, recently. While in the company of Mert Chesher, of Toronto, Long spotted a duck on a little pond where a partridge was sitting on a log and, observing that they having a drink. After waiting a bit the duck came near the partridge and just as he did so, at the duck, the bullet going right on and killing the partridge as well.

Frank McCormick and Les Scarsella are even bigger fish now that they're with the Cincinnati Reds, Red farmhands at Beckley in 1936. In 1938 Les reached the Reds and copped the first base job for that season and for 1937. Frank McCormick arrived. He's had the job the two seasons since. But they're both still on the same pay roll.

It is hard to resist the temptation to become slightly facetious when remarking about modern wrestling these days, especially as modern grapplers are such a likeable bunch who do weird things and resort to fair or foul methods in combat, that sometimes the fans wonder just what it's all about. Every once in a while a local challenger looms on the wrestling horizon and it is then that wrestling fanatics can rest assured they are seeing "a shooting match". When Roy Doherty, the Shannonville gaffi, meets Georgee Cheepeta, the Polish lad from Winnipeg, in the preliminary bout of Friday night's three-bout card at the Hume Arena, the fans need not worry about fixed bouts or put up aliases. Doherty is going into the ring to give his all and win if at all possible. The return grudge battle between Tiger Daniels and Pedro Valdez also holds an interesting air from the spectators' viewpoint, because Daniels can wrestle if he will abandon his rough tactics.

Sixto Escobar of Puerto Rico will vacate his bantamweight boxing title and seek Joe Archibald's featherweight crown, manager Lou Brix announced, yesterday. Brix said there was "no money in the class" and he had been unable to get the leading contenders together in an eliminations series. Escobar has beaten Archibald twice in non-title bouts.

Joe DiMaggio, slugging centre-fielder for the world champion New York Yankees, was yesterday named the valuable player in the American League for the second time of 1939. Joe received a total of 290 votes out of a possible 336, topping Jimmy Foxx, the Red Sox first base slugger. DiMaggio also won the American batting crown with an average of .381. Bob Feller was third in the voting and Ted Williams fourth, then came Charlie Ruffing and Bill Dickey, both team-mates of DiMaggio.

SPORT SPICE—Ben Kingdon was voted the most valuable player on the Peterboro' senior ball club this year.... Roy Corbett, former Belleville and Oshawa puncher, is trying out with the Washington Eagles, as is Ken (Artie) Parks of Kingston .... Both are clever forwards and should look title prospects next season. Parks, with Atlantic City last season.... Steve Ford revealed as senior O.R.A. champions this year, defeating Toronto in the finals.... Looks as though Pete Langelle, former Belleville centre-ice player, has ousted Billy (The Kid) Taylor from that coveted position between Conway Schriner and Gus Marker, of the Leafs..... In the eye of Tommy St. John, ex-Belleville Collegiate, Bill Calladine (Peterboro) developed opposite trouble, it is rumoured.... Jimmie Fulford is captain of the O.A.C. grid squad this year....

ATTENTION PARENTS RE VACCINATION AND INOCULATION IN TYENDINAGA

During the past week cards have been distributed to all the parents of Tyendinaga Township by the operation of the teachers. These cards serve a double purpose of obtaining the parents' or guardians' consent and when returned to the school to become a permanent record of the child. This scheme has already been carried out in other townships such as Thurlow and Ameliasburg. The pupils are inoculated against diphtheria and smallpox, and vaccinated against small-pox, free of charge. It is not compulsory on the cards inside. You will, therefore, through your teacher be informed when the medical officer will visit your school, at which time your child may receive the benefit of service. It applies, not only to school children, but any child resident in Tyendinaga over one year of age. Vaccination against smallpox will be started Friday, October 27th. Diphtheria Toxoid will be given during this school year at well as that by antitoxinat all will be protected against small-pox and diphtheria. Scarlet Fever Toxoid will be given the following year and the whole three will then be kept up to date each year.

Please inform your teacher if your child has been ill with any or all of these three diseases or has been immunized against them. It is not necessary for your child to receive the treatment for the disease indicated.

The Board of Health ask your finest co-operation in this public health project to ensure healthier boys and girls in the Township of Tyendinaga.

Toronto Maple Leafs to Bank on Their Youth for 1939-40 N. H. L. Campaign

Veterans Are Scarce on the Leaf's Roster as Manager Glances Over Line-Up

HORNER IS VETERAN

Great Things Expected of Bill (The Kid) Taylor and Walter Stanowski, Who Move Up This Year

By JACK CALDER

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 25 (CP)—Youth has been served almost to the limit in the make-up of Toronto Maple Leafs for the new National Hockey League season.

No matter what players compose the 1939-40 club, the Leafs will have only one who was in the lineup of their last world championship team in 1932. That one is Captain Red Horner, the bruising defenceman who is at present indisposed and nursing an injured foot, however.

Second oldest player in point of service is Reginald (Joe) Hamilton (Pep) Kelly, who came directly to the Leafs from junior hockey for the 1934-36 season. Rep Hamilton and Mick Mosdell, Michael's College star with Kelly but they saw service with Toronto's old farm team at Syracuse before coming to the Leafs to stay.

"It seems like only yesterday that Kelly was signing up" Manager Conn Smythe mused as he watched the Leafs in training at St. Catharines, Ont. "In fact, it doesn't seem much longer since Carmelo Prystai, green, sawhaired youngster on our Syracuse farm, Clarence (Hec) Hec-vey Jackson and Joe Primeau were our famous 'kid line'."

Counts On Youngsters.

Jackson, only other member of the class of '31 who was with the Leafs last season, was traded to New York Americans in the summer. Stars like Gordon Drillon and Syl Apps have been raised by the Leafs since Kelly came along and Sweeney Schriner, Gus Marker and Bucky McDonald have been obtained in sales and trades within the last few years.

But Smythe is counting on a big group of youngsters in his plans for this season. Chief among them is Billy (The Kid) Taylor, centre-ice sensation of Oshawa's Canadian junior championship team last season.

On the defence Smythe hopes he has a great player in Walter Stanowski, son of the St. Boniface team which won the national junior title in 1936. He expects Stanowski to develop into a fine puck-carrier.

As last season ended, Smythe signed Lex Chisholm of Oshawa seniors and Don Metz of Toronto Goodyears to contracts and secured Chisholm finished out the campaign with Syracuse, while Metz played with the Leafs in the Stanley Cup series against Boston. Both these forwards have the fast-skating and fast-thinking attributes Smythe likes in his attackers.

The Leafs' decision to break off relations with Foster Hewitt last year, N.H.L. team with a surplus of players, among them were Bill Brydge and Normie Mann, who have put in considerable terms with Syracuse and brief periods with Toronto but still are green enough to be classed as big-league rookies.

These players and Pete Langelle, who was signed and shipped to Syracuse early this season, are front-rank fighters in the battle for positions with the Leafs this year. Smythe intends to carry more men than the fifteen he is allowed to dress for each game, so unless he gets favorable offers for trades or sales they will be around awhile.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—Jimmy Braddock goes to Baltimore tomorrow to referee Jat Comiskey vs. Alex Wilson, but Uncle Mike Gilain may make that night baseball business official today. Yanks still see-sawing.

Leo Durocher, now in St. Louis, still head coat room scout is not some football and sign a two-year contract at $15,000 per . . . Empire Beau Reardon is back home telling the boys the American League isn't tougher than the National—only a lot luckier.

Being shy of scouts, an eastern college sent its English professor to watch Carmelo Prystai. Now reported: "I'll venture to say Carnegie Tech can look to the next good team they meet."

ARMSTRONG AGAIN WINNER

Los Angeles, Oct. 25—(AP)—Henry Armstrong successfully defended his world welterweight championship in a brilliant 15-round bout with Jimmy Garrison of Kansas City last night.

Armstrong, in his fourth defence of the title he won two weeks, weighed 138¾, and Garrison 139½.

The Little Los Angeles Negro floored Garrison in the eighth and meted out terrific punishment during the next two rounds but failed to add his fourth knockout to a new skein beginning a nationwide barnstorming campaign.

Rookies Used Freely in Rangers' Win

Regina, Oct. 25 (CP) — Rookies were used freely last night in an exhibition hockey game between New York City's Rangers and Regina clubs—Rangers and Amerix. Rangers won the clash 4-3 to go three on their rivals in the Western Canada series.

Representative in a rugged first period, Americans tired badly and the Rangers swept home to run up a 4-1 lead before the second period was over. The two teams were even in the last 20 minutes. Five thousand fans saw the game.

Line-ups: Rangers, Art Coulter, Dutch Hiller, Brian Hextall and Kilby MacDonald; Lorne Carr, Raymond Lorne Carr tallied Americans' first goal late in the second on a pass from Busher Jackson and Chuck Conacher's rebound home Carr's rebound in the third.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

The Woman in Black

By ALICE RICE

The screen door slammed as Dan O'Connell walked heavily out on the front porch. He looked with disfavor on his daughter Mary, crisp and dainty in a fresh white dress, sitting by in the hammock.

"I suppose you're waiting for that good-for-nothing young man of yours."

"If you mean Ted Bramion—yes, I am."

Mary turned fearless young eyes on her father.

"Dad, why do you have to be so suspicious and unfair about Ted?"

"You'll come to no good going about with boys that are above you."

Dan's voice was stubborn.

"You'd just as soon have me going out with Peter Farley, wouldn't you? I suppose he isn't above me!"

"Well—" Dan answered wistfully—"yes. He's one of our own kind."

"He is not. And if I were a man your age, I'd a heap rather have my daughter, if I loved her, with a man like Ted than a man like Peter. I know, I've been out with them. Peter is—horrid."

Dan sat down in a stiff chair close to his daughter.

"Now don't get me wrong, Mary," he said, with an effort at explanation. "He may be all right, in a way. But what does he mean playing around with a poor girl like you? Taking you out every night in that fifty car of his, to these millionaire night clubs?"

Dan's eyes were dark, puzzled, brooding.

"He's not awfully rich, Dad. He's got some money—but he's got a job, too, and he works harder than most of the boys I know. He's ambitious, too, and wants to be a great lawyer. Anyway, we don't always go to expensive night clubs. Sometimes we just ride, and talk, in the car at the beach and sit and look at the water."

"Yeah," answered Dan sourly. "And look at the moon! Did he ever ask you to marry him?"

Mary hesitated a moment.

"No," she said, slowly. "Not exactly. But—"

"Exactly. But" Dan smoked a moment thoughtfully, watching the smoke from his pipe rise slowly on the still, hot air. "Mary, maybe only he's got a wife somewhere and can't. He doesn't think it matters. He doesn't think you matter. I've seen these things happen before, Mary." Dan scraped his chair back against the railing, got up and started away.

"Think it over. Tell your Aunt Maggie I've gone down to the pool hall."

Mary watched her father's upright figure as he walked slowly down the street. Too bad. He wouldn't understand.

Mary knew there were rich young men ready to take advantage of poor young girls. But Ted wasn't that kind.

They had met conventionally enough, really.

Her employer—she was a stenographer for a lawyer—had offhandedly introduced them as they sat at the office.

"Oh, Miss O'Connell," he had said, "this is Mr. Bramion, of Howell and Carvell's. He's got some information I want. Please take it down, and let me have three copies by 10 tomorrow morning."

That was the beginning.

Mary knew Ted loved her—as she loved him.

Just why he hadn't asked her to marry him, she didn't know. But some day, she was sure.

And thinking of Ted, rocking lazily back and forth in the hammock, she forgot her father's warning in sheer happiness.

Suddenly the big gray car drew up at the curb. The engine died, and Mary was by his side.

"At ready," he said, smiling into her eyes. "Look, girl," she took her arms a moment, as he seized her.

"Where'll we go?"

"It's now—it's go to the beach.' I know a swell place there you never taken you. We'll go there and dance a while, shall we?"

It was a surprised mother who found themselves an hour later.

Music of compelling rhythm, figure from a thousand tiny, rainbow-colored lanterns, a floor like glass that caught whatever breeze there was in a sighing wave like an echo of the moon and the roll of the breakers not far away.

Ted and Mary danced and danced.

They never tired.

Then as at a signal back and forth, in the soft lights, his arms guiding her, Mary knew that everything was right.

At one of the tables that fringed the dancing floor, deeper in the shadow of the pines, Mary had noticed a strangely beautiful young woman — dressed all in black, dressed in a way that made Mary's prettily-cut and crisp white frankness seem childish, ineffective. Her eyes were dark and as they followed Mary.

"Mary," said Ted, a little breathlessly, as they took their places at a table near that of the beautiful stranger—they sat so that she faced Mary, but Ted's back was to her—"I've got to tell you something. I shouldn't. But I must—Mary—you know I love you. How much do you love me?"

And Mary was just ready to tell Ted how much she loved him, when the beautiful woman in black came toward her.

Ted, sensing Mary's confusion, turned, then jumped to his feet.

"Katherine!" he cried. "What right have you to follow me—to spoil my life?"

He put his arm protectingly about Mary's shoulder.

But Mary drew away from him.

The woman's eyes, brooding, sad, mocking, moved Mary of her fair-ness.

"Who is she, Ted?" Mary heard her own strained voice asking the question.

The woman answered.

"I am Ted's wife," she said.

Then she took each of them by the hand.

"Come," she went on, softly, slowly. "We mustn't make a scene. Ted, we will take Mary home."

The three got in the car—Mary and Ted on the front seat as usual, the bejewelled woman on the back.

And after interminable hours they reached Mary's home.

It was still dark as Ted helped Mary from the car.

He held her hand a moment, whispered good-by as he watched her stumble up the steps, then hurried into the car.

A second later Mary watched its long gray bulk melt away into the gathering twilight.

She sank into the hammock and rocked slowly back and forth as if she had never left it.

Ted was gone.

He would never come back.

But she didn't blame Ted. Ted loved her. He had told her so. He had wanted her.

The sad, brooding eyes of the woman in black had separated them.

Mary jumped from the hammock. With a shriek of brakes the big gray car drew up at the curb, and Ted sprang from the front seat.

Mary gasped as she saw a woman sitting in the dusky back seat.

"Good for you, Mary," shouted Ted, as he bounded up the steps to her side. Didn't get tired waiting, did you? Sorry I'm late. But my—"

"Ted," Mary whispered, "I can't come with you. Your wife—"

"My wife?"

"There—in the back seat."

"Hey—Mary—wake up. You've been asleep and dreaming. I haven't any wife, you silly girl. But Mary, I'm going to have, soon, aren't I?"

Mary—here's my sister. Just got here tonight. Mary—I told her all about you and she wanted to see you right away. Mary, it's all right with us, isn't it? I mean you—"

"Yes, Ted." Mary patted his hand affectionately. "I do."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop and me went to the concert last night on account of Ma having bought the tickits already and pop not being able to get out of it, and this morning at breakfast ma said, Wasn't it thrilling last night, Willyum? Just imagine, Willyum, Serge Kinisky the world's greatest conductor and Misha Mink the world's greatest chello player, on the same program at the same time, what a treat, she said.

It was all right, but yee gods what a mob, pop said. It was worse than a ball game trying to get out.

FOR CHAPPED SKIN

Hands roughened and chapped by cold winds, harsh soaps, hard water, need the soothing, softening care of Mentholatum. Its cooling, healing medication relieves the pain of chapping, helps prevent infection, and helps skin regain its normal smoothness. Use Mentholatum Stick COMFORT Daily.

MENTHOLATUM

For a while there I thought I'd lost you forever, what the dooce became of you? he said, and ma said, O, I had to stop dead in my own tracks, I saw a sight that might not happen once in a lifetime, I ever. I saw Serge Kinitsky and Misha Mink standing there in the lobby lost in earnest conversation just as though they were ordinery mortals in the mist of all those scathing people. Imagine, I such marvellous geniuses, I'd ot given anything to be a little nearer so I could of hard what they were saying, she said.

Well, I can tell you exactly, because I was pushed up right behind them, pop said, and ma said, Why Willyum how wonderful, what were they saying?

Why, she was saying, Look here, Sasha, I've been meaning to ask you, what do you use to keep your hair out of your eyes while playing? Mink drives me crazy while I'm conducting, he was saying, and Misha said, I use Rickenbacker's dont tell Cesip Yosip the pianist, because I hate that fellow. Do you know where a guy can get some decent beer around here, he said, and Kinitsky said, Sure, s-Smit's Old Brew-ry Hall, and who limberger sandwiches, and that's as You're making that all up and yoc know it.

You cant prove it, pop said.

And he left for his office stil laughing.

Toronto, Oct. 25—(CP)—Mary Valentine, feminine half of the Rossas duo double-trapeze act, is finding out why no other team of aerial artists will do the "stomach drop."

Mrs. Valentine shot down 42 feet from a trapeze to the concrete floor of Maple Leaf Gardens while 13,000 boys and girls watched, at yesterday afternoon's performance of the Sarasota Shrine circus. Her bones snapped in one wrist, and a bone in one heel shattered, the 25-year-old performer said that this was her second fall in a year.

"My husband and I are the only team doing the 'stomach drop.' No body else will do it, but I can't think why not."

19-YEAR-OLD YOUTH IS HELD

Quebec, Oct. 25—(CP)—A 19-year-old youth was held by police today on charges of carrying an offensive weapon and several persons were reported injured in what police described as an early morning election disturbance.

The youth, whose name was not disclosed, was said to have been found in possession of a blackjack.

Officers said they understood street fighting had broken out in downtown Limoilou and St. Sauveur wards and that several shots had been fired.

NEEDS OF CANADA

It is expected this situation will be considerably clarified shortly by consultations by Resources Minister Crerar and Canadian officials with the various British authorities.

Demand for Concentrated Foods

A considerably increased demand is assured for such concentrated food stuffs as bacon and cheese. Great Britain is said likely to import any quantity of butter from Canada, as this is better obtained from the Scandinavian countries in fair quantities. Considerable stores of vegetable oils, used in making margarine, are understood to be held in Britain, too.

The British poultry market, which has been steadily increasing its taking of Canadian poultry in recent years, has been closed to Canada under the British import licensing regulations, presumably because more concentrated foods are desired. The British market for Canadian apples has also disappeared, mainly because of lack of shipping space. On the other hand, a small new market for Canadian onions is looked for in British Malaya, which unless being shipped across the English channel as usual because of shipping hazards.

Stock Accumulated

Britain is believed to have accumulated considerable stocks of timber products, anticipating greater shipping difficulties later on, too, Britain has been doing fairly well in the matter of food buying from distant parts right now, suggesting that nearer Canadian supplies will be left as a reserve. Even meat importations at times. Frozen beef is being taken from the Argentine but some increased demand for Canadian beef is also expected. The wheat situation is far from clear but substantial allied demand is looked for as the year progresses.

Wool production in Canada will undoubtedly increase for domestic consumption, even though Britain will not fill all its own needs in this regard. Flax seed production will be stepped up three or four times next year, to meet the needs of Northern Ireland which is no longer able to obtain its usual supplies from Russia.

EYES OF CANADA

of isolated Chatsworth-Saguenay will not choose their member until Nov. 16.

Premier Duplessis' Union Nationale Party, which he led to victory in the last election in 1936, has eighty-six candidates in the running. Mr. Godbout's Liberals have eighty-five and Mr. Gouin's Action Liberale Nationale fifty-six, while representatives of a half dozen other groups make up the remaining fourteen.

The campaign, opened at Three Rivers Sept. 26 when the Premier called for an election because, he said, his government wished to consult the electorate "questions not which should be brought forward in every democratic but a parliamentary regime," has been a keen one.

Two Issues Raised

Issues raised—conscription and provincial rights—played a lead in the spotlight. In addition, sixty into the campaign of Premier Duplessis, cabinet Ministers, with the assertion they would resign from the government if Mr. Duplessis is re-elected, focussed the attention of all Canada on the contest. Mr. Duplessis, charging Dominion authorities were infringing provincial rights of Quebec, has appealed to the electorate to re-elect the Union Nationale so that Quebec rights will be protected.

"I am for provincial autonomy, first, last and always," he said last night addressing electors in Ste Du La Madeleine near his home constituency of Three Rivers.

In three years, he said, there had been "a growing move towards centralization. This is a step towards abolition of provincial legislatures. That must be stopped and we must protect our right to administer our own affairs in our own way."

Tables Turned on Duplessis

The Dominion Ministers, Justice Minister Lapointe, Postmaster General Power and Works Minister Cardin, have replied that it is Mr. Duplessis not Ottawa, who is threatening Quebec's autonomy.

"Quebec autonomy is safer in the hands of Mr. Power," Public Minister Cardin and others from Quebec in the Dominion cabinet than in the hands of Duplessis," Mr. Lapointe said last night at Quebec.

Mr. Godbout, Premier for a few months in 1936 before the Union Nationale ended 4 years of general rule, has declared Mr. Duplessis raised Federal issues because he "dares not come before the voters of Quebec with the issues of administration of the province."

His appeal has been for a return to power of "the safe and sane" governments we gave the province for forty years".

Reform Platform For Gouin.

Mr. Gouin, seeking election on a reform platform, has charged both today and yesterday that Duplessis is being "slaves of the trusts". He has asked for election of a majority of members to give his party the balance of power.

"The future of the French-Canadian race is at stake," he said last night in an address in Montreal, adding that the only party to guarantee "your economic liberties" is the A.L.N.

The parties have agreed in their stand against conscription. Mr. Duplessis has charged, however, that a vote for Godbout is a vote for conscription while Mr. Godbout and his colleagues have declared that a Liberal government at Ottawa will never adopt conscription.

Mr. Gouin has said that an A.L.N. government would sever the Confederation Pact before accepting unilateral participation in the war or conscription in Quebec.

Campaigning today Mr. Duplessis has pointed to the record of his administration which, he claims, is a ground for re-election. Replying last night to the criticism of his opponents that he has increased provincial debt, he said "our government has done more for the province than any other administration in 40 years of Liberal rule".

Borrow to Build

"We borrow to build up the province, not to betray it," he said and pass out money to friends of the Government as the Liberals formerly did." In three years, of power, he said, his Government has built highways, paid higher salaried wages through fair wage acts, improved conditions for forest workers and built long-needed roads and bridges throughout the province.

Mr. Godbout has promised collective bargaining, the right of free organization to workmen and the establishment of a Department of Labor, aided by two magistrates to whom industrial disputes could be referred.

Farmers would receive "many benefits" he said and cooperatives under Liberal rule, he said. The party platform also includes reform on production of butter, cheese and livestock products, rural credit assistance, public health activities and improved marketing facilities for farm products.

The Action Liberal Nationale would also assist industry, mining, agricultural resources such as mines", abolish the Padlock Act and create a labor tribunal.

"We intend to fix the supremacy of the workingman's salary over dividends," Mr. Gouin said last night. "Capital has its rights but labor should not only draw wages, but also have the right to participate in accumulate."

Mr. Duplessis was the only leader of any party in the last legislature. Mr. Godbout, defeated in 1936 by only 1,000 votes, and Mr. Gouin, who did not take part in that election, is running in Montreal Mercier.

All Participate

Mr. Duplessis, Mr. Gouin and the three Dominion Ministers participated in last night's winding meetings with Mr. Lapointe making no formal meetings but visited his constituency at Kamouraska.

"I have no fear of the verdict of the voters," he said. "I am grateful to old constituents in his final address. Although he had "to fight for the Province" and the Federal Liberal organization, I am not afraid to fight," he said.

Mr. Gouin, who spoke six times during the day, concluded his campaign by telling his constituents that A.L.N. opponents already had announced that they would need to hold the balance of power in Quebec.

Attacking the trusts he warned that "if this may be the first time in Canada's history that the hands of the economic dictatorship which has been established in the province will be strangled, it is not too long a time."

Mr. Power, Mr. Lapointe addressed three meetings in Quebec where the Ministers' activities have been a subject of stand for Canada. X represent true national unity and not the "hatred" sown by Mr. Duplessis."

Mr. Cardin, who addressed three Montreal rallies, said that Quebec electors must decide whether the province was to be "coaxed" or if its people were to "move about with their heads high and their arms."

If the Duplessis Government were re-elected and Quebec decided to be "isolated from the rest of Canada," Mr. Cardin said, "you would have no say in Dominion questions, you would have only your little corner, your reserve."

Daily War Survey

the German side and the Allies found it easy to move forward and take positions close to the main defence lines of Germany. Now the enemy is showing more activity.

A series of attacks of French advance positions and the hauling of much material and more troops by the enemy to the front carried a threat of a major attack. Having regard to the time of the year and the weather, it was probably considered it expedient to fall back to the real French defence positions.

These positions are healthier in battle and more comfortable in winter than the positions occupied on the German side of the boundary up against strong, well organized French emplacements. Some of the experiences of the first Great War when wet ground was churned into a sea of mud by an artillery barrage the French command no doubt resolved that if anyone were to be caught in mud it would be German and not French troops.

2 NAZI SHIPS

Sixty-three East Indian seamen were reported missing. The Clan line, owners of the ship, said: "We understand that only seventeen of the native crew of 80 have been rescued. All the European officers were saved."

Concerning the three ships sunk off Gibraltar, an official announcement yesterday said the ships were sunk "after being fired upon". Information received by Lloyds' list surface raiders had sunk the vessels.

Greek Steamship Captured

The Greek steamship Konstantinos Hadjipateras, carrying scrap iron from Boston to the Tyne, was torpedoed in the North Sea yesterday, assertedly while in convoy.

At Trondheim, Norway, a British seaman related that his ship, the 5,044-ton Blonegate, was sunk by the Deutschland. The warship picked up 36 survivors, he said, and later cruised the North Atlantic for one night in the City of Flint.

Norwegian officials said the American freighter Mormacsun had been captured by the cruiser Emden, but admitted the possibility both the Deutschland and Emden were involved.

Berlin dispatches remarked that no matter how many a blockade it always was possible for the Nazis to slip out into the dark stormy nights.

The Deutschland said it had "no present confirmation" that the Deutschland had violated the British blockade, but previously conceded the possibility the Admiral Scheer, the Deutschland's sister battleship, might be Germany's only pocket battleship.

Strike Chard of Memories

The names Deutschland and Emden strike a chord in the memories of 1914 and 1916.

The Emden slipped past a British patrol out of the Tsingtao harbor and began raiding unarmed allied vessels before the Australian warship Sydney caught her by shell fire three months later.

Britain quickly subdued the 1914 battleship Deutschland, but reports during the by the end of that year only one of the Deutschland's escorts and two of five armed merchant cruisers remained afloat.

Two years later, still battling for access to the seas, Germany sent a second Deutschland into battle, the Deutschland, to the United States, which brought protests from Berlin ages, but on her second homeward trip was captured by the Royal navy.

IL DUCE QUIETLY

Strengthens Position

If Mussolini really makes this move, his aim will be to safeguard Italian interests in the Balkans and thus to seize the opportunity of Russia's absorption in the Balkans.

Rumors certain that Mussolini is a happy man to see what looks like a chance to ease the bonds of his country-Germany.

From first hand investigation in Rome, the Intelligencer learns not so long ago it is my belief that the Italian Foreign Minister was in possession of convenience and not inspired by any affection.

Recent events in Italy were certain that if Germany went to war Italy would be forced into military support. The belief was strong that Mussolini would break away from the Berlin-Rome axis when a favorable opening occurred.

This idea was strengthened by the vigorous manner in which Hitler suppressed the "Anschluss" movement regarded as his special zone of influence. There was every indication the Nazi chief was aiming at dominating the Balkans and the eastern Mediterranean.

Similar Ambitions.

Now comes Russia with similar ambitions. Thus far Mussolini has refrained from action and is likely to embracing the Communists. May-31.32. Marshal Balbo's newspaper Il Corriere Padano spoke from inside information when it flatly declared that Fascists were "born anti-Communists and are determined to remain."

All in all, this would seem to be an opportune moment to try to make a Balkan bloc under the guidance of Italy. There is small doubt, though they are, have taken to cover in the fact that Foreign Secretary Chamberlain and their inclination as a whole is to stick together for protection.

A possible weak spot in the scheme is the fact that Italy has designs on Balkan affairs, long has dictrated Mussolini's expansion program. I was told in Ankara that the Turks feared if Duce more than Hitler, because of the fact that Mussolini was aiming to annex Irish lands in Turkey's eastern district.

Form Powerful Block

However, when this distrust has been ironed out there would seem to be no insurmountable obstacle to the formation of a powerful bloc. Russia has been making overtures to Italy with Russia recently, in the hope of regaining territory she lost to Italy. There was a strong link between Bulgaria and Italy in the fact that King Boris married princess Giovanna, daughter of the Italian King Emmanuel.

The total armed strength of an Italo-Balkan bloc would be considerable if properly combined. Apart from Italy's fighting machines of land, air and water (which includes some 1,500,000 soldiers actually under arms) the Balkan states would be able to put into the field on short notice perhaps 2,500,000 trained troops, with millions of potential reserves.

Forging Unity of Powers

Budapest, Oct. 25—(AP)— The presence of Russian troops on the Polish side of the Carpathian Mountains and facing Hungary and Hungary, Yugoslavia and Italy to the west may make a powerful combination in southeastern Europe, it was indicated in authoritative circles today.

It was said authoritatively that the three materialize any threat of a Russian advance into Bukovina, the former Austro-Hungarian Province which Hungary occupied last March, Hungary would have the aid of Italy and Yugoslavia, it became necessary for her to take action.

Theft quarters said Hungary had received assurances from Italy and Yugoslavia.

Hungary, an anti-Communist country since the Red rule of Bela Kun in 1919, it was said, is determined to make the Carpathians a barrier to any further advance of Communism.

This objective, it was said, is supported by Italy and Yugoslavia, the Axis Powers, the other strongly anti-Communist.

No Clear Indication

It also was said authoritatively that should there be a further invasion of the Rumanian Province of Bessarabia, Hungary probably would be impelled to march to the Carpathian Range in that country—through the Rumanian Province of Transylvania.

So far, there is no clear indication that such a threat, to Ruthenia or Bessarabia, exists. Rumania has received official assurances that Russia does not intend to make any move against her, and the Russian press has been subdued in its tone for more friendly relations with Rumania.

But Red troops in considerable numbers have been reported across the border from Ruthenia. Hungary populated by Ukrainians such as inhabit the southern part of Poland.

New tension also has been reported in Rumania, where it was reported by political circles that "important developments are imminent in the Balkans." King Carol's return from Hungary and Turkey were summoned home for consultation.

Mayor J. Bone Declines to Run For 3rd Term; Will Now Devote Energies to Dominion Politics

Says Mismanagement, Apathy and Much Talk With No Action Dominates Political Situation in Country

STATE OF DEMOCRACY

After holding the Chief Executive's office of the City of Belleville for the past two years, His Worship Mayor Jamieson Bone announced today he would not be a candidate for a third term. Mayor Bone, in a statement to the Ontario - Intelligencer, intimated he would devote his time and efforts to Dominion politics in the future.

In commenting upon the forthcoming Municipal election, however, His Worship said—

"We are now within appreciable distance of our annual municipal election and a word to the public who control the distribution of these honours might be in order.

"I have had a number of ideas to be brief and thus in future there might be changed for the better, and these ideas have received quite a favorable response from people I wish for. Unfortunately however this continent from Halifax to Vancouver to Panama seems to be thoroughly steeped in apathy, lethargy and inertia, and until the public can be mostly talk and no action, and mismanagement," contended His Worship.

"Virtue has no reward and indeed the opposite holds true in many instances. It does not encourage thrift, industry and initiative and our legislation tends more and more to socialism and such as closing government house. Bureaucracy, bureaucracy, dignifying the property owners and killing the building and other businesses. The railway mess is purely lack of guts in both parties and laws recently enacted are as ludicrous as to be laughable. The Hydro Electric and Succession Duty legislation of this province equal anything in Russia for disregard of individual rights and generally speaking our whole democratic system as practised on this continent is rotten and in process of disintegration — and over, His Worship said—

"I would like to see our best and most intelligent citizens elected to the various offices of government, but more and more we are electing unbusinesslike citizens and the result is as one would expect.

"For the two years I have been devoted towards changing our vicious system of government, but

The Stars Say

A MODERATELY lively state of affairs is read from the predominant lunar aspects. This applies to the development of new ideas and projects rather than old, although the resolute application of fresh initiatives and renewed energies may accelerate certain static conditions.

Those whose birthday it is may have a fairly lively and constructive year should they care to apply themselves in launching new plans and objectives, rather than indulging energetic impulses to romance, courtship or the pursuit of pleasure or personal happiness. In promoting commonplace plans or propositions, the advice and support of elders may be forthcoming.

A child born on this day may be endowed with much skill, ingenuity, energy and initiative, which it may be disposed to exert in personal or romantic indulgences, unless its elders use their power to give it proper perspective.

TRENTON and DISTRICT

High School Sports Club

Trenton, Oct. 25 — (Special) — One day last week the sports minded students of Trenton High met after schools and formed an athletic organization with a purpose of encouraging every type of good clean sport during the remainder of the 1939-40 session. It is understood that special emphasis will be put on sitting, badminton and girls' hockey. The latter pastime is something new in these parts and should be a worthwhile watching, at least for the fun of it all. The club was divided into four groups and leaders were chosen to preside over each. They are: Thelma Beale, Geraldine Nolan, Pat Gorrill and Frieda Ulsashe. Among the most important things talked over at the meeting was the arrangements for the Halloween party which is being held this Friday evening in the auditorium of the school. In addition the executive suggested a hike for November 4th, and proposed that Miss Townsend head the trail busters.

Students Council Meeting

The committee to handle the High School's annual Hallowe'en shindig met here last night when the party was selected the other day when the Students Council held a meeting following classes. In charge of the program is Ruth Gory, refreshments; Marvel Campbell, music; Bob Armstrong, the elite. Dancers will glide to the tunes of the Topsiders of Belleville. As usual the hall will be decorated to represent the autumn season.

Theatre Nears Completion

Trenton's second theatre on Dundas Street rapidly nears completion and workmen have started to prepare the floor for the cement. The building which was the home of the Ford Garage has taken on a different aspect since construction commenced some weeks ago. The front has been changed entirely, while the rear of the building has been extended somewhat. Openings which were once windows have been bricked in and the structure is definitely different all around. In fact one would hardly know the place since the renovation.

Hayfield Hurt

Trenton High have lost the services of Norman Hubert Hayfield who has acted as a real stumbling block for attacking opponents all season. Campbell reports a strained shoulder ligament in the game between C.I.D.'s and the locals here Friday. When the damage was checked up it was found that treatment and remained sore school officials decided to keep Campbell out of the match at Albert College today. The home squad do not expect halfback Reg Weeks to be in the line-up when the whistle blows to start the game this afternoon. According to advice Weeks had to leave town without cancel and will start back in time for the big tussle.

START THURSDAY

Malone was paying little attention to Mike's story. "Wish, listen! Could there be more than one pretty blonde from Pretty, Kansas, working at the Inferno?"

"I shouldn't think so. What's the idea?"

"Because she...the nice old lady ....said her daughter was married to somebody down in South America. Wish, do you suppose that could have been Iris?"

Wish was vague in his answer. And Mike was completely rapt in her daughter.

"Come, Skipper, you must be getting home. Handsome may be telephoning."

x x x

Wish Malone had disappeared. Mike learned that fact three days before the World's Series between the Yanks and Chicago opened. Although she did not know it at the time, he had been gone five days. In the general excitement nobody seemed to miss the white-haired Yankee scout. Nobody, that is, except Mike. She telephoned the club office repeatedly, getting only non-committal replies from Miss Worden. At his hotel there was always the same answer: "Mr. Malone is out of town for a few days."

But Mike just had to talk to Wish. She had rented the apartment next to hers for Mr. Regan; she had arranged to have her vacation coincide with the World's Series. Still no word of Wish.

"He couldn't desert us now when we need him so!" she thought out loud. Mystified, she took the matter up with Larry Regan and tried to appear casual about it.

"Have you seen Wish lately?" she asked one night as they were having dinner at her apartment.

"No," grinned Regan, "I think he's fallen off the wagon after twenty years."

"You aren't serious, are you?" Mike was really alarmed at the thought.

"Sure! He's celebrating those eleven games I won. You don't know what that meant to the old boy. It sort of vindicated him with Mr. Crisp."

Mike refused to believe any such story. "He wouldn't do that with the Series just three days away!"

Handsome changed the subject with a cheerful, "Guess what I brought you? It's here in my pocket."

Mike left her chair and went around the table to his side. Handsome pulled her down, holding her while he fumbled in his vest pocket.

"There!" He slipped a ring on her third finger. "I wish it on, darling!"

Mike speechless, looked at the ring. It was a gorgeous star sapphire; the overhead light poured into its blue depth, illuminating the white star that shared there.

Handsome watched her face, both beaming with happiness. It was a long time before Mike could respond.

"Darling, I can't take it."

Regan ignored the remark.

"I should never have given you a diamond, Mike. That's not your stone. You're the star sapphire type, Skipper. It was just made for you, that ring. Came right out of the ground with your name on it!"

Mike touched the stone lovingly, but did slip it off, but he would not allow that.

"Just who won those eleven games, anyway?" he demanded, laughter in his voice. She could not answer him, for her throat was choked with tears. With both arms around her, he tried to make her understand.

"I'm not much on talk, Skipper. But if it weren't for you, I'd be sitting on a park bench without a dime.

When Mike tried to speak he put his hand over her lips. Larry did not seem to notice that Mike Ladwent down to the Battery first where the sight of the Statue of Liberty recalled to Mr. Regan his honeymoon trip, many years ago.

It was not until they stood at dinner on top of the Empire State Building and looked down across New York that Mike knew that Mr. Regan again spoke of his wife.

"You've taken her place with Larry, I'll never forget what you did for my boy."

"Hnd, Mr. Regan."

"No. He couldn't have accomplished what he has without you." Mr. Regan paused for a moment. "I wanted you to know how I felt. I hope things will be all right for you and Larry some day."

They rode back down to Mike's apartment through the twilight which was deep purple. She brought all the afternoon newspapers at the corner near the apartment. Mr. Regan went to his apartment to rest before dinner.... Mike paced the little sitting room next door. What had Wish done with Iris? She glanced through the papers. There was nothing. Just stuff about the game and pictures of Malone 14 inches deep.

It was almost seven when Handsome telephoned: "Don't worry, I'm fine. I'm with Ace." His voice reassured the girl. "I'll be home for dinner with you and Dad. You take him to some nice place. I'm staying with Barnes; will see you and Dad tomorrow!"

x x x

There was no sleep for Mike that night. Next morning things were no better. She was so nervous she could have screamed. Handsome telephoned about nine o'clock. His father answered, for Mike was downstairs at the mail box. She was hoping there would be some written word from Wish. It was awful not knowing what was going to happen when so much threatened.

Handsome did not talk long, and Mr. Regan was up before Mike came back. She was so restless, she suggested that they leave early for the ball park, have lunch near the park, and not have to worry about the last or subway jams.

It's for two hours, Mike and Handsome's father is marooned in the crowds, come spilling up out of the subway and rush for the stadium. Handsome Larry, Regan's name was on all lips. His Yankee team was a heavy favorite for the first day's game just because he is a pitching. When Mike heard Mr. Regan finally took their box seats in back of the Yankee dugout, her tension of the morning left her.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King Praises Quebec Electorate for Determination to Stand With Fellow Canadians in War

Quebec, Oct. 26 (CP)—Liberals under Hon. Adelard Godbout made ready today to take over the administration of Quebec's affairs and to co-operate with the Federal government in which four of the province's native sons hold ministries.

The will of the province's voters to go along with Godbout in his promised "safe and sane administration" and to back the stand on war part Dupiessis of its Federal ministers was expressed yesterday in an avalanche of votes that gave the Liberals to the legislative assembly in the ancient Capital.

Premier Maurice Duplessis found his Union Nationale representation —71 when he called a general election a month ago—reduced to 16. One Independent and one National candidate made up the total of 88 who were counted in after the polls closed. One constituency—Charlevoix-Saguenay—votes Oct. 30.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Meteorologists know that holes shelter warmth by radiation, that in the cold winter we leave the house, also by cracks in walls, windows and doors. Cold air gets in and warm air out by these routes. Strangely enough it has been found that a brick walls 13 inches thick are not air-proof. Air can be forced through them, the amount depending upon the force of the wind. Much of this may be prevented by a good coat of plaster on the inside, and less air will get through if the brick wall was built kindly in the beginning, that is, all spaces between the bricks filled in with mortar. Look after all cracks. Storm windows and doors will cut down radiation. This provision, together with weather stripping, makes it more difficult for cold air to get in and warm air to get out.

Quebec Victory Viewed As Emphatic Vindication of Parliament's Decision To Participate in War

Ottawa, Oct. 26 (CP)—Federal Liberals and Conservatives alike today viewed the Liberal landslide in the Quebec election as an emphatic vindication of parliament's decision that Canada should participate in the war against Germany.

Government supporters were jubilant at the result, acclaimed the defeat of Premier Duplessis' Union Nationale government as a victory for Canadian unity and likewise congratulations on their political coupon of French-Canada—Justice Minister Lapointe, who led the Federal Liberal attack in Quebec.

Political opinion generally interpreted the Liberal win as a personal triumph for Mr. Lapointe and probably his greatest achievement in 30 years of public life.

A tense Capital received the election results last night and both Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Opposition leader Manion issued statements regarding the vote.

The Prime Minister said: "The results at the polls have shown above all else that the people of Quebec are one with the rest of low Canadians of the other provinces in their determination that a united Canada shall co-operate at the side of Britain and France in the war to defend freedom and resist aggression."

No stronger evidence of Canadian solidarity in support of Britain and France could possibly have been given than that afforded by the overwhelming defeat of the Quebec administration he stated.

PLENTY OF FOOD FOR FRENCH POILU

Two Hot Meal Dishes Daily With Vegetables, Coffee, Fruit and Red Wine

(By Manuel Chaves Nogales Havas Staff Writer).

Paris, Oct. 26 (Havas)— A visit to the front has just convinced this correspondent that the French government believes the old adage about an army marching on its stomach.

There is for instance, the little matter of red wine—500,000,000 gallons of it—in reserve for the poilus. The soldiers are not going to be left dieting during this war.

Two hot meat dishes daily, with potatoes and fresh vegetables and plenty of coffee, fruit and wine with a variety of fruits, round out the average diet of the Poilu, all washed down with a plentiful portion of vin rouge.

With the aid of the Red Cross and the patriotic co-operation of the French people, fighting men are lacking very little in the way of good living. In rail and dugout Cigarettes and tobacco are plentiful and can be obtained at Red Cross canteens.

During the first weeks the French postal authorities had difficulty in full reorganizing their mail service, but today the flood of letters that poured from millions of homes to the millions of men at the front.

Despite strict censorship the mail service is first and every one in the front can know almost daily how things are going back home. The censors do their work behind the lines and there is little or no delay.

The government has provided all sorts of facilities for marriages. Although the usual 15 days for publishing of the banns still required according to French civil law, the man at the front can be married by proxy. All he has to do is give notice of his consent in the presence of his commanding officer.

Severing of Nerves in Back Gives Complete Relief from Angina Pectoris

Chicago, Oct. 26 (AP) — A new and that "all have obtained complete relief."

Angina pectoris (Latin for quinsy of the heart) is severe pain, common among men than women and more frequent in adults, although unusual before the age of 45.

It is widespread among persons having nervous, emotional or depressing mental disturbances. The attacks are characterized by excruciating pain or short duration, usually in the chest, and are accompanied by fear of impending death.

U. S. DEMANDS CITY OF FLINT BE RETURNED

U. S. Wants Ship and Cargo Handed Back to American Crew

Freighter Remains at Murmanak Pending Verification Says Tass Agency

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP—Secretary Hull announced today the American government has demanded of Soviet Russia the return of the City of Flint and her cargo to her American crew.

The demand, Hull said, was presented by Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt and no reply has yet been received.

The American demand, he said, was based on the United States conception of international law on the subject.

The crew of the Flint was earlier reported to be safely aboard the ship in Murmask.

Berlin, Oct. 26—(AP)—A German spokesman indicated today that the United States demand for return of Flint, seized by Germans and taken to the Russian port of Murmask, would be brought to Germany as a prize.

"The German prize crew will get aboard again and you may rest assured the ship will not be headed for the United States," he said.

Authorized German sources said the case of the American ship had been clarified between Germany and Russia.

He said Russian officials had recognized that the City of Flint sought refuge in Murmansk because she was unseaworthy and, therefore, would be permitted to

Russian Modified Demands On Finland Still Contain Points To Which Finland Objects

Helsingfors, Oct. 26 (AP) — An authoritative source declared today that Soviet Russia has modified her demands on Finland still contained points on which Finland refused to budge.

After Dr. Juro Paasikivi had spoken for an hour today with President Kyosti Kallio, Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko and Prime Minister Aimo Cajander, a foreign office spokesman said there was "no doubt" negotiations with Russia would be continued and that the Finnish delegation headed by Dr. Paasikivi would go to Moscow for a third time.

Dr. Paasikivi and the entire delegation returned to Helsingfors this morning, bringing the new demands with them.

This was the second time the Finnish envoy had been to Moscow without reaching an agreement with Russia on still undisclosed issues.

Some observers expected the latest Russian demands would be communicated immediately to the governments of Norway, Denmark and Sweden.

Reports from Moscow that Russia had demanded the Aaland Islands fortified, thereby giving Germany control over other islands in the Gulf of Finland and that the Finnish government maintained a "reserved attitude" toward Russia were described by the Finnish source today as "just as unfounded as all others".

Twenty Russian submarines, meanwhile, were reported bound for the harbor of Tallinn, Estonian seaport capital, across the Gulf of Finland from this country. The Russian navy has been ordered to reserves off their new bases in Estonia and Latvia for the past few days, these reports said.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

The presence of German surface warships on the high seas was evidenced by the seizure of the American freighter City of Flint impossess a heavy task on the Royal Navy, the world's hunting fast well-armed vessels over the seas of the world.

Destructive as they are, submarining present less of a worry than surface vessels. They cannot travel so fast nor. so far. When located they can be attacked with impunity by destroyers.

The pocket battleship Deutschland however might be a lot of damage before being located and sunk.

While the City of Flint was seized in the North Atlantic, further operations of the Deutschland and any other surface ships of the German navy may be expected in other quarters. Despite its armament and speed it will not be healthy for the Deutschland to strike more than once in the same area.

In the first Great War German raiders, notably the Emden, put the Royal Navy to considerable effort and cost before they were destroyed. At that time the German authorities valued their operations less for the actual damage they inflicted than for the fact that they kept British ships busy hunting them which would otherwise have been concentrated in the North Sea and for their terroristic effect.

A blow here and a blow there was considered helpful in undermining the prestige of Britain's naval power and for every ship actually destroyed while the raiders were afloat a number were frightened into remaining in port.

British Refute German Claim to be able to Build One U-Boat Each Day

(By Pierre Maillard, Havas Staff Writer

London, Oct. 26—(CP)—(Havas) British naval authorities now are convinced that Germany's submarine warfare, even if greatly intensified, will not seriously affect British commerce nor disrupt Great Britain's essential supply lines.

The principal basis of Germany's claim that it can disrupt empire trade is its alleged ability to turn out about a submarine a day in the shipyards of the Reich — a claim challened by naval experts who declare that a similar claims in 1917 when actual production did not exceed about ten U-boats a month.

Record by 1918

Despite this rate of production, the U-boat menace was almost eliminated by the middle of 1918, to the extent that the German general staff contemplated a new sortie by its grand fleet which had retired to the Kiel Canal following the Battle of Jutland.

Admitting that Germany's industrial means of production have been increased since the last war, although this may be stimulated with respect to naval construction

N. B. ELECTIONS ON NOVEMBER 20

Premier Dysart in Power Since June 1935—39 Liberals and Five Conservatives in Present Legislature.

Fredericton, N.B., Oct. 26 (CP)—Premier Dysart announced today provincial election will be held in New Brunswick Monday, Oct. 30. The province's last election was in June, 1935. In the present legislature Liberals hold 39 seats and Conservatives five. There are four vacancies.

In his election announcement Premier Dysart said that the mandate of New Brunwick's Liberal government will be due to expire in a "few months."

The election campaign "would be most inopportune in the Spring or Summer months of next year when our every effort should be directed to other matters," he said. "In consequence the government has decided to seek at once a renewed mandate."

"It is apparent now that an early election is inevitable, for which reason it is expected," continued Premier Dysart. "Britain is preparing for a war of at least three years' duration. Canada stands pledged to see the struggle through to the end.

The direction of our war effort is primarily the responsibility of the Dominion Government," he said. "We, in this province, however, can in many ways lend assistance. Two weeks past, in consultation with the Federal authorities, the members of this government have been occupied with the formulation of plans which will ensure that the resources of our province will be utilized to the fullest extent for the purposes for which we are embarked.

"Industrial and munitions effort will be essential to the successful carrying out of our plans. We must take steps to ensure that the work will go on without break or interruption."

Hitler Orders a 'Hate-Campaign' To Start Against Great Britain

District Leaders Called to Conference Last Week-end to Receive Instructions

GOEBBELS GIVES SPEEL

(By Edmond Hunisbachler Havas Staff Writer).

Zurich, Switzerland, Oct. 26 (CP-Havas)—An informant whose knowledge of Nazi activities in the Reich is unquestionably authoritative said today that Adolf Hitler discussed with district leaders during their conference last week end plans for stirring up a "hate-campaign" against Great Britain.

Hitler, he said, told his subordinates that Germany must now devote a determined effort to this campaign and that the time has come to teach England "a severe lesson."

Reports from other sources reaching neutral Switzerland seem to indicate the informant's assertion.

CONTRABAND LIST ISSUE IS RAISED BY SOVIET RUSSIA

What Blockade Has Meant to Germany is Disclosed in Report

BRITISH REPORT

London, Oct. 26 (CP)—Russia's objection to the British contraband list raises once more the question of how far belligerent nations may go in pinching off enemy supplies while avoid infringing on the rights of neutrals.

Professional lawyers have pondered statesmen have quibbled and diplomats explained without providing a conclusive answer. There are sizable libraries on the subject.

What the blockade has meant thus far to the enemy was disclosed by the report delivered to parliament yesterday by Britain's Minister of Economic Warfare, Ronald Cross. In the first six months of hostilities, he reported, 338,000 tons of suspected contraband consigned to Germany were detained. During the last week, 126 ships were held up for examination.

Mr. Cross emphasized that disputes with neutral nations were being undertaken in a "friendly spirit" through diplomatic channels to ease their shipping problems arising from the blockade. Delegations from Iceland, Sweden, Holland and Belgium are in London to discuss these questions.

The sub of the contraband question is the character of Britain's contraband list. In the official list contraband is classified as absolute and conditional.

Fuel is listed with arms and ammunition and all similar outright implements of warfare on the absolute list. The conditional list includes "all kinds of food, foodstuffs, feed, forage, and clothing and ar-

English 'Tommies' Have Comfortable Billets Though Country is Sea of Mud

With the British Expeditionary Force somewhere in France, Oct. 26—(CP—Reuters)—A small sitting room, the wallpaper a profusion of British pink roses and the floor covered with a greyish whitewash, with the entire floor space deep in straw—this is the typical home of members of the infantry platoon section immediately behind the front line held by Great Britain's Expeditionary Force.

There are neat individual piles of blankets, surmounted by khaki greatcoats and steel helmets. Each pile is flanked by a rifle. In such surroundings the men rest and eat until the basic unit on which the strength of the British army rests.

Correspondents visited such a home today. It was part of a cottage adjoining what used to be a baker, and is now the headquarters of "B" Company of the "Nth" Battalion of the "Homeshire" Regiment. In that little room the men will be sleeping young men, who are holding part of the British front.

No Words are Strong Enough To Express Detestation of German U-Boat Attacks

Statement Made by Prime Minister Chamberlain in Giving Weekly Report to Parliament on Progress of War

READY FOR CHALLENGE

Dismisses von Ribbentrop's Effort to Pin Blame for War on Britain as Unworthy of Comment and Filled With Distortions of Truths

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 26—(CP Cable) — Prime Minister Chamberlain today dismissed Joachim von Ribbentrop's effort to pin blame for the war on Great Britain as unworthy of comment and filled with distortions of the truth.

The whole world knew the Nazi Foreign Minister was wrong when he declared in the Danzig speech last Tuesday that it was Britain and not Germany which had refused and plotted war, the Prime Minister told the House of Commons in his weekly "war report."

"The whole world knows that no Government ever sought more ardently to avoid war or took greater risks to preserve peace than the Government of this country," Mr. Chamberlain said.

"We have already published with complete frankness all essential documents relating to the causes of the war. We are content to be judged by them and to know that the verdict of the great majority of neutral observers is in our favor."

Detestable Attacks on Merchant Ships

Before dealing with what he called von Ribbentrop's "perio nance" at Danzig, the Prime Minister told how new steps to have become the rule for merchant ships to be sunk without warning.

"It is my duty on occasion to express our detestation of this form of warfare," Mr. Chamberlain said of German U-boat attacks.

Before the Nazi sinking the past few days has captured five German merchant ships totalling 30,000 tons, and during the same period five British ships were sunk, one by the German surface raider Deutschland. But British losses amounted to 6,000 tons less than the tonnage of the German ships captured.

British Ready to Meet Challenge

The Prime Minister said Great Britain is ready to meet the challenge made by von Ribbentrop in his Danzig address.

"Here von Ribbentrop has announced an intention of seeing the war carried during the next few days were the Phoebus, 8,863 tons; the Gloria, 5,642 tons; the Rialma, 4,275 tons; the Posidon, 5,864 tons, and the Biscaya, 5,000 tons. In addition the Dandelion, 4,074 tons, was scuttled to avoid capture, he said.

REFORMATORY TERM GIVEN TRANSIENT

James Randolph, 25-year-old Vancouver transient, was sentenced to reserve one year in the Ontario Reformatory upon being convicted of the theft of a motor car when he appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler in local police court today. Randolph admitted the charge.

Provincial Constable W. E. Smith who arrested Randolph stated the accused had stolen a motor car, the property of Jas. O. Zeigler, Department of Highways employee, who is employed on road construction work east of Belleville on Highway No. 2. Mr. Zeigler parked his motor car east of Belleville while operating a road grader, Randolph stole the vehicle while the owner was working.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., entered Randolph's list of previous convictions, which proved he had previously used many aliases. The twelve months sentence immediately followed.

ELECTRIC LIGHT STANDARD DAMAGED

A Front Street electric light standard was slightly damaged by a truck in front of the Chamber of Commerce building early today. The truck, driven by John Summers, Ottawa, was loaded with scrap iron, a section of the load protruding slightly over the right hand side of the truck. Mr. Summers was about to park the vehicle parallel with the curb when the portion of the load protruding struck the electric light standard, breaking it off at the base. The damage amounted to $65.00. The entire company was remedied the damage, while Summers reported the matter to Chief Arthur Boldt. Restitution will be made, the driver informed the police.

BELLEVILLE MAN GIVEN SIX MONTHS

Gordon Graves, Belleville, was sentenced to serve six months in the Ontario Reformatory by Magistrate Ambrose Shea in Toronto police court yesterday after he was convicted on a charge of the theft of gasoline.

Graves, Provincial Constable Wm. McBrien stated, had been released from custody of the York police he had assisted authorities he desired to join the Canadian militia. It was through this channel he was released, the police revealed.

Later Graves is alleged to have stolen gasoline from a gas pump at Cobourg and later was arrested. He was convicted of the gasoline theft yesterday.

HARVESTS 500 BU. MANGELS FROM 1 5c PACKET OF SEEDS

What is conceded to be a record yield in mangel-growing circles, Thomas H. Young, Markham farmer, recently harvested five hundred bushels of the roots from a planting of seed that cost fifteen cents.

One of the mangels measured 34 inches in circumference and weighed 26 pounds.

26 MEN ENLIST FROM DESERONTO

Hastings County villages are doing their bit in contributing their quotas of men to Canada's fighting forces. The village of Deseronto has sent twenty-six men, and now thirty-two men have formerly reported, while the village of Bancroft is also proud of its representation by thirty-two boys in khaki.

FIVE PRISONERS OFFER TO ENLIST

As a result of a questionnaire received by jail authorities from the Provincial Secretary, asking that a survey of prisoners be made in reference to enlisting in Canada's armed forces, five inmates of the Hastings County jail offered their services to the army.

Ottawa, however, it has been revealed, has refused to sanction the scheme of the Province of Ontario to enlist short-term prisoners in the army and thus relieve congestion in over-crowded prisons. A new scheme has been advanced now in which it is proposed to have prisoners do roadwork, but it is not believed this plan concerns city or county jails.

FISHERMAN CHARGED WITH DROWNING

Vancouver, Oct. 25 (CP)—Andrew Pederson, 39 year old fisherman, was charged with murder last night, fourteen hours after Mrs. Catherine Reid was found stabbed to death. Police found Pederson, unconscious, in a sea-filled room.

Police said they had learned an altercation developed at the Reid home when Pederson refused to remove a rifle he had brought with him and put behind the living room door.

Keen Interest Here in Results Of Quebec Provincial Election
Over 400 Telephone Enquiries Made at Ontario Intelligencer Office to Get Election Results
EXPRESS SATISFACTION
Evidence of the keen interest of local residents in the Quebec Provincial elections Wednesday, when Premier Duplessis and his Union Nationale Party was practically submerged beneath an avalanche of Liberal votes, was shown in the offices of the Ontario Intelligencer when upwards of four to five hundred telephone queries regarding the progress and outcome of the election, were answered by members of the editorial staff on duty.
Comments of inquirers after being informed of the standing at the time of calling, or after the final results were learned, would indicate that the consensus of opinion of residents of this city and district was about ninety-five per cent the same as the majority of Quebec voters.
Only a few voices expressed dissatisfaction at the final outcome, while the majority voiced their satisfaction at the defeat of Premier Duplessis and his party.
Interest in the election was not confined to the city alone, for a number of long distance calls from outlying villages and communities were received, asking for information regarding the standing at the polls.
Results were posted on the newspaper bulletin boards on Front Street, and in spite of a deluging rain that fell while the returns were coming in, numbers of rain-drenched pedestrians hurrying home from theatre and other places, paused long enough to read the news and express satisfaction or otherwise at the figures.
Roughly, it was estimated, about thirty per-cent of the calls came from public sources, one such particular expressing her pleasure at the result and concounding over the wire "that dictators should meet the same fate."

GEORGE HORTON LEAVES SERVICE AFTER 26 YEARS

Shed-Foreman of C.N.R. at Belleville Terminal Retires on Pension

RECIPIENT OF GIFT

Twenty-six years of faithful and efficient service, unmarred by accident or untoward incident, received tangible appreciation at the Canadian National Freight Sheds office yesterday, when Mr. George Horton, 9 Otter Street, shed foreman for the twenty-one years, was presented with a handsome smoking-set by his colleagues as a mark of appreciation of happy associations on the eve of his retirement from the service of the company.

Mr. Horton, who attained his sixty-fifth birthday yesterday, joined the old Grand Trunk Railway as a transport checker in April, 1913. Adaptability and application to his work soon gained him recognition, and five years later he was promoted to shed foreman, a position he held until his retirement yesterday.

Presentation by Agent

The address was read by Mr. Harry Lee, while the presentation was made by F. H. Bolie, agent of the company.

Mr. Horton, in a brief appreciation address, thanked his co-workers for the beautiful gift, and also for "splendid co-operation given him during his tenure of service." It wish in particular to thank my fellowmen. They are all good fellows and gave me the best they had, while I was with them. Anything that was asked of them they did with a willing spirit."

Mr. Horton said this morning that while he will settle down for a while to a good life of rest.

Following is the address:

Address

"Dear George:

"During your long service with the company, you have seen many come and go, and now, the end of things naturally have again revolved, your turn has come to leave your relations with the members of the Freight Office and shed staff.

"On this, the occasion of your retirement from service, we, your fellow employees, wish to express our heartfelt feelings of regret and congratulation. We regret the termination of the happy relationship which has existed between us, but congratulate you on having completed your years of service, and earned your retirement. We shall always look back with pleasure on the time we have been with you. Your willingness at all times to cooperate, and your pleasing personalities, have made an indelible impression, which will not soon be forgotten by those left behind.

"Wishing to express our feelings in a more tangible way, we ask you to accept this gift in which we hope you will find much enjoyment, and we wish for you and yours, many years of health, and happiness.

"On behalf of the staff."

P. C. Bolie,
Agent.

Social Conditions In Belleville Are Subject of Address

Social Conditions in Belleville, the theme at the monthly meeting of the Young Woman's Guild held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Gardner, Reid St., was dealt with in a particularly able manner by the guest speaker, Miss Robins, Social Welfare worker for the Children's Aid in Hastings County.

The introductory worship service, led by Miss Doris Kerr, was followed by a timely modern adaptation of the parable of the good Samaritan. The program of this evening devoted to "Christian Citizenship" was arranged by Mrs. Archibald.

Miss Robins dealt first with the economic aspects of the underprivileged group, pointing out that, according to the last census of Canada, 30 per cent of the people had 50 per cent of the income. In an average small city the factory workman's wages average $785 a year. The heads of families must necessarily economize somewhere.

(1). Food, probably is economized often by the habit of using and learning to like best only the more filling starchy foods.

(2) Rent is saved by overcrowding. Low-rent houses are much needed.

(3) Education is economized, the children obtaining only the education which leads into blind alley jobs. At the present time in the employment bureaus reports there are many jobs open to skilled workers but few for the unskilled.

(4) Health services are economized, people low incomes are worse off for doctors and hospital care than those on relief.

When unemployment or other emergencies come these families suffer most.

What is to keep the unemployed from becoming unemployable?

In July this year 4 per cent of the population of Belleville was unemployed or unemployable.

What are the opportunities for play for adults as well as children? Play develops the ability to make quick decisions on problems. It also breaks down reserve. The lack of it leads to delinquency.

In regard to delinquents the State takes 85 per cent care of them, all after the fail. The 15 per cent preventive work is all left to private groups and charity.

At the close of the instructive address some of the questions that the speaker had dealt dealing with minimum wage law, method of relief, city regulations regarding sanitation and what attention was given to the mentally ill were dealt with by Miss McIntosh, Miss Elson and Miss Earshman.

Mrs. Archibald who is in charge of the School for Leisure Sewing school to be started early in November called for funds, material and the loan of sewing-machines to carry on the work.

The November meeting will deal with Prison Reform and will be in charge of Mrs. Sexsmith.

OBITUARY

LATE MRS. MELISSA (HARRY) OSTROM, (Sidney Township)

Many friends were present at the funeral of Mrs. Melissa (Harry) Ostrom, widow of George Maxwell Ostrom, which took place from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. George W. Bush, in the first concession of Sidney Township on Wednesday afternoon to Wesley United Church where an impressive service was conducted by the Rev. J. W. Flatt, a former pastor, and the Rev. W. E. Mercer, the present pastor of the church.

Interment was made in Belleville cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. Donald Gunn, Frank Reid, Fred Wilson, Harry Hutler, Harry Brown and Arthur Burke.

There were many beautiful floral tributes.

Registration of Belleville Women Closes This Week

Voluntary Registration of Canadian women has asked that as far as possible residents of Canada's women for emergency service be completed by Nov. 1, Miles Margaret Hyndman, K.C., director of organization and registration, hoped that tabulation of the woman power of Canada might be finished by Jan. 1, and that it might be ready to be handed over to the Canadian government at that time.

Registration is still going on in Canadian cities. The women of the west have taken hold of the project with utmost enthusiasm.

In Belleville registration will close on Saturday. However, if it is that time there are some who have not filled in their filled-in questionnaires they may leave them with Miss Hicks at the Chamber of Commerce.

POLICE COURT

Complaints that a man had been accosting young girls on Great St. James St., and was said to have made improper advances to two small girls was received by city police early last evening. P. C. Wright hastened to the scene of the alleged trouble, but no sign of any suspicious person was forthcoming. Neighbors stated the officer with a description of the man, however.

Later in the evening police were called to St. Paul St. where an intruder was said to have been causing a disturbance and had broken a window. The party responsible was apprehended and placed in custody.

Appearing P. C. Evans apprehended a man who gave his name as Robert McGee, Campbellton, N. B., on a charge of obtaining goods by false pretenses. McGee, police say, obtained a meal at a local restaurant and telephoned a watch he collected after giving Pickon as his home address. The restaurant proprietor became suspicious and notified police, McGee is being held in custody pending several investigations looking into his past activities, police revealed.

Last night heavy rain saw an increased number of transients seeking shelter at the police station, when an even dozen signed the transient register.

HITLER ORDERS

tions. Germany, these sources indicate, is turning on the full force of its propaganda campaign against "British plutocrats," and the "Anti-Strafe England" campaign of the last war.

Contrary to first reports, the information from Hitler's leader (Gauleiters) were not called for a report on the state of mind of the Germans, but was a summons to the Nazi assembly to receive instructions from Hitler and propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels.

War Broken Her Pledge

This is the story told by the informant:

First, the Gauleiters were advised by Hitler that the war was about to enter a new phase. After repeating the well-known German theses about the origins of the war, and complaining that his efforts to establish peace were in vain, Hitler said he had arrived at the conclusion that Britain was the principal opponent standing for the set-back.

"The experiences we have had gone through," he was quoted as saying, "demonstrate, after so many others, that the security of the Reich can never be definitely assured until Great Britain receives a severe lesson.

"That is why I have decided that henceforth our main effort will be directed against the hereditary enemy of our Fatherland. In this action, the Reich counts on the full co-operation of trusted men in the party.

"At home they must create and stir up a violent movement of opinion against Great Britain. They must, in addition, help the government in its efforts designed to create currents of world indignation against this power.

To be Said Elsewhere

"I hold you personally responsible for the manner in which my orders are carried out. Each of you must give an accounting of the contribution made to the defence of our people."

Goebbels then embarked on a lengthy explanation of how the propaganda campaign was to be carried out. He suggested the following theses for use by the Nazi leaders:

1. Britain, which reproached Germany for having reduced the Czech and Polish peoples to slavery, has not hesitated to resort to force in oppressing the peoples of India, Palestine and other parts of the Empire.

2. British leaders have even gone so far as to oppose their own people by forcing them into war in order to further their personal fortunes.

3. While these leaders are the News, the eternal profiteers and eternal enemies of the German people.

4. British aristocracy is corrupt, decayed and high British society is a hotbed of scandal.

U.S. DEMANDS

leave again when she had been put in condition.

German Crew Released

Moscow, Oct. 26 (AP)—The United States freighter City of Flint remained at Murmansk today pending "precise verification" of her cargo, Tass News Agency announced.

The German prize crew of 18, which seized the ship and took her to the Soviet port in the Arctic Ocean Monday, has been released from internment but not to board the City of Flint again.

United States Ambassador Laurence Steinhardt, who said he was assured the American crew of 42 was safe aboard, expected the Russian Government to give details of the seizure and interment today. Tass reported the City of Flint had been taken to Murmansk because her machinery had been damaged.

Disposition of Vessel Discussed

Germany also sought to clarify with Russia the disposition of the vessel. An authorized German source in Berlin said the freighter, which on a previous voyage rescued survivors of the liner Athenia, and took them to Halifax, had a "good chance" to get through if Hitler's chancellery last night. When asked on the City of Flint was bound for British ports she was evasive, the Germans said was contraband.

Russia in the meantime informed Great Britain that she regarded the British contraband list as a violation of the principles of international law.

Ship Seized, Viewpoint

In a note replying to the British notification of contraband lists, Vyacheslav Mikhailovich Molotov, Commissar for Foreign Affairs, declared the list "gravely impairs the interests of neutral countries and destroys international trade."

Potemkin said the Soviet Government "deems it not permissible to deprive a peaceful population of foodstuffs, fuel and clothing and thus subject children, women and aged people and invalids to every hardship and to starvation by proclaiming such goods to be consumption as war contraband."

He said the Soviet also did not agree to the British note of Sept. 11 proclaiming the right to merchant ships call at designated ports for checking.

"Such measures violate the elementary principles of the freedom of merchant shipping," Potemkin declared.

GERMAN CLAIMS LOSSES GREATER

Spokesmen Says Larger Toll of British Shipping Taken by Raiders

Berlin, Oct. 26—(AP)—A German spokesman claimed today that German raiders are taking a greater toll of allied shipping than has been announced by the British Admiralty. "Our sailors and aviators are out there, at Scapa Flow, in the North Sea and in the East Atlantic, making a good account of themselves," a propaganda ministry official said. "But the whole story cannot be told now and for certain German accomplishments at sea the world for the time being must be content with the understated reticence of the British Admiralty.

"Germany is leaving no statistics in fact, Germany has only an incomplete picture of the successes of her actions at sea.

Sea Raiding

"The accomplishments of airplane raiders are known almost immediately but commanders of surface and submarine vessels report only when they have an opportunity to use wireless without danger of interception."

British Admiralty reports, submitted without comment, are the Germans' only information of the little publicised sea warfare. With an announcement of yesterday's sinkings, a propaganda ministry spokesman commented:—

"Anything more would seem dangerously near revealing information which, in part, still is unknown to the British. At the moment it is not regarded as wise to be too specific."

A high command communique said German machine-gun and artillery fire yesterday had repulsed a counter-attack by a French battalion against a height which German forces had captured the day before.

German Generals Confer

The French, it claimed, trying to regain the position near the border and about 7½ miles west of Voelklingen, were "frustrated while still on French soil."

The French communique for today, noting "bad weather," said that last night was quiet as a whole."

More than 20 army and air force generals and staff officers were reported assembled in Berlin to hear Hitler's chancellery last night. Hitler was believed to have particularly praised Hitler, made the former Free City of Danzig a province and named Albert Forster, former Nazi district leader there, as governor.

SMALL TRAWLERS ASSIST IN WORK

Manned by Fishermen and Fishtakers Helping to Keep Routes Clear of Mines

London, Oct. 26—(CP)—Trawlers and paddle-steamers manned by fishermen and yachtsmen augment Great Britain's mine sweeping fleet without respite. They are maintaining their search for mines throughout the United Kingdom.

These small ships supplement the navy's own mine sweepers. Every day more trawlers are being adapted to their new wartime task.

Colored cardboard tabs in a room at the admiralty show where the mine-sweeping forces are at work at the different ports of the British Isles.

Paddle-steamers, normally employed on short pleasure cruises, are particularly useful for minesweeping because of their shallow draught. Pleasure yachts also are being converted for war purposes.

A regularly swept channel already exists along the south coast of England and the east coasts of England and Scotland, a precaution to naval and commercial harbors and shipping routes. Coal and food stores are loaded and the crew signs on for the cruise.

Fishermen who have undergone a peace-time training in mine sweeping as members of the Royal Naval reserve man many of these ships. They are commanded either by their fishing skippers who hold the rank of warrant officer in the Royal Naval reserve or by retired naval officers.

ticles used in their production."

Conversion of Foodstuffs

The list raises the subsidiary question—from the British viewpoints—as to what degree foodstuffs may be converted into direct supplies for war, as the distillation of fuel alcohol from grain.

There is also the thesis that foodstuffs amount to munitions in that they are necessary to provision fighting troops and while some shipments might ostensibly be directed toward civilian use they could be considered as making up reductions caused by allocations of supplies to military use.

Oil, Iron Ore

Oil, necessary to lubricate the highly mechanized modern armies, is regarded as one of the primary objectives of the present blockade. Mr. Cross, in his parliamentary report, listed 78,000 tons of petroleum products seized as contraband thus far.

The other commodities seized included iron ore, magnesite ore, phosphates, aluminum ore, bauxite ore, copra and oilseeds.

While the Russian protest against Britain's current contraband list brought no official comment, one international law authority quoted by the press associations characterized the Soviet objection as "fantastic."

Official circles suggested the contraband control system was similar to that followed by the Allies, including Russia, during the last war.

Toronto Gasoline Raised Half a Cent

Toronto, Oct. 26 — (CP)—The price of gasoline advanced one half a cent a gallon today in the Toronto district. Oil company officials attribute the rise here to the advance in crude oil costs in the United States. Oil prices have not been affected. The price now is 26 1-2 cents a gallon for ordinary gas, including the eight cents for Provincial Government tax.

No word of any change in the price of gasoline in Belleville has been received according to information from a representative of one of the large oil companies here.

U-BOAT WARFARE

facilities, British naval men point out that modern submarines are far more costly and complicated than those of the last war. Their production in quantity also raises the problem of turning out numerous crews, whose training is lengthy.

Replenishing of Subs

Moreover, these submarines have to be replenished with all kinds of supplies and cannot remain indefinitely at sea without making contact with supply boats, which Britain's mastery of the seas makes virtually impossible. Germany's naval bases scarcely offer anchorage for such numbers of submarines as are claimed and it would seem doubtful that any immunity will provide parking space for them.

Finally, the rate of destruction of enemy submarines since the outbreak of war by the British and French fleets is twice that attained by the Allies during the British tonnage sent to the bottom is so far below that of the last war.

At the beginning of the last war Britain had about 22,000,000 tons of shipping compared to 21,000,000 in 1938. The Dominions merchant marine, however, is far superior in tonnage to that it owned twenty-five years ago. In six weeks, German U-boats destroyed only 260,000 tons, for which they quickly compensated by her seizures at sea.

Rate of Destruction

During the last war, the rate of destruction by Germany was, in 1917, 360,000 tons a month, rising until August at the beginning of 1918 when it went, as in April, to about 780,000 tons.

From these facts it is concluded the Allied fleets can destroy submarines faster than Germany can build them, and can replace shipping sinkings far more at work at the different ports of the British Isles.

DEFENCE TO CALL ALEX MacDONALD

At Present Awaiting Trial on Bank Hold-up Charge in Brampton Jail

Toronto, Oct. 26 (CP)—Defence Counsel Frank Regan said today that Alex MacDonald will be called from Brampton jail to testify for the defence at the trial of his brother, Donald (Mickey) MacDonald, on a charge of murdering Manuel Silverstone, Toronto bookie, last January.

Alex, awaiting trial on a bank hold-up charge, and his brother were charged with Windsor's murder and were tried together last spring. Alex was acquitted while the elder brother was convicted. Donald escaped and was granted a new trial.

Regan, counsel for Donald of the MacDonald brothers and also charged in connection with the bank hold-up, today produced a suggestion by Crown Council Cecil Snyder that he knew what was going to happen to the Windsor home on the night of the murder.

"If the police say three men entered the Windsor home the night James Windsor was killed and that you were the fourth man—you stayed outside in the car—what is your answer?" Mr. Snyder asked.

"That's ridiculous," Gauthier replied. "I was in general hospital and I made several telephone calls. The doctors and nurses will bear out what I say." Gauthier also said it was "ridiculous" when Mrs. Snyder suggested the phone calls were made to establish an alibi.

CANADA ADDS NEW DESTROYER

Takes Over Flotilla Leader Which is Renamed Assiniboine

Ottawa, Oct. 26—(CP)—The Royal Canadian Navy has taken over the Destroyer Fraser, leader purchased from the British government early in the year, the Department of National Defence announced today.

The ship has been re-named the Assiniboine and will become head Canada's fleet of fighting ships. Before the acquisition of the flotilla leader the Royal Canadian Navy had six destroyers and four mine-sweepers.

A flotilla leader is larger than the ordinary destroyer and the Assiniboine will therefore be the largest fighting craft in the Canadian navy.

Tommy Manville and Show Girl Part Company

New Rochelle, N. Y., Oct. 26 (AP)—Romantic notes which prompted Tommy Manville to spend $2,000 to bring Elinor Troy from Hollywood in a New York to a chartered plane loaded with orchids and champagne have let the came love's labor lost.

The asbestos heir said after a five-day tour of night clubs with the show girl that they had parted company.

"We came up here to the country last night and she found 26 rooms too small for her," Tommy moaned. "Besides that she didn't like the presence of Yvonne Arden (young radio singer).

"She told me you're too blamed busy with your business to get married, so I'm not safe for her."

Tommy said all this happened while he was in the midst of moving his personal belongings into his chateau here into a garage apartment on the grounds of his luxurious estate.

"She didn't like the garage apartment, either," he explained.

"In addition," he said, "she couldn't cook. I don't even know when to turn off the gas while boiling water."

Miss Arden, he said, came along just for the fun of it.

Officer Describes U-Boat Sinking

London, Oct. 26 (CP)—How a British cargo boat sank an attacking German submarine was described today in the South Wales Argus by one of the ship's officers.

His story related:

"The U-boat surfaced almost under this ship's starboard bow when the crew was at dinner. After a shell dud in which the ship was not hit the U-boat dived, re-emerging three miles away. The ship's gunners reopened fire and with the explosion of the final shell the U-boat sank."

Phone Communications Between Netherlands and Germany Broken

Amsterdam, The Netherlands, Oct. 26 (CP-Havas)—Telephone communications between the Netherlands and Germany were broken off today. Reasons for the interruption were not known here.

Berlin, Oct. 26 (AP)—Private telephone calls to foreign countries will not be accepted in future without special permit and private telegrams will be censored, but newspaper correspondents won't be affected by this regulation, authorized Nazi sources said today. Telephone numbers and teleprinters of foreign news offices will be registered with the postal ministry.

Man on Active Service Can Make Verbal Will

London, Oct. 26—(CP)—A law as old as the Roman occupation of Britain has been dusted off again as the nation's armed forces go to war.

It gives the right of a man on active service to make a verbal will, merely by saying to a comrade something like: "If I go west I want Annie to have everything." Courts will recognize such words as valid wills if the comrade appears and swears his friend uttered them.

In addition a man on active service may write his will in a letter, a notebook or a scrap of paper and sign it. It will then have force in law when his signature is identified.

Such wills, known as nuncupative (declaratory) wills, date from the days of the Roman Legions when soldiers told their officers in advance of battles what disposition they wished to make of their property should they fall.

ALSATIAN CONDEMNED

Nancy, France, Oct. 26 (AP) — Dr. Karl Rosa, 60 year old Alsatian antisemitist leader, was condemned to death by the military court today on charges of having turned over French military secrets to German spies. He was arrested seven months before the war.

NEW TRIAL ORDERED

Brampton, Ont., Oct. 26 (CP) — A new trial was ordered for Wm. Yarranton, superintendent of the Peel-Halton Home of Refuge, early today when a jury failed to reach an agreement on a charge of manslaughter arising from the death of James Calton, 63, resident of the institution.

NO GOLD ON ATHENIA

Montreal, Oct. 26—(CP)—Reports that the torpedoed liner Athenia had carried $57,000,000 worth of gold and negotiable securities were described today as "ridiculous" by Eric Reford, representing the Donaldson Atlantic Line in Montreal.

Commenting on a story in a New York newspaper to the effect that the liner had carried funds to underwrite British war purchases, Reford said there was no gold nor securities aboard. This fact, he said, was confirmed in a cable he received this morning from the Line's head office in Glasgow.

Reford said "an exact copy" of the ship's manifest was in his office and he declared that no such funds were carried aboard the liner.

TRACKS NOW CLEARED

North Bay, Ont., Oct. 26 (CP)—Repair crews today completed clearing the track three miles north of Matheson of wreckage caused when eleven cars of a Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railways freight train were derailed.

The derailment occurred last night when one of the freight cars jumped the track and the others followed. Damage was described as "heavy".

The southbound train was carrying newsprint and woodpulp chiefly.

QUEBEC HAS SPOKEN

The province of Quebec has spoken with a unity which leaves no doubt where it stood on the policy of Premier Duplessis. Rarely has such a vote been recorded in which the government had so little support as on this occasion, when his party was swept out of office. It was the French Canadian reply to the opportunist leader who had brought on the election at a time when unity of thought and concentration of effort in the war are necessary. That French Canadian voters felt this there is the proof.

While Premier Duplessis' record in office may have had something to do with the overthrow of his government, which has had a disturbing influence in its relation to Dominion matters, it was the bringing on of the election at this hour of war which undoubtedly released the avalanche of votes against him. He had yet nearly two years to go before his five years in office would have called for an election but he chose to go down to the voters when the all-absorbing thought of war and defence and of the unity of Canadian effort towards the Allied victory was on their minds. He had introduced federal relations into the campaign and as a result ministers of the Canadian Government, such men as the Right Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, entered the campaign in a way never before shown in a provincial election. Usually a provincial election is largely a matter for a province and its people but this time, members of the Dominion Government felt called upon, in the name of Canadian unity to battle the challenge of federal authority under the name of provincial autonomy and staked their future on the results. So at the polls the Rt. Hon. E. Lapointe's view was vindicated and the provincial premier was swept out of office.

Throughout the campaign it had been charged again and again against Mr. Duplessis that he was seeking a popular rebuke to the Federal Government because as he claimed time the Dominion had invaded provincial authority under the War Measures Act. Hence it was that not only Quebec but the entire Dominion watched the progress of the campaign and shared in the defeat of Mr. Duplessis.

The question of conscription was referred to again and again but it really was not an issue in the campaign at all for the attitude of all the groups was opposed to compulsory military service.

The defeat of the premier who called an unnecessary election in wartime is proof of Quebec's faith in Canada and stand for the unity of Canada in the time of war as in the time of peace. The electors have spoken with a will; they will have no more of the policy of M. Duplessis.

VON RIBBENTROP ADDS NOTHING

Von Ribbentrop, who is credited with being the chief figure in the Nazi constellation outside of Adolf Hitler, is carrying out the futile German policy of trying to drive a wedge between France and Britain. Von Ribbentrop, with characteristic German self-assurance and bombast said at Danzig Tuesday that the present British Government would go down in history as the gravedigger of the Empire and that Britain is playing dangerously with the fate of her Empire.

Like Hitler, von Ribbentrop tells the world that the frontiers of the Reich, north, east, south and west, are fixed. Britain and France have heard that before even from the lips of von Ribbentrop's master, Herr Adolf Hitler, who said so at Munich as they sliced and later gobbled up the Republic of Czechoslovakia. Von Ribbentrop mentioned return of former colonies as essential.

It is to be noted that the German Foreign Minister goes back no further than Hitler's speech in the Reichstag to fix German boundaries which of course now include part of ravaged Poland. He added nothing new and made a clumsy gesture of wooing France from Britain.

It is interesting today to see the Nazi leaders trying to show pity and sympathy for France which they claim was drawn into the war by Great Britain. It was not always so with the Nazis.

Von Ribbentrop said that there is no cause of possible difficulty with the United States and declared that Germany had always respected the Monroe Doctrine.

British unofficial reaction to von Ribbentrop pointed out that as Hitler said in his book "Mein Kampf" written in the early twenties of this century, the German plan would be to separate Britain and France. The British reaction also was to the effect that no peace offers might now be expected from Germany as von Ribbentrop spoke of pursuing the war to the end. It was thought by some observers that the German Government would now intensify the submarine and raiding warfare on naval depots and shipping.

LARGE PRISON POPULATIONS

For the year ending March 31st last an all-time high in the number of persons sent to prison was registered for the prisons and reformatories of Ontario, 34,914 persons were committed for trial and 27,926 imprisoned. The increase in the number of sentences over the previous year was 4,277. The number is more than double what it was in 1934.

The report says that it is probably too early to see the situation in its true perspective. However some of the main causes are defined without attempting to place them in the order of importance—"lack of proper character building in home training, unemployment situation reacting on adults and youths resulting in a feeling of defeatism, breaking down of moral standards, reaction against current social conditions and disregard for moral and social laws. There are single causes in some cases but more often there are combinations varying degree of the above and lesser causes."

Some of the comments in the report to the Minister are very enlightening to the people:—

It might have been well expected that the crowded condition of the prisons and reformatories would have increased the restlessness of prisoners of recent years and resulted in additional disturbances in these institutions, but such was not the case. Actually discipline was remarkably good, considering the conditions. Many of the prisoners, of course, had better living conditions within prison walls before being committed and sentenced and realized that fact. It seems evident that they had no serious cause for complaint. Further, and of prime importance, the steady and considerable improvement in the personnel and training of the staffs resulted in constant firm discipline, considerate in recognizing and making allowance for the instability of their wards, and quick and just in punishing deliberate and unprovoked wrong doing.

"The work of training the prisoner is, obviously, of great importance but the effect is often wasted unless supplemented with proper after-care. The percentage of discharged prisoners who were convicted for the second or more times remained approximately the same as in the previous year at 46%. The problem, therefore, is important. I have said in previous reports and I acknowledge compels me to repeat that if the ex-prisoner is to be rehabilitated as a good citizen, it will be done first, by his own efforts, and second by the assistance and advice of those in daily contact with him—that is, his neighbors. The first essential is work, so he can honestly support himself; the second, ready, steady counsel and encouragement. In spite of discouraging conditions good and lasting work is being done by social service and religious organizations and citizens. There are indications that this problem is being more widely understood by our citizens in general and as such understanding increases, so inevitably must result in individual and joint action by patriotic citizens.

"There are clear indications also of increased effort in the all important preventive field. There is more recognition of the necessity of properly adjusting the juvenile delinquent or prospective delinquent while still at a tender and susceptible age and this recognition has resulted in co-ordinated effort through various groups, especially women's organizations, are making their influence felt in better movies, better radio plays and newspaper 'funnies'. Certainly, there is still room for much improvement as long as the public is unreasonable mind, will not be perverted. I believe there is a widening sense of responsibility for others."

Men outnumber the women in the jails of Ontario 33,162 to 1,738. Unmarried persons in the jails are more than twice the number of married prisoners. In the jails there is a difference in the number of times prisoners have been sentenced—first time 54 per cent., second time 16.2 per cent., third time 10.8 per cent and more than third time 19.5 per cent. Drug addicts sentenced to jails totalled 277 and corporal punishment was ordered in the case of 59. Crimes against the person totalled 943, against property 7,101, against morals and decency 506, against peace and order 18,158.

Gasoline Rationing Gives Impetus To 'Walk-and-Keep-Fit' Campaign

(By Jack Brayley, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

London, Oct. 26—(CP)—Gasoline rationing has resulted in streamlined eight-cylinder automobiles being dumped for as low as $25 and in some cases being traded for bicycles. It also has given impetus to a "walk-and-keep-fit" campaign boomed an old trade and revived an old crime.

Ordinary car owners, faced with a ration of six gallons a month, steep rises in taxes and constant possibility of requisitioning, have laid up their cars in their own garages. If they haven't they have sold them for ridiculous prices in order to escape storage rental amounting to at least $200 a year.

This hasn't affected the British motor industry much because it is busily engaged turning out army lorries and tanks. But it has caused a big transportation problem.

Thousands of erstwhile motorists are flooding the curtailed transportation services — curtailed through rationing and depletion of staff through military service.

Meanwhile, big commercial companies have made it tough for householders expecting to evacuate the big cities.

Most firms refuse to go beyond a fifty-mile radius. This means that most moving jobs have been left to the railways, already crowded with war traffic, and the delays have been serious.

One London firm staff member considers himself lucky to have got rid of his Canadian car for $5. His buyer was a man on his way to Liverpool who rated the cost of the car cheaper than the way fare. The buyer intended selling the car there at the week's end when he completed his trip.

Meantime, horses dealing is flourishing. Many express delivery and laundry trucks have been taken over by the air raid precautions officials as ambulances and provision of these services are being met by using horses and renovating antique vans of the Victorian era. At the same time, owners of horses and cattle are having their own laundries.

The London horse repository's first wartime sale saw one hundred and twenty animals sold at price increases of fifty per cent all round.

Horse-threiving also has come back, according to Scotland Yard. The horse thieves use motor horse vans to carry off the animals and change the markings of the stolen horses with dye.

UNITED CHURCH READY TO HELP ALLIED FORCES

Sub-Executive Meeting "Regrets" Action of 75 Ministers Signing Manifesto

EXPRESS LOYALTY

Toronto, Oct. 26 (CP)—The United Church of Canada is ready to extend every possible effort "open and proper to the church" to assist the allied forces in the present war. This decision was announced in a statement last night following a special executive meeting which considered a manifesto in which 75 ministers of the church opposed the present or any other war. The action of the signatories in making their manifesto public was disapproved by the church, the sub-executive declared.

"The signatories of this manifesto, however sincere, have gone far beyond the limits of what is wise and proper in time of war," the sub-executive said in its statement. "The sub-executive would take this opportunity of proclaiming afresh the entire and unfailing loyalty of the United Church of Canada to his Majesty, the King, and its steady purpose to support him in the present dire struggle in every way which is open and proper to the church."

Dr. Bryce Presides.

Rev. Peter Bryce of Toronto, former moderator of the United Church of Canada, presided at the meeting, called by Dr. Gordon Blaker after he consulted with Moderator John Woodside of Ottawa.

The manifesto, issued after a meeting here last Friday of ministers of the church, declared all nations "share in the responsibility which makes war necessary." The manifesto expressed public disapproval of "this or any other war," and one of the signatories was Dr. Richard D. Hiscox, Toronto minister.

Attorney-General Gordon Conant of Ontario has instructed Clifford Magone, K.C., to study the manifesto and determine whether in contravenes the Defence of Canada Act section which makes it an offence to issue statements "intended to or likely to cause disaffection to the King or to prejudice recruiting."

The attorney-general said if the manifesto came under the section "I shall seriously consider prosecution".

WAR OF WORDS AGAINST GERMANY TO BE INCREASED

New Propaganda Strategy Foreshadowed, Which May Shorten War by Months

BLOCKADE WORKING

Germany Generally Effectively Cut Off from All Overseas Sources of Supply

London, Oct. 26.—(CP)— Critics of the Ministry of Information eased off today as fresh plans were made for the war of words against Germany.

The propaganda strategy was foreshadowed by an announcement in the House of Lords yesterday by Viscount Macmillan, minister of Information, of a reorganization of the ministry's staff and a reduction of the Ministry staff by 20 per cent.

Responding to Viscount Astor's observations that "good publicity might well shorten the war by weeks and perhaps by months," the Minister declared: "Much more newspapermen were needed, especially in the foreign department."

His Majesty's ships meanwhile were busy with the effective phase of the war. Confronted with the loss of five merchant vessels this week—bringing the war's total to 45, amounting to 209,318 tons—Britain scanned the seas for a glimpse of one of Germany's pocket battleships.

(Recent reports of the war at sea indicated that at least one of Germany's three pocket battleships had slipped through the British blockade and was raiding the Atlantic).

Blockade Successful

Britain, however, reported increasing success in the blockade. Ronald Cross, Minister of Economic Warfare, told Parliament yesterday that the effectiveness of the navy in cutting off German supplies from overseas sources of supply."

While Britain scoffed at the air raid warning in the German press assertion that the time had come for war to be carried into British Isle "the siren sounding system was changed to make it easier on the nerves. Henceforth, Air Secretary Sir Kingsley Wood announced, warnings will be sounded only when an attack is probable—and then for a time enemy planes are sighted.

Casualty List

The Air Ministry announced a new casualty list of 18 airmen dead and 10 missing, three of whom were believed to have been killed operating a total of 100 dead and 91 missing since the start of the war. The names will be published in the latest list.

In a broadcast address last night Dominions Secretary Anthony Eden declared Britain was fighting for the principle of "good faith between peoples" and "this time we will not win the peace the war but win the after war.

"It is not because we love war. We hate it. We hate it as much as it that we are determined to go on fighting it. We are fighting that we made an end of a system that has poisoned the life of nations and peoples and glorifying force."

PUSH MAY COME DESPITE WEATHER

French Land and Air Patrols Convinced Germany Ready to Strike

Paris, Oct. 26 (AP)—French land and air patrols were reported today to have returned from their daring reconnaissance assignments with information indicating that Germany was prepared for a push on the Western Front.

The French said their scouts told of huge troop concentrations and supply arrangements which they regarded as forerunners of an offensive. They reported, for example, that even 1,500,000 men on the front and in support areas.

Actual fighting was limited to patrol clashes between the lines on the northern flanks—the only sign of action along the front since the German counter drive into the Saarland 10 days ago.

The weather remained unfavorable for military activity, but the French speculated that the German might launch an offensive despite adverse conditions.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Early Treatment of Mental Ailments Shortens Time of Treatment

When an individual begins to act "queerly"—partial loss of memory, unusually irritable, very untidy about his person, unwillingness to do his ordinary work or face ordinary difficulties—it is only natural that his family should try to shield him. All manner of excuses are made for him—working too hard, that last illness that pulled him down, that domestic difficulty he had to fight, and others. No one can blame the family or friends if the humor him because it is apparently "normal" before these "queer" symptoms appeared.

It is this mistaken kindness that is responsible for delaying treatment in these cases and it is early treatment that brings an early cure.

In these days when we are reading of the brilliant results obtained by the "shock" treatment of mental cases, we are apt to forget that current mental specialists, both in institutions and in private practice, were and are curing about 6 of every 10 patients by the use of perchmakers and other methods—careful questioning of the patient and the patient leading of him out of his mistaken or upsetting ideas.

In a survey for a five year period (1933-1937) at the Psychiatric Division of the Cincinnati General Hospital, Dr. Jules Geiperin, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, outlines the results obtained when patients were brought in early—the first six months—and when they were brought in at later periods after the first appearance of the symptoms.

Of these seen within six months after the symptom started, over 81 percent. improved—able to return home—and three out of four in hospital was less than six months. Of those seen after the symptoms had been present 6 months to 24 months, 30 per cent improved and their stay in the hospital was about 3 months. Of those seen 24 months after symptoms first appeared, 20 per cent. improved but their stay in hospital was nearly 13 months.

From his survey in which 94 of 235 patients were able to return to home and business by ordinary hospital treatment—no shock, no mental shock treatment—Dr. Geiperin states: "Those patients who enter hospital soon after the onset of symptoms have an apparently better chance of recovery than those who enter late."

Mental illness is now treated just as any other illness is treated.

Rawdon

Rawdon, Oct. 26.—Misses Grace and Doris Fleming were delegates from Springbrook Young People's Union to the Bay of Quinte Conference Young People's Union convention held in Trinity United Church, Peterborough, on this week they gave a splendid report at the regular league meeting.

Mr. E. Higgins, Vancouver, is holidaying with his daughter, Mrs. Glen Heath.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith recently entertained Mrs. M. Morman, Mr. Garnet Grille and Miss Evelyn Grille of Carmel.

Mrs. Charles Ross and baby Charles Raymond returned home on Sunday after spending the past few weeks with her parents Mr. and Mrs. John McMullen.

Miss Ila Myers who is teaching at the Snarr school spent the week-end with Misses Muriel and Doris Sine.

Miss Joan Holmes, Eldorado, visited her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes for a few days.

Mrs. Thomas McKeown and Margaret spent Sunday with Mrs. Sarah McKeown and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McKeown.

Miss Anna Sharp had her tonsils removed last week and is recuperating at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Blake Sharp.

Mr. Jack Perkin of Ottawa is boarding with Mr. and Mrs. Willie Montgomery, and is employed at the radio beam station. Other workers are Messrs. George Wallace, Harry McAdam, Orno Sharp, Simeon Robb, Michael Cain, Robert McIville and Herbert Higgs. Hon. Norke Ferguson, M.P. for Hastings-Peterborough, paid the plant a friendly call one day recently. Mr. Delbert Sine of Minto is busy hauling gravel from a gravel pit east of Minto as he has been awarded the contract for supplying gravel for the cement work.

Relatives in this district received word of the death of Mrs. F. Bacon, Round Lake, formerly Miss Emma McMullen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis McMullen, fifth concession. Her brother, Mr. John McMullen, attended the obsequies on Thursday.

Mount Pleasant Rawdon Young People's Union convened Friday evening for their weekly meeting and a special address was given by Rev. H. Wallace of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, and he gave a thought provoking talk on various points of Christian influence. The president, Mrs. Cyrus Summers opened the meeting with Mrs. Edgar McKeown presiding at the piano. After the devotional period Mr. Donald Johnson gave the secretary's report. Mr. John Coggins then took charge and in the absence Mr. and Mrs. Herb Higgs contributed a musical number. Miss Florence MacMullen read "The Human Touch". Mr. Bert Jeffs read the Scripture lesson and Rev. J. S. Reid followed the guest speaker. At the close Miss M. Donaldson staged a contest.

Mrs. Don McLaren and Beverly of Frankford spent last week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. U. Heath.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lander of Oshawa were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. James McMullen, Springbrook.

Mrs. Bill Heath, Bethel, spent a few days last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McKeown.

Little Miss Patsy Sine of Minto spent Friday with her cousin, Miss Muriel Sine.

Mount Pleasant Rawdon Woman's Missionary Society convened at the church for their October meeting with nineteen in attendance. Mrs. John Holmes presided for the meeting as the president was absent because of illness. Mrs. Percy Hubble presided at the piano and the service opened with quiet music and a short prayer. The service was based on Thanksgiving and the hymns were appropriate to the theme. Mrs. Herbert Smith read the Bible lesson and Mrs. Frank Jeffs gave a splendid devotional paper at the close of which Mrs. Frank Smith offered prayer. Seventeen ladies answered roll call with the keyword "gifts". Mrs. J. Reid arranged the program and she also gave an excellent report of the recent sectional rally held at Zion and was tendered a hearty vote of thanks. Mrs. John Holmes then closed the new study book on India entitled "Moving Millions" and Mrs. Roy Thrasher gave an interesting talk on "Changing conditions in India", telling how Christianity has helped these people to be more sanitary in their living. A duet was rendered and especially the uplift of rural women. Mrs. Percy Hubble contributed a solo and Mrs. Don Campbell read a selection. The service closed with a hymn of praise and thanksgiving and prayer by Mrs. Allan Bailey.

At the church service Sunday evening at Mount Pleasant Mrs. John Holmes presided at the piano and the choir rendered "I will sing the wondrous story". Mrs. (Rev.) F. D. Sneigrove of Queensboro gave the message which was both interesting and inspirational.

Master Kenneth Sine, Minto, visited Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sine on Thursday.

Rawdon Women's Institute held their October meeting at the home of Mrs. Fred Thain.

Mr. and Mrs. C. U. Heath and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Elliott recently entertained Rev. James Blanchard of Bloomfield, Mrs. Wanda Beckett and Miss Ila Myers, Mrs. Ila Myers, Wellman's, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Walker and Don Burnbrae. Mr. and Mrs. Don McLaren and Beverly, Frankford.

Mrs. James Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Stanton, Cameron, Keith, Jimmie and Grace of Oshawa visited Mr. and Mrs. James McMullen of Springbrook on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Heath entertained Mr. and Mrs. Roy Shortt on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John McMullen recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Woods, Trent River; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barton and Pearl, Havelock; Mrs. Percy French, Mr. and Mrs. F. Orr and Mr. E. Delaney, Stockdale; Mr. and Mrs. Asa Lloyd, Donna and Margaret Jean, Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sine.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Smith spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison, Bethel and on Monday Mr. and Mrs. Bert Wright and children returned to their home in Sudbury.

Make this
"TWIN LOAF" TREAT

Either or both of the recipes given below can be made from your ordinary white bread sponge. Give your family variety in this way:

CHOCOLATE NUT BREAD
2¼ Cups bread sponge
¼ Cup sugar
1 Egg, beaten
1 Tablespoon melted shortening
½ Cup chopped nuts
2 Squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
Cup chopped raisins
to 4 cups sifted Robin Hood Flour

ORANGE DATE BREAD
2¼ Cups bread sponge
¼ Cup sugar
2 Tbsp. melted shortening
1 Egg, beaten
Cup orange flavouring
1 Cup chopped dates
Cup finely grated orange peel
to 4 cups sifted Robin Hood Flour

In either case mix the ingredients in the order given, adding sufficient flour to make a soft but not sticky dough. Knead on a lightly floured board until smooth and elastic. Place in a greased bowl, brush the surface with melted shortening and put into a warm place and let rise until double in bulk. Shape into a loaf, place in a greased pan and let rise again until double in size. Then bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) for 45 to 50 minutes.

Sincerely,
Evangeline.

WEDDINGS

LOVELACE—MINAKER

Picton, Oct. 26.—(Special)—An interesting wedding took place in the Bridge Street United Church at Belleville, on Wednesday evening, October 25, at five o'clock, when Marjorie Irene, daughter of Mrs. Alva Minaker, Picton, and the late Mr. Minaker of Picton, became the bride of Morley James, son of Mr. and Mrs. County Councillor Lovelace and Mrs. Lovelace of Bloomfield, Dr. J. C. Gerrie officiated.

The bride wore an afternoon dress of burnt sugar mastipond velvet, bonnet to match, with black accessories and carried Johanna Hill roses and lily-of-the-valley. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Heffer of Belleville were the attendants. Mrs. Heffer wearing grape wine crepe suit with matching accessories and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Lovelace left by motor for their honeymoon trip, the latter travelling in a French dress of black sheer wool crepe, a mink collar bonnet and coat of mink and black hat. They will reside in Bloomfield.

BLOOMFIELD—HEWITT

A pretty Autumn wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Hewitt, Kingsford, on Wednesday, October 25, when their only daughter, Olive, became the bride of James Dowdall of Demorestville. Rev. C. E. Bowman of Shannonville officiated.

The bride given in marriage by her father was charming in her wedding gown of Martex-blue velvet and she was attended by Mrs. Stirring, sister of the groom. Mr. Harold Dowdall, brother of the groom was best man. The Wedding March from Lohengrin was played by the bride's aunt.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served to a host of friends. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful gold cross and chain.

Fashions Today Have Military Trend

BY ALICE MAXWELL

Associated Press Staff Writer

Paris, Oct. 26.—(AP) — Maginot and Foch Blue, Trench Brown, Plane Grey, and Legion Red were the dominating colors in mid-season collections of new military fashions shown today.

This feminine wear included coats and suits with big military-style pockets 10 to 20 inches long. Some new models by Schiaparelli showed swinging saddle pockets, some in front and others in Oxbridge braided fabrics.

Many suit had leather-trimmed pockets swung in Knapsack style from the shoulder. Dresses had front pockets swung from belts.

Apart from the military motif were new "Washerwoman" frocks, featuring skirts adjustable as the hips for day length or ankle length for evenings. Military-style coats had turnover collars, gold buttons and belts. Some copied trench coats.

Wool jersey dresses showed military touches as the collar points which were of red velvet and gold, embroidered with various French army insignia.

Club Foot a Common Congenital Ill

One of the most common congenital malformations that develop in baby's feet is club foot. Fortunately it can be corrected, and should be, that is needed to accomplish this is plenty of perseverance and patience.

We have all seen some adult walking on the street with a foot twisted in such a way that he walks on the outside of the foot. This is a case of club foot which has been neglected.

I have seen mothers become hysterical when they discovered that their child had this deformity, and yet with a few exceptions every baby I have brought into the world in this condition has been cured. The exceptions were those who did not have the proper treatment.

Of the four varieties of club foot, the most common is that in which the foot is turned in so that the person walks on the outside of the foot. Sometimes, in addition, the person can't straighten the foot out, but must walk on the toes as well as on the outside of the foot.

Another type is where the child walks on the inside of the foot, with the member turned out; still another, where there has been a shortening of tendons in the leg and foot so that the toes cannot be put down, and the person must walk on the heel.

Each type must be treated carefully, and the treatment is largely up to the parents. The mother and father must make up their minds to work faithfully over the poor, twisted feet for months, and in some cases years, if the child is to ever be normal.

If the mother is intelligent and co-operative she can do most of the treatment herself under the supervision of her doctor.

Beginning when the child is about two weeks old, you massage the foot several times a day. When I have such a case I do the massaging for the first few times, but I have the mother and if possible the father there to watch me. After a few lessons I find that most mothers are better at it than I am, and in this way these massages are part of the regular daily routine of the baby, as regular as the meals, bath or sleep.

If the child's foot is turned in, the massage should be done in such a way as to loosen and lengthen the muscles and tendons on the inside of the foot. Only in this way can the foot become able to take its normal position. Each massage should stretch the foot to a position as near normal as possible.

At first it will be a bit discouraging, because the foot with its twisted tendons will seem as rigid as if it were solid bone. After a while, however, the tendons will respond to the continued massaging, and it will give you great satisfaction to see the progress you are making. In fact it has given me great satisfaction to see these cases straighten out and faithful mother can help straighten out her child's foot.

"The Awful Truth," Funny

Irene Dunne, who unconsciously cut loose from a career of stately roles to indulge cleverness gaily in wild whimsies and hysterical inanities in "Theodora Goes Wild," will again be seen as an all-comedy role in Columbia's "The Awful Truth," now playing, which returns to the Belle Theatre screen by popular request of an appreciative public. Cary Grant this time serves as Miss Dunne's screen cohort with such favorites in support as Ralph Bellamy, Cecil Cunningham, Alexander D'Arcy, Robert Allen, Joyce Compton and Esther Dale.

Leo McCarey, best remembered for his "Ruggles of Red Gap," directed "The Awful Truth" which Vina Delmar, author of "Bad Girl," adapted to the screen from the original stage play by Arthur Richman.

Prior to her memorable performance in "Theodora Goes Wild," which won for her an ad man's Winchellesque appellation as "the screen's Theodorable sweetheart," Miss Dunne was the screen's premier dramatic star, an honor deservedly won for her portrayals in "Cimarron," "The Silver Cord," "Magnificent Obsession," and "Show Boat." During the transition from drama to comedy parts she experienced her versatility in such singing roles as "Roberta" and "Sweet Adeline."

"Lost Horizon"

"Greatest in screen history," is the verdict of the world's critics and the three million persons enthralled by the magnificence and drama, the heart-warming romance of Frank Capra's mighty screen masterpiece, "Lost Horizon" which is the companion feature attraction on the Belle screen.

Millions the world over have been swept off their feet by the powerful drama and overwhelming beauty during the two hundred record-making roadshow engagements at $2.20 top. . These three million persons have hurried to this great picture and say it must be seen.

By any standard of comparison, "Lost Horizon" will be heralded the greatest motion picture ever made. Ronald Coleman stars in the production with Jane Wyatt, Edward Everett Horton, Margo, H. B. Warner, Thomas Mitchell, Isabel Jewell, John Howard and Sam Jaffe in support. Robert Riskin adapted the stage play from James Hilton's memorable novel.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Way Down South"

Haunting old Negro spiritual and traditional songs form the remarkable musical setting for "Way Down South," Walt Disney's first production now playing at the McCarthy Theatre and a picture which is choice screen fare, rich in entertainment and endowed with a novelty of setting and beauty of photography that marks it as the year's most unique and attractive and appealing film.

Producer Sol Lesser has mounted the picture with fine production qualities and with Bobby Breen has put in a cast of outstanding screen favorites including Alan Mowbray, Clarence Muse, Steffi Duna, Sally Blane and the Hall Johnson choir of fifty voices.

The bayous of Louisiana and the gay city of New Orleans provide the colorful backgrounds of the picture in which Bobby is given the opportunity to sing the lovely melodies of the world's folk-songs of the spirituals. A particularly exciting and tuneful sequence is the presentation of the traditional sugar-cane festival, celebrated by the Negroes of the South with more than four hundred singers and dancers participate.

"Pride of the West"

Clarence E. Mulford's prize outdoor story, "Pride of the West," with the screen's most popular cowhero, William S. Boyd, (Hopalong Cassidy), is also now playing at the Belle Theatre with a supporting companion feature with "Way Down South" in addition to the excellent Walt Disney Technicolor Mickey Mouse cartoon and an other episode of "Mandrake the Magician."

Requesting an Answer to an Invitation

"Requests the pleasure of your company" on an invitation, means that an invitation should be answered.

The word "requests" implies no answer. But to make assurance doubly sure in these busy days, when people are apt to be careless or thoughtless about answering invitations, or at least about answering them promptly, a more urgent request-for-an-answer is often added to an invitation, (this is, however, never added to a formal dinner invitation.)

When an answer is requested, the letters usually used is R.s.v.p. These letters stand for the French phrase "Répondez s'il vous plaît", meaning "answer, please." It is important to remember that when we write R.s.v.p., only the "R", is capitalized. Just as we would also if we used only the "A" if the English equivalent, "Answer, please," were written.

On such a formal invitation, you may indicate a regretful reception, usually the form "The favour of an early reply is requested," since this is more consistent with the formality of the wording of the invitation.

High Tea

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

Will you please explain to me all the details of what is meant by a "High Tea"? The name is so charming, but I am indefinite about what it means, or how one plans such a party.

Hostess

"High Tea" is an English term, meaning a late afternoon or early evening tea, served between the hours of five and seven. It is in reality a supper, and since the term "Buffet Supper" has come into such popularity it is usually called just that. By which everyone we call it, it is a charming way of entertaining informally.

The invitations to such a party are given informally—by word of mouth, by telephone, by informal note, or by "visiting-card. The meal may be all ready when the guests arrive, or the hostess may plan as part of the entertainment that the guests help prepare the refreshments. All the details for such parties—chafing dishes, buffet dishes, and so forth . . . makes this a easy and delightful nowadays.

The meal is served informally from the dining room table or from a large tea table, depending on the menu. Or often now the hostess uses small folding tables, of the bridge table type, covered with linen or novelty covers. The menu is always simple and there is always a hot dish and the dessert may be ice-cream and cake, or compote of fruit, or layer cake, or the always-welcome lemon or chocolate meringue pie. And always there is tea, coffee, milk, with the alternative of tea, and in summer, cool drinks too.

Use of Boullion Cups

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

I—Will you please tell me if it is good form to drink soup from a boullion cup, and if so, should both hands be used?

S—When dining with a gentleman should he sit to my right or left?

In doubt

I—First we take a few sips of the soup, with the boullion cup on tea spoon, to test the heat of the soup, and then we drink the rest of the soup from the cup, as we would drink tea. And we drink the boullion cup with the right hand, as we lift the tea cup. We shouldn't use both hands . . . it isn't necessary.

S—The lady on the right of the gentleman" is the usual rule.

The two most important coins in your manners-purse are "Thank you" and "Please". Spend them

TURN BACK the leaves of the family album and you'll find the bewildered evening frocks current-ly so smart. A typical model is the dark brown jersey dress with snug bodice and voluminous skirt, and a gold kid ribbon velvet rosette at the shoulder strap.

A NEW NOTE in coats is the Molynrux model with short long sleeves and swing skirt in black smooth woolen . Revers are of black astrakhan.

COLD WINDS won't worry the girl who wears that smart woolen coat with the big flood and the wide hemline of sheared beaver. When not over the shoulders, the hood becomes a big cowl collar.

STEP OUT wearing a smart suede. A new model is a group of burnished bronze kidskin with bow and heel of bronze snake. Lovely with new browns.

A GOOD FRIEND is the dress and coat ensemble, especially those of dark brown can be worn separately with other things. Such a model has a dress of brown crepe, high necked, and with dull gilt embroidery all the way down the front. The wool coat has collar, cuffs and front closing of sheared beaver.

AN INVITATION to a smart evening event means a smart frock. A charmer is of flesh pink satin with an overdress of misty black lace forming a very wide skirt, and big, crinoline inserts. The high neck and short sleeved bodice is typical of the new fashion for cover-up.

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Sense of Humor a Most Valuable Asset In Marriage

If you're thinking about marriage and want to live "happily ever after," how is your sense of humor?

For more important than your tulle veil, ivory satin gown, for striped gray trousers, if you happen to be the groom) is your sense of humor. Things are bound to happen which are destructive of temper, and prompt what is known as "passing the buck" and doing a little bawling out, though the partner of your joys and sorrows may not be in the least involved.

To repeat a formula which the American Eugenics Society bequeathed to those about to marry, some ten years ago:

"Marry a creatively intelligent good sport," and continuing in the same vein, the President of the Society stated: "The most valuable qualities parents should hand down to their children—qualities which would make the pattern of the coming man, are: mental and effective creative intelligence, good sportsmanship and a sense of humor."

The above is the stuff of which heroes and heroines are made. Th stuff which enables men and women to carry on safely in a cockeyed world.

Not the least valuable of all wedding assets which a bride and groom can give to each other is a sense of humor. If they can only learn to laugh it off, they have found the key to happiness. Laughter dissolves calamities. It is the most valuable asset of family life.

The real vamps of history. If they had vamped with anything like have not been the great beauties but the women who could turn after-dinner happenings of every-day life into laughter.

Take for instance, Nell Gwynn, a street gamin, who sold oranges around the theatres and eventually the heart of England's Charles II. Nell was no beauty, as her portraits reveal. But she could make Charles laugh. And Nell was one of the most popular English court houses claims "witty Nell," the orange peddler, as a member.

Cleopatra, greatest of all vamps, owned a delicious sense of humor when she ordered someone to dive into the stream where her lover, Mark Anthony was fishing, and attach a salt fish to the hook.

Dullarry charmed Louis XVI with her amusing imitations of court dignitaries. Lord Nelson, the British naval hero, loved Lady Hamilton for her keen life as a comedian because she was amusing. And grim old Andrew Jackson had his Pet O' My Heart, who disrupted his cabinet, married General Eaton, thus furnishing material for novelists and playwrights. Peggy O'Neill, whose house is still pointed out in Washington, was a bonafide actress though she never "trod the boards." She amused Andrew Jackson with her imitations of the funny little social coterie then ruling in Washington.

Our own erratic painter, Whistler, who had an impish sense of fun, was devoted to the wife who went with him one better in the quip and jest game and had an inspired sense of humor.

Sometimes I get letters from correspondents asking me how a sense of humor can be cultivated. I'm afraid it can't. It's just a gift that was gods, like naturally wavy hair or a peaches and cream complexion. Some people have pretend to this gift by not taking sentimental things tragically. You can learn to "laugh it off." Remember the words of Horace Greeley, "Laugh and the world laughs with you, weep and you weep alone."

Presbyterian Y. P. U., Kingston Presbytery, Convenes at Roslin

Stirling, Oct. 26—That activity in Presbyterian Young People's work in the Presbytery of Kingston was evidenced by the large number of delegates representing societies in all parts of the Presbytery which assembled for the annual Fall rally session Tuesday evening at Roslin Presbyterian Church. One notable feature of the interesting program was an address by Rev. Dr. Boudreau of Picton, general secretary of the People's work in the Kingston Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church.

Supper Served at Manse

A twenty-five cent supper served in the home of Rev. and Mrs. Macdonald of Roslin preceded the activities of the evening over which Miss Clara Thain, President of the central governing body presided. A brief song service under the leadership of Rev. Dr. Boudreau and Arthur Dimmon opened the meeting and the devotional period was conducted by the Madoc group. The delegates were formally welcomed on behalf of the Roslin Society by Mr. D. Peck and greeting extended to the body by Rev. Bearer of Roslin Church of England. Mr. Bearer pointed to the importance of organized Youth group in all churches as the foundation upon which future church officers gain important knowledge in executive and leadership work and church law.

Reports Pleading

During the business part of the meeting reports were presented by Secretary T. Hawthorne of Madoc and Treasurer D. Post of Roslin.

Many Groups Present

The Roll Call revealed representative present from Young People's Societies in Burnbrae, Madoc, Roslin, Tulley, Picton, Belleville and Stirling. Officials from each of the aforementioned groups reported on the year's activity within each centre and an invitation extended in the gathering to hold their next annual rally at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, was accepted. It was also decided that the next rally would be held on the first Sunday in June 1940 at Trenton Presbyterian Church.

Miss Clara Thain, President of the Presbytery Society, was also official delegate to the Provincial rally at London and gave a complete report of the activities of that event which was most interesting. A musical contribution to the programme was made by the Stirling group in the form of a vocal solo by Art Duncan with Mrs. R. S. Williams at the piano. Miss H. Fellow, acting minister of the Provincial executive was present and brought greetings from the provincial offices and briefly addressed the gathering in words of congratulations. Miss Pelow is Provincial Social convener and stressed the need for continued activity in all phases of the work to keep Presbyterian Youth interested in things Christian.

Dr. Boudreau

The guest speaker of the evening was Dr. Boudreau, of Picton, convener of People's Societies for the Kingston Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, who was introduced by Rev. W. J. Walker of Belleville.

Speaking on the subject of "Justice" Dr. Boudreau asserted this was one of the most important virtues concerning the individual. It is cause us to observe the rights of others and the rights of all men must be respected. A child has a right to healthy environment, good parentage and education. these things can only be obtained by a continual Christian [illegible] founded in the church of Christ.

"Man's rights must be observed and also God's rights which include the loyalty and faith of His followers. Christian Fellowship is within itself the portrayal of Christian profession that is good for the individual soul and humanity at large. Some should replace church attendance by radio service but in so doing the personal is lost. Lounging behind a newspaper in home cosy and slippers is not the proper environment for worship and true devotion. furthermore there is the spirit of isolation which is not good for character and spiritual growth.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the speaker, the executive committee and the Roslin group for the excellent programme provided by Rose Kidd of Bellevile.

Officers Installed

A slate of officers for the coming year was presented by the nominating committee and were formally installed by Rev. W. H. V. Walker, of Stirling. Honorary President, Rev. Dr. Boudreau; President, Miss Clara Thain, Burnbrae; 1st. Vice-President, Robt. Judd, Belleville; 2nd. Vice-President, Dorothy Montgomery, Stirling; Secretary, Hawthorne, Madoc; Treasurer, D. Post, Roslin; Conveners, Worship, Dr. Rise, Madoc; Service, Dorcas Pollock, Burnbrae; Fellowship, Dave Campbell, Picton; Leadership Training, Edith Wallace, Burnbrae; P.Y.P.S., Reporter, Lena Swenson, Belleville.

Chicken Supper At Shannonville Great Success

Three hundred hungry residents of the village and its vicinity paid gustatory tribute to the culinary abilities of the ladies of the Shannonville United Church last night on the occasion of the annual chicken supper held in the hall of the church.

Surpassing by far any similar functions put on by the congregation in years past, the sumptuous repast drew the unstinted admiration of all who enjoyed it. There was fried chicken, roast chicken, stewed chicken and chicken pie cooked in a mouth-watering style that was a distinct tribute to the ladies of the host.

There were piles of all dainty, tempting salads, hot, baked beans and macaroni, delicious cakes topped with colorful icing and the many other "goodies" that go to make the rural chicken supper an institution of the countryside.

As early as five-thirty the "first table" got under way and hungry, filed into the hall. Courteous ladies immediately placed the steaming viands in front of them and the "waits" got under way. Long before their appetites had been satisfied, another large crowd of patrons thronged the space inside and outside the doorway.

Following the "feeding of the multitude" a variable entertainment was staged by members of the congregation in the church, with a large number of the supper audience remaining to enjoy the many entertaining numbers that formed the program.

The supper and entertainment as a whole reflected distinct credit on the ladies of the congregation, and officials of the church, and the substantial amount produced by the venture will swell the coffers of the organization in no small degree.

ADAMS REBUILDS DETROIT WINGS FOR N. H. L. RACE

Veterans and Little-Tried Youngsters Counted on to Help Squad

THREE GOOD LINES

Cecil Dillon from Rangers Expected to Help Scoring Punch

Detroit, Oct. 26 (CP)—Release of Marty Barry and Doug Young, two stars of the world champions of 1935-36 and 1936-37, is but one indication of how thoroughly Jack Adams is making over his Detroit Red Wings for the National Hockey League season.

From head to foot Adams is giving the Red Wings a shaking-up with the intention of assembling something like his Stanley Cup squads of three and four years ago. And a mixture of veterans and little-tried youngsters will be counted on to lift the Wings from the rut that led them right out of the playoffs two seasons ago to finishing better than fifth place last season.

Adams started rebuilding early in the 1938-39 campaign when he lost Normie Smith, retired, to Bucko McDonald to Toronto and acquired from Boston one of the greatest of all goal-tenders, Tiny Thompson, to replace Smith. When the season ender he relinquished his rights to big Charlie Conacher and retired another of the standby, Herbie Lewis, to the management of Detroit's new farm at Indianapolis.

Bought Great Scorer

He bought a great scorer, Cecil Dillon, from New York Rangers and summoned a flock of youngsters to training camp to try for places with the Red Wings and with the Indianapolis and Omaha farms. Evidently he was pleased with crop for he let Barry and Young go unconditionally last week, though they were welcomed with open arms by Montreal Canadiens.

On the 34-year-old Thompson will fall again a big burden behind a defence that has to prove its worth. Only Eddie Goodfellow and Sonny Bowman remain from the defencemen of Stanley Cup days. Alex Motter, 178-pound century, is being made over into a defence-man. For the fourth defence spot Adams will rely on Buck Jones, a hard-hitting youngster from Owen Sound, who lacked finish in his baptism last year but polished a good many opponents; forwards into the $2.20 seats before he finished.

Three Good Lines

Dillon will work on a line with Don Deacon, the portly boy from Regina who led the International-American League in scoring last season and saw service with Detroit in the playoffs, and with Ken Kilrea, member of a famous Ottawa hockey family who is up with Deacon from Pittsburgh.

Modere Brunteau and Syd Howe, who helped bring the world title to Detroit, join Gus Giesebrecht, a sensational amateur last season, on the end line. The third trio consists of Eddie Wares, an experienced payoff player, and Don Grosso and Gil Abel, who came up from amateur company last winter and showed good immediately.

The veteran Hec Kilrea, brother of Ken and a National League performer since 1925, will serve as utility forward.

WRESTLING ART ANCIENT SPORT

Game Has Changed Considerably Since Man Used the Art for Protection

It is generally conceded that wrestling was about man's second form of sport, being preceded only by foot racing, commonly known as running. Prehistoric man, realizing he would often have to meet the beasts of the field in close encounter, finally indulged in contests with members of his tribe so that each could learn how to grapple with enemy when subsequently in combat with the beasts of nature.

So the art of wrestling began, but wrestling in its modern adaptation is a conglomeration of boxing, fist fighting, gymnastics and acrobatics all crammed into one gala affair today known as "mauling" or the clutch and grab game. However, all in all the modern wrestling shows can always be depended upon to please increasingly large numbers of its attendance, and this is no exception at the Hume Arena where weekly professional wrestling bouts each Friday night are meeting with increased favour and larger attendance. One of the promoters of the art continue to provide new faces and ring problems never before seen locally.

Friday night's show this week will be no exception to the general rule as topping the list is a rough-and-tumble between Tiger Daniels, the pugnacious Regina grappler, and Pedro Valdez of Mexico City. Valdes has a decision over Daniels and it was the latter who challenged for the return bout.

Topping the show in the main bout see Joe Malich, former Canadian amateur champ, meet Jewish Dave Khoen of Michigan, while the opener sees a boy-and-girl mixup wrestling wars when Roy Johnny, Shannonville, meets Georges Chesepeta, of Wilmington.

B. C. I. Wins Interscholastic Group Championship With 25-0 Victory Over Albert

Eddie Schrieder's 'College-ians' Show Too Much Speed to Apply the Whitewash Brush

ALBERT ELIMINATED

Winners pile Up Score in Last Quarter as Clare, Pigden and "Ghost" McBride Run Wild

Belleville Collegiate won the Bay of Quinte rugby football championship and qualified for the senior Interscholastic playdowns in the O.S.S.A. with a 25 to 0 whitewash victory over Albert College on the latter's campus yesterday. It was the first consecutive victory for the "collegians" over Coach Pete Beach's Albert squad, the suffered elimination in defeat. Playing a best three-of-five schedule the B.C.I. won the group championship in their first three games played.

Coach Eddie Schrieder's "collegians" were in rare form as they completely overshadow the undefeated Albertans. Paced by Ross Clare, whose driving plunges flipped off many long gains, and Pigden and gave the B.C.I. one touchdown, Bill "Ghost" McBride galloped over for two, ma-tallies for scores and Bill Pigden raced 50 yards for another try as the B.C.I. applied the razzle-dazzle type of football against the bewildered Alberts.

B.C.I. Line Better

Tom Wooley was the outstanding player for Albert and stood the brunt of Uzzi and Pigden, Woodend and Ruddy following, but the Beach-line couldn't function under the heavy going. All during the 3.C.I. line increased power as the game progressed but first time this year, while their secondary was paced by "Yank" McBride, who also kicked all four fine gains through ends by Sharpe, Pigden, Clare and Ruddy showed some good blocking and tackling for the winners, but it was Clare and "Ghost" McBride, who carried the winners to victory. Clare also looked much superior and registered gains on each exchange of punts from his educated toe.

The Play

Clare went through to recover his own kick early in the game and give B.C.I. an edge. Wooley's kick and Pigden's run gave B.C.I. a 20 yard forward from Clare, but Ruddy ran Clare's punt to safety. On their famed extension play, or hot potatoes" "Yank" McBride travelled to Albert's 18 and on the same type of play, that saw four B.C.I. backs handle the ball perfectly "Ghost" McBride carried over for a touchdown, which Clare converted, score 7-0 for B.C.I. The "collegians" completed another fine forward pass in this quarter, but no score came and Woolley fumbled on the first play of the second quarter giving B.C.I. possession. Clare was forced to punt and Wooley took two fine forwards in succession from Moulden but Albert could not score as the B.C.I. line later held. McBride leaped into the air to take Clare's forward and brother "Yank" reeled off ten more, but Ruddy ran out Clare's punt to end the initial half.

Several penalties were meted out in the third quarter but finally Clare kicked well over Albert's goal-line and four B.C.I. linemen were on Wooley for a rouge and a point; score 8-0 for B.C.I.

B.C.I. Run Wild

It was in the last period, when Albert was tossing forward passes in desperation, that the B.C.I. speedsters ran amok. Clare intercepted an Albert pass and ran it back 40 yards to later crack over for a touchdown, that Pigden converted as he tossed to Hart making the score 14-0.

Gardner snagged Albert's short kick-off and after Clare kicked, Pigden leaped into the air snatched an attempted Albert forward and streaked 50 yards unmolested for a touchdown, not converted. Eddie Schrieder's squad had Albert well on the run and marched up the field to have Bill McBride pivot around right-end for a fourth B.C.I. touchdown, that Clare converted making the final score 25 to 0 for B.C.I.

The lineups:

B.C.I. & S.: Snap, Zufelt; Inglis, Cearly, Sharpe; Middles, Cavanaugh, Mulholland; Ends, Kilpp, Crouch; Pullbacks, Latimer-Bride, Thorne; Halfbacks, S. McBride, Clare; Quarter, Pigden; Inserts, Bunnett, Hart, Hunter, Tripp, Cronk, Gardner, Goodfellow, McCormick, Pickering, Warren, Stewart and Vechter.

Albert College: Snap, Partridge; Insides, Downing, Hagyard; Middles, Burrows, Chamberlain; Ends Kilpatrick, Ruddy; Halfbacks, Wooley-head; Quarter, Moulden; subs, Insides, Eaton, Dabbin, Brawley Manning, Orr, Hawkinson, Hughes and Shields.

Referee: Art Cole; Umpire: Morley Baker both of Belleville.

"Serum" Horse To Lead Challenge

New York, Oct. 26 (CP)—High-stepping King Hi, the gallant old horse who came back from the bone yard, again will lead the United States challenge in the International military jumping event in the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden Nov. 4-11.

Last year the 12-year-old timber topper, who spent half his life on a health farm as a "serum" horse, outclassed the best horses from three continents to capture the $1,000 military jumping event. He was ridden by owner-Captain Royce Drake who will pilot him again this year.

A great favorite with horsemen and the show crowd, King Hi already has been established favorite to take most of the events for which he is eligible. Wills Canada is doubtful started and Eire definitely out of the show the military competition has been narrowed down to teams from the United States, Chile and Mexico.

McPhail Proposes Inter-Loop Competition At End of Season

But Scheme Does Not Register

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—Startled out of a hour-of-season slumber by the alarm of Brooklyn's early rising Leland Stanford MacPhail, who wants to supplement the world series with games between the other clubs, most of the major league magnates are cautious.

Some of them have been burned before by their own criticism of the red-head's red hot schemes—such as night baseball—and are willing to give his latest brainchild a chance.

This is what MacPhail said he intended to have anyway at the annual meeting at Cincinnati in December, when he will propose that the first place clubs play each other, as now, and the second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth place teams also meet.

"Inter-league competition should not be confined to the clubs. A series of inter-league games in which all clubs participate would fairly determine the question of supremacy each season," argued MacPhail.

The first reaction of a lot of persons was probably voiced most succinctly by Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, who snapped:

"Just say for me that MacPhail is nuts. Somebody proposed this a long time ago and it was just as silly then as it is now."

LIGHTING SYSTEM TO BE INSTALLED AT POLO GROUNDS

Giants Will Play Full Quota of Games at Home and Abroad Under Arcs

LAST TO SUCCUMB

Yankees, However, Will Not Have Lights in Stadium for 1940

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—Despite the long-standing objections of Manager Bill Terry, the New York Giants have decided to install a bang-up lighting system in the Polo Grounds and play a full quota of night games next summer, both at home and on the road.

The Giants will become the last of the big league clubs to haul down their umpiring lamps and succumb to the financial lure to the-arcs. An official announcement will be made in about a week.

This will leave Yankee Stadium alone of the three New York ball parks without a lighting system. Brooklyn made a mint of money with its night games at Ebbets Field the past season. The Yankees are willing to play a few night games, right at home, but President Ed Barrow is set against installing lights—"at least for 1940".

Terry, who has said he never, never would play under lights, will have to shade his eyes and like it, a martyr to the wishes of the stockholders to make money.

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Power along their line, speed in the backfield coupled with some razzle-dazzle football gave the Belleville Collegiate gridders a 25-0 victory over Albert College and the Bay of Quinte senior interscholastic rugby title yesterday. From the time Ross Clare raced through to recover his own kick early in the piece, until Bill "Ghost" McBride scored the last touchdown, Albert never seemed to threaten. Clare's early play and Pete Beach's squad bewildered and befuddled. Eddie Schrieder's "collegians" played their best game of the year, always head-up football. The line tackled and blocked splendidly while Clare and the McBride boulders swept off repeated gains of yardage, their extension runs, known to football as the "hot potatoes" play, were perfectly executed. Schrieder's backs were tossing the ball around like a magician pulling the old nut-shell trick, or "button, button, who's got the button" game. Tom Woolly carried the Alberts for the greater time, assisted occasionally by Ruddy and Moulden, but the collegians were too powerful and speedy for the flimsy Albert line that cracked under the strain.

It seems Albert College won the pre-game title. On Tuesday night a few of the more energetic members of Eddie Schrieder's "collegians" pulled the oldest pre-game trick known in school football, the painting of the home team's goal posts in the visitors' colors. They, of course, thought the collegiate kids' labored painting the Albert posts a brilliant scarlet, black and blue, but alas it proved to be "loves labor lost". It seems the mischievous Albert boys were on the alert and had covered their goal posts with wax, so all that they had to do yesterday morning was peel the wax off and off came the colorings, which the Collegians had labored so hard to decorate their "initial" posts with. "It's initial fair to organize student labor", remarked the wax-wise Albert Indians before the game yesterday. Incidentally at one stage of yesterday's game it looked as though personalities were going to creep into the game. The Albert players but officials Cole and Baker soon quieted down the rough stuff after a couple of timely penalties. The changes in B.C.I. lineup saw Trent Valley winners in the senior C.O.S.S.A. playdowns next.

No matter what game or sport one is engaged in there is always that desire to win, which is a strong incentive. Wrestling is no exception, the odd bit of roughness creeps into the picture now and then, more frequently the result in rough matches. Generally speaking the fans like to see the orthodox wrestling, but strangely enough the so-called fall-as-you-can style seems to draw more grappling fans after their initiation to the game, seemingly they are there to get action and many of them get plenty of it. Wrestling fans crave action, and will be attracted to the hall by their desires when Tiger Daniels, Regina grappling-bonbon grappler meets Pedro Valdez, the Mexican whirlwind in Friday night's wrestling show at the Hume Arena. There's no love lost between these two wrestlers and it is safe to predict this bout will steal the show over the semi-windup bout on the Match versus Dave Khoen; the Jewish grappler from Detroit.

The response in the call for seasonal basketball players was far below expectations at the Y.M.C.A. last evening. Scarcely the veteran cagers of Belleville have to be shown before they report for the season. Joe Short checked over the possible players who might be developed and found at least a dozen available, but what is actually required are a flock of beginners in the possibility of an adequate group to represent the Y. outfits in the sponsoring of a junior and a juvenile cage team are quite keen on the game." Joe Short of the "Y" feels Napanee, Trenton and Picton might be interested in juvenile basketball, whereas they specialize mostly in senior basketball. However, if a local intermediate team can be developed it could be included in a Lake Shore group, no doubt the Belleville players would only be the cause in short order.

The Belleville softball executive met last night to conclude their business. Treasurer Harry Knott submitted his financial report and it was found the association finished on the right side of the ledger, although the present bank balance is only 97 cents. Considering the improvements made at the Coleman Flats diamond by the parks commission are to be congratulated for their efforts. Incidentally the executive voted to hold the annual meeting and election of officers of the Belleville softball Association in the autumn of the year instead of in the spring. Through this procedure the softball brigade feel the newly elected and incoming officers would prove active during the winter months and perhaps advance the game in the off-season.

According to Fred Beaudry of the Kingston press, Queen's University has played a total of 196 senior intercollegiate rugby games since joining the Union in 1898. Of these games Queen's has won 92 and lost 94 while they tied in nine, which is as near to a 50 per cent football as one could wish. Toronto Varsity, on the other hand, has engaged in 222 games, with 134 wins, 71 losers and seven ties, so says Globe and Mail Vern DeGeer. Old McGill has taken part in 191 games in the Union, winning 80 and losing 104 with seven being tied.

SPORT SPICE—A call for prospective hockey players was made at the Armouries, Kingston, yesterday, which would indicate there is no intention of the Tykes continuing in pack-chasing circles for the coming season at least.

Manager Frank Selke of Montreal Canadiens and Lester Patrick of New York Rangers agreed that the Kingston rink is the best in the N.H.L. Owner Charles Holland took Woolf off the South American tour in the centre-ice handicap last Saturday in favor of Johnny Adams. The Woolf Woolf stable of Challedon to victory in the Maryland handicap over Johnny now prefers the leg-up on Challedon.

JOCKEY KILLED IN TWO HORSE CRASH ON CALIFORNIA RACE TRACK

Bay Meadows, California, was the scene of an unfortunate accident recently that resulted in the death of jockey Wallace Leishman, who was crushed to death by a stumbling horse after his own had thrown him to the ground. TOP picture shows the horses approaching the turn, just before the accident. The arrow pointing at Leishman, up on Blindfold.' Hemmed in on rounding the turn, the jockey tried to take back, but his horse fell, throwing him to the ground. Shady Wood, following close on his heels, fell on Blindfold, stumbled over the jockey, crushing his skull. LOWER picture shows the two riderless horses continuing around the track after their spill, while Leishman, indicated by the arrow on the right, lies still. Shady Wood's jockey, also indicated, is rising unhurt after being thrown.

SALMON (or other fish) CRUSTY

4 cups (2 lbs.) of canned salmon or any other cooked fish
½ cup medium white onion, cold 1 tsp. chopped onion
½ tsp. chopped parsley ½ tsp. salt Dash pepper
Your own biscuit recipe—using any quick biscuit flour—(about 2 cups)
2 pounds of peas (or 1 two-pound can) creamed

Flake salmon (or cooked fish), reserving a few pieces. Add rest of fish to white sauce, with seasonings. Roll biscuit dough in long strip, about 8" wide by 12" long. Spread fish mixture over dough, leaving 1" margin all around. Roll as for jelly roll, pinching edges together. Grease or flour a 10" pie plate and lift roll onto greased baking sheet, then form into large circle, pressing ends together. Cut 6 slits in top of biscuit dough and insert large piece of fish in each for decoration. Brush surface with melted butter and bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) 25 minutes. Loosen from pan immediately, slide onto serving plate. Fill centre with hot creamed peas. Serve with sweet pickles—serves 6.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, don't neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist a tube of Hemroid ointment and follow directed This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender parts. Hemroid is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

TRENTON and DISTRICT

Trenton, Oct. 26—(Special)—Townsmens by Dobbie and Shippard gave McGill a one-sided victory over Queen's in an inter-form match played following classes at the Trenton High School. Watson kicked a point for McGill's eleventh count while Jackson registered Queen's only tally when he booted the ball across the McGill goalline. Line-ups: McGill—O. Sheppard, Hector Dobbie, Mac Watson, Watson Hepburn, Gerald Ireland, Melville Currie, Queen's: R. Jackson, A. Richards, E. Simmons, A. Cartwright, R. Yarrow and Ron Rosenplot.

Power Plants Protected by Barbed Wire

While driving along the Trent river towards Frankford one can't help but notice that barbed wire entanglement has been placed around high pension transformers that supply this district with power. The R.C.A.F. and provincial police have replaced the sabotage guards during the day time.

Few Ducks Here

Hunters in this town are finding it decidedly slim pickings for in the western vicinity of the bay there is very little water and most have gone to the lake where the great expanse affords greater protection against the gunners and shooters

Transients to Get Relief Must Provide Certain Requirements

Insofar as single transient unemployed are concerned who are to be able to establish local municipal residence, the Province of Ontario will share with the Dominion authorities in relief granted, providing certain requirements are met, it was announced here received by Superintendent William Rose of the local employment office revealed today.

The requirements include proof of application for employment, refusal or rejection for physical disability, and that employment has not been offered and refused.

Upon certificate of the local employment officer to the foregoing requirements, a municipality authorized by the director of unemployment relief may issue relief on the same scale as single men in that municipality and the province will pay the account in full, billing the Dominion for 80 per cent, the com-

Ex-Servicemen Plan to Form Veterans' Batt. of 500 Men

Members of C. C. Assoc. of Kingston Forward Proposal to Minister of National Defence

FOR HOME SERVICE

At a mass meeting of Kingston members of the Canadian Corps Association last night, a plan to form a Veterans' Battalion of some 500 veterans met the unanimous approval of those present. The decision will be forwarded immediately to the Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of National Defence for his approval.

Any returned man in Kingston and vicinity will be eligible to enlist in the battalion which will be formed for home services. Recruits will not be asked to go overseas. The executive plans calls for the formation of five companies, A, B, C, D, and E, and that officers would have to be composed of men practically fit which they would be ready for guard duty. Other companies whose members would not have to pass such a stiff medical test would be used for instruction work, observation work, dispatch riding, etc.

It was proposed that Captain Albert Kendall, president of the Kingston Branch of the Canadian Corps Association be appointed to command the unit, with James Harris acting as recruiting officer.

3000 BARRELS OF APPLES WILL BE SHIPPED

Means, Ostrom and Delong Ship Boat Cargo to Quebec City and Chicoutimi

Three thousand barrels of apples are being loaded on the steamer St. Paul du Nord at Ostrom's dock, Rossmore, today and tomorrow for shipment to Quebec City and to Chicoutimi which is about two hundred miles north from Quebec City on the Saguenay River.

The cargo is being consigned by Means, Ostrom and Delong of this city and consists of all kinds of apples grown in this district. Loading began last night and will be completed tomorrow morning when the vessel will leave.

Ostrom's wharf which is east of the bridge on the Rossmore side of the Bay has the finest landing facilities on the bay, it is said. The depth of water is from twenty-five to thirty feet.

Mr. G. F. Ostrom stated today that the firm of Ostrom and Delong are developing the market in Quebec province for local-grown apples.

COPPER PRODUCTION RISES

Ottawa, Oct. 26—(CP)—Canadian copper production in August totalled 54,039,971 pounds, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. This was an increase over the 47,917,946 pounds output in August, 1938. Annual record production was 20,132,019 pounds compared with 16,575,106 a year ago.

WALL STREET

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Leading shares rallied sharply with the restricted area today, with gains and losses, mostly fractional, about balanced.

Steels and Rails, favorites in yesterday's upswing, succumbed to profit taking and were dropped. Selected issues were able to advance on small spurts.

Displaying some strength most of the time were General Motors, which slipped through to touch a new 1939 high, Chrysler, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Brooklyn Union Gas, Johns-Manville and Pure, Oskanese and 13 National Dairy.

Mcintyre Porcupine gained more than a point in the Canadian list. Noranda and Lake Shore and Dome followed close behind. Hiram Walker, however, slid a little lower.

Backward were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Sperry, International Harvester, U.S. Gypsum, East. Kodak and Phelps Dodge.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 26.—(CP)— Industry shares attracted buyers in the early session and Toronto Exchange trade today and the exchange index for the group advanced .26 to a new high record for the year. Gold issues were a portion of a broad gain and the base metal and western oil stocks recorded minor losses. Trading was fairly active with 246,000 shares changing hands in the first three hours.

Power stocks were marked up on expectation heavier consumption arising from munition operations. A few good gains of a point or two, prices also higher for textile, paper and distillery stocks.

Higher prices ruled for the golds, including Hollinger, Teck Hughes, Macassa, Preston, East Malartic, Lamaque, Teck Kod and Uchi, Nickel and Noranda were slightly stronger.

The western oil market was dull with Anglo-Canadian and Calgary and Edmonton narrowly lower. Home held at 2.80, Texas-Canadian was a fraction lower at an advance of 10 cents.

Butter to Wholesale Trade Eases Slightly

Toronto, Oct. 26. — Graded egg prices were steadier at Toronto yesterday, with quotations to the wholesale trade on butter eased slightly.

Fresh country collections received from the quiet opening on the egg market. Producers, which were ample for requirements, moved more freely as the day progressed, and prices firmed one cent per dozen on the three top grades in the graded section of the egg list. Retail values held former levels.

Absence of demand more than selling pressure caused declining tendencies on the butter market. Trading has been slightly more active than far, but prices finally sagged fractionally lower as the quiet spell prevailed.

ONE-YEAR TERM FOR PLANE THEFT

Joseph Forsythe Alias Thompson Sentenced in Sudbury Court

Sudbury, Ont., Oct. 26 (CP)—For stealing an airplane from the Austin Airways base here Oct. 16, Joseph Forsythe, alias Thompson, Timmins mechanic, today was sentenced to a year in prison.

The youth confessed to three months to run concurrently when he pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to steal a plane at Garden Lake in September.

Crown Attorney E. B. Wilkins did not press for a severe sentence, pointing out that the plane stolen here was recovered and suffered no damage. Chief Constable Sigurdson, Provincial Air Service pilot, found the plane.

Commenting on the Larder Lake case, Magistrate Nickle said: "The information was that Forsythe entered the hangar of the Kirkland Lake Airways, took out the plane, filled its tanks with gas, and then started to fly the hangar. He did not try to fly the plane.

"In the circumstances the closest a case that had an exciting start on the morning the plane was stolen when Forsythe, a watchman at Austin Airways, was found by a mechanic, tied with ignition wire. Sigurdson told of being held up at the point of a gun, tied and left by Forsythe while Forsythe sat through the night drinking rum stolen from the first aid kit, and in the morning took off in the plane.

Recalling yesterday, Sigurdson was placed on suspended sentence on a charge of giving false information to police.

Seven Cabinet Ministers Down

Seven cabinet ministers went among government party casualties as Liberals reversed decisions which put them out of power in 1930 for the first time in 30 years. The new Premier will be Godbout, who won that position for two months in 1936 after a period as Minister of Agriculture. He is a skilful farmer from Temiscouata County on the St. Lawrence's south shore, a former professor of agriculture, his family was with five children. He is 47 years old.

"Throughout the campaign," the Premier-elect talked provincial affairs, urged a broad agricultural program, improvement of rural life and collective labor contracts. Much of the Liberal reply to the Duplessis charge that Quebec's autonomy was threatened by Federal acts—notably the War Measures Act—fell on deaf ears.

Three Federal cabinet ministers — Justice Minister Ernest Lapointe, Postmaster-General C. G. "Power and Works Minister P. J. A. Cardin. They had staked their seats on the defeat of the Union Nationals government.

Premier Quits Pleased

At Ottawa last night Prime Minister Mackenzie King saw the Quebec election results as proving all else that the people of Quebec set at one with those in the rest of Canada as other Provinces in their determination that a united Canada shall co-operate in the defence of Britain and France in the war to end Hitlerism." He said "no greater service had been rendered Canada since Confederation" than the patriotic work of the three Federal Ministers.

Conservative Leader Manion said: "Participation is no longer an issue. Now it is time to win the war."

Mr. Lapointe declared: "I will remain at my post." Mr. Cardin said the result disclosed a firm determination on their part to co-operate with the rest of Canada.

Premier Duplessis made no formal statement but appeared before his Union Nationals to promise to a demonstration by a sympathetic group of youths. He was heard to say: "Long live youth; down with corruption."

Mr. Godbout said the election was "a vote of confidence in the Provincial Liberal party and an appreciation of the stand taken by the Liberal leaders in the Federal field.

Not One Elected

"We did not save the country from Hitler in order to lead it over to do so," said Paul Gouin, leader of the Action Liberale Nationale Party which in 1936 was defeated and failed to elect a member.

"Conscription" was the word that Maxime Raymond, former Quebec Premier, yet actually there was no expressed difference in the attitude of any of the three parties on compulsory military service. All opposed it. Premier Duplessis Mackenzie King had announced publicly that conscription legislation would never impose it; the Quebec Federal Ministers had said they would never resign if a Government attempting to enforce it.

Premier Duplessis had declared that a vote for the Liberals was a vote for conscription and had that the Federal Ministers had changed their stand in extraordinary fashion to retain office. They might change their stand again.

Against Centralization

Gouin pledged that an ALN. Government would take Quebec out of conformity in the matter of compulsory service. He opposed "unlimited participation" in the war; "Quebec has recognized Canada was at war and in this connection declared Premier Duplessis that "there are laws and Quebec will obey them. I will hold that authority was centralized through war measures and unconstitutionally; measures are unduly jeopardizing Quebec's position.

Of a four of ten cabinet ministers, apart from the premier, were able to hold their seats. They were Hon. Onesime Gagnon, Minister of Mines and Fisheries; Hon. Antonio Elie, Minister of Public Works in Sherbrooke, where he had a close call to win over Maurice Cingues; Hon. J.H.A. Paquette, Minister of Health and Provincial Secretary, defeated in Gabelle, and Hon. Antonio Elie, Health, re-elected in Yamaska.

Mr. Godbout, winning the I'Islet seat he lost in 1936, defeated Hon. Joseph Bilodeau, Minister of Municipal Affairs.

T. D. Bouchard, Liberal House leader, defeated in the election when the party's 1936 defeat, was reelected in St. Hyacinthe. Elected unopposed as members of the party from which Mr. Godbout will pick his government are L. Alexandre Taschereau, former Provincial Secretary; Oscar Drouin, Minister of Lands and Forests' cabinet but broke away and ran in this election as a Liberal, and J. Lechie, former Duplessis minister.

Two Duplessis supporters who left the party over the premier's war policy, Paul Gouin and Arthur Sauvé, ran on other tickets. W. R. Bullock, who represented Westmount as a Conservative, was defeated as a Conservative in the new constituency of Notre Dame de Grace and Gilbert Layton, as an Independent, by the merged ridings of Westmount-St. George.

Montreal Mayor Elected.

Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal, storm-centre of many a political squabble and once provincial Conservative leader, got back into the provincial picture as an Independent. He was successful in his old riding of Montreal-St. Mary and was one of two "other group" candidates to win out. The other was Rene Chaloult, who left Union Nationale Party with Paul Gouin and termed himself a National. He won Lotbiniere, Maurice, Mantler, Portneuf and Quebec-Montmagny members.

Another colorful figure failed to make the grade was Fred Dixon, noted criminal lawyer, ran in Montreal-Verdun as a Social Democratic Commonwealth Federation candidate, but failed to win. He finished second in a field of four to J. J. Comeau, Liberal.

The government party polled 168 votes all for Evariste Dube in Montreal, all for Evariste Dube in Montreal.

No General Election

Ottawa, Oct. 26.—(CP)— Victory of the Liberals in yesterday's Quebec election is accepted in political circles here as wiping out any possibility of a General Election, at least before the conclusion of the next session of Parliament scheduled to open in January.

Under the Statutory session in September Prime Minister Mackenzie King intimated to the House of Commons that he was opposed to his Government holding office, even for a longer term than the statutory term of five years, for Federal Liberal term expires next fall.

However, Mr. Mackenzie King later declared that the Government's survival as a vote of confidence in his policies for the prosecution of the war and that he would continue to warrant his asking Parliament to extend its life beyond the five years.

GODBOUT APPEALS

Mr. Godbout's address followed a triumphal automobile procession through the streets of Quebec, where hundreds gathered to greet him on his return from Ottawa, where he was in personal victory at the polls.

Premier Maurice Duplessis, in whose Cabinet Mr. Godbout once served as Minister of Agriculture, was among the greeters and the two chatted in the crowded parlor of the Chateau Frontenac.

Well Compensated

Outcome of yesterday's general election, Mr. Godbout said in his address, "compensates us well for the trials which our party underwent in the past. We are sure the Liberal rule ended with rise to power of retiring Premier Maurice Duplessis' Union Nationale Party.

"Should I also thank Mr. Duplessis for having wished that this Provincial election campaign touch on Federal questions, supplanting Federal politics?" he asked.

We knew that the Provincial Liberals had in Ottawa faithful friends in the Federal domain, but we wish to express publicly our behalf they would not have had to intervene in the political campaign if it had been conducted only on a Provincial basis.

Double Significance

The election results constitutes also an approval of the attitude held in Ottawa especially by those who have always been the protectors of our rights, the defenders of our traditions and the champions of national unity.

"It is why in my opinion a proof that Quebec electors, be they French-Canadian or English-Canadian, understand the necessity of maintaining unity of thought and action, so indispensable in the difficult times which we are undergoing."

Tyendinaga Children To Get Inoculation Treatments Free

Dr. Welsh Asks for Co-operation of Parents

With inoculation against diphtheria and scarlet fever, and vaccination against small-pox of school children of Thurlow and Tyendinaga Townships completed, Dr. H. Gerald Welsh, Medical Officer of Health, has announced that the next step will be to turn his attention towards these municipalities in the western part of Tyendinaga Township, he announced yesterday.

The vaccine is absolutely free of charge, and is not compulsory, he stated.

Diphtheria and scarlet fever toxoids are used in inoculating the children during the present year, while scarlet fever toxoids were given during the next school year. The three administrations will be given at one time, and the following, the medical officer stated, will be the order in which the various schools eligible to receive the treatments, for any child in the Township of Tyendinaga over the age of one year. However, if any child in the Township is under one or two years of age, he has been immunized to them by his family physician, he is free to receive the treatments for the other diseases.

Dr. Welsh urged that all parents co-operate as closely as possible with the Board of Health since these lines so that healthier boys and girls in the township will be assured.

Notification of the inoculation and vaccination will be sent parents through the medium of cards distributed through the schools.

WHY DO DRIVERS NEGLECT TO BUY DRIVING PERMITS?

Magistrate Says It Doesn't Make Sense to Neglect to Spend One Dollar and Have to Pay $10 Penalty Costs

"It has always been a source of mystery to me why drivers of motor vehicles neglect to procure their drivers' licenses," pointed out Magistrate K. J. Butler, K.C., during the City police court proceedings at the Court House.

"Drivers persist in driving without first having obtained their driver's licence, which costs only one dollar. Then when they are found guilty and convicted of driving without a licence, the penalty is $10.00 and all costs incurred. It just doesn't make sense," added His Worship in a similar manner advised him up to the last moment before Traffic Court began.

"Yet this is the man who now assures us that the whole object of Hitler's policy since 1936 has been to concert war against Germany.

Dr. Paul Schmidt, Hitler's Interpreter, Ambassador Laughs.

"I will make one other comment on your speeding charges," continued the Magistrate. "It seems, to invite the Soviet Union to join in a crusade against the British Empire."

Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky laughed at this remark of the Prime Minister. He was in the diplomatic gallery as was Hitler's interpreter, the new Italian ambassador.

"Why," Mr. Chamberlain exclaimed, "that is the man who first introduced two sentences from Herr von Ribbentrop's speech to me, and when he first came to England in 1936.

"Germany wants to be friends with Great Britain and I think the British Empire wants to be friends with Germany. The Fuehrer is prepared to make any sacrifice and danger to Europe and to the British Empire to achieve that friendship. Further of Communism, this most terrible of all diseases—terrible because people do not realize its danger until they when it is too late."

There was loud laughter in the House.

Germany Made Choice

"The positive conclusion which we have reached from the speech from the German foreign minister's speech, Mr. Chamberlain said, is that the German government has made the decision to be friends with Great Britain, lay before them."

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader, urged a new attempt for practical understanding with Russia.

"Germany rejected the Russian initiative, he said, the British government might have taken it. Russia that her interests "and those of Germany are in need of understanding and collaboration."

"We ought not to allow our relations with the German government to stagnate in their present unsatisfactory and dangerous position, surging from time to time," he declared, suggesting that which is reported on the question of contraband," Sir Archibald said.

His reference was to Russia's protest to Britain against inclusion of foodstuffs in the contraband list.

A Clumsy Attempt

In the House of Lords, Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax spoke of Von Ribbentrop's speech as a clumsy attempt to drive a wedge between Britain and France.

"The principles of Germany have undergone a dangerous attack by Russia and only a short time ago by Czecho-Slovakia and the whole of Germany plotting by this country would, if that were the matter was not so serious, bring tears to the eyes of all right minded men," declared Lord Halifax declared.

Lord Lloyd, Opposition Leader, declared Britain had "no more right to criticize Russia than we have the United States of America," and added:

"We have many varieties of neutrality and we must not hesitate to say that we are satisfied to maintain the benevolent neutrality of the United States of America."

WAR BRIEFS

Hengrang, Hunan Province, China, Oct. 26 (AP)—A new drive against the Japanese by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's German protégé, Lieut.-General Hans von Seeckt, was reported today following demonstrations against an anti-Nazi Slovak republic's founding Oct. 28, 1918. The demonstrations were reported to have occurred in Bona and Tabor.

Hong Kong, Oct. 26 (CP)— A British motor torpedo boat was damaged and one enlisted man was injured when the craft entered a new mine field in Hong Kong harbor. A heavy explosion fired a warning shot across the bow of the vessel as it was about to go down. Otherwise it would have struck the mine field at upwards of 20 knots.

Bride-to-be Changes Her Mind as She Was About to be Married

Beaver, Pa., Oct. 26 (AP)—The bride who rode to the church in one house with her husband-to-be riding behind, decided to change her mind just in the nick of time. They signed their names to the marriage application and Clerk Hazel enneky asked the bride might have right hands and be sworn. The bride-to-be bolted from the room and disappeared into a crowd.

NO WORDS

Delpfid the intensification of German submarine warfare, "I do not see how words can express once that the situation is well in hand." Mr. Chamberlain said.

"U-boat warfare has been far out to sea and many of them have been destroyed. There is no more talking lawlessness" in U-boat activity than submarine sinking ships without warning and passengers and crew being turned adrift in open boats hundreds of miles from land, he said.

The past week there has been no operations of importance on the Western front. Minor adjustments in positions occupied were made, and "the general result is that we have gained in strength and morale."

Turkish Pact Outstanding

The Turkish agreement described as an "outstanding event in foreign affairs" the conclusion of the Anglo-French-Turkish mutual assistance agreement. It had been received with general satisfaction throughout the world, he said.

"It is a purely defensive instrument threatening no one and designed only to oppose aggression," he said of the pact.

The British trade five British ships totalling 22,715 tons have been sunk, the Prime Minister announced. Three neutrals, that 26,207 tons of German shipping had been captured and 14 British ones successfully herself. Consequently Germany has lost 40,000 tons.

Mr. Chamberlain also confirmed that the British steamship Stonepool was sunk by the German pocket battleship Deutschland on Sept. 30 but informed that all of this loss has only just reached us. It sailed from Buenos Aires, Argentina.

However, Mr. Chamberlain declared German submarines had failed in their object of sinking they reached at the beginning of the war. Britain was driven to operate further and further from home bases."

In addition, he said, "destruction of enemy submarines is being maintained at a high rate, and the only way to encourage us to believe that this submarine menace is being overcome."

Turning his reference to von Ribbentrop's speech by saying he did not intend to waste time by "commenting on the fundamentals of this performance" and added:—

"No one in this country will be deceived by its distortions of the truth, and there is already abundant evidence that Herr von Ribbentrop has been no more successful in his attempts to mislead impartial observers in other parts of the world."

Indeed I even cherish the hope that despite all suppressions and falsifications there are still some in Germany itself who see where the real truth lies.

Reference to Settle

"One of the questions which the historians of the future will have to consider is how far the great body of the German people had to the failure of Herr von Ribbentrop to command either the policy or the character of the British people."

It is not England that has challenged Germany, it is the German government which by their present act acts of aggression pursued in the face of our repeated warnings, have forced us at last reluctantly to take up arms.

"It is the German Government who, by their reckless disregard of their pledged word and of the rights and liberties of other peoples, must bear the responsibility for this war and for all its consequences."

"In his final report on his mission to Berlin, Sir Nevile Henderson (the British ambassador) referred to the encouragement given to Herr Hitler in his designs on Poland by Herr von Ribbentrop as a stirring motive. I used him up to the last moment before British would go to war.

"Yet this is the man who now assures us that the whole object of Hitler's policy since 1936 has been to concert war against Germany.

Dr. Paul Schmidt, Hitler's Interpreter, Ambassador Laughs.

"I will make one other comment on your speeding charges," continued the Magistrate. "It seems, to invite the Soviet Union to join in a crusade against the British Empire."

Bridge Street United Church Congregation is Entertained

Members Take Part in Interesting Program in Church Rooms

NOVEL FEATURES

Members of Bridge Street United Church congregation were given a social program in the church rooms last night which thoroughly introduced the members to one another and which provided thoroughly enjoyable entertainment. Mr. Newton Thompson acted as master of ceremonies and carried out the program with skill and good humor and a maximum of entertainment.

The congregation was divided into groups, first on the basis of numbers, then by colors and finally by letters with the result that the grouping was changed during the program.

Rev. Dr. J. Semple, the pastor, opened the proceedings as he said Rev. J. W. Flett to conduct the devotional services.

During the evening, under the direction of Miss Leona Riggs, a musical program was provided. The numbers, including a ukulele quartette, Messrs. Bankier, Andrews, Norris, Gordon, Howard, Colclough, Sprague and Hackborn singing "a Negro spiritual, "I've Been Listening." The soloists in a section of the choir consisting of Miss Eva Colclough, Miss Ethel Colclough, Mrs. Leo Riggs, Miss Ann C. de Guerre, Miss Brown, Mrs. Bird and Miss Doris Houston, also rendered a spiritual number, "Deep River."

Bankier sang "The Wandering Minstrel" from "The Mikado". Miss Riggs and Mr. Alec Gordon led in community singing.

A feature was the interviews conducted by Mr. Newton Thompson, who interrogated the following members, Mr. I. G. Hefkey, Miss I. Pickrog, Mr. R. A. Grant, Miss Jessie McGie, Mr. Charles Scott, Mr. Lyle Hunter, School Inspector Pickering, Mrs. W. J. Morrison and Mr. McKichan. This was done in the style of radio interviewing on the streets, the announcer approaching those to be questioned and having them talking into a microphone which was attached to a loud speaker heard by the Stewart-Warner Company and operated by Mr. Harry Jones. The inquiries were such as to provoke the most interesting answers, the persons interviewed giving very witty answers though their replies were entirely unrehearsed. In the ice contest Mr. Homer Townsend and Mr. Everett Fairman figured the point of interest being that one had to hold a small piece of ice in his hand as long as the other continued talking and immediately the speaker halted he took the ice and the other talked. Three groups were led in singing of familiar songs, Mr. W. B. Deacon leading one, Mrs. Riggs the second and Mr. T. Colclough, the third group.

Other interesting numbers on program were a march for partners, a "get-to-know" of everybody in the meeting and other games went to make up the enjoyable evening.

Towards the close refreshments were served in the cafeteria by the ladies.

A special vote of thanks was tendered to the Stewart-Warner Company and Mr. Harry Jones for the loan and operation of the speaking system.

Mr. John Cook, an e- and, Co

Mr. Bird moved, seconded by Mr. John Cook, a vote of thanks to the ladies of the church for the refreshments and to the committee in charge of the entertainment program.

War Service United Formed by Ladies Of Holloway St.

The ladies of Holloway Street United Church met Wednesday afternoon in order to form a War Service Unit.

The following officers were elected —President, Mrs. M. D. Denton, Vice President, Mrs. Walters, Secretary, Mrs. J. G. Shaw, Treasurer, Mrs. H. B. Pettetry.

The buying committee consists of Mrs. Stubbs, Mrs. Bayfield, Mrs. Howard.

It was also decided that the organization will meet the second and fourth Tuesday of each month.

The meeting was both opened and closed by Rev. R. E. Newman with prayer.

ST. JOHN'S MISSION

The ladies held an all day quilting at the Mission Hall this week. They had a pot luck dinner.

The business meeting opened with hymn and prayer. The president was in the chair. Afternoon tea was served and the meeting closed with prayer. The ladies of the Guild did the catering for the W.I. convention and realized a good sum toward the mission expenses.

Holloway Street C. G. I. T. Arrange Hallowe'en Party

A very enjoyable Hallowe'en party was held in Holloway Street Sunday School rooms on Monday evening when the Senior C.G.I.T. entertained Mr. Kenneth Reid's Sunday School class, a group of senior boys.

The rooms were tastefully decorated for the occasion. Weird and spooky sounds quickly set the spell as they entered the dimly lighted room. The majority of the boys came in costumes, quaint, pretty and original. The prizes for the best dressed girl was awarded Miss Lois Liddle, who was dressed as a little old lady. The best dressed boy was Robert Mitchell in Scottish plaid. The most original costume was won by Rosslyn Robertson, who was dressed as a little Dutch girl. The costume was designed and made by the wearer. The funniest girl's costume was that of Ruth McIntosh, and the boy's Willie Mills.

Honorable mention was made of Marion Elliston's gypsy costume and Max McGuire's impersonation of a Red Cross nurse.

A sing-song and games provided the evening's fun. Pumpkin pie, doughnuts, candy and refreshments were much enjoyed during the refreshment period.

Teddy Dobbs on behalf of Mr. Ray's class very ably moved a vote of appreciation for the fine evening the C.G.I.T. had given them. Gwen Burley, president of the group made a suitable reply. The happy event closed with all forming a circle and together singing "The More We Get Together" and Taps.

Ruby Keeler and Al Jolson at Parting of Ways

Hollywood, Oct. 26.—(AP)— The love song of Al Jolson and Ruby Keeler is ended, but for Al the melody lingers on.

Jolson confirmed today reports the Novs Scotia-born dancer had given him and Mrs. Jolson the divorce. They celebrated their 10th wedding anniversary with a elaborate night club party last September 21.

Jolson said that Miss Keeler told her "I hope everything will work out all right. I hope you'll come back to me some day."

"May be", she replied.

Miss Keeler and Albert Jolson, Jr., a boy they adopted from a Chicago nursery, were at the Tobuna Lake Home of her parents. Jolson, meanwhile, drifted around the 16-room house he built five years ago, and said he would stay there until his wife "made up her mind once and for all."

Jolson, born Asa Yoelson in Russia, 52 years ago, was married twice before he met Miss Keeler. His second wife, Ethel Delmar Peters, divorced him in Paris in 1928.

Miss Keeler, born in Halifax, N.S., was 19, a Broadway dancer when she married the man who had become famous as a "Mammy" singer on the stage and who had just achieved new success in the first talking picture, "The Jazz Singer."

Jolson said that in discussion of separation he offered his wife $400 a week for life and a settlement of $50,000 in the event she re-married, with a $100,000 cash trust fund for Al Jr. Miss Keeler rejected the offer as insufficient, he added.

The singer said family troubles which he had not considered important enough to cause divorce brought about the separation.

The Stars Say

For Friday, October 27. By GENEVIEVE KEMMIE

WHILE THERE are astral indications of sudden, surprising and progressive occurrences on this day, the same time there are auguries of tenacious obstacles, delays and disappointments. There might be some sort of group opposition or secret enmity, but if this could be prudently overcome, there might ensue very definite progress and personal satisfaction, with increased prestige and popularity. Perseverance, patience and determination may win the day.

Those whose birthday it is may experience some very surprising adventures and happy experiences which spell progress, prosperity and personal power and gratification if they can call on their stamina and patience to resist opposition, deceit and stubborn obstacles.

A child born on this day may have many endowments for success over stubborn obstacles and hostility, being talented, resourceful, ambitious and persistent, with definite executive and organizing ability.

Centenary

Centenary, Oct. 26—Anniversary services were held on Sunday, the church was beautifully decorated with flowers, plants, fruits and evergreen, presenting a very festive appearance of the fall season.

Rev. Mr. Campbell of Trenton, was guest speakrr and his message both morning and evening, were most inspiring.

The church was filled at both services, and the special music by the choir was exceptionally fine. Mr. Shaw, of Bellevill, played an accordian solo at the morning service and in the evening Miss Houston sang "Beside Still Waters."

Mrs. James Hay has returned home after visiting for the past week with her daughter, Mrs. E. Fox and Mr. Fox of Sunderland.

Rev. Mr. Campbell, of Trenton,

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Happy Birthday

By STANLEY J. FORREST

The marks of her tears had left damp places on the arm of the big chair in the library—his chair. And now she lay face down on the bed, her head buried in the pillows, the two rumpled telegrams clenched in her small fist. Both had been sent to Phillip, her husband, and both were from Bert. The first read:

"Lady in black not your type stop Forget her stop Details tomorrow." And the second, dated a few days later,

"Love And kisses to Chorus Girl in pinky hound stop Hope Gertie forgives and forgets."

It would have to be Phillip. They very best friend. No. Phil's certainly not hers.

If only he hadn't asked her to send that gray suit to the cleaner. Or if she had neglected just this once to go through the pockets.

But she hadn't forgotten.

Gertie could hear Mamma Byrett starting up the stairs.

She swallowed hard, blinked through her tears and by the time her mother reached the room, was sitting on the edge of the bed, using her nose.

Sometimes she wished her mother would keep her opinions to herself. She wished it now—

"I ain't for the life of me see why you waste tears over him. I've always said—"

"I-don't care," Sniff. Sniff.

That he wasn't worth the powder to blow him up and still you go right on believing all the stuff and utter nonsense he tells you. "No, he drives a pick-up car for a local cleaning company, does that mean anything to you?"

"Not a thing. However, I'll have him fired tomorrow. But today there's something else—look, Gertie, tell how you met me at Eighteenth and Central?"

"Why?"

"You. I mean me. Hurry up, Honey girl. I'm a busy man. Besides, this tooth is hot. Grab a hat and taxi and hustle down here you see, if you wait too long I'm afraid somebody'll swipe it."

"Swipe what? The hat or the taxi?"

"Your birthday present, Nut."

"Oh. Can't you put it in your pocket and bring it home?"

"Good Listen, Woman; for Pete's sake get down here so we can finish it eat, will you?"

"Eh?"

"Eat."

"Shall I bring mother?"

"No. I've got enough stuff here to last 'n a year."

"Phillip Robertson! All right, what does it eat?"

"Hay, darlin'"

"What's the matter?"

"Nothing—I just said 'hay'."

"O, Phil; you don't—you can't—you didn't! Not a horse—a real live horse?"

"Sorry, they were all out of dead ones. She's a humdinger, though. Well, now that you know all the answers, how about a little of your presents?"

Like a bolt out a clear sky, she remembered. "But—but what about Bert?"

"Huh? What'd you expect me to do—wrap up that egg and mail him to you? Is a way. Bert got him wise to Chorus Girl. Yep, that's her name! Said she's a dandy. Brother owned her a couple o' years ago. And if it hadn't been for Bert Fivm now—n' I won't believe anybody, n-no matter what they say, ohhhh!"

Again she threw herself on the bed and buried her blonde head in her husband's pillow.

What a grand and glorious thing it was to discover on your birthday of all days in the year, that your husband has apparently been buying company with chorus girls and ladies in black. Black what—bathing suit, negligee....?

Br-r-r-r-r-r-r!

"Lo, funny-face. Phillip talking remember me?"

"Yes, I'm afraid I do." Thus was telling him.

"Ooch Listen, Hon."

"Well?"

"Know what day this is?"

"Tuesday."

"Right the last time. And I've been thinking of a date go out street who's got a birthday today."

"Really?"

"C'mon, chatterbox; slow down. Give me a chance to get a word in once in a while, will you? Lookthis is the layout. First: love me a little?"

"I used to."

"Shh! Somebody stealing my line, eh what? Who is he, if I'm not getting too personal—doctor, lawyer, undertaker?"

Salvation Army Hall Re-Opened at Tweed With Special Services

Tweed—After being closed for several weeks during which alterations and extensive repairs were made, the local Salvation Army Hall was reopened on Sunday. Special services were conducted by Lt.-Col. P. Ham and Brigadier T. Riches from Toronto. The Hall was declared open at 10.45 on Sunday morning and a large gathering was in attendance. On Sunday afternoon, Col. Ham gave an address on the theme "Who is my neighbour?" In which he stressed the far-flung social work of the army. In particular he referred to the work among fallen women. In this connection he told of the great work done by Faith Haven Hospital in Windsor.

Mr. W. E. Tummon, ex M.P. presided over the afternoon meeting. Mr. W. S. Gordon spoke briefly complimenting Capt. Bosar and Envoy McLaren on the marked improvement on the appearance of the citadel.

The Young People's Union met on Monday evening in the United Church with quite a good attendance. Miss June Brown, the president was in charge. A very interesting address was given by Mr. Harold Varty on a trip to New York World's Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Bradshaw of Stirling visited the former's mother, Mrs. M. Bradshaw, on Sunday.

Miss Enid Moffat, Reg. N. Montreal visited Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Moffat during the past week.

Rev. J. A. Waddell of Western United Church, Ottawa, who had charge of the anniversary services at the United Church last Sunday, was a guest at the parsonage. Rev. H. L. Morrison conducted the anniversary services at Western United Church in Ottawa.

Mrs. James Colddis and son, David, were guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Sager during the week end.

Mrs. Chas. R. Perritt who was recently injured in a motor mishap in Tweed has been a patient at the nursing home of Mrs. Ida Douglas, Reg. N. for the past two weeks. Her condition is slowly improving.

Marmora

Marmora — Good congregations marked the anniversary services of St. Andrew's United Church on Sunday when Professor J. R. Waits of Queen's University was the special preacher. It is interesting to note that about forty years ago as a student Professor Watts took services for some months at the former St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Assisting Professor Watts on Sunday was Rev. Dr. W. P. Fletcher, pastor of St. Andrew's. Solos were rendered by Miss Flora Sanderson and Mr. George Woodhouse at the morning service. The latter was also soloist at the evening service at which the choir also rendered an anthem. Inspiring and thought provoking sermons, were delivered by the preacher of the day. The morning discourse was based on Jeremiah 18. 4 "And the vessel that he made of clay was married in the hand of the potter."

Two boys formed the basis for the evening sermon, Pharaoh's question to the patriarch Jacob "How old art thou" and St. Paul's assertion "When I was a child, I spoke as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child, but when I became a man, I put away childish things."

Mr. Stanley-Kerr of Rednersville spent the week end at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. George Kerr.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gana have returned after an extended visit with friends in Alberta.

Mr. F. S. Johnston conducted a successful sale of the household effects of Mr. T. Legraw on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Simons of Hillier are visiting their son Mr. William Simmons at Deloro.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kerr Sr. are spending the winter months with relatives in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh O'Connor and small daughter of Ashburn are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Richard O'Connor.

Marmora—The closing ceremonies of the Forty Hour Devotion were held in Sacred Heart Church on Tuesday evening with a large congregation present. Rev. F. D. Hyland, P.P. of Madoc delivered an interesting sermon on the Blessed Virgin. After the procession of the Blessed Sacrament, the service closed with the Benediction.

J. J. Duffus, M.P., Major James Hamilton, W. F. Hayden and Gordon Monroe of Peterborough were guests at the Royal Hotel on Tuesday evening.

Rev. W. L. Terrien, P.P. of Bedford assisted at the Forty Hours' Devotions here on Tuesdays.

NO INQUEST NECESSARY

Sarnia, Ont., Oct. 26.—(CP)—The body of Peter Pasinda, 32, was found hanging from a small oak tree at Canatara Park by Park employees today. A clothesline was tied around his neck and to the tree.

REDHEADS ARE LUCKY

By Vera Brown

A band was playing "Sidewalks of New York." The bleacher crowds were singing. Then they started calling for Handsome, Mr. Regan's eyes were bright. He put his hand through Mike's arm.

"Hear them!"

"Yes, they've always loved Larry, even when he was down on his luck." It was almost game time. There seemed to be lots of empty seat and that was next to Mike. Maybe that seat was for Wish Malone. But, no a stranger finally took it.

Across the way, Carol Lee waved to Mike. She had just come in with Mrs. Barnes. Carol was looking brilliant. She raised her hand, her finger crossed. Mike nodded and smiled. She wondered about Carol and Dusty, hoped that everything was all right between them now.

But the scene in front of her commanded rapt attention. The band played the "Star Spangled Banner' with the teams all lined up near the flag pole. And there was Handsome, marching with them, towering above them all.

Mike afterward could not remember seeing much of the game. She sat there in a fog of misery. Mr. Regan was enthusiastic at the seventh inning "stretch" when everybody stood up the Yanks were leading 2 to 1. Somebody spoke to the man sitting next to Mike.

"My seat, sir, I'm afraid." Mike turned around. It was Wish Malone! She grabbed his arm.

"Wish, Wish, where have you been?" He looked tired, thinner; but he smiled into her eyes; then he greeted Mr. Regan with real pleasure.

"Thank the Lord, I got here for a couple of innings!" He settled himself to enjoy the next twenty minutes. Handsome's team had been in the lead all the way but it was—oh, so close!

"Doing well, isn't he?" Wish murmured.

"Yes, but—but—"

There was little time for talk. A Yankee error helped tie the score in the eighth inning. Even Mike forgot her eagerness to talk to Wish. Handsome was up for his little tired. The game went 10 innings. But there is no use going into details....Everybody knows that Handsome beat Chicago 3 to 2—came through with some of the finest pitching ever in the pinches. His opening hit in the field inning led to his making the winning run.

As Mike stood there with Mr. Regan watching the jubilant fans swarm over the diamond, a sharp remembrance of that other World's Series came over her. She did not want Mr. Regan to miss anything. ....He was like a boy, so eager to see his Larry in this hour of glory.

"He'll be on the radio at 9:30 p.m. and there will be photographs and all that. We won't see him until after seven."

Wish had left in a hurry, to learn Handsome's plans, the moment the game ended. They were to meet him in the old place where his car was parked.

Malone was waiting when Mike and Mr. Regan found his car. "Mr. Regan would like to hear the broadcast, Wish. I hope you have time to take him." Knowing well why she could not go, Wish agreed with alacrity.

"I'll see you again tonight, Wish?" she asked, just before she left them at Radio City.

"Hope so. I'll let you know."

When she met Handsome for dinner with Joe Barnes and some of the boys, he was utterly poised quite certain that their team would have little trouble.

Mike tried to get in touch with Wish the next morning at his apartment. Mike was puzzled, she was certain he was there, but the operator reported Mr. Malone was out. It was only nine o'clock. He's avoiding me, she decided.

Wish did not sit beside her and Mr. Regan that day or the next. She tried to question Handsome about Malone's absence but Larry had little to say and she did not press it.

A brief resume of the rest of the series should suffice. ....Larry Lee lost the second game, 7 to 3; his aging arm developed worries just three him off form. The next day the Yankees succumbed to a terrific bombardment, 12 to 5, but when Ace sent Handsome to the mound for the fourth contest, Regan was even more the master than he was in the opener, shutting out the opposing sluggers, 5-0. The Series was now even, two-all.

Again Dusty Rhodes was called on him in the fifth game and the Yankees, 3 to 2, won the Series by "rubber" game—the seventh—which would settle the Series. The fateful day, Handsome Larry Regan was pitted against Tommy Dean and Gomes at their best. He regained his second shutout (2-0), holding Chicago to three scattered singles! Handsome was indeed a Christy, Dizzy and Dusty rolled into one on that most crucial afternoon!

As Mike and Mr. Regan tried to right their way through the shouting crowds to Wish Malone found them. It was the first time Mike had seen him since the opening game.

"Handsome wants his dad to via-it the dressing room," Wish said. "You go on home and get into your best clothes. We'll telephone when we know where the gang's meeting."

With put Mike into a cab, gave the driver a bill. She was beaming. That was reassuring, but what did it mean? Mike drove unseeing through the streets. The early evening settled fast. The series was over and she fell—horribly let down. Happy that Handsome had won, of course—but with happiness about that. But Mike knew now she must stop seeing him. It was the only way out....

That Iris was back, Mike was certain. There was no other way to explain Wish's surprising behavior. Mike was quite convinced she had been detaining Iris. Wish might feel that her real loyalties lay with Handsome. That end, for him, was the World's Championship.... But there would have to be a day of reckoning.

"It's come for me, now!" she thought out loud.

At her apartment she decided, however, to join the rest. They'd make sure that Mr. Regan, Sr., had a good time tomorrow was another day.... Mike thought of leaving New York. She would not be afraid now to hunt for a job any place. She knew secretarial work. Maybe Bob Kenyon could help her get a transfer down south ....to New Orleans, or out west. Not so far as long lines in the darkened apartment.

She snapped on the lights, and began to dress slowly. She had a nice black dinner gown. A box of fresh orchids from Handsome arrived. Mike touched the lovely purple blossoms, and then applied her cheek. At seven she turned on the radio. Handsome was due to broadcast with Ace and Dusty.

It was a sprightly program. Handsome and the others sounded "swell." It brought a smile to Mike's lips. After the brief program was finished, Mike sat down again to wait for her friends. . . .

It was almost eight when her door bell rang. She ran to the button, pushed it without speaking through the tube. It must be the gang. They'd not bothered to telephone.

She opened the door wide. Nobody came. She finally shut it, returning to the window. Then she heard a tap on her door. She opened it. The apartment was dimly lit, the hall lights blinded Mike for a moment. A woman was standing there. She pushed Mike aside, stepping into the room without speaking.

It was Iris Regan!

Mail Everywhere

The rain was streaming down as we toured this sector of the front. We drove up in a camouflaged car and as long as we ran along the road the going was good. But in order to see the effect of recent bad weather we directed the driver to turn off along some side roads. Along these we had plentiful evidence of the presence of an old enemy of the British soldier in France—mud. Travelling along the crown of the side road was simple enough, but on each side the mud was thick and soft.

We saw one unit trying the effect of a hard broom in an effort to dissipate the mud, but the impression we had was that as far as these auxiliary roads are concerned the coming of winter will make the passage of heavy traffic a nice problem for engineers.

Along the front line we visited men of "B" Company who are working hard all day long adding to the strength of their positions. The country in this part of the line is generally flat, but wherever a slope allows long trenches have been dug to drain away the water that lies so persistently in the clay soil.

QUEBEC VICTORY ...

Dr. Manion declared the result of the election showed that the people of Quebec emphatically approved the attitude taken by the majority in the House of Commons at the special war session last September when it was decided that Canada would enter the war.

Verdict Unanimous.

"That makes the verdict almost unanimous," he said. "Participation is no longer an issue. Now let us get on with the war. Let the Canadian government now make a real effort to see that Canada is doing her full share in a manner worthy of her past."

The Liberal win dispelled any immediate possibility of a general election and removed the threat of a federal election campaign which would have resulted if the Union Nationale government had won control and the Quebec federal cabinet ministers followed through with their pledge to resign their portfolios.

The prime minister, in his public statement, congratulated Premier Hon. Adelard Godbout, Quebec Liberal leader, he thanked Mr. Lapalice, Works Minister Cardin, and Provincial Treasurer Power, the Quebec Liberal Ministers who entered the campaign, for "the magnificent manner in which they took up the challenge levelled against the federal administration by Mr. Duplessis."

Earn Gratitude of Canada.

"No greater service has been rendered Canada since Confederation," the prime minister said. "They have earned and will be gladly accorded the gratitude of all true Canadians."

Mr. Mackenzie-King said: "The people of Quebec have recognized the underlying truth that the present federal government has in no way discriminated against the province of Quebec, or impaired the autonomy of or any other province.

"Now that this wholly unnecessary and disturbing campaign has been concluded, I should like to begin the continued voluntary cooperation of all Canadians, in support of Canada's war efforts and in the maintenance of our National Unity.

"Strengthened by the evidence of the unified power of the two great races which, today's campaign has again revealed, Canada will now be able to go forward as never before in her determination to utilize to the full the resources of the Dominion in the winning of the war."

Gangsters' "Gats" And Sundry Weapons Consigned to Lake

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 26 (CP)—A thousand "gats," knives, shotguns, blackjacks and other offensive weapons formerly carried by hold-up men, burglars and other law violators in Buffalo will be consigned to Davy Jones' locker today.

Captain John J. Daly of the United States Coast guard will head up to a point three miles from shore in Lake Erie and dump the weapons overboard.

Judge Geo. H. Rowe yesterday signed an order directing that the accumulated weapons be tossed into the lake.

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 26—(AP)—Baffled by a strange hospital escape; authorities widened a search today for Winnie Ruth Judd, insane murderess, who gained freedom just eight years after her arrest for killing two women whose bodies she cut up and stuffed into trunks.

Describing herself as "persecuted" and "desperate to see my faith-

Mrs. Judd, who shipped the trunks containing the bodies of Agnes Le Roi and Hedvig Samuelson, young nurses, to Los Angeles, was arrested in Pasadena, Calif., Oct. 24, 1931.

She was gone from the hospital 12 hours before attendants discovered her absence because she had fashioned a dummy figure in her bed to make them believe she was sleeping.

Mrivtle, Sask., Oct. 26 (CP)— Stanley Hierburn, 21, was convicted last night of slaying Herbert Schill, Lebret farmer. He was sentenced by Mr. Justice H. Y. Bigelow to be hanged at Regina jail January 26. The body of Schill was found buried last June.

UNITED STATES SENATE REPEALS EMBARGO AGAINST SALE OF ARMS TO WARRING NATIONS

Action of Senate to Set Up 'Cash and Carry' System of Trade With Belligerents Repeal Vote Reached on 20th Day of Senate History-Making Neutrality Debate

CRUX OF POLICY

All Sides Agreed Effect of Repeal Will be to Give Aid to England and France in War With Germany

Washington, Oct. 27—(AP)—The United States Senate voted today to repeal the embargo against sale of arms to the warring nations.

The action cleared the way for passage of the Administration Neutrality Bill, which in addition to ending embargo, also would set up a limited cash and carry system of commerce with belligerents.

The repeal vote, reached on the twentieth day of the Senate's history-making neutrality debate, came on a proposal by Senator Nye (Dem. North Dakota) to discard the administration measure and substitute a bill, similar to that of the administration except that it would maintain the existing ban on arms sales.

Recommended by President

Repeal of the embargo was recommended by President Roosevelt when he called Congress into special session last month. Although it was but one of his recommendations for revising the Neutrality Law, it immediately became the crux of the entire foreign policy fight in the Senate.

All sides agreed the effect of repeal would be to give aid to England and France in their war with Germany.

Why The Weather?

By Adam K. Hunter

Weather changes are caused by the sun's heat. Because the sun's heat is not always the same, weather changes. Even the heat received from the sun at any one place is not always the same. Sometimes the sun's heat is greater than at other times. Sometimes the sun's heat is less than at other times

City and District News

SHORT-CIRCUIT CAUSE OF ALARM

Belleville General Hospital alarms ringing shortly in Fire Hall No. 1 shortly after seven o'clock today sent squads racing to that institution, but no blazing buildings or columns of smoke met their gaze.

Workmen engaged in construction of the new hospital wing, had inadvertently short-circuited the electric wiring that connects the alarms with the hospital, causing the bells to ring in both the hospital and the fire-station.

NEW INHALATOR DEMONSTRATED

All was comparatively quiet on the City Council front last night. With the city fathers in committee session, they calmly watched a demonstration of the new inhalator purchased by the city some time ago, and which arrived yesterday. Fire-Chief William Jones demonstrated the apparatus which met the approval of the council.

Discussion of the uses of the inhalator took up some time but suggestion that it be placed in charge of the Fire-Chief at Fire-Hall No. 1 apparently met with the approval of the body.

"The fire-station is the logical place to house the inhalator," His Worship Mayor Bone stated this morning," as there are always men on duty there. The majority of members of the City Fire Department have graduated in courses of first-aid, and this fact together with their early responsibility warrants the fire-station as being the proper place to keep the new apparatus."

Asked if the inhalator would be available to victims of drowning, electrocution or asphyxiation outside the city limits, His Worship replied "while that question had not been brought up, I don't think anyone would be so hard-hearted as to refuse the use of this life-saving apparatus."

Recommendations included: "that the Council extend its sympathy and support to the Armistice Day celebrations at the Memorial Cenotaph on the morning of November 12th."

Permission was granted the St. Michael's Junior Sodality to sell candy on the streets of Belleville from noon to 3 p.m., on Saturday Nov. 4th.

Bancroft Constable Finds Lodge in Ashes

Plans had been made for a pleasant holiday during the forthcoming hunting season, and Provincial Police Constable Stanley Palmatier, stationed at Bancroft, was journeyed to his hunting lodge 22 miles east of the northern village to see that everything was in readiness for the proposed vacation.

But the "best laid plans" go astray often and it was with surprise and disappointment that the stalwart constable and his party viewed what was left of the comfortable lodge upon their arrival.

No hunting lodge met their gaze. Instead was a pile of cold grey ashes. Fire of unknown origin had razed the structure, totally destroying all its contents. From the conditions of blackened embers and debris it is believed the lodge had burned down some days previous to arrival of the party.

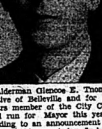
Alderman Haig and Thompson Announce Intention to Run For Mayor of City for 1940

Alderman A. MacLean Haig, Chairman of the Executive Committee, and a member of Belleville City Council for the past two years announced today his intention to contest the Mayoralty seat in that body. Although only a resident in Belleville since 1934, when he purchased the Insurance business of Sidney Fisher, Alderman Haig has taken a prominent and active part in the municipal business life of this city. He was born in Kingston and when very young moved with his parents to Campbellford and was educated in the Public and High Schools in Campbellford later going to Queen's University, where he graduated in arts and then entered Law School at Osgoods Hall, later graduating with the Degree of Law. Ald Haig then went west and entered the newspaper field in Regina and returned to Campbellford and then to Belleville.

In his first year in the Council Ald. Haig was Chairman of Tourist and Publicity and this year was the unanimous choice of the council for Chairman of the Executive. He has been diligent in his duties during his term of office. Besides taking part in the municipal affairs of the city, Ald. Haig was President of the Rotary Club last year and this year is guiding the many activities of the Chamber of Commerce as its President. He is a member of Bridge St. United Church.



Alderman Glenroe E. Thompson, native of Belleville and for three years member of the City Council will run for Mayor this year according to an announcement made by the Alderman today. In his five years as member of the City Council Ald. Thompson has twice headed his Aldermanic Poll and never lower than fourth place. In his first year he was Chairman of Labour and the next two years held the Chairmanship of Light. Last year he was Chairman of Public Works but this year did not take a Chairmanship due to pressure of business. Born in Belleville, Ald. Thompson was educated in the schools of this city and for some years has conducted a bakery in the city, being a large employer of labor. Ald. Thompson is a member of the Reformed Episcopal Church, is married and has one child.

Views on Plan to Suspend Municipal Elections Differ

Mayor Bone Critical of Plan Announced by Premier Hepburn

VIEWS OF SUPPORTERS

Official opinion of Belleville was sharply divided today on Premier Hepburn's announcement yesterday that municipal elections would be suspended after Jan. 1, 1940, for at least a period of two years or for the duration of the war".

Mayor Jamieson Bone and Chairman Russell Wetten of the Board of Education voiced their disapproval of the plan in that each served by the elimination of elections here would be more than offset by costs incurred by civic bodies in power for an indefinite period.

Chairman Morley Duff of the Public Utilities Commission and County Clerk Eric Denyes of the Hastings County Council announced themselves as being in favor of the scheme.

Mayor Disagrees.

"Emphatically no." His Worship Mayor Bone declared today when asked for an opinion regarding the plan.

"Belleville," said the city's dynamic chief magistrate, "will save one-tenth of a mill yearly by dispensing with elections. One mill on the tax rate here is about $10,000 and elections, which include the whole city council, public utilities, and the board of education cost $1000.00 to the taxpayers' money. That roughly is one-tenth of a mill."

"What is liable to happen," His Worship continued, "is that a city councillor will get a mayor and council who, knowing that they are or will be in office for an indefinite period, will spend the city's money more freely, costing the ratepayers several mills yearly instead of the one-tenth mill that it costs for annual elections."

Mayor Is Critical.

The mayor went on to say: "This suspension of municipal elections is just a pleasure thing, in comparison with what the government might have done to save the taxpayers' money," he said. "There are twelve important changes that should have been made in the Legislature, and nothing has been done about it. It took the present government three years to build a stretch of road near this city, at what cost we have not yet learned. There is absolutely no excuse for that," he declared.

"The government has been petitioned time after time by individuals, organizations, mayors', associations, and others to remedy the increasing cost of taxation, but the result absolutely no attention and went on spending," the mayor declared.

Aldermen when elected generally are guided by what the electorate "will do to them at the next election", His Worship said, but when they realize that they may be in power for a number of years, that check would be removed. They know they will have no one to answer to."

County Clerk Eric Denyes of the Hastings County Council would not elaborate on his statement. "All I can say is that we are behind any government in the time of war," was his brief comment.

Mr. M. P. Duff, chairman of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission commenting on the plan, said that "as a war time measure I suppose it would save considerable expense and avoid controversy. During such a time anything like an election would tend to divert attention from war effort."

Chairman F. B. Wetten of the Board of Education felt that any actual saving in money through elimination of municipal elections would be more than offset by expenditures of a council or other bodies which realize they are in power for a longer period than the usual.

"There is liable to be a lot of dictating done," he said, "and in the event that any council or civic body was not favorable to the ratepayers after being in office for a certain length of time, what could the ratepayers do about it?"

"I am not in favor of the plan," he added.

POLICE COURT

After Albert Aikens, 17 of this city, was convicted of assaulting a neighbor girl, Beatrice Baker, when the former appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local Police Court, Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan, K.C., asked the Court to remand Aikens in custody until such time he could be examined by Dr. Dorr, Provincial Psychiatrist, Aikens was remanded to the custody of the Belleville jail in the meantime.

The girl testified that Aikens had struck her forcibly in the face, while the accused emphatically denied those accusations. His Worship was inclined to believe the younger girl and found Aikens guilty as charged.

Appearing for sentence after being convicted of several counts of theft from his employer, R. C. Peters, Belleville, was given a one year's suspended sentence after Counsel on his behalf, made through Jacob Goodman, counsel for the accused man.

Robert McGee, tranalent, was remanded for one week when he appeared on a charge of vagrancy. "We wish to check on this man," revealed Chief Kidd.

Police Blotter

Two minor motor accidents were reported to city police during the past 24 hours. In the first case, Mrs. Marvin, Belleville, told police his truck was struck in the rear by another truck on Bridge St. north. Both vehicles were going in the same direction when the second truck attempted to pass Marvin's truck. The damage was slight.

C. R. Tilbrook, 319 Dufferin Ave., complained to police last evening, that his motor car had struck a parked truck on Station Street, damaging the lighter vehicle. Mr. Tilbrook added there were no lighted lamps displayed on the parked truck. A front door window and both right car door handles of the motor car were damaged during the impact.

Mr. Tilbrook supplied police with the licence plate number of the truck.

Oshawa police reported the theft of a 1930 model Buick coach bearing Ontario licence plates No. 911-362 last night.

Thomas Thorne, city dog pound custodian, is in possession of a female toy police dog, he told police authorities today. The canine will be destroyed tonight unless otherwise claimed by its owner.

Harry E. Green Injured When Car Hits Tree

Former Belleville Resident Receives Painful but Not Serious Injuries Near Peterborough

Peterborough, Ont., Oct. 27 (CP) —John O'Brien, of Peterborough and Harry E. Green, 25, Peterborough, formerly of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Green, 24 Gordon Street, Belleville, received painful but not serious injuries in a day when their car driven by Green skidded off the highway five miles east of here.

Both were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. The automobile wrapped itself around a large tree by the side of the highway.

Green left Belleville about a month ago for Peterborough where he accepted another position.

Transient is Held After Records Searched

When Paul Martin, transient, applied for a night's lodging at the city police station one night last week, Sergeant Arthur Booth eyed the man carefully and after looking over the records of wanted men, held Martin for further investigation on a charge of vagrancy. Last night police from Kapuskasing telephoned Chief Kidd, headquarters and informed Sergeant Arthur Harman, who was on duty at the time, that Martin was wanted in the Northern Ontario village on a charge of theft. Chief Constable McDonald of Kapuskasing not only congratulated the Belleville police on the apprehension of Martin, but stated he would take an aeroplane out of Kapuskasing on Monday and fly to Toronto, later coming to Belleville to take Martin to Kapuskasing. In the meantime Martin has been remanded to the custody of the Belleville jail.

One of Canada's Foremost Bands To Give Series of Concerts in City

Metropolitan Silver Band, Toronto, Will Play at Tabernacle Church Saturday and Sunday

As a gesture of appreciation of the services of Lieut. Fred Jobson, conductor of the Belleville Municipal Band, who acted as guest conductor at a recent musical function in Toronto, the Metropolitan Silver Band of that city, one of the foremost musical aggregations of its kind in Canada, will play a series of concerts in the city and district over the week-end as a guest of the local musicians.

The band will inaugurate its visit with a concert at Tabernacle Church on Saturday night at 8.15, with Mr. P. G. MacLaren acting as chairman. It will play three numbers at the Sunday morning service of that church and in the afternoon will play in Picton as guests of the Band of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, in Grace United Church. In the evening it will make its final appearance here following the evening service in Tabernacle church. Silver collections will be taken at all concerts.

The band, under the direction of Conductor Alfred Pierce, is recognized as an aggregation of outstanding musical ability. Composed of thirty-two pieces, it has been returned for five consecutive times the winner of the band competition at the Canadian National Exhibition. The object of their visit is to give younger musicians of the city and district the true value of band music.

THIRTY GUESTS OF HOTEL SOUGHT

E. M. Straus Suffered Injuries That Caused Death in Fight at Windsor

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 27 (CP)—Police today sought more than thirty persons who were guests at Westwood Hotel here yesterday morning when Edward M. Straus, 60, Windsor, suffered injuries that caused his death last night.

Employees of the hotel said a fight started when one man hit another man, and shouted something about "that's for insulting my wife". The second man, witnesses said, picked up a chair and a fight started.

Straus was among the guests who started to flee the scene of the fight. Suddenly he fell. His companion, Mrs. Marion Ogilvie, told police later he got up and drove her home. She said she thought he had been hit by a flying beer bottle that came from the centre of the fight.

Straus was given first aid at a doctor's home and taken to hospital yesterday afternoon. An emergency operation designed to relieve the pressure from a fractured skull proved of temporary aid.

Zane Grey

Zane Grey, popular writer and sportsman, is dead in California of a heart ailment. He is survived by regretful by tens of thousands of people who have read his stirring books and seen the moving pictures of the most dramatic of them. Zane was born at Zanesville, O., and was educated there and at the University of Pennsylvania, from which he graduated as a dentist. He practiced this profession for a while, but in 1904 he went west, and the life which was well received and from that time onward book after book ran from the yearly fifty to all. The bulk of these were westerns and every one of them was packed with adventure and romance. Grey was no dabbler in sex; his imagination was too robust for that. No doubt he thought, like Kipling, that he who could write tales had no romance. At any rate, he devoted his talents to setting down the romance of the ranch, the camp and the trail. There was history in his stories, notably in "The U. P. Trail," and "Fighting Caravans." His characters were strong men and courageous women—women who were ready to make sacrifices and face all sorts of hardships and discouragements in making homes for their husbands and children. And the men, for their part, were ready to fight for their women to the death if need be. Stories of such people may be scoffed at by the city runabouts who figure in night club society and the divorce courts, but they have a fascination for the majority and can be read by young and old. Certainly Zane Grey's books never lacked readers, and it may well be that they presented a truer picture of humankind at large than do the so-called problem novels. In Grey's western stories love does not fly out of the door when hardship stalks in. The characters are too sturdy for that. Nor is this fictional exaggeration, as many who lost their fortunes, big or little, in the industrial collapses of a decade ago, came to know. Countless wives and mothers on this continent comforted their distracted bread-winners with the assurance that "we have each other." Zane Grey wrote of adventure, and gave pleasant pastimes to countless readers. And of his best works were non-fictional— The Last of the Plainsmen and "Zane Grey's Book of Camps and Trails." Both were all about wild life. Interesting, the creations of a man who loved the outdoors and this love Zane Grey brought to his readers.—Montreal Gazette.

changes or disputes."

Frank Discussion Advised.

The Pope acknowledged that treaties might become outdated with the passing of time. In such cases, he said, "recourse should be had to frank discussion with a view to modifying the treaty or making another in its stead."

But to consider treaties on principle as ephemeral", he declared, "and tacitly to assume the authority of rescinding them unilaterally when they no longer are to one's advantage would be to abolish all mutual trust among states."

Turning from issues of the war to prospects of a more enduring settlement at its conclusion, the Pontiff asked whether there would be a new international order "animated by justice and by equity toward all" or a repetition of ancient and recent errors.

The hour of victory, he warned, is "the hour of temptation" and the danger exists that "settlements and decisions born in such condition may be nothing else than injustice under the cloak of justice."

BRITAIN'S WORD

The world will take the word of Prime Minister Chamberlain as against German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop as to who caused the war. Britain has placed all the facts openly before mankind in the Blue Book and White Paper on the last days before the outbreak of the war. Hitler has placed no official reports before the world. His henchman, the man whom the British Ambassador said Hitler looked up to as a "second Bismark", declared at Danzig Britain was to blame and that it was not Germany which had desired and plotted the war. As Mr. Chamberlain says to Government ever strove more ardently to avoid war or took greater risks to preserve peace than Britain.

Mr. Chamberlain makes reference to the charge which has been made that it was von Ribbentrop, the man who tries to bully Britain, who advised Hitler to the last that Britain would not fight and yet "this is the man who now asserts that the whole object of British policy since 1938 has been to concert war against Germany."

He takes a rap at the Foreign Minister for his attitude towards Communism which Ribbentrop had called "that most terrible of all diseases" when he spoke in England in 1936 to the press.

Mr. Chamberlain said "It is not England that has challenged Germany. It is the German Government, who by their persistent acts of aggression pursued in the face of our repeated warnings, have forced us at last reluctantly to take up arms. It is the German Government who by their reckless disregard of their pledged word and of the rights and liberties of other peoples must bear the responsibility for this war and all its consequences."

A CABINET OUTSIDE GERMANY

An interesting story from England was published in a New York paper the other day stating that consideration was being given by the British Government to the recognition of a de jure German Government seated in London.

Four names were mentioned for the cabinet, men who are all exiles from Nazi-ridden Germany. These men would have nothing to do with Hitlerism and German National Socialism and would be democratic in spirit, it is said.

Probably, it is said, by the time—if it does take place—a revolution occurs in Germany, such a de jure government might be a factor in making certain that Hitler and his Nazi "cabinet" were abolished for good. Resignations of Hitler and Nazis, leaving some of the old crowd in office would never do, for it might be easy for the old group to act behind the scenes. Nor would it be allowed at such a time that there should be any doubt as to the integrity of any new government with which the Allies would agree to deal. The Allies would demand the indisputable evidence of a change of policy—that is, no mere government would be allowed to succeed Hitler without its credentials being absolutely sound, for it is essential that peace be just and enduring.

There has been no confirmation of such a proposal by the British Government as the formation of such a 'cabinet.'

GERMAN WORD FOR TERRORISM

"Schrechlichkeit," the German word translated "frightfulness" must sound terrifying even to the ears of German Nazis for they are using it so often in their references to what they will do to Britain when they start to turn the full force of Nazi fury against the British Isles. Nazi leaders and those soldiers and sailors who are called upon to carry out their commands and as well as the Poles know what "schrechlichkeit" is. It is something that should never be on the lips of civilized man when referring to others. The German Nazis ought to be ashamed of it's use, but these men who fear Hitler and their own creation, Nazism, think only of causing fear in others.

British leaders do not go around threatening the enemy with frightfulness. Neither are they terrified by Nazi threats of "schrechlichkeit."

HON. C. DUNNING'S RETURN

Canada welcomes home the Hon. Charles Dunning who has returned from England where he has lived quietly recovering health and strength. He has served Canada well and will yet be able to do a great deal for this country, is the hope of every citizen. While he was a federal minister he bore a heavy burden for the sake of the people of the Dominion so that rest became imperative. That he has recovered is a matter for satisfaction.

WAR AFFECTS STYLES

The first wartime styles have appeared in women's dress in Paris. Dressmakers in France have a task to prevent their business suffering and are staging a great effort by catching a practical note in dark colors, restrained lines and scarcity of trimmings. There are military-styled coats on fitted lines trimmed with brass buttons and shown in the R.A.F. blue. Among the outfits are air raid ensembles in black with pyjamas of heavy crepe and loose coats of wool, accompanied by colored hoods and sashes, some of a new bright hue are called "alerte" after the French word for air raid warning.

These are some of the garbs that are shown in Paris, to show how the war has affected attire. The change is not to be wondered at with the military uniform everywhere and the spirit of the people in a war setting.

NOT SO GREAT A CHANGE

From London comes a story that the British army "has gone democratic," that "as far as possible in this war its commissioned officers will be secured from the ranks, and the suggestion is made that this is a sharp departure from the practice in the war of a quarter-century ago.

Actually it is not very different. In the vast British army organized from 1914 onwards every private carried a field marshal's baton in his knapsack. Men of education, men with the qualities of leadership, wilded in the ranks in large numbers. It was a citizens' army without parallel in history, essentially as "democratic" as the crowd at a football match. Thousands of these men were commissioned officers, many of them attained high rank.

The same was true, of course, of the Canadian army. Into the ranks went half a million of our finest young men, eager to serve their country, and many a private later proved his capacity for leadership.

Already British commanding officers have been told to "search the ranks" for likely material for commissions, and men so selected will be given a special course of training. They were doing exactly the same thing 25 years ago.—Ottawa Journal.

The Turkish agreement with Britain and France has attracted more attention than usual from Germany. Therefore it must be very important. The unofficial German reaction that Turkey may find out that her future welfare lies with Germany and Russia is the wish that is the father to the thought. Into the treaty the Turkish government had put deep and practical thought and displayed the rarest sense of fine statesmanship, loyalty to its pledges and a wholesome outlook on the entire international situation.

The Athenia carried no war materials. This has been officially declared by the External Affairs Committee.

The affidavit made and given at Washington by Gustav A. Anderson, a passenger on the Athenia that he had reason to believe that there were guns aboard for mounting at Quebec or Halifax is thereby answered. He admits he saw no guns.

Even the above named passenger should accept this statement rather than his own affidavit.

THE COVE

The cove where in the Springtime,
Wild ducklings spent the day,
And where the pied frogs' orchestra
Wiled evening hours away;
And where in days of Summer
The water-lilies white
Opened their waxen petals
Beneath the sunshine bright,

Seems now so sad and lonely
Without the Autumn birds,
As moaning in the tree-tops
The winds make mournful dirge—
A dirge for falling leafage,
A dirge for dying flowers,
And for-the death of Summer
And all its pleasant hours.

But tho' the cove's deserted
And Autumn winds make moan
There is moving life and color,
The cove is not alone,
For children's feet are treading
Along the pebbled shore,
They grieve not that the Summer
And all its joys are o'er.

For lo! they see a vision
Where cold the waters flow,
They see a frozen ice-field
Where skaters come and go,
They hear again the shouting
And laughter's joyous peal,
Where happy care-free voices
Keep time to strokes of steel.

OCTOBER 27, 1889

Hunters have not been very successful this week.

A successful social under the auspices of the Young People's Association of John Street Presbyterian Church, was held in the school room last evening. Mr. J. Brignall, the President, occupied the chair and gave an address as did also the minister, the Rev. Dr. George. The Excelsior Male Quartette composed of Messrs. Frank Lewis, Joseph Doyle, George Grills and George Farr gave a number of selections which were much enjoyed. Recitations were given in excellent manner by Mr. F. F. Reddick and Mr. W. E. Campbell.

Mr. Joe Morgan is removing his store to the premises one door north of Orrell's Book Store.

Russia, Filth, Finland
A Contrast in Peoples

One of the world's most striking contrasts is getting into Reisingfors, Finland, after leaving Leningrad, Russia. A few short miles; just overnight by ship. The contrast can't adequately be described in words—the words can't smell. It has to be seen—and scented. It is like going from a fish market to a flower garden.

The frank fact of the matter is that, while a few rare exceptions are observable, the Russians are mass are dirty; sanitation is not known. Not confidentially, but openly, they stink. Finland is the exact opposite.

The reason the Russians are unwashed and their aroma nauseatingly high can't be attributed solely to Lenin, Trotsky, Stalin or the commintern. All the years of oppression under the czars would have to be explored to explain the national disinterest in bathing. Even the czars themselves with all their gilt and all their grandeur didn't go in for water and soap. They would rather cover an odour with an odour, if they thought of the matter at all. Some perfume and incense were employed, history records, for the more formal occasions, but generally the fumes were preferred to the fuss. So, through the centuries. Saturday night would come and go—not to mention the other days of the week—with nary a splash. The czars in cleanliness never became a national characteristic. The proletariat just didn't learn how. Nicholas, the last, did instal a swimming pool in the palace, but that was too late to start a fad.

Hence, the contrast between Leningrad and Helsingfors.

And yet, out of the war and the ruthless rule of Stalin, Finland is the richly alliance Mr. Hitler entered into with the Bolshevik of the east. Russia now leers through smudgy eyelids on spotless Finland in the west, shiny, self-respecting, self-supporting, debt-paying Finland. And Russia may get away with another Baltic conquest "because there is no big, though grimy, and Finland little, though clean.

Finland was asked to send her foreign minister to Moscow, as Estonia and Latvia were "asked." Russia called the cigars. Finland has declined the "invitation." has placed 160,000 troops on her frontiers and has served notice she will treat with Russia only as an "equal partner." If she were, Russia might pertinently have trashed some such reply as this: "Your regrieved and contents noted. Since the idea of a visit is yours, why not call on us? We are busy, but we will find time to steam up, provide you with clean haircut, manicure, shampoo and massage, and then house you in room with bath, the water from the faucets of which will affect you with neither typhoid nor dysentery. Awaiting your reply, we remain, etc."

But, because she is small, Finland has had to count her fiyu refusal in diplomatic language. While declining to send her foreign minister to Moscow, she has offered to send another envoy—one without portfolio, it was understood. And the Moscow radio has warned that Russia reserves the right to "act as it saw fit if Finland refused to enter into negotiations." It is said that Russia intends to come to peace it would be one of the most complete transfers in all the history of conquest.—New York World Telegram.

BIG BRIDGE PAYS

After a year's operation, the International Blue Water Bridge between Sarnia and Port Huron has, in addition to meeting all expenses, accumulated sufficient funds to pay interest charges for both 1937 and 1938 and to retire about $60,000 of its bond issue, its traffic for the year reached 229,355 cars and trucks carrying 917,731 passengers. It is obvious that this bridge, like others that have been established along the international border, has filled an important place in the North American scheme of transportation and that its usefulness will increase during the years to come.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

How to Use Shrinking Solutions In the Nose

It is very gratifying to note that the number of operations in the nose and its adjoining sinuses is becoming fewer every year. In former days, any little blockage of the nose by a bent septum (partition between nostrils) or by an enlarged turbinate bone was "corrected" by operation. Operations often meant loss of the lining membrane of the nose with total or partial loss of smell and the loss of the resisting power of the nose in warding off infections also.

Today, the use of salt and water or epinephrine or ephedrine solutions by shrinking the lining membrane of the nose, give the necessary relief in a great many cases. This shrinking of the lining or mucous membrane also helps the mucous in the sinuses to drain out properly.

Nose and throat specialists state that if the air can get into the sinuses, they ventilate them, there would be no accumulation of mucous or pus in the sinuses and therefore many cases of catarrh and deafness would be prevented. The drugs generally used to shrink the mucous membrane are epinephrine (adrenalin) and ephedrine the Chinese drug.

In order to get the shrinking solution into the upper and lower halves of the sinuses, the method now coming into general use is to "lower" the head either well forward or to either side. Dr. Sidney N. Parkinson, Oakland, California, in the Journal of the American Medical Association recommends that the patient

A gay Hallowe'en Dance was held last night when about seventy members and friends of the C.D.S. staff assembled at Gothic Inn in costume old and new, beautiful and bewildering. The duties of Master of Ceremonies were undertaken by "Dealin" in a long black robe, with skull and shifting bones. Death on this particular holiday, was portrayed by M. W. Boake. The party lasted for days in advance of the regulation festive night when there were rumblings and owls hooting, without; but within, apparitions stalked, talked, lunged, danced in a weird atmosphere of pedlam all night. The staff of Peyton Hall, a long black robe, with white nightgowns and nightcaps. The variety of costumes of the other guests seemed endless and the spirit with which all entered the masquerade was the resulting function an outstanding success. Mr. F. Hall, manager of the Belleville C.D.S., Mr. E. Knowlton and Mr. A. Francis of the Head Office, Toronto, were in Oshawa for the costumes, a most difficult task as all the costumes were strikingly original.

MIXED influences, in the terms of astrological science, prevail on this day. There are potents of swift and sudden actions rather ruthless and rash in their precipitance. These may exact regrets and penalties, if wise counsel, employers or others in authority may be involved. However, offsetting this adverse influence, is the power to conflicting circumstances, the mind will be found lucid, highly shrewd and capable to cope with difficulties. Genius and subtlety may overcome difficulties.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which some sudden and ruthless events may call for their utmost shrewdness, cleverness and subtlety, with which this year finds them generously endowed. Cross purposes with employers, superiors or associates may challenge the discreet exercise of deep vision, sagacity and perception, lest the misuse of which may precipitate sorrow and defeat.

Mind Your Elbows!

SHORED GURIE . . . her arms and elbows get share of beauty care.

By HELEN FOLLETT

MIND YOUR elbows. Brown get terribly out of hand. The skin there is coarse, goes grey; if the arms are thin, elbows are an eyesore.

Scrub them well with a heavy brush and strong soap suds. Rinse away the lather, lay on a heavy wash cloth that has been dipped in hot water to soften dead skin cells. Dry, massage with cocoabutter.

Oil the palms of the hands. Pull the arm flings with vound and upward movements. Rest the elbow on the fingers and rotate the thumb. Do that for at least five minutes. The flesh will get red, then white, smooth.

Pat in borated talcum to form a paste. Let it remain on over night. In the morning friction with exfoliating cream, use plenty of cocoa gesant.

When a woman makes up her mind that she's sick and tired of grey hair and looks to find out why and in a dye pot, she yearns for the virgin color of her young days. Let her years, but she mustn't have it. The coloring agent should match the shade that is about three inches from the scalp. At the ends the shaft is darker. At the ends it is lighter because the ends are dead tissue; that is where the shaft has its normal growth. No single hair is the same shade it full length is a rule.

To dye salt and pepper tresses in darkens of a job; my woman who attempts to do it will get herself into a fine mess of trouble. Even the experts find the treatment difficult. It is almost impossible to get white and dark thread; the same shade. If a woman must dye or die, her best bet is to go to an experienced operator who will make tests, be sure of results.

One little detail must not be overlooked; the first treatment is not the last. Grey hair grows one inch every two months, and as Mamie Walters knows nothing about the dyeing business and cares less, she will keep on pushing out the snowy fluffs. That makes a frequent touch up. One application means one overlap the other or the color will not be even.

Beauty Treatments Help to Keep People Safe and Sane

A few days ago, there was unveiled in George Washington University, Washington, D.C., a portrait of the late Dr. William A. White, who put into practice the long-debated theory that as you look so are you apt to feel.

To Dr. White, a most humane and sympathetic psychiatrist, goes the credit of establishing cosmetic treatments in St. Elizabeth's Hospital for the mentally ill. Dr. White was Superintendent of this institution for thirty-four years, and the improvement he has wrought in the care of the mentally ill have been taken up by government institutions all over the country.

According to the pundits, beauty treatments are good for everyone, and you do not have to be in the least "ga-ga" to feel better and take a more cheerful view of life after having given yourself to a little "pretting-up." The Medical profession seems to be coming around to Dr. White's idea, especially in the case of neurotic patients.

No wonder beauty culture in the last few years has become the third great industry in Canada, food, clothes, cosmetics and treatment. So, if you feel snappish, irritable, sorry for yourself, misunderstood, unappreciated, perhaps you'd better have a beauty treatment. It's much better for you than the temporary lift you get from a cocktail.

Even the men are not above bootlegging a facial. What with their hot towels, "tissue set-up," massage, the gentlemen manage to get quite a face lift out of their barber shops. And they needn't feel apologetic about it either.

Beauty treatments are relaxing. They chase away the diabolical inferiority complex. And they give a certain authority in seeking a job. Unfortunately, not everyone is able to treat her, (or even his) face to two or three dollars' worth of coddling. You can, of course, soothe your countenance before your own mirror at home. It's probably not as relaxing or as agreeable. But it's much better to put on pure cosmetics at home than to go in for those you know not of, abroad.

Some time ago, the writer went with a friend, to see a collection of cosmetics and patent medicines, all more or less poisonous, displayed in the Department of Agriculture. One of these mixtures, warranted to make eyelashes long and luxurious, had caused total blindness in the woman using it. Others had had such fatal results, but all of them carried a warning.

There is a very good book on beauty culture, which you can undoubtedly get from public libraries. It gives recipes for making cold cream, skin cleansers, astringents and warns against home treatments "not recommended."

WEDDINGS

FRANKS—FIGDEN

Madoc, (Special) — A quiet wedding took place at Bolton United Church parsonage, Monday afternoon, Lilian Mildred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Figden of Madoc Township, was united in marriage to John Stanley, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Franks of Madoc Township. The Rev. G. W. Rivers officiated.

The bride was attractively gowned in a street length green of lesf blue crepe with biege opposum jacket and black suede accessories.

The couple were unattended and after a short wedding trip to Niagara Falls and points west will reside in Madoc Township.

McCOLL—OSBORNE

Marmora, (Special) — A pretty Autumn wedding took place at six o'clock in the evening of Thursday, October 26, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Osborne, when their youngest daughter, Grace, became the bride of Glenn Earl McColl, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison, Marmora. Rev. Dr. W. P. Reekie performed the ceremony.

The bride was becomingly attired in a street length dress of tropical blue velvet trimmed with rhinestones and wore a corsage of Talisman Beauty roses. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Fred Wallelish of Peterborough, who wore a street length dress of wine English wool crepe and carried a bouquet of roses. George Osborne, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served to the bridal party. Assisted with the bridal cake, the table was prettily decorated.

Amid showers of confetti the happy couple later left on a short honeymoon, after which they will take up residence in Marmora.

Mr. and Mrs. McColl were the recipients of many useful gifts among which was a purse of money from the employees of the Metals Plant of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Hallowe'en Coming!

The Hallowe'en party, ever-old, ever-new, is the joy of boys of all ages. The youth in our hearts follows its mirthful, rollicking call to the land of cotmon-looking witches, black cats, bonfires, pumpkins with yawning mouths and cavernous eyes, spooky Jack o' Lanterns, whither witches ride on broomsticks, sage old owls, absurd scarecrows, and all the supernatural goblins and spooks who are supposed to walk abroad on the eve of All Saints' Day. Invitations for a party — enormously effective for decorations and for amusement.

There are many reasons, all delightful, for giving a Hallowe'en party. In the first place Hallowe'en comes at the time of the year that is most felicitious for a party. Friends have returned to town after having been vacationing, and it is seasonable and delightful to bring them together for a Hallowe'en party. There, is, also, always an especially amusing lack of information and festivity about a Hallowe'en party.

There need be no elaborate preparations, since the motifs are always the same and everyone is old hand at planning. Then, too, the stunts can be adapted to space, whether it is a large house or a small apartment. Also it is unnecessary to give an expensive party, since inexpensive Hallowe'en favors and costumes are just as entertaining as expensive ones. And—why an uninteresting reason for giving a Hallowe'en party — the hosts who are planning the party have just as good a time as the guests!

The decorative scheme should begin with the invitations which of course, are most informal and suggest the type of party. At your stationer's you can buy appropriate invitation-cards, or you can use small black cut-outs of cats, owls or witches, or you can easily cut these symbols from thin black paper and paste them on yellow card.

Why not try your hand at making your own four-line jingle for the invitation? You might let "party" be the end of your first line, rime this with "remember hearty" at the end of the second line; the end of the third line "seem" or some other word to rime with the last word of each fourth line "Hallowe'en." Practically finished!

A Hallowe'en party, more than any other kind of gathering, depends on the decorations, and the decorations for this kind of party just can't help being picturesque and fun-making. Traditional colors are pumpkin yellow and black, with touches of autumnal red if you wish.

There are many ways to decorate the rooms in which the guests are to be held. From real pumpkins or from paper ones you can make Jack o'Lanterns, lighted from inside by a candle, Since seem, darkness is essential, these furnish enough light. Rolls of crepe paper, black and orange, singly or in combination, can be cut into streamers three or four inches wide, to be used in abundance as a ground-work for garlands. At the end of the strips hang cut-outs of black cats, owls, witches.

Chandeliers and lights of all kinds may be festooned with orange and yellow paper. The same motif may be carried out in small paper candle shades, which may be cut-outs of cats and witches. It is also possible to get from the same paper with aid of black and orange and borders of black cats, witches, and other weird "folk". It is easy to transform floor lamps into witches by draping them with the costume traditionally associated with the "weird sisters." The witch may be placed in the door of the living room to be "comfortable" in receiving the guests. Witches may ride on brooms from fire fireplaces, mantelpieces and ledges.

An appropriately decorative effect may be obtained by connecting streamers of black-colored crepe paper, scalloped or fluted or twisted into ropes, with clusters of autumn leaves or dusky-colored chrysanthemums, cornstalks, or dried grasses or bittersweet, or from baskets of red-faced apples.

Marmora

Marmora — The largest attendance in years was seen at the annual fowl supper under the auspices of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild, which was held in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening. Following an excellent turkey supper the united bingo. The winners of the two drawings were: quilt, John Cochran; electric panis presser, Mrs. Wm. Cochran. Out of town former members of the congregation were Rev. and Mrs. G. A. Gordier and daughter Ruth, Tweed; Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Smith and daughter Joyce, Port Hope and Miss Grace Taft, Kingston. Also in attendance were Messrs. and Mrs. W. G. Swayne, Bonesiaw and Rev. and Mrs. A. S. McConnell and Mr. and Mrs. Lucas, Sidbrooke.

Massage Cures Club Foot if Done in Time

Thank goodness we didn't have any deformity like club foot to contend with in the Quintuplets. When they were born and when they were somewhat out of shape, so that anyone thought they were deformed. But an experienced physician could see that all they suffered from was rickets, and that their diet could correct without the massages necessary in cases of club foot.

As I said yesterday, the whole secret in curing club foot is to learn the proper massages and to perform them every day. No matter how discouraging it may be, stick to it and then the foot rarely has normal strength.

I sent the child to a hospital. Where they have X-rays to look at the twisted tendons and see how best to straighten them.

Unfortunately many club foot babies are not brought to a doctor in time and when they are, many adults their infirmity is still with them. Even if the child is only a couple of years old when the doctor first sees him the chances of fixing up the foot by massages are meager. In some of these cases the application of casts isn't successful, and about the only thing left to do is to put the tendons which are too short and then the foot rarely has normal strength.

Salads for Winter Meals

By Alice Lynn Barry

As Autumn gives way to winter and we get less sun, it is a vital necessity to study menus carefully, serving fresh foods and salads whenever possible. Good dietitians always have on hand a wealth of winter salad recipes, and serve it at least one every day. Right out of the notebook of one of the country's foremost hospital dietitians come some grand recipes that we are glad to pass on to you.

Vitamin Special is the important name of one combination. It is made with one-half cup cauliflower flowerets (raw), one-half cup finely-diced orange, two tablespoons finely-chopped green pepper, one-half cup diced celery, few drops onion juice and salt. Combine these items, season to taste, chill, and serve with French dressing.

Fruit Slaw is extra good, as you'll discover when you have a "taster." It is made with two cups shredded cabbage, two ripe bananas, diced or sliced, two green peppers and canned pimentos, cut in strips, and one-half cup salad dressing. Mix cabbage, bananas, peppers and pimentos together and add salad dressing. Garnish with extra peppers or pimentos and celery strips. Serves six. Raw shredded carrots may be added, if desired. A dash of paprika will add extra color.

As Served in Mexico

Here is a salad that is served in Mexico, especially for the Christmas season. Ingredients include one pineapple, grapefruit, two ripe bananas, two apples, four small beets, one tablespoon lime or lemon juice, one and one-half tablespoons salad oil, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon chili powder, one-fourth cup coarsely-chopped peanuts and two tablespoons crushed peppermint candy. Peel orange and grapefruit, remove membrane from sections and dice. Peel and dice bananas, apples and beets. Make a dressing of the lime or lemon juice, salad oil, salt and chili powder. Combine all ingredients lightly and toss together. Serve on sliced lettuce. Serves six to eight.

Collegiate News

Our wandering reporter has at last discovered the September percentage average. He notes that IX, H field first place, with 90.80 percent. IX A and XI D's are close behind, with percentage of 90.62 and 90.37 respectively. The tenth grades used to hold the limelight in this section last year. What happened???

Rehearsals for the school play "You Can't Take It With You" are in full swing. Reports say that it is the best and most amusing play our club has ever attempted.

Volley Ball

The Middle School girls' volley ball series started last Thursday. The members of the two teams XII-A and XII B were very enthusiastic and fought hard, still XII A finally coming out the victors.

At the beginning of this week XII A and D played Grade IX commercially played off in an exciting game after four. At the end of the first half XII A was well ahead and the game ended with a score of 39-29 for XII A.

I'm rooting for XII A and may their success continue!

The Rugby Dance

Friday, November 3rd.

The arrangements are completed, preparations are under way, and the biggest event of the fall term is ready to kick off. The senior team and all the gang are going—the whole city is invited, get out to ticket, find a girl, and get into the fun. The dance is a program dance and is being held in the Armouries Ballroom. Novelty numbers have been arranged with the orchestra and a real collegiate atmosphere is promised to students and older patrons alike. At the bar, the intimidate Bart Jeffery will serve fresh apple cider. Boys and girls are requested to dress in business and sports attire this is not a formal dress.

P.S. Get your tickets early—the ticket sale is limited to 300 and may be sold out before the dance.

It was noticed that an undercurrent of feeling prevailed among the Albert students at Wednesday's game. A feeling or indignation. It seems that a bunch of ruffians (vous, vous) the night before the game had redecorated the Albert goal-posts with B.C.I.V.S. colours in beautifully arranged patterns of red, black and hellotrope paint—really a masterpiece of art—and thus bestowing upon the collegians a most cutting insult. But when some of our team were questioned regarding their guilt in committing the disgusting act (Ya, Mam!) they advanced the idea that the deed was probably the act of some passing transients. It took the Alberts more than two hours yesterday to regain the goal before the game, and it may be said that the male body of B.C.I.V.S. feel deeply hurt at having been accused of such a foul deed.

Fashion Notice

Among the male students yesterday it was noticed that a new fashion had sprung up over night particularly arranged splotches of red, black and hellotrope paint spattered here and there on face, hands and clothes.

Noticeable at the big game was the weakness of the newly-formed B.C.I.V.S. cheering section, so prominent at the last game at the fairgrounds. Although practically half the school were present at the game, only a very feeble response for a cheering section was obtained by the hard-working cheer leaders, Bill Boyle—while the Albert, with only a very small percentage of our attendance, had a very strong cheering! Why!!!!!?

AT THE McCARTHY

"Pride of the West"

A Hollywood Cassidy drama in the best Clarence E. Mulford tradition, is the play playing at the McCarthy Theatre on "Pride of the West," with William Boyd again playing America's best liked range hero. The story tells of the efforts of Hallstrom to stop the plundering of a stage coach line and secure the safety of the west's only means of communication with the east.

Mary Ida, the youngster who has been seen in many other Hopalong Cassidy pictures, along with George (Windy) Hayes, Russell (Lucky) Hayden and Charlotte Wynters, is on hand as "Pride of the West," the prize winning bull of Clarence E. Mulford's great books.

"Way Down South"

Bobby Breen, the screen's favorite boy singer, with Frank Morgan, Alice Brady, Clarence Kolb and Sally Blane, head the cast of the second feature on the program, "Way Down South." Bobby Breen's greatest screen achievement, and the best musical he has ever appeared in, in his skyrocket rise to fame. Thousands you and your family will enjoy more than any production he's seen this season. In addition, all in technicolor, Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and Pluto are presented in another cartoon from Walt Disney cartoon entitled "Donald's Lucky Day," and another the Magician" complete the swell three-reel program of "Hindrance" show now at the McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE BELLE

"Babes in Arms"

America's boy and girl stars, present and future, have their day in the sun in "Babes in Arms," an elaborate screen version of the Broadway musical success which comes next to the Belle Theatre.

Headed by the consummately Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland who are starred, more than two hundred of the world's most talented youngsters combine to present what is said to be one of the most exciting and entertaining music films of the year.

"Babes in Arms," is set in the period that saw the passing of vaudeville and concerns those baby-go-lucky headliners and their children who saw that world utter and crumble about them when motion pictures shoved their two a-day into the discard. But mostly it deals with the kids of these performers, who save the day when they crash Broadway on their own steam by the very talent that made the names of their fathers and mothers household words.

Director Busby Berkeley auditioned four hundred and fifty kids to select fifty young entertainers to appear in the show sequences of this picture. They range in age from three to fourteen years. Two hundred others also appear in choruses of the big numbers.

Besides Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, important roles are filled by June Preisser, Betty Jaynes, Douglas McPhail, Leni Lynn and John Sheffield of "Tarzan Finds a Son" fame. The adult members of the cast are Charles Winninger, Guy Kibbee, Grace Hayes, Rand Brooks and a host of old-time vaudevillians, including such names as Irene Franklin, Harry Rosemarie Young and Genee McKay.

Based on one of the most successful Broadway musical hits of the famous composer-author team of Rodgers and Hart, "Babes in Arms" has abundant opportunity for music, song and dancing lustily filled into a plot that is filled with tuthos, comedy and at times, real drama.

"Book Worm," is the title of the very funny comedolor cartoon to be presented on the same program, with the Belle latest world news events.

"Scouts to the Rescue"

With Jackie Cooper playing the leading role, the first episode of Universal's thrilling and colorful new 2nd chapter serial drama, "Scouts to the Rescue," starts at the Belle, week-end matinee.

Pitting his scouting ability against the cunning of an Indian tribe and the brutality of a counterfeiting gang, Eagle Scout Bruce Scott (Jackie Cooper) leads a troop of Mariaville Scouts into Ghost Town in search of a buried treasure. Pat Scanlon (Edwin Stanley), implicated in a counterfeiting ring through a renegade brother, has received a message from Turk Mortenson (Ivan Miller), head of the gang. The half-burned message, containing a clue locating the buried treasure, is found by Scanlon's son, Skeets (Bill Cody, Jr.), and he leads the Scouts to the site.

Just after they dig up the treasure, there is a dogfight between two planes overhead. One of the planes, hit, dives toward the Scouts and thrusts its nose-on from its flames from its punctured gas tank.

Pretty Girls Not Answer For Good Rodeo

(By Bill White, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Oct. 27—(AP)—The cute little girl who almost took the Calgary Stampede Queen's Garden out of the sports pages and put it into the front section does not think glamour and operator necessarily synonymous.

The 17-year-old Canadian, Texas cowgirl, ranch-owner and sweetheart of the 14th Annual World Championship Rodeo (as she is billed) is pretty Shona Yockey and just after she got through riding Midnight on its initial show she parked herself in the press box and offered a few caustic comments.

"The eight girls brought here to ride in the parade are all good in adorable girls and they can all ride—but they're not in the rodeo by, but they haven't any business in a rodeo.

"They don't feel the same way. Beauty and this business"—masterfully indicating the Garden and its queen mixture of bow-legged punks and pet-eyed spectators—"don't mix. I think it was silly to try."

She proceeded to the eight girls, daughters of first-rank Texas families, who give an exhibition of horsemanship every night and who got more advance publicity than the champion riders.

She is pretty certain that rodeo life requires the smell of liniment is almost as strong as the smell of leather, needs some new ideas, but pretty girls, even if she is one of them, aren't the answer.

She said she didn't realize that she had made such a hit with New York's sanitary censors. "I'm not intent on roping the calf that I don't even know there's anyone in the house."

5. Copies of the Act and its Regulations may be obtained from the Department of the Secretary of State, Ottawa.

PRES. ROOSEVELT ATTACKS CRITICS

King Leopold Says Belgium Hopes for Peace but Will Fight if Attacked

New York, Oct. 27—(AP)— Reaffirming United States neutrality, President Roosevelt last night said critics of his foreign policy who have warned it would force American boys to bear arms abroad were guilty of "one of the worst fakes in current history."

The President spoke last night on the closing program of the ninth annual New York Herald-Tribune Forum on current problems. After King Leopold of Belgium declared it was vital for his country because of economic reasons to remain at peace but that Belgium was ready to fight, if necessary, to preserve its independence.

The heads of the two nations spoke from their respective capitals.

Roosevelt Rebukes Orators

President Roosevelt rebuked "orators and commentators and others" who he said have been "beating their breasts and proclaiming against sending" American troops abroad.

"The simple truth is that no person in any responsible place in the national administration in Washington, or in any State Government, or in any city Government, or in any county Government, has ever suggested in any shape, manner or form the remotest possibility of sending the boys of America to fight on the battlefields of Europe."

King Leopold Speaks

King Leopold, speaking in fluent English during his six-minute broadcast, said Belgium stood side by side with Holland, "an island of peace in the interests of all."

"Exactly 25 years ago, day for day, the Belgian Army, under the command of my father, King Albert, arrested after a hard battle the progress of the German drive.

"If we were attacked we would not hesitate to fight with the same conviction, but with forces 10 times stronger."

England Warned Not to Belittle Germany's Strength

London, Oct. 27—(CP) — Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express sounded an editorial warning today against "exaggerating the weaknesses" of Germany.

"Don't belittle the strength of Germany," said the editorial after approving Prime Minister Chamberlain's "avoidance of the extremes of needless pessimism and careless optimism," in his statement to parliament yesterday.

"We should not spend our time looking for floods in the Sahara desert and looking for signs of discontent among the German people. We should look to our own power," marshal our overwhelming might against the forces which Hitler can muster. It is far wiser to treat Hitler as a dangerous maniac than as a harmless lunatic."

Hayman Likely to Surprise Ottawa Roughriders in Game With His Usual Bag of Tricks

Ottawa, However, Effectively Stopped These Plays Last Weekend

. SARNIA HAS CHANCE

Tigers can Tie Argos by Beating Royals and Toronto Losing

(By Jack Calder Canadian Press Staff Writer).

It will be a surprise if Lew Hayman, who is full of them, doesn't produce a couple of first-rate surprises on behalf of his Toronto Argonauts tomorrow in their crucial test at Ottawa with the Rough Riders, leaders of the Interprovincial Rugby Union.

Hayman was never caught without a trump card when the chips were down in 1937 and 1938, the years he piloted the Double Blue to National championships. When things seemed to be going against them, there would come a forward pass on third down or a quick kick on first down and away the Argos would go to victory.

But whether the Hayman cunning can match the all-round power Ross Trimble knows he can produce was this year is far from certain. It wasn't sufficient last week, when the unbeaten Rough Riders trod over the Argos 18-3 at Toronto and assumed Big Four leadership.

Trimble Had Better Card

The Riders blasted the cunning of Red Storey and the Argos threemen show by running Jimmy Pearson loose for a first-quarter touchdown. Ottawa promptly roped Farmer into the same noose as Storey and rolled on to two touchdowns in the second quarter.

Then Hayman fashioned a five-man one and packed the secondary defence to stop Bunny Wadsworth's steam-roller plunging, so Orville Burke threw a touchdown pass over the heads of the line scrimmage to Wilf Tremblay. For every Hayman move, Trimble had a better card.

If Ottawa cackles the Scullers on the run, it's day's first spill in the east will be Montreal Westmounts' attempt to maintain their unbeaten Ontario Union record against the Imperials at Sarnia. It's not like the Imperials, who have been clambering for seven years, to be in second place at this time.

Hard to Beat Spirit

Some think Sarnia's scene is Summerhill Stirling's kicking, but in his stead have come a group of imperials who have been clicking along tradition. It will be hard for the Sarnia of Tommy Burns, the running and passing of Johnny Ferraro and the kicking of Mason Mullins and Jimmy Eldrell to beat the spirit in Sarnia.

The football world actually began tonight, when Peterborough Orfuns invade Toronto to play Balmy Beach in a floodlight exhibition. If cold the beaches beat the winless Orfuns, whom they edged out 7-6 only last week, they would take undisputed possession of second place in the O.R.F.U. at least temporarily.

Tigers Can Tie Argos

Tigers can tie the Argos in Hamilton if they can do the Argonauts for second spot in the Big Four tomorrow by defeating Montreal Royals at Hamilton, providing the Jays bow.

The east's third undefeated team, the University of Western Ontario, will seek to carry along its plan for a perfect season in the combat with McGill at Montreal.

The classic annual meeting in Toronto of Queen's and the University of Toronto will leave one school or the other in second place in the Intercollegiate series. Toronto will be out to avenge the unexpected beating in Kingston last week, which, established Coach Meeker's first victory anywhere since 1937.

JOE MAICH

The former Canadian Amateur Wrestling Champion, who meets Dave Rhone, the Detroit Jewish lad in the main bout of tonight's three-bout professional wrestling card at the Hume Arena. Roy Doherty, a local boy, will open the show in the preliminary bout against George Chiotpris of Winnipeg. The semi-final bout is a no time-limit affair between Tiger Daniels and Pedro Valdez.

Argos Miss Bob Isbester On End Runs

(By Central Press Canadian)

Toronto, Oct. 27.—Gleaned from here and there . . . Ulster twice-champion Argos are missing big Bob Isbester on their famed extension plays . . . "hot potato" plays as westerners call them . . . Art Weir, end man on the starboard wing, is through for the season, with a knee injury, is naturally missed, but it was Bob who handled the ball next to Westie and he had the timing down pat. . . . a mediocre or badly timed throw from his direction usually means little gain. . . . A somewhat anomalous situation is presented in the set-up of the Ontario Athletic Commission. F. J. Mulqueen resigns as chairman because, according to the most popular version of affairs, he had had differences with Lloyed Conacher, a member of the commission . . . both men were said to be the type who had to be leading, not following . . . so what happens? . . . Conacher takes over the chairmanship and P. J. becomes an ordinary member, merely reversing their former positions. . . . If those Mustangs of University of Western Ontario cop the eastern college grid crown this year . . . and why is there to say they may? . . . it will mark a fourth year in which each team has taken the crown . . . McGill last year, Queen's the year before and the Dook Varsity team in 1937. . . . The major puck scene won't be the same without the rule that required the referee to beat a manager's call to the bench . . . the game will be finished in practically regulation time and the fans will be home in time for lunch by midnight. . . . More than usual interest centred on a statement issued by Ottawa (a print are described that way) that Hamilton was over the limit for the first Argo-Ottawa game, listing Bill Doyle, Argonaut lineman, as 252 pounds. . . . "Why here's something to compete with the Ottawa tank corps!" Mrs. Bill of the comment in more than one quarter. . . . Mr. Doyle, at 185 pounds, is only a medium or under-sized lineman. . . . Mrs. Bill of the Argonauts will parallel the feat of Art Ross last year with his rookie crop? You may remember the almost fatal injury of Frank Brimsek, Jack Crawford, Mel Hill and Roy Conacher? There has Billy Taylor, Don Metz, Hank Goldup and Ab Wright, while Stanley Leaflets who may (say that gently) will be in the N.H.L. ranks next straight from the amateur ranks. Stanowski one year removed. . . . Jimmy Ward, Regina College team opened its season by inning its first three games by 113—127—121 done, with the narrowest margin of victory being 6 pins. The Regina Collegians are favored to go through the season undefeated . . . as was McGill last year. Preceded to Ottawa ago and had their ears pinned back, 44-4, in an awful debacle.

Wilf Tremblay Rated as Natural By Grid Experts

Ottawa, Oct. 27 (CP)—A lagging French-Canadian interest in gridiron classics has been stimulated by Ottawa Rough Riders' spectacular success this fall with several French-Canadian players on the line and Wilf Tremblay, rated by experts as the season's football natural, burning up the headlines.

The exploits of the 21-year-old Tremblay, dubbed Twinkle-Toes by local sport scribes after Fred Mansell of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, have whipped up new enthusiasm in the French districts of Hull and Ottawa's lower town.

So when Saturday's thousands mill into Lansdowne Park for the Big Four game here between Ottawa and Toronto Argonauts, there will be several thousand Frenchmen in the crowd of 12,000 who don't be wrong in routing for Tremblay, Leo Seguin, Ritchie and Arvid Charbonneau, Herve Pilon and Norm Bertrand on the Ottawa roster.

Tremblay's jump into the national sport spotlight has caught the fancy of local fans, particularly since he is a native of Hull and is only French-Canadian player from the city ever to play in the Big Four.

The 154-pound halfback learned his first football in Hull's Wolfe City, Ont., where he went with his parents as a child. He played for Assumption College and used to wander over to Detroit frequently to watch the American college players in action at football schools.

At 15 he came back to Hull and teamed up with the New Edinburgh team in the Ottawa City League where he played for four years and led the league scoring in 1937 with 101 points.

N. H. L. Galaxy Will Pay Tribute to Babe Siebert

By Central Press Canadian

Tribute will be paid in Montreal on Sunday night to a great athlete and man when the Siebert Memorial game will be played between Canadiens and the 1926-30 Canadian Press all-star National Hockey League team, a game honoring the memory of Albert (Babe) Siebert, one of the greatest figures in N.H.L. history, whose death came as a shock to the sports world during the summer, when he was drowned while swimming with his daughter. Proceeds of the game will be turned over to his widow. The Babe was to have coached Canadiens this year after having finished a glorious playing career the last season on Canadiens' defence. Over the ice of the Forum, where Siebert turned in so many great games, first as a member of the famous "2-3" line with Maroons, later with Rangers, Boston Bruins and Canadiens, the C.P. all-stars, guided by Art Ross, manager of the Bruins, who made the additional selections, will face Canadiens, coached by Pete Leguie, a former "enemy" of Babe Siebert in the days of the great Maroon-Canadien rivalry. Shown here are some of the all-star players who will take part, grouped around Siebert, in the central star; having the last the goalie, defence and centre. LEFT to RIGHT: Frank Primeau, Eddie Shore and Dit Clapper, all of Boston Bruins; Syd Apps, Toronto Leafs and the LEFT of Siebert, Johnny Gottselig, Chicago Black Hawks, and at the RIGHT, Joe Primeau, Canadiens. Blake was chosen all-star left wing, but will line up with his own team in this game. Along the bottom, LEFT to RIGHT: Tommy Anderson, left wing, Canadiens; Gord Drillon, right wing, Toronto Maple Leafs; Neil Colville, centre, Rangers; and Ebbie Goodfellow, defence, Detroit Red Wings.

Training Camp Briefs

(By the Canadian Press)

Art Ross doesn't intend to have any of his Boston Bruins caught napping through new regulations in the National Hockey League this season. Ross, the canny Boston manager sent his charges through a single lengthy workout yesterday at Hershey, Pa. Most of the time was devoted to interpreting new rules.

Several seasons ago, when Charlie Conacher was with Toronto Maple Leafs, Manager Conn Smythe was considering converting Big Chuck's defenseman his never did get around to it. Mervyn (Red) Dutton, mainstay of New York Americans, evidently has taken the step and is working Conacher at a defence post.

Lester Patrick confesses that his "dream" of having an American-born player on the New York Rangers roster will have to wait another year at least. At Regina yesterday, Patrick said that he had decided to send John Polich, an all-American football player with Loyola University of California, to Philadelphia Ramblers for season-ing.

Harvey the Busher" Jackson, is bringing great big smiles to Red Dutton's face these days with his New York Americans. Dutton obtained the Busher from Toronto Maple Leafs, with whom he had only an ordinary season in 1938-39. With the Americans Jackson has flashed some of the form that made him great in the days of Toronto's famed "old line" of Jackson, Conacher and Joe Primeau.

It's wedding bells for Alfie Pike, newly promoted to the New York Rangers. Manager Lester Patrick announced that Goaltender Pike and Kilby Macdonald to his Rangers from the Philadelphia Ramblers. At the same time Patrick commented that the 21-year-old Pike is getting married at Winnipeg on Saturday. Said Lester: "That's his wedding present from the Ranger organization."

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

When Cord Farquharson returns to the Belleville Collegiate backfield, Coach Eddie Schrieder will have as good a quartette of backfield players in his class as one will find throughout the general run of senior interscholastic grid circles. Farquharson, who is on the injured list with a twisted ankle, and "Yank" McBride are as good a pair of line plungers as have been seen in the O.B.C.I. in years, while on the shoulders of Ross Clare and Bill (Pinkom) McBride rides the brunt of the efforts of the squad. Clare, who is doing a splendid job at punting the pigskin for the "collegians" this season, may not be quite as good a ball carrier as Jimmie Polwell in his heyday, but Clare carries the ball for better gains which should elevate him into Polwell's interscholastic category. To watch this quartette on their extension end runs with their "hip pockets" handling the ball of Jackson, Conacher and Joe Primeau.

Pete Smash's Albert College line of sentimental fodder up like the proverbial cucumbers, which metaphorically speaking, is what the opposition is getting their plays under up to. Johnny Gibbard, Eddie and Kilby Macdonald to his Rangers from the Philadelphia Ramblers. At the same time Patrick commented that the 21-year-old Pike is getting married at Winnipeg on Saturday. Said Lester: "That's his wedding present from the Ranger organization."

Seven countries are represented on the Massachusetts Institute of Technology soccer team, almost enough to call it the International brigade. In the forward line the Engineers have Chiang-hsuah Wu, Taiwan, China; Sahabatdin Fenmen, Ankara, Turkey; Ziya Kirman, Istanbul, Turkey; Jorge Vargas, Bogota, Colombia; Joseph Macory, Mexico City; and Josefowitz Gunzig, Warsaw, Poland. Goalie is Malcolm Goldie, is of Scottish extraction.

When Boston's powerful Bruins take the ice for the spring, emblematic of world hockey supremacy, it marched two-ninths time to the trophy since the United States. Seattle was the first Army team to win the Cup in 1917. The Rangers took the cup to New York in 1928. Chicago Blackhawks it in 1938 the only previous occasion in which the Bears held it, despite many great teams they've had: Rangers again in 1933, Chicago Black Hawks in 1934, Detroit Red Wings in 1936 and 1937, Chicago Black Hawks in 1938, were the others.

Showing a profit of some $400,000.00, the Cincinnati Reds are said to have played before 1,130,000 fans during the season of the National League season. In the valley of the way Ohio River, night baseball has proven the difference between a profitable year and a losing venture. Now that the New York Giants have installed nocturn lights at the Polo Grounds, it won't be long until they'll all be in the game. Only one major league will be played, under ordinary conditions, if major baseball can find it necessary to install lights to make their project a paying proposition—why should it not? Perhaps this Belleville keep ramming its head against a solid wall.

REDHEADS ARE LUCKY

By Vera Brown

CHAPTER XXXVI

Iris stood, clutching her purse in both hands as she looked slowly around the apartment.

"So this is where you live....," Her voice was hailing. She swayed a little.

Mike caught her breath and realized that Iris had been drinking.

Iris laughed. Perhaps she had noted the growing concern in Mike's eyes. "Oh, you're not scared aren't you!

Mike ignored her question, asking instead: "Why did you come?"

"Oh, you know well enough why I came." Iris had to steady herself with the back of a chair. The telephone rang. Mike started toward the phone.

"Don't answer that!"

Iris's eyes were blazing. She drew a tiny automatic pistol from her purse. Her hand was trembling, but Mike realized that Iris's aim might be accurate. The phone rang for quite a time.

"I just want to tell you: You think you've gotten, and going after Larry. Well, you're not!" Iris was on the pistol. She seemed suddenly to become sober.

You got Wish Malone to snoop around, because you wanted my Larry." I know how you found out about Alfredo! Carl told you."

Mike was so stunned she could not speak, and in that stood there looking at the blonde girl sheathed in black velvet.

"I came here to find out one thing. Where did you find out Alfredo and I weren't divorced?" Iris raged.

Mike tried desperately to think. What would happen if she rushed past Iris to the door? Would Iris really shoot? Mike figured she would not, but—

"Tell me!"

"What?"

"Have you found out about Alfredo and me?"

"I didn't."

"Then lie to me!"

Mike tried another tact. "Mrs. Regan, this is all a mistake—"

"Don't you 'Mrs. Regan' me." Just then the buzzer sounded. Both stood rooted to the spot.

"Who is it?"

"I don't know."

"Keep still!" Iris yarned.

The bell sounded again and then became silent.

Iris resumed with. "Yes, I'm going to shoot you. You can't have Handsome. I can't either, but I'm not going to see you grab him."

There was a slight noise outside in the hall. Mike tried to keep her face blank as she realized with relief that Mr. Regan, Sr., had the key to the apartment. Iris did not seem to notice anything. But Mike was sure she heard Regan, Sr.'s respectable sounds. There was a key in the lock on the other side of the door. Slowly, quietly, the door began to open. Iris turned toward it.

Then open that door!" Mike's voice broke the silence in a crescendo of warning. Too late! The door swung wide. But Mike had jumped quickly enough to strike Iris's arm upward.

There was a ear-splitting explosion. It came from somewhere else in the apartment.

Then Wish was there at Iris's side; Mr. Regan, Sr., and Handsome rushed straight to Mike.

There was also a strange man who banged the door shut, commanding sternly, "Be quiet!" He turned to Mike. "When wish boob comes to that door, you tell them that Wish committed his own suicide and it went off."

Then was the sound of excited voices outside. The strange man took Iris into Mike's bedroom. When there was a knock on the door, Mike answered it.

Her voice was convincing: "I'm so sorry, Mrs. Wells. I'm afraid it damaged the ceiling a little. I was terribly sorry. Yes, it was an accident." She closed the door.

Wish came over to Mike and patted her hand. "If Iris had hurt you, I'd never have forgiven myself."

"How did she get a gun, Wish?" Handsome demanded.

"I haven't the remotest idea. Or how she got away. I thought I had everything fixed perfectly at the hotel."

"But tell me...." Mike's pleading inquiry was interrupted by the strange man who led Iris back into the sitting room again.

"I'm certainly glad I had that key, Mike." Mr. Regan, Sr., spoke for the first time.

"She is ready to leave now," said the strange man. "And she wants to tell you all how sorry she is." He turned to Iris, who spoke up: "I just had time to get home and then I saw a chance to get away. Gave Wish the slip. He's too smart, anyway!"

"What about the gun, Iris?" She laughed at him: "I had that all the time!"

The man who was introduced to Mike as "Mr. Johnson, the district lawyer," broke in with: "Mrs. Herminnie promises to remain in California for a year. There won't be any repetition of this."

Iris turned toward him: "Where is Alfredo now?"

"Immigration has him.

"We didn't. How did we know we'd overstay his permit?

"Trying to get rid of Iris's fiancé's deep blue eyes.

"Probably. But remember, he's the boy that finally talked. Not anybody else."

"He always was...," but Iris looked at that point and turned to Mike as though she were making a social call with, "I am sorry to have caused so much excitement. Please forgive me."

"Certainly," said Mike as they once presented to laugh, over the nerve-cracking strain.

"Maybe she boys would like a drink, Skipper?" Handsome suggested.

"I'll fix a tray," Mike responded and hurried around, got glasses and ice. She had just been any casual cocktail party except that Iris broke into hysterical tears now and then, accusing Wish and Handsome of having "conned" her and "promised you'd not let them send Alfredo to jail!"

"I know, Iris. I tried to play fair, but I didn't know he was in this country illegally until afterward. I explained Johnny to Mr. Regan to check the Immigration authorities. Handsome and the fat was in the fire."

"Can't you save him?"

"We can try."

In the little kitchenette, waiting for coffee to boil, Handsome held Mike in his arms. "You're wonderful, Darling. You saved the day in the whole world. You turned the trick."

"What do you mean?"

"About Iris, and the South Amerman marriage."

"Then it's true?"

"Of course, it's true. I knew that the moment Wish spoke to me. It was the only possible explanation for where your money went."

Mike still could not understand. "But Iris, her self, divorce Alfredo. agreed to say nothing, if Alfredo got his money went."

"Darling, perfectly simple." He kissed her lightly. "Now on a sandwich. "She married him and Alfredo agreed to say nothing, if she'd give him $50,000 regularly. Only trouble was, he wanted more as I figured."

"Then they were never divorced?"

"That's it!"

"Maybe she didn't know that." "Nonsense! Alfredo lived with her in New York when she met me."

"I can hardly believe it." Handsome continued his reassurance. "You don't suppose it would be worth-while publicity would be wife. To say nothing of the money. Then she figured it would be worth-while publicity would be wife. To say nothing of the money. Then she figured it would be worth-while publicity would be wife. To say nothing of the money. Then she figured

MOTHER AND SON DISCOVERED DEAD IN AUTOMOBILE

Opinion Death Due to Asphyxiation from Powder Fumigating Chemical

CAN OF POWDER FOUND

Couple Tentatively Identified as N. W. Tiessin, Farmer, and Mother, Grantham Tp.

St. Catharines, Oct. 27.—(CP)—Two persons tentatively identified as N. W. Tiessin, 51, of the Broad Grantham Township and his mother, were found dead in a car on a side road west of Rockaway early today. Preliminary investigation by police and Chief Coroner Dr. J. L. Potter indicated that they died of asphyxiation from a powder fumigating chemical found in the car.

Discovery of the car, which had apparently been on the shoulder of the road throughout the night, was made by Provincial Police of Grantham Township farmer, Staff drove past the car and noticed a man slumped inside.

He immediately notified County Magistrate Gordon Bruce over the telephone who investigated, and in turn summoned Dr. A. D. Addy, Jordan, and Investigation Conducted Sergeant J. B. Robble, of the St. Catharines detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police with Chief Coroner Potter conducted the investigation at the scene before the bodies were moved. Sergeant Robble later learned from Provincial Constable C. W. Wood, Grimsby, who with a fellow officer is operator of the Criminal Investigation Branch, Toronto.

The road on which the car was found is an unnamed throughfare which connects Highway 8 and Highway 20 at the Cathcarine-Smithville road, about a quarter mile which leads to No. 8 highway. The car was about a quarter of a mile off the St. Catharines-Grimsby road.

Car Leaves Road, Runs Into Fence

Marks on the road surface also indicated that the car, being driven south, had just rounded a sharp right hand bend in the road. The road, went about 25 years along the grass shoulder and then turned sharply away from the road and into a wire fence where it stopped.

The man about 40 years of age was slumped back in the driver's seat and beside him was the elderly woman about 70. Between the two was a can of a powder used for powder fumigating purposes. The powder when exposed to air produces a highly poisonous gas.

According to neighbours, Tiessin and his mother moved to the 50-acre farm about three years ago from St. David's. Tiessin is unmarried.

Newspapermen visited the Tiessin farm, but there were no signs of life about the place.

The garage was empty and no tire tracks were in the driveway made damp and muddy by the heavy rain during the night.

Tiessin and his mother were said by their neighbours to be of Russian-German nationality. The elderly mother was believed to be between 65 and 70 years of age.

PLANES, WARSHIPS

mark and Sweden linking the north and the Baltic Sea.)

Swedish Telegraph Agency reports said activity of the German fleet in the Skagerrak had increased in the past few days. They said three German cruisers accompanied by airplanes had passed the straits between the Goteland and Oeland Islands—the Baltic Sea's only deep east coast of Scandinavia—but reported no violations of Scandinavian neutrality.

(Gotland is of great strategic importance, lying in the middle north-south route of Baltic trade. Its Harbor, Visby, is a Swedish naval base and its topography is well adapted for airfields. It is only 45 minutes by air from the new Soviet air and naval bases in Estonia and Latvia.)

NATIONS OPEN DOORS FOR Y.M.C.A. TO SERVE PRISONERS OF WAR

Detroit, Oct. 27.—(AP)—John R. Manley of New York, general secretary of the National Y.M.C.A. Council, said today Germany, France and England have declared a "completely open door" for the Y.M.C.A. to serve prisoners of war and interned soldiers and aliens.

Speaking at the opening of the Council's three-day conference here Manley said he had been advised $60,000 would be needed to carry on the work for three months.

FACER-BOARD ON BUILDING FALLS

Apparently loosened through long exposure to the elements, a large strip of facer-board suddenly broke away and plunged from the four-storey brick atop the John Cook Building, Front Street, to the sidewalk below, shortly after 4 o'clock this morning.

The plummeting strip of lumber turning end over end as it fell, struck the awning of the Towers store and crashed in pieces to the sidewalk. Fortunately no pedestrians or automobiles were in the vicinity at the time.

Detroit Hunter Critically Injured When Shot in Face at Pelee Hunt

C. Davis, Lying in Ditch Waiting for Birds, Shot by Toronto Man

MIST HEAVY

Pelee Island, Ont., Oct. 27.—(CP) Charles Davis, 36, of Detroit, suffered critical injuries here today when Howard Steinkman, 44, of Toronto, accidentally shot him during pheasant hunting.

Davis lay in a ditch waiting for birds when Steinkman, shot from 75 feet away, mistaking Davis for a bird.

The wound was inflicted on Davis's face, above the nose and eyebrows.

Fog and rain made visibility almost impossible and added to the dangers of the hunting where 1,000 hunters are congregated on less than 20,000 acres of the island.

Davis was accompanied by Cecil Davis and Harry Lawrence, of Detroit at the time of the accident, which occurred near Middle Island on Pelee Island. They carried Davis to Dodd's Hotel, and Captain Ed. Skipper gave emergency treatment.

Mart Dennis performed the use of his airplane to rush Davis to Detroit, but Dr. Skipper said an ambulance would be better under the circumstances.

This was the first accident so far during the opening of the 1939 two-day season.

During the first half hour of hunting the sound of shooting and guns of the 1,000 or more hunters reported successes. After that the birds which were plentiful yesterday in this southernmost strip of Canada, have become scarce and become invisible in the fog.

The two-day hunt, which draws sportsmen from many parts of Canada and the United States, depends entirely upon the birds and visibility. In other years there have been successful Canadian hunters. Dr. S. C. Skipper was in the island today to attend to the injured man. Plenty of extra police also was on duty.

The supply of pheasants on Pelee Island is more abundant than anywhere in North America.

MET McDONALD NIGHT OF MURDER

Madge Hoskins, 17, Defence Witness, Says She Talked With Him About 7.00 p.m.

Toronto, Oct. 27.—(CP)—Seventeen year old Madge Hoskins, a defence witness at Donald (Mickey) Mac-Donald's retrial on a charge of murdering James Morrison, Toronto bookie, last January, testified today that she had seen MacDonald a few minutes after the murder on the night of the murder, Jan. 7, and had talked with him for five minutes.

She said the meeting took place at the corner of Jarvis and Dundas streets in downtown Toronto. When she was shown a gun during the evening summer in his North Toronto home shortly before 7.00 p.m.

Miss Hoskins, who admitted to seven Criminal Code charges, said she had used the name of Gloria North because she was pointed out in the daily newspapers as "mistress" of the murder trial, said she knew MacDonald "socially" since she went to school, "about five or six years ago."

She said she met MacDonald on the night of Jan. 7 in a corner drug store and that she drank one coke while conversation he went out on the street, returning with a package for the blonde woman.

Asked how to a question from Mr. Snyder, the girl said she did not remember who she met at 6:35 p.m. on Jan. 7.

"Do you remember who you met at 6:35 p.m. two weeks ago today?" the Crown Counsel asked.

"No," replied the witness.

"You don't remember who you met at 6:35 p.m. two weeks ago today? Can you remember seeing Mickey MacDonald at 6:35 p.m. the night of the murder?" Mr. Snyder asked.

"Yes," the girl said.

Evidence Contradicted.

Evidence of John R. Shea, one-time friend of MacDonald, concerning a conversation in Shea's apartment two days after the murder was contradicted by Edward (Teddy) Wells, who appeared in court in his Canadian Army Service Corps uniform. Wells said he had enlisted in the King's Own.

Wells said he was with MacDonald, Dan Clancy, another Crown witness, and Shea in the latter's apartment Jan. 9, last. All four gathered around a table and read the report of the Windsor murder in a newspaper.

"Shea says that MacDonald read the paper and then said, 'We're all right. They are looking for American gunmen,' Defence Counsel Frank Regan said. "Did MacDonald say that?" he asked Wells.

"No sir," Wells replied.

Wells said he had bought the paper at noon and in answer to another question by Mr. Regan said that Clancy took a look at the headline and said: "Who wants to read about that house?" and threw the paper on a chair.

Replying to a question from Mr. Justice J. Makins, Wells said that no one but Clancy had looked at the paper or read about the Windsor murder.

Huge Elk Proves Hard to Capture

Collingwood, Ont., Oct. 27.—(CP)—Residents of Collingwood Collegiate were talking about a great new line dinner today, but he wasn't eligible for their football team. The High School boys turned out yesterday to assist Provincial Constable J. A. Rowe in the capture of a huge bull elk, roaming in the district. The students formed a line of officer, whose name was not given, a farmer, reported, and a woman were accused of being the chief Nazi spy agents.

BRITAIN OPENS VOLUNTEER LISTS FOR AGES 22-35

Age Limits in North Ireland Will be 20 to 35 Years

MEN REPORT NOV. 15

London, Oct. 27 (CP)—Men aged 22 to 35 will be accepted at the recruiting office call for volunteers between the ages of 22 and 35 for the Royal Engineers, Royal Signalling corps, tank and infantry service.

Young Britons will report at the last war who had come to join the Royal Navy.

At Whitehall volunteers were waiting outside the doors of the recruiting depot long before it opened. Afterwards there was a steady stream of men into the building.

Social distinctions were left at the door which bore the inscription, business men chatted with laborers and artisans while first comers called for information from officials. The one group a young stockbroker, a bank clerk, and many parts of Canada and the United States. Others were checked for age and physical fitness.

Enlistments only of specialized men have been asked previously. Age limits were set at 25 to 35 in Great Britain and 20 to 35 in Northern Ireland. Those accepted will be required to report Nov. 15.

Hints in the German press of broadening the basis of conscription to include all men between 17 and 45 years, opened her lists today for enlistment in the first period of the war began Sept. 3

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 27—(CP)—Trading on Toronto Exchange was dull today. Minor advances predominated but turnover was only 176,000 shares. Industrials and Golds showed the main losses while the Base Metal and Western Oil issues were slightly higher.

Lake Shore weakened a point and soft spots in the medium priced Golds included Aunor, East Malartic, Kerr-Addison and Pickle Crow. Nickel firmed a fraction and Steep Rock and Preston moved forward appreciably while other Base Metals were steady. Home Oil at 2.94 was up 3 cents, Imperial Oil 3 cents and Calgary-Edmonton were firm around 2.40 and 2.40 respectively.

Steels, Utilities, Foods and Papers recorded fractional declines in slow action.

WALL STREET

New York, Oct. 27 (AP)—The stock market ran into a certain amount of mill selling pressure today and leaders slumped fractions to more than two points. The pace was slow from the quiet opening on Near the noon hour prices were around their lows.

Foreign markets were generally firm, although the Amsterdam Bourse took a ran irregular tone at the close.

Depressed most of the session were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Phelps Dodge, Westinghouse Electric, Du Pont, Union Carbide & Johns-Manville, Allied Chemical, Electric Auto, Lite, International Harvester, Caterpillar, Great Northern and Santa Fe.

In a ragged Canadian group fractional gains were posted for Hiram Walker and Canadian Dominion showed a trifle in the bond markets.

FOOD RATIONING NOT SEVERE SAYS MORRISON

Supply Position of Britain Considerably Better Than a Few Weeks Ago BACON CONTRACTS

By GUY ROGERS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 27.—(CP Cable)—William S. Morrison, Minister of Food, said today he saw no reason "why we should expect anything very unfavorable" from the Government's food rationing system is put into effect next month.

Mr. Morrison told newspapermen the amount of restriction imposed will vary with the quantity of supplies available but added that the supply position is better under conditably better than a few weeks ago.

New Bacon Contracts Expected

A normal movement of Canadian bacon was reaching Britain, he said, and added in reply to a question that negotiations were progressing between Dominion Government's food rationing system is put into effect next month.

The Minister explained the rationing system was designed not so much to restrict supplies as to bring an equable distribution of essential foods to the people, unprofitable speculation and keep prices down.

It might be necessary to put some products such as margarine, but the Government would do no more pooling than necessary for it did not want to interfere unduly with trade.

The country has increased margarine production since the outbreak of war and is taking steps to increase production of all homegrown foods.

The diversion of foods needed by troops, he said, caused a shortage of imported frozen meats in many centres, but supplies were arriving since then, mainly from the Argentine, corrected the situation.

Unlisted Mines Continue Quiet

Toronto, Oct. 27—Price changes were slight in produce lists at Toronto yesterday. Butter continued dull, eggs were steadier.

Dealers reported trading difficulty in obtaining 28 1-4 cents per pound for finest creamery. Ontario creamery butter solids as trading remained spotty. Select butter was reported all day before this figure. Offerings were not heavy, however, with trade business still receiving in small volume, and some holders were still not willing to sell below the higher price.

Eighteen Players Answer the Call

Eighteen players answered the call to the season's training camp of the L.O.B.A. last evening, all of last year's Belleville ladies' team with the L.O.B.A. being on hand supplemented by several newcomers. Pursuant to the hopeful play immediately basketball under rules, something new to the firstyear players.

The girls' House League, which is to be organized all the way will function for the first time this year in an effort to interest more young ladies in taking an interest in this indoor pastime. There is still room for more players, however, as Coach Dickens and Secretary Joe Sharpe, are now in charge of operating a four-teamed city league prior to the opening of the district and provincial schedules in January. Young ladies and girls interested should call either for practises at the Y.M.C.A. without delay.

Those to appear for the season's first practise last night were: Pat Rowbotham, Betty Crull, Marion MacLean, Laura Meichior, Marjory Hilchon, Minette Miller, Jean Sherry, Ivy Corby, Phyllis Webb, Regis Whalen, Helen Bellamy, Wilma McLaughlin, Marion Adams, Betty Sharpe, Hazel McLaughlin, Mary Lickford, Velma Bell and several other newcomers.

PASSENGERS HURT AS CARS SIDESWIPE

Two persons sustained injuries and six automobiles were damaged yesterday on Highway No. 14 near Mountain View when a car driven by a motor car, driven by A. L. Greenside, Toronto, was in a sideswipe collision with a north bound truck, driven by Irving Vance of Picton.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Greenside sustained serious lacerations and bruises and were rushed to the surgery of Dr. Publow, Picton, for medical treatment. Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine investigated and stated today the Greenside car was badly wrecked at a loss of fully $500. The officer's investigations are continuing regarding the sideswiping of the vehicle.

ed increase in their well being, but they will be forced to, he added, peoples." "It's a crecs," he added, "were to break the unity of supranational society, rob the law of principles of foundation and vigor and lead to a violation of others' rights and impede agreement and peaceful intercourse."

Written in Latin

The encyclical will be known as the "Summi Pontificatus, the first two words of the Latin text, meaning "the Supreme Pontificate's."

The official text, which will be mailed to bishops throughout the world to whom it was addressed, was written in Latin. Translations in English, French, Italian, German and Spanish were issued simultaneously with the Latin text and translations of other languages will be distributed later.

Vatican authorities said the texts in modern languages sometimes were seen awhile in style since fidelity to the Latin original was placed ahead of grace and elegance in the transfer of the Pope's thought.

The Vatican radio will broadcast translations in English, French, German and Italian on short wave metres at 7 p.m. Greenwich time, (3 p.m. EST) today. Translations in Portuguese and Polish will be broadcast tomorrow at the same hour.

"As we write these lines," the Pope said, "the terrible news comes to us that in Poland, our beloved son is already raging in spite of all our efforts to avert it."

He said "new errors" added to the "doctrinal corruption of the past" have pushed these "to extremes which lead inevitably to a drift toward chaos."

"Once the authority of God and the sense of it is lost, all collapses in this way," Pope Pius declared in his letter of greeting to the bishops of all Catholic Bishops, "civil authority loses its moral vestal force and is driven to the basest and absolute autocracy which belongs exclusively to the Supreme Lawgiver."

Put In Place of Almighty

"It put the state in the place of the Almighty and elevates the state of group into the rule of life, the basis of supreme criterion of moral and juridical order, and therefore foreign every principle of the unity of nature and human and Christian conscience.

"Fortunately, false principles do not always succeed fully fully influence, especially when the age-old Christian traditions on which the individual and society remain still deeply, even if unconsciously, rooted in public habits.

This was interpreted as a reference to the Nazi-Communist pacts of the Poles.

Prayer for Sympathy.

Poland, the Pontiff said, "has the right to generous brotherly sympathy of all men, and we feel it awaits the hour of resurrection in harmonious agreement with justice and true peace."

The Pope appealed for peace treaties at the end of this war which would avoid the "sacrifices and suffering of the past" and lead to lasting peace in the past.

The Pope said he would fail to impose a decisive change in conditions—unless there is "a peace which peace "animated by justice and by equity toward all."

He said there is danger last settlements be born in such conditions as to give rise to new conflicts.

At the same time, he said, respect for the fundamental principles of peace.

Pope Pius described his "expectation and conviction" that each party will respect its plighted word" in treaties to be concluded upon condition of peace.

He said peace could not be achieved until "both sides are ready to enter into negotiations with the sincere course to force or threats of force in case of delays, hindrances, bad faith or breaches of treaty."

The holy hope for the future, the Pontiff said, was that the new order instead of "founding on the sands of ephemeral standards that depend on changing opinions of groups and individuals" should be based on an "unshakable rock" which is the law of God as that of natural law and Divine revelation."

The Pope said that strife across the failure of his own efforts to avert it. Italy was in a position to considered it his duty to "try every means to spare mankind and Christianity such a scourge as the conflagration even at the risk of misunderstood."

The Pope's hoard with respect was not, however, followed be observed.

Sorry for Poland

The Pope expressed especially sorrow for Poland "whose noble blood of countless human beings, whose rights, whose just claims, whose dirge over a nation such as our dear Poland which for its fidelity to its religious and its mission in the defence of Christian civilization has merited honorable characters in the annals of history and the right to a peaceful, brotherly sympathy of the whole world."

The Pontiff promised to do all in his power to hasten return of peace. He also mentioned the Holy Ghost, he said "trusting in those words of Christ, 'Peace I leave you, peace I give you,' we implore the break of war nobly tolled to avert such a scourge from the peoples and the restoration of souls in all countries of every sphere who call on the Redeemer for love and mercy."

Protection of State

The Pope said it was the function of the State to direct private individual activities to the good of the common good.

"That good can neither be defined according to arbitrary ideas nor can it accept for its standard p...narily the material prosperity of society," he continued.

Only conditions the State something ultimate to which everything else should be subordinated - and directed was not fall to harm the true lasting prosperity of nations.

"This can happen either when unrestricted dominion ought to be conferred on the State as having a mandate from the nation, the people or even a social class or when the State arrogates such dominion to itself as absolute master despotically without any mandate."

He expressed concern over the "doctrinal corruption which occasionally has brought the church into conflict with the state as in the controversy with Italy over Catholic action.

"It is dangerous, the Pope said, for a family group to be "considered from the narrow standpoint of national power."

In such circumstances, he declared, the education of the new generation "would not aim at a balanced development of physical powers and all intellectual and moral qualities but would lead to one-sided formation of the civic virtue considered necessary in absolute political success."

(Always Figure of Peace.

Twenty-five years ago, Pope Pius XII, then a Papal Nuncio to Germany, was a figure in the ambitious plans of Adolf Hitler to become the first great war to an end. As an Under-Secretary of State at the Vatican he had aided the Pontiff in drawing the plan.

When the plan was finally in readiness, the Pope summoned him, consecrated Eugenio Pacelli, Archbishop of Sardi, and sent him to Germany. Day, the new Papal Nuncio in May, 1917, and the following month met Kaiser Wilhelm, Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg.

At first, the 42-year-old Nuncio's mission in Berlin was a complete and he held high hopes. But it soon was discovered that the war would to continue to lie finish. So he saw his hopes for peace dashed.

Kaiser Deeply Impressed.

The Kaiser, however, was deeply impressed by the Papal envoy. He wrote in his memoirs that "he left an impression and likeable mixture of high intelligence and excellent breeding. He was a perfect example of eminent prelate of the Catholic church."

Archbishop Pacelli remained at Munich as Nuncio through the Bolshevist revolt in Bavaria. Later, he received apologies from the party leaders.

He was accredited as envoy to the new German republic in 1920 and was Papal Nuncio to Berlin in 1934. Later, he negotiated the concordat between Germany and the Vatican, to replace the old one which concerned only Prussia. The concordat served as his major diplomatic triumph.

When he became Pope on March 2, 1939, his first formal utterance, a few day later, was a strong appeal for peace. He invoked the aid of God in the name of governments that they might conduct the affairs of state in a manner to peace.

In every public discourse since then and on every possible occasion he has renewed his prayers for peace. He has already been called, in many lands, "the Pope of peace."

For reasons known only to the Fatherland Germany has activated Russia's friendship at the expense of Italian. As things stood then Italy was in a position to influence Turkey whose consent to a move against the Balkans intends in the attack would be a real help. Russia was in a better position to-influence Turkey until the two-power agreement.

An intensive campaign of subversive and anti-British propaganda in India, Afghanistan and Iran (Persia) would undoubtedly precede and form part of a Russo German offensive which would affect British interests adversely affect British prestige in the east. It would break the blockade which French and British naval power has thrown about the Reich.

ous serious. Fred Kulchytsky, believed to have fared the worst of the trio, was described as only slightly injured. Allan Gray and H. T. Hamilton suffered superficial hurts.

Caused by Rockburst

The company statement said: "On Thursday at 2.00 p.m. a rockburst took place in Lake Shore Mine, extending from a short distance above the 2,975 foot level to approximately half way between the 3,700 and 3,825 foot levels. First the burst affected an area on the north vein of approximately 200 feet in vertical extent over a horizontal length of 60 feet. The distance given represents the approximate outside limits of the burst and within this area the different drifts and drawpoints were damaged in varying degrees."

Coroner Dr. J. P. Edison said an inquest into the death of Tuomi would likely be held next Wednesday. The victim was born in Italy, a Ukrainian military funeral here on Sunday.

Kulchytsky has a wife and two children in Poland. The outbreak of war disrupted communications for them to join him in Canada. He had just returned to work Tuesday after five weeks' illness.

FARMERS URGED

Not Near Quota.

Mr. Dewan said that Canadian bacon producers by no means reached the quota allotted to the British market during peace-time and said the demand will be greater during the war. During a recent trip to England he met Canadian bacon importers who "seemed pleased with the manner in which the quality has been maintained." They asked that the quality be further improved.

Mr. Dewan urged the farmers to suggest an extra bread sow on every Canadian farm," he said.

Can Double Production

The raising of sheep can well be doubled, Mr. Dewan said. The good and wool, two commodities of great value to the war effort. Canadian sheep are easy to keep and sheep and poorly fenced, he said. They are also economical to feed and assist in eradiction of weeds.

The lamb crop in Britain are approximately 9,400,000 sheep, he said. Britain's needs of meat after war with a shortage of wool and there is a greater demand for meat during war. Since the war outbreak Great Britain has taken all the Australian supply and is now leasing 750,000 tons for export to Canada.

Concerning beef cattle, Mr. Dewan said that Canada's cattle will be to maintain their operations on a normal basis until requirements of the war period are known.

May Increase in Value

"No doubt beef cattle will increase somewhat in value; if, however, the cattle are fed during the course of the last war, they will not increase in value to the same extent as during the war," he said. "Poultry and eggs, I feel that the latter should be good as in connection with beef cattle."

Concerning the matter of farm products, Mr. Dewan said there is no particular need for increased production of cereal crops, but legumes such as oats and barley might well be increased in quantities as feed for livestock, he suggested.

There will be increased demand for canned fruits, he said, and it is quite likely that production will reduction will be sufficient to take care of the requirements. Such articles as canned corn, green peas, were raised at 254,000 tonnes, down 14 per cent from the previous crop. The crop of pears fell total 24,000 tons, 43 per cent higher than last year, according to the department statistician.

The plum crop is down 31.2 per cent to 53,100 bushels.

Ontario Apple Crop Now 866,000 Bbl.

Toronto, Oct. 27—(CP)—An Ontario apple crop estimated at 866,000 barrels, 24 per cent higher than last year, was forecast yesterday by the Provincial Department of Agriculture.

The report said the apples show very little scab or worm damage this year, with the exception of Essex and Kent counties, where scab has been somewhat below average, and in Northumberland and Prince Edward, been retarded in some varieties.

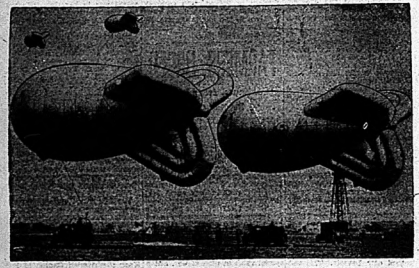
Ontario's apple crop was estimated at 723,000 bushels 27 per cent up over last year. The pear crop was raised at 254,000 bushels, down 14 per cent from the previous crop. The crops of pears fell total 24,000 tons, 43 per cent higher than last year, according to the department statistician.

The plum crop is down 31.2 per cent to 53,100 bushels.

HUGE FRENCH TANKS CRUSH BRICK WALLS AS THOUGH PAPER

This News of the Day series shows the power of the new French 70-90 ton tanks. Their battering power is terrific and far exceeds anything known in the last war. It plows through brick walls as if they were made of paper mache, and stags trees as if they were twigs. It is believed that they will be an important factor on the west front, when the fighting gets heavy. At RIGHT is a head-on view of the tank as it goes through a breach in the wall, and gives an idea of how it must appear to an unfortunate soldier in its path. On the BOTTOM RIGHT is a side view of the tank in action crashing through the wall. The TOP LEFT, the war monster is being tipped nose up as it encounters a wall, and then, BOTTOM LEFT, we see it from the rear as it crashes through. On the TOP

LONDON STRENGTHENS ITS BALLOON BARRAGE



In expectation of the long-awaited German aerial attacks on London, the balloon barrage encircling the city has been greatly strengthened. A fleet of sausage-shaped barrage balloons are pictured here at a testing ground somewhere in England, where they undergo rigid tests before taking up their positions in the defence lines. The theory of this defence aim is that enemy air raiders would be foiled by flying against steel cables suspended from the balloons but the novel defence scheme has not yet been tried under actual fire.

In British Army Now

Here is how Kermit Roosevelt, son of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, looked when he was a captain in the U.S. army during the world war. It is now learned that he has received a second lieutenancy commission in the British army, serving in the Middlesex Regiment. Recently it had been reported that Roosevelt was becoming a British citizen to accept a post in the new ministry of shipping. This still was considered possible since the army commission might prove a short-cut to citizenship.

SANDBAGS IN PARIS

Workers engaged in the serious business of building a sandbag armor for the famed obelisk in the Place de la Concorde give Parisians a new guessing game. How many bags comprise the needle's defence against German bombs?

STAYED TO HELP

Because she wanted to do something for the mother country, Mrs. E. B. Jost, of Montreal, cancelled her sailing the day before the S.S. Athenia set out on its ill-fated voyage. Mrs. Jost is shown selling Red Cross flags in London, where she has "enlisted for duration."

BRITISH NAVY RELENTLESSLY TIGHTENS BLOCKADE OF GERMANY

ENFORCING BLOCKADE OF GERMANY

A fleet of British warships England. These ships are but a few shown steaming along on patrol in England's powerful navy which duty somewhere off the coast of is relentlessly tightening the blockade of Germany.

POWER BEHIND THE GUNS

Gas-masked sailors are shown at work around the range-finder aboard the H.M.S. Furious, one of Great Britain's most formidable men-o'-war. The range-finder is the ship's mechanical mathematician, computing accurately the range of the target for the guns.

In modern warfare there are range-finders that almost think. They calculate the height of an enemy plane, the direction in which it is flying and just where it will be at a given time. This information it electrically transmits to the guns, enabling crews to aim them with deadly accuracy.

NO MORE OF THIS FOR A WHILE

This picture was taken during the last tour the Australian cricket team made of England, and shows Wally Hammond, England's leading batsman over the past few years, hitting out at the Oval. Like many other athletes in the Old Land, there'll be no more of this for Wally-until some business on the continent has been taken care of, the cricket star having recently joined the Royal Flying Corps, a spot in the service apparently favored by athletes. In it also are Leonard Crawley, amateur golfer, and Tommy Farr, Eddie Phillips and Len Harvey, boxers.

PREPARING FOR "POWDER BOWL" GAME

Something different in football dressing room scenes is this one from Los Angeles, where a couple of girls' teams played a "Powder Bowl" game, thus adding another to the long list of bowl games already established across the line. Instead of liniament, tape and bandages, preparations are made with combs, rouges and lipsticks. The girls use running shoes, a small ball, and play 15-minute quarters. College or pro football circles are not yet reported to be perturbed about the inroads the gals may make in the sport.

And She Actually Pays for This Privilege

Unsung heroines of the war are the girls of the Mechanized Transport Training Corps in England. The girls pay half a guinea (approximately $2.50) membership dues and buy their own uniforms. Their job is to drive ambulances. They work in 24-hour shifts, during which they study first aid, blackout driving and repairing their own vehicles. This gal is just concluding one of those "get on and get under" jobs on the rear end of an automobile.

AUTOGRAPH FOR A BRIMSEK FAN

'FASHION'S DECREE!'

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Important

By STANLEY CORDELL

I found my two friends of Dexter, Sam Cook and old man Blackstone, seated on the verandah of the Cornock hotel, and sat down beside them. Both are old men, the latter being owner and proprietor of the prosperous Dexter department store, a man of importance and influence in the community, respected and admired by the local citizenry, a pleasant man to meet and talk with. He and Sam Cook are boyhood friends, and Sam is a teller of yarns worth repeating. He was saying:

"Blackie and I were talking over old times. I was reminding him of Joel Butler. Some men, you know, can't stand importance any more than others can stand wealth. It was so with Joel Butler. Joel came here forty years ago and Dexter wasn't much more than a huddle of log houses. But the settlers were an ambitious lot. They had great dreams for the town's future and worked hard to get folks to come here to live.

"There was no store then, that yet none have the swagger house owned by the Brown Lumber company. And Butler, with an eye toward the future, invested his capital in a general store, carrying everything from ladies' hatpins to spare plow handles.

"Folks were delighted. They looked upon Joel's establishment as the first step toward a prosperous and flourishing Dexter. The store was patronized heavily, even by the lumber company folks. And after a while Joel began to assume an important place in the community, secretly this was what the storekeeper craved. He possessed a burning ambition to attain distinction, to have folks look up to and respect him, and, five years later, when Dexter's population had almost doubled itself he was elected mayor by a unanimous vote. It tickled him silly. He set up an office in the rear of his store, which by now had become twice the size of its original set-up, and conducted the town's business with an unrestrained hand.

"Things might have continued to progress fine if Joel's importance hadn't gone to his head. The timber company had closed its store, being willing enough to give Joel a clear field, and presently he came to realize that he was the town's sole and only means of providing food and clothing and supplies. They either had to buy from him, or travel up to Bartlett, which was quite a journey in those days.

"With the realization of this knowledge, Joel came to feel more important than ever. And he adopted the one available means of demonstrating his importance to the folks to Dexter. Whenever any one wished to consult him on matters of business or otherwise, he'd make an appointment to have them call at his office. And then when a clerk would announce that Mr. so and so was outside waiting to see him, Joel would look up important-ly and say: 'Tell him to wait. I'm busy just now.' Or: 'Tell him to come back later, I'm in conference.' The effect was most pleasant and satisfying to Joel. Whether or not he was busy, his orders were always the same. And nine times out of ten the visitors would grow impatient and nervous and become quite impressed with the store owner.

"However, folks began to tire of this after a time, and there was many talk of electing Joel mayor. But it never amounted to anything. Joel owned the store, and people depended on the store and the prices its owner. Moreover, Joel had by now acquired quite a deal of money and owned or had mortgages on a good deal of the town's property.

"Along about this time a family by the name of Swell moved to Dexter to live, and young Bob Bartwell opened a grocery store across the street from Joel's establishment. Bartwell was a likable chap, and folks began to patronize him.

"Joel held the competition in contempt. In the first place he could see at least half the townsfolk go to buy from him because they owned him money. And in the next place, he knew that Bartwell didn't have any capital to speak of and he could cut prices to such an extent as to force the young man out of business. Joel knew that sooner or later Bartwell would come to him for aid.

"It was also about this time that the railroad decided that Dexter deserved a fast train running down from Bartlett. And with this news Joel Butler discovered that much of the prosperity right of way would pass directly through some of his property. This meant, of course, that the railroad officials would eventually have to come to him to dicker.

"The anticipation of this conference pleased Joel more than a little. He grew more important than ever, and developed an aloofness and superiority toward Dexter folks that was disgusting. Customers and men and business associates cooled their heels longer than ever outside his office, waiting to be admitted. Inside, feeling important.

"And then one day, while Joel was sitting in his office going nothing much but thinking up more schemes to impress folks, a clerk stepped inside and announced that a representative of the railroad was out in the store and wanted to see Joel Butler. Joel leaped. At last it had come! In that moment he was to have the pleasure of telling some one who really amounted to something that he was busy and couldn't be disturbed. To the dozen or more of folks would pass in and out of the store during the next half hour and see the railroad man sitting there, waiting to be admitted.

"Tell him I'm busy at the moment," said Joel, waving airily at the clerk. 'And see to it that I'm not disturbed."

The clerk nodded and went out. This was an old story to him. He felt sorry for the railroad man, who looked like a decent sort or chap.

Joel sat at his desk and swelled out his chest and lighted an expensive cigar. This was the crowning glory of his career. His great ambition had at last begun to be gratified.

"He sat there gloating for at least a half hour. Then he spread a sheaf of papers on his desk, grasped a pen in business fashion, and pressed a button. Instantly the clerk appeared at the door.

"Show Mr. Sewell in," said Joel, without looking up.

"The clerk hesitated. 'He isn't out there.

"Joel bristled. 'Isn't out there! Why, the young upstart, who does he think he is—causing me to re-arrange my morning's schedule, and then walking off like that!'

"The clerk coughed. 'The fact is,' he said, trying hard to conceal his delight, 'Mr. Sewell found he could contract his business with Mr. Bartwell across the street. He declared he couldn't wait to see you.'

"Joel leaped to his feet. 'With Bartwell! What the devil business could he have with Bartwell? What about that right of way the railroad wanted to buy from me?'

"'As far as I can learn,' said the clerk, 'this Mr. Sewell wanted to contract with one of Dexter's stores to buy supplies for their construction gangs. When he found you were too busy to talk, he signed up with Bartwell. Moreover, Bartwell showed Sewell where he would be to the railroad company's benefit to run their right of way through his land instead of yours.'

Sam Cross paused and grinned at old man Blackstone. And I asked: "What happened to Joel? He must have felt pretty unimportant for a change."

"Joel had sense," Sam said. "Goodsense. He came to realize all of a sudden that the most important folks in the world are the friendliest. I guess maybe that's what saved him from going under." Sam paused and nodded toward his friend, Blackie. "This here gent, he said, "is Joel. He calls himself Joel, now. Old man Blackstone, which happens to be his middle name. No one scarce remembers Joel Butler. He wasn't important enough to be remembered."

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop for his health, and a little fat lady started to go passed and I had a idea, and I tipped my cap to her as if I thought she was somebody I knew, and she looked half surprised and half doubtful and said: O how do do, and pop quick tipped his hat too, and I said, That was Mrs. Squibbly.

A nice comfortable little person, pop said.

And we kept on going and pretty soon I tipped my cap to another lady, being a long narrow lady with a little red hat, and pop tipped his hat, and the lady said, Good afternoon, and I said to pop, That was Mrs. Yapper.

A sweet name, pop said, and I said, Her husband is Mr. Yapper.

Well, quite a coincidence, pop said.

Wich just then a beauty looking lady with great big eyes started to go passed and I stuck tipped my cap to her and pop tipped his hat and the beauty looking lady made her eyes even bigger and smiled with a lot of little white teeth, pop saying, Well, you know everybody, who was that?

Mrs. Spickilly, I said, and pop said, Yee gods that should be against the law. O well, a man by any other name would property look just as refreshing, Mrs. what for Peet sake? he said.

Mrs. Spickilly, I said, and pop said, Look here, you have you been pulling my leg?

Sir? How do you mean? I said and he said, Do you really know that lady?

I think I've seen her before, I said, and pop said, And did you know the other 3?

No sir, I said, and pop said, Well speaking of funny names, yours will be Flatface Maid if you try any more of that monkey business.

Wich I didn't.

FASHION FLASHES

LOVELY LADIES like that covered-up look for evening. A new evening frock in black taffeta with a tiny woven dot, the wide skirt in ruffled tiers and the molded bodice with a very high neck and puffed sleeves.

IT LOOKS LIKE a tunic season judging from the importance of the tunic in the latest fashions. A lovely suit has the long, tunic jacket banded at the hem with silver fox and the same fur forming a huge pouch collar. The skirt is gored for fullness.

PERT FAVORITE with many smart women is the slim frock of sheer wool or silk crepe, the bodice all-over tucked, the skirt knife-pleated. The waist section is usually plain.

TOUCH UP that simple frock with an impressive "bib" necklace of colored stone beads or of ornaments. One bib is formed of wit filagree chains, while another is fashioned entirely of burnished gilt coins.

Among the many well-known people who praise Mosby's Tonic, none is more enthusiastic about this new herbal medicine than Mr. W. S. Hunter, of 140 Center St., Trenton, Ont. Mr. Hunter is an Electrical Engineer, What he has to say about Mosby's Tonic is truly worth Reading. His statement follows:

Stomach Gas Distressing

Short Of Breath Pains

"For a long time I was a victim of Upset Stomach," said Mr. Hunter. "Gas pains followed every meal I ate, and I want to tell you that those pains were certainly distressing. I had no appetite to speak of, and I often went to bed at night mornings when I got up I couldn't eat a thing. I had no rest, and no sleep to sleep right. I FELT TIRED AND WORN OUT BEFORE THE DAY BEGAN. My bowels constipated that I was badly constipated that I was always taking laxatives.

"Well, that's the condition I was in when I started taking Mosby's Tonic. I was never get any benefit. I read about it and decided to give it a trial, and I am very glad I did, for this Tonic has done wonders for me. It cleared the gas from my stomach and relieved the pains in my chest almost properly and I can sleep fine. I can eat a hearty meal now, and I get up next morning feeling fine. I have told many about this medicine but could never do better than praise it. THANK. I can't praise Mosby's Tonic enough. It is the best I've ever used, and I gladly give you my name and address if you want me to. This I did, for I am willing to help others to find relief."

Lead French to Suspect.

The sudden rigid control of German communications with Belgium and the Netherlands also led the French to suspect a big drive to push was imminent.

(Press dispatches along the Netherlands-German border reported rumors of noticeable troop concentrations at that end of the westwall. Although German fortifications opposite the Netherlands town of Limburg still are being constructed, with forts and pill-boxes dispatched at picturesque village huts, the Netherlands witnesses said they noticed clearly an many marching men and troops in automobiles coming up to the front.)

The French have estimated Germany has 1,500,000 men now engaged in front-line or supporting positions. French reports also said large numbers of bombers and fighting planes were being brought up to airdromes.

CIVIC ELECTIONS

Mr. Cross said the decision will not apply until 1941 to municipalities where the two-year law is in operation and the terms of mayor and council still have a year to run.

Reaction Divided

Municipal reaction to Mr. Hepburn's announcement was divided. Generally, it was felt there could be little objection to a term of two instead of one customary one-year term, but the plan to elect representatives for the duration of the war was considered, in some cases, to be too strong.

The opportunity to save election expenses—$68,000 annually in the case of Toronto—was generally welcomed. Many municipal officials said they believed the action justifiable on the basis of economy.

Guelph's veteran city clerk, Herbert Leedy, said he was "astounded" to challenge the Premier's authority to introduce the legislation. Alderman Harry Mahoney, former mayor of Guelph, said it was up to the municipalities to decide such an issue.

Mahoney declared that "legislatures and governing bodies as a whole are inclined to take powers and privileges away from us. An expression of opinion from the people from time to time is a good thing for any municipality."

Similar legislation to that proposed by the Premier was passed in Britain during the last war and is again before the British House of Commons, Mr. Cross declared.

The Municipal Affairs Minister said necessary legislation is being prepared and will be introduced at the next session of the Ontario legislature.

U. S. AMBASSADOR

The Soviet announcement last night that the ship had been ordered out of Murmansk after inspection of her cargo did not specify whether she was in convoy or to take crew of 18 or her American crew.

Whether she still carried her cargo of tractors, grain and other shipments consigned to British liberties was in doubt. (The Danish vessel was released as one of the ships said the cargo first had been taken off.)

No informed quarters here it was said the City of Flint flew the United States flag as she sailed north into the Arctic ocean—a denial of German reports the Swastika flew from her staff.

May Be Flying Own Colors

(The 4,963-ton ship might be flying her own colors and still be in control of the prize crew put on board when it was taken by raider captured her last week, naval circles said.)

The Soviet army newspaper Red Star charged that British, French, Polish and French Imperialists to convert the war in Western Europe into a world war by extending the active support on the part of reactionary circles in the United States."

"Attempts to silence the Communist Party of the United States and arrest of its General Secretary, Comrade Browder, in direct defiance of the policies and intention of American reactionaries are," the Army Journal said.

Berlin, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Capture of the steamer of the United States Steamship City of Flint assumed growing importance as a Nazi coup today as a possible precedent in future seizures of sea warfare against Great Britain.

Germans generally contended the prize patrol which boarded the American freighter was within its rights and it was predicted the vessel and her cargo soon would be in a German harbor as a prize of war.

Germans Boast of Ability

German naval commanders boasted they would have no trouble conveying her from Murmansk down the North Sea and through the British blockade to Hamburg where a prize court would sit on the many complicated questions raised by her capture.

Informed sources professed to consider the voyage from Murmansk relatively easy in this season of fogs and poor visibility.

A spokesman of the United States Embassy here said last night that questions involving international law in the City of Flint fame and ultimate disposition of the vessel still were "way up in the air."

U. S. Argument Disputed

The authoritative commentary service, Dienst Aus Deutchland, asserted what it called a wholly unrelated argument in the United States that it was illegal to consider the freighter because less than half of her cargo was contraband under either the British or German conception.

"Apart from the effect of blockade warfare, it said, was that a vessel carrying contraband, however small the quantity, might be brought in as a prize and that it was up to a prize court to determine what was to be done about the non-contraband portion of the cargo and the ship.

The commentary pointed, meanwhile, that the German command contemplated an offensive in the west, that it would be launched soon and that it would be aimed chiefly against Great Britain.

Livelier Action

Today's high command communique reported "livelier artillery activity at several points on the northern flank of the western front between the Moselle River and the Warndt forest. Elsewhere there were only local patrol actions and "isolated annoyance fire," the communique said.

Adolf Hitler's "Directive" Reobwohter, after praising what it called systematic Russian-German co-operation, said an agreement which the Soviet will supply foodder and grain to Germany would silence those who "doubted the correctness and the willingness of the German and Soviet Government for productive co-operation."

The newspaper claimed that "Russian grain, together with imports from Rumania, pyrrmits us

It was suggested in some quarters that Russia soon might ship grain to another Poland of Turkey, placing herself in control of the Dardanelles.

Operator's Story of Seizure

Bergen, Norway, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Capt. Erik Nicholson, wireless operator of the United States freighter City of Flint, captured today by the ship's German prize crew took her through ice-strewn waters rich in herring and told in the engine room while they flew the Danish flag "all" [illegible]

McConnochie, a Scot, gave the German captors the slip when they stopped at Tromsoe, Norway, to unload supplies and coal, sailing the Stonegate, sunk by the raider that sank the City of Flint, reaching the British safkes, he managed to get ashore undetected and come to Bergen by train.

His story to the Bergen newspaper Aftenbladet was that he first here said the City of Flint sighted the foreign vessel before British patrols which at first was assumed to be British or French but proved to be the German raider auxiliary Widderlig Deutchland.

The raider halted the freighter, placed the survivors of the torpedoed British ship aboard and then proceeded with the cargo, finding "a considerable quantity of oil".

Regarding the capture, the German commander said he would not sink the ship, McConnochie reported, but dispatched eighteen Germans on board to take possession.

Nothing Wrong With Engines

The operator, first man to pick up the distress signals coming from oil-fated Montreal-bound liner Athenia said the city of Flint intercepted he gun a slow, "unpleasant" trip northward through "terribly cold" waters.

McConnochie said it was untrue the German prize crew had trouble with the engines or navigation facilities of the City of Flint.

McConnochie and a sealer shortage developed that forced the freighter to put in at Tromsoe. There the British survivors were permitted to land. The wireless operator said that because of his manner of speech he was able to mix with them and land successfully.

LITHUANIANS NOW OCCUPYING WILNO

Troops Cross Frontier at Eight Points to Take Over Area Given by Moscow

Kaunas, Oct. 27.—(CP—Havas)—Lithuanian troops today crossed the frontier at eight points to begin occupation of the Wilna territory taken by Russia from Poland and given to this country by Moscow.

General Stasys Rastikis, commander-in-chief of the Lithuanian army who was one of the delegation which negotiated the Russo-Lithuanian mutual assistance pact at Moscow, watched his troops cross the border at Sirvantai.

Wilno, one-time capital of Lithuania, was seized by Polish troops in 1920.

Buttermakers From District Hold Banquet at Stirling

Rev. James E. Beckel, Secretary of Bay of Quinte Conference is Principal Speaker

PRIZES AWARDED

Stirling, Oct. 27— (Special)—Buttermakers from Stirling, Frankford and many others interested in the buttermaking branch of dairying from all parts of the Quinte and Provincial District assembled in the Stirling Community Service building for their tenth annual banquet and social evening. A sumptuous chicken dinner was prepared and served under the direction of the Stirling branch of the Women's Institute and the original decorative scheme added to the appearance of the long banquet tables.

When all had assembled in the dining hall the toast to the King was proposed by Toastmaster James Ross and Dr. L. L. Cohen returned thanks. During the dinner hour lively Community singing was enjoyed under the leadership of Earl Duncan with Mrs. H. Moore, pianist, at the piano. The first speaker on the program was President F. B. Lee who heartily welcomed the visitors and members on behalf of the organization Mr. Maurice Bell contributed two excellent humorous solos and the Toastmaster then called upon Reeve W. C. West of the Village of Stirling to introduce the speaker of the evening.

Rev. James E. Beckel

The guest speaker of the evening was Rev. James E. Beckel, Secretary of the Bay of Quinte United Church Circuit and Secretary of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada. Speaking on the subject of "Jokes and Jokers in Religion" Mr. Beckel created a great deal of merriment with his sparkling and original humour.

To be the pivot of a rollicking time by the speaker involved in the speaker for in so doing one provides laughter and happiness for others. Sometimes many of us find it difficult to stand up under a continued bombardment of jokes and humour in our direction simply because we fail to realize that in many cases the joke seems to be built into the realm of popularity rather than being the butt of ridicule. A proper sense of humour for the purpose of creating laughter is necessary and if we cause our fellowmen to smile we have accomplished something. The Illustrious Rev. Mr. Beckel related several joke that had occurred during his ministry. The humorous manner in which he repeated the stories and joined in the laughter indicated a proper sense of humour. "Much of the ill feeling between men is brought about because one lacks sufficient humor to accept or forget the jokes as their are spoken. Actually it is a privilege to be singled out from the crowd as one who can by can take. Much is to be gained from life if we cultivate a little upon fun and merriment and school ourselves to take a joke without ill-will. Rev. Mr. Beckel's speech was most interesting and thoroughly enjoyed particularly his humorous stories.

Musical Program

Other musical numbers were presented by Fred Christopher, singer of several solos and Earl Duncan with his numbers were well received. Mr. Duncan favored on the programme. Dialect stories and comedy sketch were the contributions contributed by Art. Jamieson in various points in the programme. At this time the Provincial Messengers of the entire district were ask. ed to stand and were introduced by the gathering Mr. and Mrs. Mackenzie Robertson of Belleville.

C. G. L. Gibson.

The next speaker as Dr. G. L. Gibson, superintendent of Eastern Ontario Dairy School at Kemptville. Dr. Gibson expressed keen pleasure in being able to attend the function and in his brief address described the new Eastern Ontario Dairy School that is now under construction. This new dairy school and experimental building will be one of the most modern on the continent when completed and will serve the purpose of adding science to the industry in Eastern and Western Ontario.

60 BODIES FOUND IN GERMAN SUB

Theory Submarine Was Sunk by Depth or Aerial Bombs and Drifted Aground

Dover, England, Oct. 27—(CP)—Between 50 and 60 bodies were reported today to have been found by divers exploring a shattered German submarine washed up yesterday on the Goodwin Sands.

The Goodwin Sands are more than five miles out from the Kent coast between the mouths of Dover water to the Dodns Roadstead. Ships have long feared them as a coast Wednesday.

One theory was that the submarine was sunk either by depth charges or aerial bombs and drifted ashore.

A German submarine was stuck on the Sands almost a month ago, tangled in nets in 1917. Half of the crew were saved.

Divers worked from a salvage vessel beside the submarine. Part of the conning tower and periscope were visible from shore with the aid of glasses.

The submarine was lying on a sandbank in the stretch of the Thallan steamship Val Sabice and the United States ship Siberia, lost in 1918 during a storm.

Goodwin sands are the storm-tossed graveyard of a once-fertile island. Known as Lomean, the isle was given by Canute, Danish king of England was a Saxon land.

Estate Confiscated

William the Conqueror, confiscated the island and gave it to the Abbey of St. Augustine at Canterbury.

Tradition holds that funds for maintenance of the sea wall at Dover were diverted by the abbey to build the steeple of Tenterden church, in the town from which that name.

As a result, the island was swept awayby a storm in 1099 and never since has permanent dwellings have been the bane of mariners. An old maxim of the countryside says: "Tenterden steeple was the cause of Goodwin sands."

Almost Total Eclipse Of Moon Starts at 10:42 P. M. Tonight

There will be "blood on the moon" tonight. The old "moper" which has been the delight and the despair of writers for centuries will go warmished, and cover his silvery habiliments in the deepest red in the first heavenly "blackout" since that idea found favor with European writers of the middle ages.

But the "blackout" will not be black but red, strange to say and it will not be complete. Due to presence of the atmosphere, astronomy say that the earth's atmosphere will prevent complete loss of light rays from the sun in such a way that the moon will still get a good benefit of the rays. The moon will still be visible although of a bloodred color.

The earth will start to place itself between the sun and the moon at 10:42 tonight and from 11.54 p.m. until 3.18 Saturday morning the eclipse will be nearly complete. It ends at 4.31.

According to astronomers, the old Man in the Moon will need his fur coat, for the temperature of the moon will decline sharply during the eclipse, with wide fluctuations of temperature being due to the lack of atmosphere around the moon. Astronomers say that the earth acts as a blanket and keeps the heat in, when the sun's rays are not shining on it.

Canning Co. Holds Dance.

The Benson Canning Co. at Cherry Valley held a dance at Mill Pond Hall Wednesday evening to mark the closing of the season. A large crowd of growers and employees was present and refreshments were served at midnight.

60,000 Cases of Tomatoes Canned.

This factory canned 56,000 cases of tomatoes this year. Benson, proprietor, stated. Night and day shifts have been operating this year in order to get 20,000 cases ready for export. The absence of early frosts enabled a larger pack than expected. With a keen demand for canned goods, canners have found no difficulty in disposing of the season's pack and next year's acreage contracts for canning crops will be required to produce a sufficient amount of canning products.

GERMAN AIRCRAFT FORCED DOWN IN SCOTLAND

Scottish Countryfolk Witness Rare Display Of Aerial Acrobatics

When German Plane Grounded Two Members of Crew Found Dead and One Seriously Injured

PILOT CAPTURED

German Craft Tried in Vain to Elude Capture and After Crash Pilot Tried to Take Machine Into Air

London, Oct. 28—(CP)—A German warplane once more tried to survey the Firth of Forth area in Scotland today but another disaster ended the victim of British fighter craft.

Immediately the Nazi plane was sighted, British defending ships went aloft to engage it. Eventually the enemy reconnaissance plane was brought down near Dalkeith but not before hundreds of Scottish countryfolk had witnessed a rare display of aerial acrobatics.

Twisting, turning, now shooting upwards, then roaring earthwards the German plane tried in vain to elude the pursuers. Then it crashed to earth, but the pilot still attempted to control his machine landing across rough ground in an effort to rise again. He failed.

The air ministry announced that two members of the crew of the German plane were found to be dead and one wounded. The pilot was uninjured. He was taken prisoner and sent to Edinburgh.

Official announcement

An air ministry announcement said: "A German aircraft which was attempting to carry out reconnaissances was forced down by our fighters this morning east of Dalkeith. A further bulletin will be issued later."

An air raid alarm in the Firth of Forth harbor had an hour preceded the announcement.

Gunfire sent them there before the warning and civilians saw what looked like a bi-plane enemy plane emerging from high clouds. No bombs were dropped in populated centres.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Storms on the sun! These are called sun spots, and were first observed with a telescope by Galileo in 1610. They resemble the earth storms in temperate zone storms. Far below the sun's surface great whirling masses of gas are ascending and counter-ascending and expanding and cooling. These processes cause them to look darker than the adjacent surface. These whirling masses of gas turn, like the earth storms, in a counter-clockwise direction in the sun's northern hemisphere and clockwise in the southern. At times of their maximum number they cause magnetic storms on the earth, which interfere with the magnetic needle and with telegraphy, and induce brilliant displays of the northern lights or aurora borealis.

A. E. MACLEAN LIBERAL FOR PRINCE, DIES

Fifteen Days Ago Flown From Boston to be in His Native Province

A FUR RANCHER

Summerside, P. E. Oct. 28—(CP)—A. E. MacLean 71-year-old Liberal Member of the House of Commons for Prince, died today.

Fifteen days ago Mr. MacLean was flown home in a chartered airplane from Boston, where he had been critically ill in hospital for weeks.

He had been a Member of the House of Commons for the last 14 years. Before that, he had been a Member of the Prince Edward Island Legislature.

Mr. MacLean was one of the leading shippers and buyers of silver fox furs in Prince Edward Island and received many cups and awards at Maritime exhibitions.

He was born at Strathrae Farm on May 8, 1868, and received his early education in the public schools of Prince Edward Island. He later attended Nova Scotia Agricultural College at Truro, N.S. and subsequently went into dairy farming.

A Fur Rancher

In 1913 he took up fur ranching near Summerside, P.E.I., and organized the firm of Maclean Silver Black Fox Company, he later became president of the Prince Edward Island Silver Fox Furs Limited, with head offices in Summerside.

He was first elected to the Provincial Legislature in 1919, when he defeated Dr. Simpson in the 3rd District of Prince. In 1921 he became Liberal candidate for Prince district, and was returned at every subsequent Federal election. He won two Provincial and five Federal elections suffering defeat only in 1930 when the Conservative landslide of 1912. This summer he was renominated for the Prince district Liberal candidacy.

BRITISH EMPIRE AND FRANCE ON 'CRUSADE' TO CHECK NAZI 'DOCTRINE OF FORCE' SAYS CANADIAN PREMIER

Ottawa, Oct. 28 (CP)—The Nazi "doctrine of force" must be checked that the principles of the British empire and France are at present, according to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, a crusade for freedom.

Speaking to the Canadian people over the Canadian broadcast network Mr. Mackenzie King last night gave the first of two addresses planned to cover a national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. The second address on war issues will be delivered Tuesday night.

"The time has come when, to save our Christian civilization, we must be prepared to lay down our lives for its preservation," the Prime Minister declared.

"The people men who are enlisting in our forces today to serve on land, on the sea and in the air are the first and foremost defenders of the faith. They are the men who have set forth to battle in the past, they are enlisting freely for the service of king and country, but there is an even greater mission.

Freedom of Mind and Soul

"It is the preservation, for our own and future generations, of freedom begotten of persecutions, martyrdoms, and centuries of struggle. It is the preservation not alone of national and of personal freedom, but of freedom also of the mind and of the soul."

The Nazi doctrine of force, should it prevail would mean "an end to Christian civilization," Mr. Mackenzie King warned. "It will prevail unless men are prepared to sacrifice their lives in opposing it.

"That is why the present war is for the allied forces a crusade," he added.

The prime minister declared his "positive hatred of war", and described his efforts to preserve peace. "In season and out, in our own parliament, at imperial conferences in London, at the League of Nations in Geneva, in all our relations with countries abroad, I have said, I have sought to shape and to expound the policies of our country so as to remove the causes of conflicting interests in war and, if possible, to avert war itself.

Nevertheless, he said, the question today was that "should Nazism triumph in Europe, what will become of freedom in other quarters of the globe?"

Heavy Responsibility.

The responsibility of a leader of the government at this period was "truly great," the premier said. But today I am prepared to continue to lead a government charged with the awful responsibility of prosecuting a war it is because, contrary to every hope and wish I have ever entertained, I have been compelled to believe that only by the destruction of Nazism and the resistance of Nazi aggression can there be assured of the British Commonwealth hope to continue to enjoy the liberties which are their heritage under the Crown, and the world itself be spared the degradation of a new and terrible age of barbarism.

"I have no doubt in my conviction has, I believe, been more or less parallel in the minds of most of the men who, in this house, have, as Earl Johnstone of St. Regis Falls, Mrs. Ross of Bow River, Hugh Guthrie, Darwin and Royal Phillips of Norwich, N. V. Driver of the car was Phillips, son of the the woman killed.

Between Nine and Ten Men on Ground to Put One Man in Air

With the Royal Air Force in France, Oct. 27 (AP)—(Delayed—passed by field censor)—The Royal Air Force, newest of Great Britain's fighting services, is spending most of its time in France on the work, day by day, of photographing enemy defences and communication lines.

Somewhere in France, a secret where, aided by every modern invention to overcome the ancient enemies of mud and weather, a squadron of the R.A.F. is preparing a photographic study with the Germans as "sitters".

Here is how everything connected with the job. It takes the pictures, develops them and sends them to general headquarters or to French artillery units which use the photographs.

CO-OPERATION ENCOURAGING

Willingness of Province to Assist Small Profiteering is Praised

Ottawa, Oct. 28 (CP)—Willingness of provincial authorities to cooperate with the Dominion government in enforcement of anti-profiteering regulations under the War-time Prices and Trade Board is "inspiring and encouraging," Hon. Norman McLarty said last night at the close of a two-day conference with provincial attorneys-general and the Deputies.

"Not only as regards strengthening of our regulations but also in the matter of prosecuting unscrupulous or alleged offenders, the representatives of the provinces made important contributions and offered the fullest co-operation," said the Minister.

"From now on, particularly as regards investigation and prosecution of alleged offences, the board stands to benefit by the assistance and the special authorities from coast to coast."

U.S. Atlantic Fleet To Be Strengthened

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—Proposals to strengthen the United States navy's Atlantic squadron were shaping up today among members of the Naval Committee of the House of Representatives.

The present Atlantic squadron consists chiefly of destroyers, although it includes three old battleships and cruisers.

"Our naval policy has been predicated on assistance of the British navy if trouble developed in the Atlantic" said Representative Morrison (Democrat, Louisiana), "but the current situation shows we can no longer rely on that plan in an emergency. Britain has her hands full in the North Sea."

There was talk in authoritative quarters that the navy might obtain a year's "holiday" on building of battleships and concentrate on fast cruisers and destroyers.

The crowded condition of shipyards was given as the primary reason. The keels of four new battleships have been laid and four others have been ordered.

PREDICT HOUSE WILL REPEAL WITHIN WEEK

U. S. Gov't. Leader Says Action Will Quickly Clear Way for Sale to Belligerents

30 MAJORITY SEEN

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—Unofficial Administration leaders predicted that Congress would clear the way for arms sales to belligerent nations and go home by next week-end.

Despite forecast prompt passage by the House of Representatives of the Neutrality Act revision, the measure Senate approved by a vote of 63 to 30 last night still must run the gauntlet of debate.

The member of the House leadership said a careful count of noses indicated that repeal of the arms embargo—key provision of administration legislation—on both sides of the controversy would be approved by Great Britain and France—would be upheld by a majority of at least thirty votes.

Besides carrying out President Roosevelt's recommendation that the arms embargo be eliminated, the Senate measure would impose restrictions on United States credits, shipping and travel to belligerent countries.

Without Precedent

The final decision was taken before galleries packed to the walls, was followed by a brief ceremony without precedent.

Senator Tom Connally (Dem., Texas) proposed one stating the United States "desires to maintain its neutrality and that in imposing re-

The fire at the scene of the accident was extinguished by Fire Chief Johnstone of St. Regis Falls, Mrs. Ross, Hugh Guthrie, Mr. Bridges, Darwin and Royal Phillips of Norwich, N. V. Driver of the car was Phillips, son of the the woman killed.

COUPLE DROWN IN CAR PLUNGE AT WASAGA

Body of Former Gertrude Small Recovered but Body of Husband, Warren Bell, Still Missing

SEARCH CONTINUES

Wasaga Beach, Ont., Oct. 28 (CP)—Police today sought the body of a Midland electrician whose bride of a few days and sister of a local missing Toronto theatrical magnate disappeared in the waters of the Nottawasaga River.

Body of 56-year-old Gertrude Small was found this yesterday beyond the mouth of the river in Georgian Bay. She was the sister of Ambrose J. Small, whose strange disappearance has provided a 20-year-old mystery for police of Toronto and the American continent.

Body of her husband, 26-year-old president of Midland, was Warren Bell whose automobile was found submerged at the mouth of the river. Near the woman's body was found a coat identified as Bells and containing a marriage certificate taken out by the couple a week ago at Barrie.

Boy Have Taken Wrong Road

Police believe the car plunged into the river when the couple, for whom the driver took a wrong road on the way to Midland from Barrie where the marriage took place. Steve A. Grant of Stayner said that marriage performed by Rev. A. W. Downer, Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Dufferin-Simcoe, witnessed by two residents of Midland.

Relatives of Mrs. Bell was found by two duck hunters, Gordon McIlroy and Alex Ross, running in a sandbar 40 feet off shore. The men waded out in hip boots to tow the body ashore.

Coroner Dr. Duncan Corcoran of Elmbrook said today he was awaiting instructions from Dr. W. A. Young, Provincial Police surgeon to when to proceed with an autopsy on the body.

Well Known in Midland

Mrs. Bell was a bride who was well known in Midland, 20 miles north of here, where she went last year to teach. She recuperated from an operation. Recently she rented a large home and was having it remodelled. Earlier she lived in another home and at the Georgia Hotel.

VISCOUNT GORT VISITS FRONT

Everything "Fairfect" Says Highland Sergeant After Inspection Tour

With the British Expeditionary Forces Somewhere in France, Oct. 28—(CP)—Everything was "fairfect" when Viscount Gort, Commander-in-Chief of field forces, inspected a battalion of the Highland Scot regiment in the British zone on the western front.

"Scotland Day" when Lord Gort made his tour yesterday arrival at the headquarters of the first corps at 11.30 a.m. It was a bright and crisp day, and accompanied by his Chief of Staff, Lieut.-General Pownall, and Aide-de-Camp, into the building which General Sir John Dill has used as his corps headquarters.

Meanwhile, in a village in the forward area of the British zone, the Highlanders were awaiting the arrival of their commander-in-Chief. We watched working parties of kilted men, picks and spades on their shoulders, swinging along the main street, returning to their billets for their midday hot dinner.

CREEAS IN ENGLAND

Ottawa, Oct. 28 (CP)—Hon. T. A. Crerar, Federal Minister of Mines and Resources, and a party of government officials have arrived safely by in England for the imperial War Consultations, the prime minister's office announced today.

Mr. Crerar is the Dominion government's cabinet representative at the conference called by the British government to assure the most effective co-ordination of the Empire's war effort.

AMERICAN CREW BELIEVED ON CITY OF FLINT

Being Taken to German Port by Prize Crew and Court Will Make Disposition of Cargo

SAILED THURSDAY

Berlin, Oct. 28 (CP)—News reached Berlin today that all was well aboard the United States freighter City of Flint en route to a German port from Murmansk, Russia.

Aboard the, 8,000 ton vessel, one of the American crew of 41 and the prize crew put in command last week when the German pocket battleship Deutschland captured her.

If she gets to a German harbor, a prize court will pass on the question of whether the ship and her cargo of timber are forfeit to the German carrier and decide as to disposition of the ship and cargo.

The City of Flint sailed under Russian orders Thursday night to pick up a cargo of timber in the

BY-ELECTIONS IN RIDINGS

Two Montreal Vacancies to be Filled as Well as Those of Kent and Lambton

Ottawa, Oct. 28 (CP)—The number of Federal by-elections to be held next Monday, Thursday night when Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced that writs would be issued for voting in two Montreal vacancies on that date. They are St. Ilans and Jacques Cartier.

Yesterday the Prime Minister announced by-elections would be held Dec. 18 in Kent County, Ont., and Lambton.

All four seats were held by Liberals when the House last met.

The vacancy in St. James was caused by death of Hon. Fernand Rinfret, Secretary of State, and in Jacques Cartier by death of J. L. Perrette.

It was rumoured Finance Minister Dunning might run in a candidate in one of the Montreal ridings, probably St. James, but he never took the finance portfolio early in September after resignation of Charles Dunning, recuperating.

Mr. Ralston has been practising law in Montreal since 1925. Prior to the 1935 general election he resigned as the Nova Scotia constituency of Shelburne-Yarmouth. He did not offer for re-election.

SINGLE PRIVILEGE SOUGHT BY FASCISM, TO BUILD AND GO FORWARD' - IL DUCE

Non - Military Accomplishments Stressed in Italian Ceremonies to Mark 17th Anniversary of Fascist March on Rome

HOMES FOR MINERS

100 Farms in Apulia Area of Italy Created by Cutting up Large Estates

Rome, Oct. 28—(AP)— Premier Mussolini, speaking on the 17th anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome, told a throng crowded today that Fascism asked only the single privilege of building and going forward."

The anniversary of the ever more glorious Blackshirt Revolution finds us as compact and united as from the Alps to the Indian Ocean," said Il Duce, speaking from the balcony of his office.

Asserting that the harsh bloody era of revolution, Fascism demands for itself only a single privilege, that of building and going forward always and in all directions with the people and for the people."

Launching Delayed

Launching of the 25,000-ton battleship Impero at Genoa was to have been most warlike event of the day's program, but the launching was postponed indefinitely.

At Bolzano, a new Fascist youth school for military specialists was opened but non-military accomplishments were stressed in most of the nation-wide ceremonies.

Rome itself was the scene tonight of 11,000 "colonists" gathered at Venice to be sent by air to jobs a previous batch of 30,000 in Italian Libya's desert.

Among many public works ordered opened ceremonially were the opening of electrified railway and a block of miners' homes in a mining district. Minister of agriculture Ministry also announced creation of the second group of 100 farms in the Apulia area of Italy—farms created by cutting up large estates.

R.C.A.F. PLANE FORCED DOWN

One Civilian Seriously Injured When Struck by Wing of Aircraft

Hamilton, Oct. 28 (CP)—A Royal Canadian Air Force plane made a forced landing in a field on upper James street shortly before eleven o'clock this morning and one man was seriously injured when struck by a wing of the aircraft. The pilot escaped injury.

The injured man was Pte. Jack Hayes of Caledonia, who suffered chest injuries and other hurts. Rushed to the general hospital, his condition is reported as serious.

The pilot of the plane, whose name was not disclosed by officers present, escaped without injury.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Evidence accumulates that Germany's Great war machine is set for action on the western front and is ready to go at a word from Adolf Hitler. Just why that word has been delayed so long is not clear, but the delay has not alter the fact that men, materials and positions are organized for offensive warfare on a large scale.

Here are a few facts on the German position gleaned from recent reports:

The numerical strength of the force behind Germany's western borders is estimated at 1,500,000.

For several weeks quantities of poison gas went forward daily to the western front military depots.

Artillery and tanks have been brought forward to suitable jumping-off positions.

Airdromes close to the front are filled with fighting bombing and reconnaissance aircraft.

A word from Berlin could start this attacking machine moving ahead on the British-French lines between the Moselle and the Rhine rivers, in the Netherlands or Belgium in an attempt to outflank the Allied land forces.

While the Allied forces await a move from the enemy on land the seizure of the City of Flint, owned by a United States Maritime Commission, threatens to develop into a first class diplomatic incident involving the United States, Germany and Russia. German capture of the ship took it to the Russian port of Murmansk and were apparently permitted by the Russian authorities to take it away again. The State Department at Washington makes no secret of its annoyance.

Whatever the outcome of the incident may be it will probably provide a test of Russia's professed neutrality on the one hand and the patience of the United States on the other.

34 LIVES LOST IN MINE BLAST

Explosion Occurs in Scottish Coal Mine Near Dunfermline

Dunfermline, Scotland, Oct. 28 (CP)—Thirty-four lives were lost today in an early morning explosion in the nearby Valleyfield Colliery.

It was the year's worst British mining tragedy. Twenty miners suffered minor injuries. The men were working on the night shift in the diamond section of the Fife Coal Company's works.

Ambulances, including an air raid precaution ambulance fitted as an ambulance, rushed from the surrounding district. The blackout added to rescue difficulties. Families gathered around the darkened pithead in pathetic groups.

The mine owners said that apart from the victims no others were imprisoned. The rescue was believed to be by an explosion of fire-damp. The colliery manager, Robert Aitchison, descended with the first party of rescuers and carried a canary in a cage. The bird died just as the spot where the bodies were lying, disclosing to the rescuers that they had to contend with fire-damp.

MEMBERS ENTERTAINED AT THE PARSONAGE

The sliders and their wives with the canvassing committee and their wives of Tabernacle United church, were entertained last night at the Parsonage, by Rev. D. T. and Mrs. McClinton. The committee reported a very successful canvass. Miss Florence Davis played beautifully and Mrs. E. Pote rendered two selections in her usual fine manner. The hour of parting was all too soon for such delightful and happy church officials. Next the moon hid her face in almost total eclipse.

NATIVE OF MAYNOOTH DIES AT NAPANEE, Mr.

Martin Michael Hody, well-known citizen of Cobalt and native of Maynooth was found dead in a stable at the Napanee Mine yesterday, victim of a heart attack. He had been in his usual good health earlier in the day, relatives stated.

Born in the North Hastings County village fifty-four years ago, Mr. Hody first left his native village in 1906 and with the exception of four years spent in his native village had lived there since. He had been a teamster at the Nipissing mine for nineteen years. Surviving are his widow, four sons and three daughters, also three brothers and a sister.

BATA CO. MAKES FIRST SHOE EXPORT SHIPMENT

Indicative of the speed of construction and installation of machinery, is the fact that the first shipment of shoes manufactured by the Bata Shoe Company for export, left the factory at Frankford the other day en route to Kingston, Jamaica and Port of Spain, Trinidad.

With production increasing at a rapid rate, it is expected that it will accordingly be greater, a report from the site of the company stated today.

British Empire Cheese Exhibition Scheduled Here December 4th - 5th - 6th Said To Be Best in History

Central Ont. Cheesemakers Association Members Show Keen Interest in Display

SPLENDID PROGRAM

Lieut.-Col. Sidney Lambert, Famous Padre, to be Guest Speaker at Banquet

Despite the fact that other members of the British Commonwealth of nations will not be represented due to the absence of the countries already received and those that are putting in daily, point to the forthcoming British Empire Cheese Exhibition of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association, as being one of the best in the history of the organization, according to James L. Irwin, Chief Dairy Grader of this district.

One of the main contributing factors to the success of the association during the past few years, Mr. Irwin stated, was the whole-hearted co-operation and interest taken in its activities by its membership. "At present it is said that most one hundred percent of members are fully paid up, and are displaying an interest in matters of the association, especially the forthcoming Exhibition, that signifies well for future prosperity of the organization."

The British Empire Exhibition, scheduled for Belleville on Dec. 4th, 5th, and 6th will provide a program of entertainment for members and guests in the official banquet that surpasses any of preceding exhibitions. Mr. Irwin stated. The Duncan R. Cowan Concert Party, long established favorites with patrons of the Exhibition, are returning with a brand new program. Miss Nancy Tamblyn's dancing pupils will provide tap and novelty dancing as only Betty Pupils can, while other artists include Ethan Nonas, one-man band; Magician Van-Russell, with Mrs. Wrathall, Belleville Old Girl acting as assistant and accompanist. Last but not least are the Mohawk Indians, a clever versatile group of entertainers.

Famous Padre Here

Lieut.-Colonel Sidney Lambert, beloved padre of Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, who has again answered the call of King and Country, will be one of the guest speakers. One of the most popular padres in the Canadian Corps operating in Canada, Padre Lambert will speak on the subject dear to his heart, "A Better Country."

The auditorium of the Y.M.C.A. where the festivities will be held, will be a riot of decorative color in keeping with the theme of the entire scheme. Flags of the United Empire and Canada will form the main decoration with complimentary additions to visiting organizations.

Official welcome will be extended to visiting guests by the government officials by President Grant Anderson with civic and municipal receivings voiced by His Worship Mayor Jamieson Bone of the city of Belleville and Reeve Thomas Wills, Reeve son of Hastings County.

While the banquet and street lighting will add a dash of brilliant color, it is hoped that residents of the city and particularly merchants of Front Street will decorate stores and places in honor of the visiting cheesemen.

Special prizes will be given to the merchant having the best cheese exhibit, as a token of appreciation. A prize of five dollars cash has been donated by Clifford Barsaw of this city, and this amount has been supplemented generously by members of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers Association.

W.O.W. LODGE RE-ORGANIZED

Woodmen of the World Meet With District Deputy Sovereign in Attendance

A re-organization of Belleville Camp No. 162 W.O.W. was held in the I.T.B. Hall on Oct. 26, and was largely attended. District Deputy Sov. D. Campbell, was present and opened the meeting with the presentation of several applications for membership which were received and approved. At the point the ladies of Quinte Circle W.O.W. appeared and were roundly applauded. Deputy Campbell then requested the ladies to take over the meeting and exemplify the initiation ceremonies, which they did in an admirable manner and received loud applause for the splendid manner in which they put on the Protection Degree. Following the degree work, election of officers took place when the following were duly elected and installed by Deputy Campbell, assisted by Sov. Mrs. Hines, Quinte Circle as Installatory Marshall. Officers elected are as follows:

C.C.—Sov. H. Robeson.
Ad. Lieut.—Sov. A. H. Breuin.
Banker—Sov. Frank Rushlow.
Manager—Sov. T. G. Wells.
Clerk—Sov. Adam Palmer.
Escort—Sov. D. W. Adams.
Watchman—Sov. F. A. Sparks.

Delegate to Head Camp, Sov. Adam Palmer, alternate, Sov. W. M. Leslie. Following the installation, a dainty supper was provided by the Ladies of Quinte Circle bringing to a close a really enjoyable evening. The members of the Camp are full of enthusiasm and good results will follow as a result of this re-organization meeting. The ladies of Quinte Circle are really splendid in their work, and will be of material assistance in the efforts of the newly elected officers.

WINTER MILK DELIVERY TO START WED.

No Milk Will be Delivered Before 6.30 a.m.

UNTIL MARCH 3RD

Milkless breakfasts will adorn the tables of city residents next Wednesday morning, fairmen of the city prophesied today if household-ers forget to put in an extra supply of milk on Tuesday.

For on November the first, next Wednesday, to be exact, the new milk-bylaw prohibiting the delivery of milk before six-thirty a.m. and after seven p.m. from that date until March 3rd 1940 goes into effect.

The familiar "clomp-clomp" of the faithful Dobbins that daily have hauled clattering milk-wagons through deserted city streets at the crack o' dawn will be missing. No longer will nocturnal celebrants be able to gauge the time 'o day by the soft patter of the milkman's footsteps on the front doorstep. And no longer will stealthy "all-nighters" creep through the city when fresh nourishment available for the taking.

The new bylaw provides a distinct benefit for dairy and consumer alike, in the opinion of chairman of the city stated this morning. "Housewives will not get worked up to find their milk frozen, as was the case in many instances before," he said. "The new hours are much easier on men and horses alike, and there is less danger of bottle-breakage."

He did not advocate a year-round milk delivery, however. "In the summer," he said, "the early delivery is better than the late, in that men and horses can work in the cool of the morning," and people generally rise earlier often than they do in the winter months."

The shorter hours, caused by the bylaw will not affect the wages, at least so far as his company was concerned, he said.

CORPORAL GREEN ENLISTS FOR SERVICE

Corporal John Green, who has been in charge of the Belleville detachment of the R.C.M.P. for the past eight months, received notification of active service duty in an R.C.M.P. unit being mobilized in Ottawa for overseas traffic and police duty. Today Cpl. Green received instructions to report at Dominion R.C.M.P. headquarters, Ottawa, on Monday for special training. All commissioned officers and non-commissioned officers of the "Mounties" enlisted for active overseas duty, Cpl Green will report to No. 1 Provost Company, R.C.M.P., of the Canadian Active Service Force on Monday. His departure leaves Corp. Wm. Beatty in charge of the local detachment.

AGREEMENT REACHED IN ACCIDENT CASE

Minutes of settlement in the Cornelius Post versus Paul C. Rice law action for damages entered in the present sittings of the Fall Assizes of the County of Hastings, which opened last Monday at the County Court House before the Honourable Mr. Justice Chevrier, were announced through the office of Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn today, the mutual agreement of settlement was agreed upon between counsel.

The action, which was brought on by Mr. Post as the result of injuries received on June 27th last when an automobile owned by P. C. Rice of this city, crashed into a barn dance in Thurlow Township resulting in serious injuries to the plaintiff, according to the terms of settlement the defendant, Rislow, will pay the plaintiff the sum of $2,000.00, all hospital expenses at the Belleville General Hospital, amounting to $137.50, the plaintiff's medical and physician's expenses of $70.00, the plaintiff's solicitor's expenses of $300.00 and costs incurred. W. Herrington, Napanee, appeared for the plaintiff, while Charles A. Payne, K.C., appeared for Rislow.

Fall Assizes Continue Monday

His Lordship, the Honourable Mr. Justice Chevrier, called a recess over the week end, but the Fall Assizes will continue on Monday, the petit jury for the remaining jury cases of Chorloski vs. Mulich et al having been selected yesterday permitting Sheriff O'Flynn to dismiss the remainder of the petit jury summoned for the court. The above case is a civil action for damages following an alleged assault which took place at Point Anne some months ago.

Two divorce actions and a non-jury civil action were postponed and laid over to a subsequent court.

Police Blotter

Wanted on several charges of fraud throughout the entire Belleville district, Walter Lashar, former resident of this city, was apprehended in Cobourg yesterday. Lashar is wanted for alleged fraud in the illegal traffic of motor cars and radios, Chief Alexander Kidd revealed today. The accused man is wanted by Belleville and Provincial Police, it was learned.

P.C. Wright investigated a motor car accident on Front Street late last night that resulted in damage to a fender and a puncture in a tire. Driver of the Canadian Pacific Street, was backing his motor car away from Front Street when the rear of the vehicle was in collision with a car being bound car driven by Joseph Carr, Frankford. It was Mr. Carr's vehicle that was damaged, but the latter was amicably settled between the parties concerned and no charges were deemed necessary under the circumstances.

Only seven tramients sought shelter at the police station last night as a general decrease of "knights of the road" have been in evidence this fall, police stated today.

Air Force—4000 first-line planes.
4000 reserve planes.
8000 total planes.
Wartime production rate, 1500 a month.

Resources

Germany has virtually no gold (her cover on note circulation is but 1.59 per cent), and lacks iron, oil and rubber, which are vital for quick replacement of planes tanks and artillery lost in war. Loss of the Lorraine iron fields to France in 1919 was a blow to Germany's hopes of military self-sufficiency. She also needs fats and foods. In peacetime she must import wool, cotton, iron ore, oil, wheat, coffee, butter, fruit, coal, timber and copper ore, and the Allies' hopes of winning the war will undoubtedly lie in attempts to starve Germany through a naval blockade. Hitler plans to get his supplies from Russia and his neighbors to the southeast, unaffected by the blockade. Above all, he hopes for a "lightning victory." Some present reserves are enough to keep Germany going for several weeks.

Wartime production rate, 750 a month.

Resources

France and her colonies grow all the food she needs, and the country is rich in minerals. Her only scarcity is the third largest in the world. She has much coal and iron, and her industry is highly developed. Allied control of the sea, experts believe, will enable her to bring from abroad all supplies such as oil, which she must import. France's army is rated by military men as the best in the world, while German airworthy in the air.

Resources

Britain's industrial capacity is the highest in Europe, both in light and heavy industries. With her factories fed by raw materials from her world-wide Empire the British, with their allies the French, are in far better position to fight a long war than is Germany, many observers declare. Most of Britain's supplies come over the ocean routes from overseas, but the Anglo-French battle fleet insures an ample to strength. Part of Germany's fear that it is doubted whether Hitler could hold out on the sea lanes and lose off his country's source of supply. Britain is traditionally a naval power until a few months ago had no conscription law and possessed but a skeleton army. In a long war, however, she believes she will be able to mobilize a tremendous expeditionary land force.

Poland

Area—150,413 square miles.
Population—32,347,300.
Army—Actives, 2 000 000.
Reserves, 1,000,000.
Estimated maximum military strength, 4,500,000.
Navy—14,000 tons.
Air Force 300 first-line planes.
250 reserve planes.
1050 total planes.
Wartime production rate; 80 planes a month.

Resources

Poland's war weakness is her lack of heavy industries. Since the Munich pact of a year ago however, she has speeded her production of artillery and military equipment. She has rich coal supplies; her oil industry is fairly well developed and there are iron deposits.

LEAFLET DROPPING POLICY

There is no doubt that the Hitlerites do not like the leaflet air raids which British fliers are dropping nightly after night on Berlin and other cities. So used to talking of guns and bombs are these gentry that an air raid to tell the truth to the German people seems out of place.

It is to be noted that there have been no German leaflets in English dropped over the British Isles by the airmen of Adolf Hitler and his Foreign Minister Ribbentrop or Propaganda Minister Goebbels.

It would be waste of effort on the part of Dr. Goebbels and the others to send German paper with Hitlerite tidings to the free people of Britain who know what is going on. But with Germany it is different. Hitler's policy has been the domination of the press and suppression of truth and where there is propaganda Dr. Goebbels comes in with statements which are branded as false.

This dropping of leaflets from British planes is a definite policy of the British Ministry of Information. It will be carried on.

Britain after the first flash of the war is allowing more newspapermen to go to the battle lines and record the story of the Maginot-Siegfried front as it is registered on the minds of trained newspaper correspondents. That story will be told the people of Britain. Viscount Astor has stated that good publicity may well shorten the war by weeks and perhaps by months.

POPE PIUS' FIRST ENCYCLICAL

Pope Pius XII's reign as Supreme Pontiff, begun in a year marred by the outbreak of the long-feared war, has been marked by his first encyclical attacking the principle which has guided some nations "the denial of the authority of God and the sway of His law" so as to elevate the state to become "the last end of life." He said that civil authority as an inevitable result tends to attribute to itself that absolute autonomy which belongs exclusively to the Supreme Maker. The state puts itself in the place of the 'Almighty and elevates the state or group "into the last end of life, the supreme criterion of moral and juridical order and therefore forbids every appeal to the principles of natural reason and Christian conscience."

The Pontiff saw the hope that false principles do not exercise full domination of the deep-rooted faith of Christians.

He spoke warmly of the Poles to whom he extended the sympathy of the world as they await the hour of their country's resurrection in harmony with the principles of justice and true peace.

His Holiness appealed for peace treating the cause of the war which would avoid the mistakes of those made at the close of the previous war. Justice and equity towards all must be demonstrated in the peace treaties.

There was a reference to discussion among nations and the avoidance of recourse to force or threats of force in case of delays or hindrances.

Only of an ordering peace would be, not selfishness, but the solid rock of natural law and Divine revelation, he said.

His Holiness spoke of his desire and his readiness to speed the coming of peace and he gave his pledge that he would continue his work for peace and would trust "in those statesmen who before the outbreak of war nobly toiled to avert such a scourge from their peoples and in the millions of souls in all countries who call not for justice alone but for love and mercy."

TURKEY EARNS HIGH PRAISE

Turkey won high praise from the British Prime Minister, who saw in the new pact a guarantee, as he believes the world does, for the maintenance of peace in at least one region of the world.

His statement that it is purely defensive and is designed only to oppose resistance to aggression for the treaty threatens no one.

In the light of this statement one can understand why Germany was so disappointed by this new pact.

"We now share mutual responsibilities with the Turkish people for whose patriotism, probity and valor we have long cherished a high regard," said Mr. Chamberlain.

These are notable words and ring true in a world which the German Nazis have littered with broken promises and untruths.

WEALTH

Seventy tons of gold of Poland, valued at about sixty-five million dollars has been brought in safety to Paris after a six thousand mile journey by truck, train and ship. The truck convoy carried the gold from the vaults of the Bank of Poland to Rumania, though a German air squadron made an unsuccessful attack on the convoy at the border. Then the gold was rushed by train to the Rumanian Black Sea port of Constanza where a Turkish ship was ready. In a short time the gold was on its way by water and by that time Germany warned Rumania not to let the gold get away but it was too late. The little boat hovered in the East Mediterranean for a week and then the French Government arranged for its shipment to Syria. There the gold was transferred to a French boat, which delivered it in France.

Hitler's Nazis have their eyes out for gold for with gold Germany can buy. This explains the feverish attempt of the Reich government to grab the Polish shipment which was speeding across the continent in a place of safety.

Seventy tons of gold is a great deal of the yellow metal which is so precious in world affairs and international trade. Ontario has a number of mines which might have produced more gold than were taken out of Poland as Polish resistance broke down. Such facts indicate the importance of the gold production which the mines of the Dominion are contributing yearly to the wealth of Canada and the Empire and the amount of work and money which it has been distributing.

Ontario and Quebec in the production of yellow metal have steadily been serving the Dominion. Not in gold production alone but in the vast annual output of base metals, which are the riches in the Canadian rocks, is Canada being developed by her gold and other mines.

BRITISH SEA PATROLS VERY EFFECTIVE

Revelation of the fact that the German pocket battleships, the Deutschland and the Admiral Scheer have been at sea for two months and that the British naval authorities were fully aware of the fact is proof that even with these ships free as raiders the British navy has been so effective in its patrol of the seas that these battleships were unable to take more than three merchantmen and sink them and one of these had to be a neutral.

German pocket battleships, swift as they are and armed as they are, fear to meet a British ship or several ships.

With the knowledge that the naval authorities have had, goes the assurance that the British patrols have given the speed German warships a very busy time avoiding them.

The Deutschland has been off the coast of Newfoundland and sunk two ships and stopped one but did not sink it. The Admiral Scheer is reported to have sunk the British ship Clement off Brazil.

Germany has depended much upon these ships and so far their record indicates that they have done more cruising than raiding as Saturday's story put it.

Britain has the word of the Prime Minister that in spite of the intensification of the German submarine campaign, which "was always been expected, "that the situation is well in hand."That should be sufficient answer to those who are feeling concern. "In spite of one or two strokes of good fortune the enemy have not been able to make any of the sinkings which they attained at the beginning of the war." Their submarines have been driven to operate further and further from their bases and further and further from the usual points where trade is bound to congregate."

Mr. Chamberlain brings the assurance that "the destruction of enemy submarines is being maintained at a sufficiently high rate to encourage us to believe that this menace to our trade will eventually be overcome."

An angle of the U-boat campaign was referred to — its growing lawlessness in sinking of merchant ships without warning. Even putting passengers and crew in small open boats in stormy seas to suffer from cold and exposure.

This is the story of the Premier on the U-boat menace, but must assure and give save passage methods. The unjustifiable lowlessness in sinking without warning merchant ships shocks the world.

He who never relaxes into sportiveness is a wearisome companion; but beware of him who jests at everything. Such men are Epigraps, by some "ludicrous association, all objects which are presented to their thoughts, and thereby render themselves capable of any emotion which can either elevate or soften; they bring upon their minds nothing but an influence more withering than the blasts of the desert.—Southey.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

OCT. 28th., 1919

Dr. J. W. Rose, formerly of Belleville, and now Trade Commissioner for Canada at Shanghai, China, has arrived safely back at post after a visit to friends in this city.

The police continue to find business places insecurely closed during their rounds at night. Merchants should exercise more care in this respect.

Mrs. W. Madgley and daughter have returned to their home here after spending some time in Toronto and Bowmanville.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wright of Bowmanville, Maine, are spending a few days with Mrs. Wright's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Maldera in this city.

30 YEARS AGO

OCT. 28th., 1909

Mr. and Mrs. D. McCrudden of this city spent Thanksgiving Day with Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey, Shannonville.

In the post office lobby last evening three cops got into an argument and for a few minutes the noise was such as to deafen one. The authorities should keep cops out of the lobby.

Mayor L. W. Marsh will run again for the position of Chief Magistrate for the year 1910.

There is a movement on foot to hold a Old Boys' Reunion on 1910. This is a good idea and should be pushed.

Mr. S. Burrows has returned home after a trip to New York City.

40 YEARS AGO

OCT. 28TH, 1899

At a special meeting of the city council last night the following resolution moved by Ald. Chris Bogart and seconded by Ald. John Doyle was unanimously carried: "The members of the city council of Belleville, for themselves and on behalf of the citizens desire to place on record their appreciation of the valor of the men who have volunteered from this city to serve with the Canadian Contingent which is being formed to proceed to South Africa to join Her Majesty's Imperial forces now engaged in the Transvaal in fighting to secure and maintain the rights of British subjects. They assure the men who have so willingly gone to the war on behalf of the Empire that they command the admiration of their fellow citizens, and that their movements will be followed with affectionate regard and good wishes, and that every prayer will be offered for their safe and speedy return. That a copy of these four pounds each is hereby voted to the Belleville men who go to the front with thanks for their services and an expression of esteem for each and all of them."

The Hon. Mackenzie Bowell has just given the residents of Adolphustown a practical token of his regard and appreciation for them in their patriotic efforts to erect a monument to Church in their midst to the memory of the old United Empire Loyalists, by procuring a contribution of $100 on a number of memorial tablets which are to be placed in the walls of the church, bearing the names of the United Empire Loyalists. As the duty is 35 per cent the boon thus secured is a valuable one.

Of late the fishermen have had good luck, but the sales are not so most of them has been successful.

Belleville Market Prices: Butter 18 cents to 25 cents per pound; eggs 16 cents to 20 cents per dozen; chickens 30 cents to 40 cents per pair; ducks 50 cents to 60 cents per pair; geese 40 cents to 50 cents each; potatoes 80 per ton, 40 cents., hay $6 to $8 per ton.

Aaland Islands

Russia's demands on Finland, the Aaland Islands have been swung into the public ken. Only a few months ago a proposal to fortify them by Finland and sweden was approved by other Scandinavian nations.

"The Aaland, about 6,500 of them are generously scattered about the northern end of the Baltic Sea between Sweden and Finland," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society. "In fact, if it were not for the Aaland, it would be difficult to distinguish where the Baltic ends and the Gulf of Bothnia, northernmost arm of the Baltic, begins.

Nature of the Isles

"But of the more than a hundred of the Aaland are inhabited. The remainder are tiny islets, some with small farms and dairy herds, managed by tenants from the mainland, mere jutting rocks which seem to exist chiefly to harass navigators.

Aland, the largest of the group, is about thirty miles long from north to south and seventeen miles wide. It is deeply indented, however, that no place on it is more than a few miles from the sea. Most of the island is covered with a thick forest, the layer of soil suitable for farming and pastureland. Many of the farmers on Aland cultivate small patches which they reach in row boats. Once the forests of Aland were favorite elk-hunting grounds of Swedish royalty, but game now is almost extinct.

"Mariehamn, with about 1000 inhabitants, is the capital and leading town of the Aland group. The name is widely known in the streets of the world because Alanders have bought old sailing ships all over the world and have made Mariehamn their home port. The graves of these veterans of the sea all carry the name of the city.

"Fishers in the Aalands are likely to be amazed to find so much Swedish influence in an area which belongs to Finland. The Swedish language is heard on the streets and in the shops, but the Finnish flags flies over government buildings and the Finnish language is taught in the schools.

Once Belong to Sweden

"The islands belonged to Sweden until 1809, when they were ceded to Russia. They were under Russian domination as a part of the Duchy of Finland until 1917, when the Finns declared their freedom along with the Island.

"During the reign of Nicholas I of Russia, fortifications were erected at the port of Bomarsund. This was distasteful to the Swedes, because their capital, Stockholm, was less than 100 miles from the Aalands. In 1864, during the Crimean war, a Franco-British fleet destroyed the fortifications and the attempt since has been made to restore them."

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Can Evil Voices Helpful?

You are suffering with a "cold" and you open your mouth to speak once who, instead of recommending some home remedy, suggests that this be Dr. Black and get some injections—"cold" injections. He tells you that Dr. Black has made nine injections he suffered with a dozen colds every year and that since he started with his nine shots one cold each year. You are about to take his suggestion when you notice a friend who has taken these injections given by his name Dr. Black and you see plainly he has many colds as before taking the injections.

What about these injections, to prevent colds? There isn't any question but that many of the unhappy sufferers but the results obtained by physicians have been so varied—from 10 per cent—and often even 60 per cent—that no fair or satisfactory report can be taken seriously so far. It is interesting to read of the results obtained by Drs. J. J. Kelly, E. C. Rosenow and others as reported in Archives of Otolaryngology, Chicago.

Dr. Glauser gave cold vaccines by injection under the skin to the arm, sometimes in the thigh, in the next ten, and placebos—plain sterile water—in the next ten. This arrangement was repeated until there were 100 persons in each group. Each person was given a card, and the vaccine was given by injection. Then a record was kept of every hundred who came to the clinic. The first injections were given during the month of October, and the last ones by the middle of November. Then, after about six weeks in May each one that had taken the full number of injections was questioned carefully as to what he obtained from 128 of the 200 that had received the vaccine and from 128 of the 200 that had received the injection of sterile water.

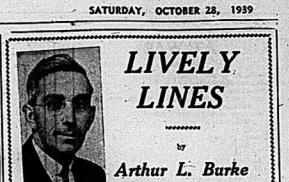
Of those who had received the cold injections, under the form of vaccine, 11 per cent had fewer colds, 6 per cent had no colds at all, 18 per cent had more colds, and about 2 per cent had more colds. Of those who had received the cold injections, who had received the sterile water injections, 11 per cent had fewer colds, 11 per cent no colds at all, 33 per cent had more colds, about 2 per cent had more colds. Of those who had received the cold injections of sterile water injections? About 09 per cent had fewer colds, 6 per cent had no colds at all, 33 per cent had the same number, and 2 per cent had more colds.

From these figures it would appear that subcutaneous—under the skin—injections of vaccines are worth trying by those who suffer from frequent colds.

LIEUTENANT K. ROOSEVELT

Kermit Roosevelt, a son of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, has been appointed a lieutenant and in the Middlesex Regiment, the appointment being listed as an "extraordinary commission." It is an interesting announcement, but it is by no means surprising. The recruit has openly declared his sympathy with the Allies in the struggle in the Field Artillery First Division, of the United States army. Roosevelt who has honorably discharged after the war in 1919. He was awarded the British Military Cross and the Montenegrin War Cross.

Now, although 56 years of age, he is again in the British service in the humble position of second lieutenant. He is content to serve in a cause which he is convinced is right. Commenting on Mr. Roosevelt has inherited the fighting spirit of his father which was strong —Montreal Gazette.



LIVELY LINES

by

Arthur L. Burke

Life's travelled aisles are paved with smiles,
They're strewn along the way,
We'd do some good, if we but could
Keep smiling every day.

If you are broke, just laugh and joke,
It does you good to frown,
A smile or two will take you through,
A grouch will get you down.

Those lines of care would not be there
Our tempers seldom rile,
We'd cease to stew, if we but knew
The value of a smile.

Then call a halt to finding fault,
Don't worry, storm and pout,
A big wide grin will lift your chin
And sweep the trouble out.

Smiles can't be beat to keep us sweet,
They're wholesome, pure and free,
If every face, a smile would grace,
This world a heaven would be.

So all the while, just wear a smile,
'Twill banish every fear,
Our lives will be, more bright if we Keep smiling while we're here.

FREUD'S WORK

Freud was one of the most challenging figures in contemporary medicine, says The Times, London. Indeed, though his work was principally medical, there was something incongruous in speaking of him as a doctor. Rather he was a thinker; using the methods of science to address therapeutic ends. Philosophy, science and medicine all paid him the tribute of considerable attention and study, and many of his ideas have passed into the common stock.

The truth would seem to be that even in this late date there has not yet arrived when a just estimate of psycho-analysis and its founder is possible. The atmosphere is highly charged with controversy. Supporters and opponents are still in too bitter a mood. Even the nations affirm that Freud's teaching will stand the test of time, and others that it may change permanently the whole conception of the operations of the human mind. Psycho-analysis, whatever it may have been before Freud, has become at least the merit of having been given to the world as a treatment for the mind and not as a moral law. Freud, indeed, began his long line of theories with philosophy, tho' he was himself a philosopher manqué, but he soon left it and spoke as a man of science. He did not pretend to have invented his system in view of mental processes; he assumed that they existed and set to work to discover their laws. Neither has pervaded the world with the space of a few years. It can be discerned today in almost every branch of science, thought, and notably in education, and some of his theories have become part of everyday language, as "the inferiority complex" for example.

Misunderstanding dogged Freud's steps from the beginning. He spoke of sex in that large sense which included the love of parents for their children, the love of children for parents, the love of a man for a man, and the love of a man for a woman. Freud's theory of a man to provide for his family, the tenderness of a grown man for a grown man, and a man for a man immediately his intention was narrowed by his critics to the sexual relation. They accused him of being a man without moral law. Again, he indicated his belief that natural impulses must have been suppressed have not, by that act, been annihilated. They remain in the mind as the "unconscious mind" to vex and torment. Psycho-analysis, as the cry was raised that this man preached a doctrine of unbridled libertinism. Those raising it overlooked the fact that Freud was the first to deal with his doctrine of repression his doctrine of "sublimation" which is not, he taught, regard a natural impulse as in itself, wrong or unworthy. To do so is to abhor the law of Nature and to be at war with God.

Rather we must take that impulses and apply it to the noblest purposes of which we are capable.

This, it may be admitted, was a theory which, if it were negative, produces a positive, and that man is not a mere bundle of instincts, racial and social taboos. It was a doctrine which appealed strongly to the scientific mind, with the result that Freud's supporters, like his opponents, are to be found in the most diverge views. Psychoanalysis thus became not one but a dozen battle-grounds on which the combatants fought with the weapons of zealots. There is, indeed, in all Freud's writings, a humility and a reticence of judgment becoming in a pioneer of science. There is indeed, in all Freud's writings, a humility and a reticence of judgment becoming in a pioneer of science. There is, indeed, in all Freud's writings, a humility and a reticence of judgment becoming in a pioneer of science. There is

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tompkins.

It is with great pleasure we have gathered here this evening to express to you both our congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy married life.

Yes, you have been one of us for a long time and although absent from our midst at various intervals, you have held a place of esteem with your sterling qualities and sunny disposition, which we could ill afford to lose shall be another's gain.

Although we are in no way a stranger to us and we extend to you heartiest congratulations on your choice of a life partner.

Therefore we ask you to accept these gifts as a remembrance from us and may they convey to you our sincere wishes for your future happiness and prosperity.

Signed on behalf of your many friends,—Mrs. Ed. Peet, Mrs. Minnie Dafoe, Mrs. William Tompkins.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. C. Young, Catherine Street, announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Doris Irene Elizabeth, to Charleg Graham Rutlan, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Rutlan, of Hamilton, Ont. The marriage will take place in Sydney, N.S., where the groom is stationed as a Flying Officer in the R.C.A.F. 928-11

Rev. Dr. Semple will be guest preacher in Havelock Church Sunday night.

Pastor E. N. O. Kulbeck of Evangel Temple returned to the city last night, having spent three days at Bridgeport, Conn., where he was guest speaker at the New England District Ministerial Convention.

Mrs. T. W. Third, of Brooklyn, N.Y., is visiting in the home of her mother, Mrs. David Waters, 2 Forin Street.

Mr. N. M. Sprague of the Canadian National Railway Superintendent's staff was the guest of St. Andrew's Church choir members last night and kindly gave a talk illustrated with moving pictures of his trip to Vancouver, Hawaii, in the San Francisco Fair, Hollywood and Catalina Island, where they spent interesting and very much enjoyed. Refreshments were served in the choir room, in which was gaily decorated with Hallowe'en attire.

Mr. Bill Strachan, Cedar street, who undergwent a serious operation at Belleville General Hospital, is progressing favourably.

Rev. J. J. Collins was in Tweed this morning attending the funeral of his grandmother, Mrs. N. LaJoie who passed away on Thursday. Mrs. LaJoie was a well-known and highly esteemed pioneer lady of the community. Funeral services took place in St. Carthagh's Church, Rev. Father Collins celebrating. Requiem High Mass. Norwegian Scrambled Eggs

Open small can of kippered herring, or chopped snacks, and fry them lightly on both sides in hot oil or own oil. Scramble eggs in separate pan. Arrange eggs on toast, top with herrings and serve garnished with parsley.

Butter Rings—Ingredients: one cup scalded milk, one cup sugar, one cup butter, four egg yolks, well beaten; one tablespoonful salt, one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, five cups flour, one cake yeast, one cup cooked potato. Dissolve yeast in one-quarter cup warm water. Add butter to scalded milk. Sift flour, sugar, salt and nutmeg together. Add potato mashed until large bowl. When milk has cooled to lukewarm, add well-beaten egg yolks. Pour this mixture into flour; then add yeast and currants. Mix well and let rise to double its bulk. Knead dough on floured board a few minutes. Divide into three parts, roll each thin and spread with melted butter, sugar and cinnamon, if you like. Roll in long rolls, form into rings in three layer cake tins. Let rise for about an hour and one-half, then bake in hot oven for 25 minutes, brushing over with melted butter first. When baked, frost with icing made of confectioners sugar, water and vanilla or maple flavoring.—Mrs. Pauline Bugay.

Fashion Flashes

NOVEL but lovely is an evening frock made with wide stripes of black moire, satin and faille, embellished on the bias. A wide bow at the side of the draped hemline is of the three fabrics, with narrow overstripes of green velvet.

FIRST PRIZE for beauty goes to this jacket and dress ensemble. The jacket is of a mink lumberjack style with stitched waistband over a black wool dress with a wide, rippling hem banded in mink.

A GRAND TIME is sure to be the happy lot of the fortunate woman who wears an exquisite evening frock of silver lame and a long wrap of wine red velvet.

THE STRINGS of your new corset if you want a wasp waist, are reinforced that Chanel puts pannier pockets at the hips. Thousand people! Glove for Every Hour

WE COULD fill columns with WE COULD tell columns with glove news this season. This much we will say: most of the season's handwear is several inches longer than heretofore, that simple length is frequently combined with sturdy leather, for a better fit, and that there's a glove for every hour of the clock —from angora mitts to sequin-studded dressities. Leather in skin-backed gloves, toned to the striped suit, shows are stitched to the cuff and, in this picture, worn with a tucked felt hat, just to give you inspiration. For the golden hour we suggest the velvet-backed glove, all left palmed in wool to match the sheer wool dress. Again the hat is in sympathy, being a Spanish number veiled in velvet dots.

Home-Made Nail Beauty

By HELEN POLLETT

IT WON'T DO to be too dependent upon the services of Annabelle, the beautiful manicurist. There are times when it isn't convenient to toddle to the beauty works. Maybe Aunt Emily has zoomed in from the country and wants to talk family gossip. Or the neuritis is twanging on the same old strings and you and the electric pad are spending the day together. You might as well know how to put your pink shells in order anyhow.

Assuming the metal file, sweep under the nail eaves with the orange wood stick. Remove the cuticanesia fringes with an emery board. Then do your scouring, using hot soap suds and a nail brush. Scrub long enough to soften the cuticle. Dry the hands, touch each nail with cuticle cream or olive oil, lift the flesh lightly with the orange wood stick and massage it. If you insist upon the knife, have it properly dulled and handled with care. Even then the smallest one is a menace, invites infections.

Nails Off Hangnails

If you discover hangnails, snip them off with the manicure scissors, pointing the ends toward the nail eaves. Rub on the white pencil under the eaves or, if you wish, you can use the orange wood stick which you used to dip it powder. Form a neat, straight line.

So far, so good. Of course, you removed the old polish before you started the treatment; no need to do any girl to do that. Removing old polish and switching on new is a minor occupation these days, especially for the home girls who hustle pots and pans and monkey around with dust cloths.

In her widely syndicated column "On the Shelf" in the New York Herald Tribune, Dorothy Thompson, has directed and shaped public opinion. She has collected many of her articles on foreign affairs in her latest book "Let the record speak." Dated from March, 1936 to July 1939, the article follow the European scene as the Rhineland is occupied, Austria annexed, Czechoslovakia split, Poland threatened, while Great Britain works feverishly to set bounds to the ambitions of a modern Napoleon. The first and last chapters of the book are far from her columns but are forceful statements of her personal principles. The many followers of Dorothy Thompson's newspaper and radio comment will welcome this book as an invaluable contribution to the literature of current affairs.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Ten Years Difference in Ages no Barrier

Marital Drawback

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Cupid didn't strike me until I was 30 years of age; never before have been in love with any other girl. But I find myself devotedly in love with a girl of 20. I haven't told her how I feel or paid her any particular attention, because I'm wondering if the difference in our ages is too great.

She seems to care a lot about me, and we get along well.

L. P.

Why this grandfatherly point of view, when you're only 29 years of age? No one thinks ten years difference is a bar to a happy marriage, when the difference is in favor of the man. If it were the other way 'round and the lady were ten years your senior, you might question and hesitate. But even then a wife a decade older than her husband has contributed to many a happy marriage.

A Regular Cinderella Stepmother

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I want to take a walk with other girls of evenings, my stepmother says I've got a date with a fellow. If I try to explain where and with whom I am going, she says I am lying. When I try to be pleasant before people, she says I am showing off. And if she doesn't like what I do, my father gets the blame, but my father says he will only look after the boys.

I quit school to do housework, but she thinks I'm money mad. I would treat me better, but she doesn't. When I get my pay I give her every cent of it, hoping she won't blame me for anything, but things continue the same. If I ask for a penny, it's never given to me. Sometimes I feel like killing myself. I could stand it, I will, if you appreciate it very much.

Unless my correspondents' seas things a good deal blacker than they really are, the poor child, like Cinderella, should begin to look about for someone who will act as her fairy godmother. She tells me she does housework. Would it not be possible for her to "live in"? Take a few dollars less wages for more freedom and better surroundings. Or hasn't she some friend or relative with whom she could talk out this situation?

She Seems a Bit Too Eager

Dear Miss Fairfax:

During my summer vacation, I met a charming girl, and we hiked, motored, canoed together. She was a nice out-doors companion and I said goodbye to her with real regret, Humility made me uncertain if she'd be willing to write. However, I asked her and was delighted with her offhand "certainly".

While I was thinking up something smart and amusing to say in my first letter, I got one from her —four typewritten pages. It was a good letter, but before I got around to answering, I got another. I've had several since. I feel like a collector who finds himself with too many duplicates, and begins to wonder how he can discard. I can't believe this girl is in love with me, and my worldly goods are sufficient. Should I try to keep me from the ranks of the eligible.

What's the matter with her?—Maybe she has stock in a paper company.

Wondering

You seem to have made a deep impression on the "ready letter Writer" as those kids do sets correspondence courses. But on second thought, is she really a "Ready Letter Writer?" inasmuch, as she has defeated her game, whatever it might be by overdoing it. Your guess is that she has stock in a paper concern is as good as any. Girls take warning. Give young men opportunity time to answer your letters.

Hints for the Hallowe'en Party

The pumpkin, emblem of Hallowe'en, inevitably is given the place of honor as the centerpiece of the feast table. The most beautiful and distinguished Hallowe'en centerpieces I have ever seen was one made of a large pumpkin hollowed out and filled with gracefully trailing autumn leaves. The more usual centerpiece is the amusing pumpkin-jack-o-lantern on a bed of autumn leaves surrounded by the traditional fruits.

Picturesque, too, is the witches cauldron as one of the favors sticks. From this come as many ribbons as there are guests, one end of each ribbon held by each place and the other attached to a favor inside the cauldron. Each favor also provides much merriment, especially if the favors are amusing and ingenious, or if original verses are attached to the favors.

Pretty favors may serve as the centerpiece. Its outside may be decorated with appropriate figures made by deft handling of black paper. Inside the cauldron is full irregularly over the top to suggest cowbells. Inside this cake may be done with any favors, too) may be concealed "mysteries" of all kinds. Some favors should be small trick thimbles, coins, buttons. While the frosting is still soft tiny orange-colored candles are stuck in the top, and black candles encircle the cauldron on the sides.

Dramatic for our Hallowe'en table are the novelty crepe paper cloths with their appropriate figures and with fantastic figures. Or you may use runners of black and orange crepe paper. Or a white table cloth by pasting together pieces of crepe paper and painting the black and orange cut-outs on it as a border with one row also down the center. The small napkins can be made this way also. Small black paper cut-outs edged with a narrow border of orange crepe paper and with witches' cuts may be applied.

Whereas in the usual party that is given the new effect to plan a special menu, we can be as "ghoulish" as we wish in our Hallowe'en menu. Always welcome and appropriate are those two Hallowe'en delicacies, cold brown bread, and "hot dogs." Pumpkin age," and apple pies and, of course, doughnuts, are appropriate. Nuts and cheese salad, fruit salad, served, if you wish, in,a hallowe'en apple, and of course all provided beforehand or "made on the spot," with a couple-pail as one of the entertainments, nuts, raisins, crystallized ginger, or licorice candies, in orange containers, may be put on the table and go other conventional for the "ghoulish" through the evening.

Old fashioned motto candies, can be found in some stores, and "manufactured" fortune readings add much amusement. Small fingers can pinch marshmallows into all kinds of weird shapes and then dipped in chocolate, orange as black cats and other fantastic shapes. Small dolls dressed with a sharp knife into pumpkin faces or cats, or, better still, witches, may be put into the oven, you can insert a piece of paper with Prophecy written on it.

Cider is the time-honored Hallowe'en beverage. It may be served cold, or from a witches' pot. The cider may be "mulled" with a heated poker in the boiling point and poured over cloves, eggs and sugar. Delicious "Mulled" cider should be served hot. Hot coffee should, of course, be served, with cream and doughnuts, are the dessert course. Doughnuts are delicious, too, in the easiest and quickest ways of starting the party is either to have the doughnuts in fortune or to distribute to them, as they enter the house. Doughnuts circle contumes representing citizens of the Kingdom of the Spook.

Doughnuts, which make up for their non-originality by the delicious, pastry spirit which they inevitably evoke, are traditional; bobbing for apples, and the game with mirrors:; taffy pulls; guessing games; card-reading; palmistry; fortune telling by tea and coffee forms of fortune-telling; questions; dancing; the calling of weird steps; card games; charades; stunts; and the making and matching for partners; ghost stunts. Then there are the old games and pastiments and in the stationery stores the games that are constantly being devised "for children of all ages."

MELROSE INSTITUTE

The Melrose Institute held their annual sewing bee on Thursday Oct. 26th at the home of Mrs. Grant McLaren.

As usual a large number of members and visitors was present, among the visitors were the seven ladies from the Tyendinaga Institute who were guests. They have been invited to meet with the local Institute for their October meeting.

The ladies on their arrival, found one quilt ready to be quilted and the afternoon was spent very pleasantly in sewing and chatting. Later on in the afternoon the ladies decided to have another quilting was resumed.

About 2.30 the president called for order and the ordinary business was carried on the short program.

Business items occupied a short period of time. The ladies decided no grant would be asked of the Government this year.

A Red Cross Committee consisting of Mrs. Thos. Leslie, Mrs. Russell Macfarlane and Mrs. Harry Murphy was appointed to look after the Red Cross work of the Melrose Institute. The sum of $7.75 from a yarn has been obtained and the ladies were asked for further purpose of raising funds for this work.

The entertainment part of the program was then proceeded with, visiting ladies with their president, Mrs. Hubbard, each sang two different numbers.

Mrs. Hubbard was sung with Mrs. Kimmerley at the piano. There followed a reading by Mrs. C. J. Alexy, and a vocal duet, Mrs. Alexy and Mrs. Kimmerley. Then a special number, a soldier selection with an encore was given by a

Treatment of Digestive Ailment Prevents Rickets

It seems to me that coeliac disease is on the increase. That is, we hear more about it now and cases that might otherwise escape diagnosis are now recognized and treated. When I see adults on the street with rickety, dwarfed frames, I feel that here may be a man or a woman who as a small child had the disease and because so little was known about it didn't get the proper treatment.

Yesterday we discussed how to give a child with the disease the type of diet its system can handle and which will keep its strength up. Gradually the child's diet is built up and he should even begin to gain weight after a short time. However, each child presents a different problem. Some children will have to remain on their restricted protein diet until the disease disappears, as it will of its own accord about the age of three and five years.

As a

Some children seem only to suffer from periodic attacks. They would be able to eat a normal diet except during these attacks. When symptoms of the disease appear, their diet must be restricted and they may even have to go back to protein milk exclusively for a few days.

Parents of children with coeliac disease should remember that time is going to outgrow the disease; that the treatment is to ensure that, when the child does outgrow, the child will be normal and healthy and will not suffer from rickets, anaemia or other complications. which may never entirely disappear.

There is another condition affecting small babies which I have heard of being mistaken for coeliac disease.

I refer to a malformation known as imperforate anus. This causes the abdomen to become distended, as in coeliac disease, but that is about as far as the similarity goes.

Our digestive system develops in two separate parts at the lower end and.occasionally these parts do not join together as they should. In that case there is a separation between the make part of the bowel and the opening to the surface of the body. The result is that the waste from food taken cannot be excreted through the bowel. Instead it gathers in the bowel and causes the swelling we are in such case.

This condition cannot develop in a child after birth. It is always a malformation that was present at the time of birth. Unless there is an operation to correct this condition, the child will die of starvation in five or six days and then die.

The success of failure of the operation depends largely on the type of obstruction that is causing the distended abdomen. It is only a very thin membrane and when this is torn away the child gets along quite normally. But I have known cases where about two inches of solid tissue separated the sections. In these cases the operation is much more difficult.

The complication in these cases is that the condition often runs in families a few days after the child loses weight and is in very poor condition for an operation.

Sluggish Kidneys — Poison

Two essentials of medical treatment are quickness and thoroughness and these are points in which Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills excel. In but twenty-four hours Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will show definite results and in a few days may be distinctly convinced of their quickness and thoroughness in cleansing the body of poisonous impurities.

The kidneys, the liver, the bowels are closely related in action, the poisons eliminated are similar, the disorders which arise from disturbance while sluggish kidney action brings.

The outstanding effectiveness of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills having been proven, you will learn the reason for the popularity of this fine tonic.

THE RUNAWAY

BY

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Sarah Gibson was one of the fortunate women to whom life never becomes tiresome. Her world was a world of small incessant services, eagerly, enthusiastically, incessantly rendered. It was not a wide world, but she would not have exchanged it for any other known to man. She planned meals, she cooked meals; she did ingenious things with leftovers; she fussed with lamps and bathtub hazards and boys' shirts; she fed chickens; she mothered all the dogs and cats that she boys brought home.

The pivotal point in her scheme of life was a curve Spencer Gibson, a gray, quiet, kindly man of fifty, whose entire business life was spent in the oil-scented, coffee-scented, yeast-scented atmosphere of the town's big hardware, grocery and general store, the Middle Valley Exchange. Spencer was to her everything that a husband and father should be. He settled her problems, adored his children, paid his bills and thought "Mom" the most important and admirable person alive.

They had five children. Rebecca, the one daughter, was nineteen. The boys followed at considerable distance: Robert was fourteen, Spin twelve, Andy nine, and Gary just short of six. They had come to the San Joachin Valley when Becky was a baby; all the children's remembered lives had been spent here in the little town that perched at the foot of the great mountains.

Salletta had been a mining town seventy years earlier. Now it was a rich agricultural centre with olive, grape and orchard interests, and enough pasturage for occasional cows and plow horses. Spencer Gibson had come to Salletta to buy a farm. After looking at the old run-down Pedlar place, they checked to pass the Waldrew ranch and its big sign: "Desirable Home Property — Self-supporting. Inquire Hardy Summers, Main St., Salletta.

"Oh, Spence!" Sarah Gibson had said. And she had repeated it breathlessly at the end hour and seventeen minutes, and by that time had turned the key in the new place. Hardy said surprisingly that he hadn't known they wanted to go as high as seven thousand; he could share that, he thought, with a thousand seven hundred and fifty. The Waldrew ranch, to be known as the Gibson ranch, proved to be boasted a comfortable old white house with electricity and bath-room installed; it had a garden, neglected but quite capable of being saved; it had barns and chicken houses and a pig pen and a home orchard. It had forty acres in apples and pears. Sixty Plymouth Rocks and two dozen were included in the price of sale. Spencer, who knew nothing of farming, had looked wisely at the machinery that was nicely stored in one of the barns.

The Gibsons had come straight from a cramped flat in Fresno. Sarah had dreamed of high mountains and torrents, and children of her own to feed. They were all here, in the Sarah Gibson country bred; she took naturally to farmyard and farm-kitchen activities. She was a hundred acres of the Gibson ranch there was a little shanty, occupied by Spencer's qualifications proved to be clerical rather than agricultural, he had seized the chance to buy in at the Exchange, and Sarah had capably established herself as farmer and his roof-checked wife. Hardy knew all problems of the ranch; Spencer did well with the store. They were content with them all.

Five sons had come along in record order; big, tumble-headed noisy boys who grew broad as they grew tall. Rebecca stood a little scared her with their violence, their amazing appetites, their achievements.

Rebecca differed. Where her brothers' black hair and red cheeks and blue eyes made them sturdy, Rebecca's creature of a color: honey-colored hair with gold lights, brown eyes with flecks of gold in shadow, brown soft skin all one delicate shade. Her hands and feet were dark gold; her wide mouth the only line of contrast anywhere.

She was tall, slightly and broad-ly built, with beautifully modeled chin and shoulders and throat, and young breasts, with narrow hips and fine ankles and wrists. Her forehead was low and broad, her eyes and mouth, if too large, full of humor and sensitiveness. At nineteen, she was a beautiful, high spirits, restless youth itself personified; charming, insidious, moody, amusing, dull, keen in rapidly alternating moments. Her mother, in fat affections, yet admitted their absurdity so frankly and entertained the family so enormously with her eager pursuit of them that she was not only forgiven but adored by every one at home.

It was on a languid, heavily sweet March afternoon that Rebecca and her mother had a talk in the kitchen which the girl was to remember many months later with strangely mixed emotions.

Rebecca taught a kindergarten group in the Middle Valley school; was Miss Patton's chief assistant. Her pay was fifty-five dollars a month; she had Saturdays and Sundays at home, and by her associates, were envied by the cook or the post office or filled secretarial posts, she was considered fortunate. But Rebecca did not always think herself fortunate.

Sarah Gibson was scraping cold potatoes for a salad. Surprised at the question, the older woman looked up with a little change of color.

"That came right out of a clear sky," Rebecca said, smiling. "I've been thinking of Joe all afternoon. He came to school today at the two o'clock recess."

"And asked you to marry him?"

"Well—in a way, yes. He was all agog because Judge Miller's daughter has him the first and only him on the Miglia case. Joe speaks beautiful Italian, you know."

Mrs. Gibson was interested and pleased. "Well, for pity's sake!" she said. "I think that's very much to Joe credit. I like Joe. He's a smart boy. He isn't but twenty-four, is he, Becky? I'll see him at the next club meeting and congratulate her. And he speaks Italian, does he?"

"Well Mother, why wouldn't he, with his father and grandfather right from—wherever it was? Italy, anyway."

"That ought to help him a lot with his law practice, Becky; there are so many of them around here, Italians, I mean. If he's going to practice here, that is?" her mother added, looking up. The girl roused herself from dreams with a start.

"Oh, he's going to practice here," she said in a faintly ironical tone. "His father's giving him a slice of the ranch, just as he did Gary and Lucy when they married. Lucy and Buck Williams are going to have a wedding present from Dad to place there. And Joe gets the corner strip with the redwoods."

"Well, the Peraltas are awfully nice people, Becky. They've been here from the beginning, and I don't know any ballets that's more respected than Gregorio Peralta. And a little money doesn't hurt, either, does you're getting started.

"You don't sound very enthusiastic, Mother."

"Well, I would be, Beck, if you thought it was going to be fun! But you're in love with Joe, for all he's so handsome and nice," Mrs. Gibson said, a little troubled. Rebecca was silent. It was Sarah who resumed the conversation. And Joe wants you to marry him, Becky-he? You seem so young, Becky."

"He always has," Becky said simply. It was true. Big dark, clever Joe Peralta had not looked at another girl since that night, now six years ago, when Rebecca was chosen the part of "California" in the grammar-school pageant. Surrounded by her satellite companions, seeming to be clothed in phanous robes of varicolored pale crepe paper, with flowers in their very earnest, her aureole of soft golden hair shining like a cloud under her gold crown, her great blue brain sweeping the floor in the big circle, Joe had sat walked straight into ardent Joe's heart.

"He's very kind and devoted to my me," she told her mother now with simplicity. "And that would mean," Becky went on slowly, "living up there with Grandpa Peralta. Mary Gory'll have children, and Lucy and Buck'll have children, and I have children, if we're ever blackeyed children with curls, whose grandpa is one of the Peralta artists of the state. Every Sunday they'll have a big two o'clock dinner of chicken and red wine and macaroni—"

"Well," her mother said mildly as she paused, "there are harder lives than that, Beck. You'd have to search the world over to find a lovelier place than Salletta."

Becky spoke reluctantly, thoughtfully. "You'd like me to, wouldn't you, Mother?"

"Well, I don't think there's a nicer boy in town than Joe," Sarah Gibson said hesitatingly. "Spencer and I have always considered him—"

"But you just don't feel that you could love Joe?" Sarah ventured after a pause.

"Mother," Becky said decidedly, "I don't feel that I could ever love always be good to me, and work hard, and eat and drink a little too much, and live to sleep Sunday afternoons with his collar off. If I happened to displease him mother, or if his father thought I was too slight for the job—I hear he likes big fat girls like Minnie—then Joe'd always stand up for me and be good to me. If we couldn't have children he'd feel he was a failure, and his mother'd feel that it was a judgment for marrying a girl of another faith, but he'd go right on buying me what I wanted in the main, and see the lights of the city, and live to sleep Sunday afternoons with his collar off. If I happened to displease his

MAICH AND KHOEN WRESTLE FULL HOUR WITHOUT A FALL IN SPLENDID BOUT AT ARENA

Largest Crowd in Years, Watched Boys Put on Clever Exhibition

LOCAL BOY LOSES

Doherty of Shannonville Lacked Condition—Valdez Conquers Daniels

A thousand Belleville wrestling fans were treated to the finest exhibition of clean combative wrestling ever afforded the patrons of the grunt and groan game in this city last night at the Rome Arena when Joe Maich, the popular former amateur Canadian wrestling champion, fought to a sixty minute draw with Sandor Khoen, the 196-pound Jewish lad from Detroit without the resemblance of a fall being registered.

With only applause the 1,000 patrons, the largest crowd ever to witness a wrestling card in Belleville, applauded the efforts of the main bout attraction, for their splendid exhibition of unadulterated wrestling. However, for sheer excitement the semi-final bout stole the show when Pedro Valdez, 171, of Mexico City, met Jack Tiger Daniels, 164, of Regina. Valdez came from behind as the gruesome Jess Daniels won the first fall of a best-in-three fall bout.

Qualities of Youth Tell

In the opening bout of a three-card bout George Cheepeta, the Polish lad from Winnipeg, defeated Roy Doherty of Shannonville in catch -rights. Doherty was a willing contestant, but showed the lack of condition and finally had to concede the preliminary bout fall to Cheepeta, who floored the local lad with a half-Nelson and applied punishing tactics because of adequate condition spelled Doherty's doom and brought on defeat. Throughout the greater part of the bout Doherty permitted Cheepeta to apply the holds, as the local lad reverted to his superior strength on the defense, but Doherty was in a state of near exhaustion when he finally was forced to concede the victory to his Polish opponent. The latter as well as Cheepeta, congratulated Doherty for his courageous stand after the bout, however.

It left the semi-final bout of the night to provide the thrills and the thrills of the show when the villainous Jess Daniels gained the first fall, of a no time limit return bout with Valdez, in a surprise manner. Valdez, the aggressor and had successfully applied two rapid - fire rolling holds when the Mexican missed the third attempt and fell to the mat in easy victim for Daniels' body press after 19.45 minutes. Daniels was still the aggressor when the second round ,but Valdez soon took advantage of his superior ring knowledge and following a series of his favorite Mexican "scissors hang" holds off the ropes, gained an inside figure four armlock and turned Daniel and the ring in a ring-call fashion to win and tie the match in 9.31 minutes.

Valdez Gets Rough

In the third round Daniels made the mistake of roughing Valdez too frequently, the referee, but that the Mexican retaliated in good measure and again gained an advantage over Daniels inside figure four armlock and Daniels again fell victim to some rough tactics and was counted out and the loser as Referee Cliff Hicks declicted Valdez the winner after 39.10 minutes, much to the delight of the local patrons. Daniels dived deeply into his bag of rug tricks throughout the show, but Valdez repeatedly out-smarted him until Daniels was of the opinion that the world in general was wrong, especially Valdez and Referee Hicks, when the latter contended was unfair to his questionable ring efforts.

Boys Apply Trade

Early in the main bout the patrons were very much aware of the Canadian, but subsequently the contestants settled down and were shooting in a clean orthodox manner and repeatedly showed their appreciation with hearty applause as both men applied their complete knowledge of repertoire in the best grappling bout seen in Belleville in many years. For sixty minutes Maich and Khoen matched strength, ability and science and once was their a resemblance of a fall, which came when both gained a full head advantage at the same time and after rolling each other over seemed to gain falls in a tangle of bodies and legs. Later Maich hurled Khoen with an arm-plane spring, but the former fell out of the ring as he released Khoen. Khoen finished the stronger as he gained a step-over inside toe hold, but the first sixty minutes bell. Cliff Faux of Belleville capably handled all bouts.

BALMY BEACH NOW SECOND BY BEATING PETES

Peterborough Defeated in Last Quarter After Leading Till That Time

SCORE IS 8-3

Don Crowe Kicks, All Points Scored by Orfuns in Contest

Toronto, Oct. 28 (CP)—From an attendance standpoint Balmy Beach's game here in eight-foot ball was not such a howling success. But when judged from the win column, the Toronto team couldn't complain.

Some 1,500 fans turned out last night to watch Beaches edge Peterborough Orfuns 8-3 and take over second place in the O.R.F.U. senior series. Maybe the wet weather during the day kept down the total but the night developed into an ideal one for gridiron sport.

The Orfuns led 3-1 going into the final quarter, but a Peterborough fumble was converted into a touchdown and that was the way Beaches won.

The overworked rich Jackson made the Orfuns pay as he running back Jack Primelle's kick and Len Sadler dived on the loose ball for a major score, which Dave Dickie converted. With the wind behind them Beaches played safe for the rest of the game.

Crowe Kicked Points.

Don Crowe kicked Peterborough's three single points, one in each of the first three quarters. Eddie Thompson and Primelle booted touchy two singles.

Thompson and Frankie Seymour picked up most of the Beach yardage. Thompson in his run-back of kicks and the latter on his powerful plunging. Dickie and Morin helped Thompson with runs of 25 and 20 yards respectively.

Crowe's kicking, Curly Krug's forward passing and Jackson's running teaching Peterborough's display while Kelly's tackling was another bright spot in the Orfun performance.

It was the fourth straight loss for the Orfuns in the Ontario Rugby Football Union, while the victory sent Balmy Beach into second place. Sarnia Imperials get a chance to climb back into a second-place tie when they meet the undefeated Montreal Westmounts today.

PIGDEN WINS HARRIER RACE

Romps Over Distance of Over Four Miles in 22.30 Minutes

Shattering all records of the Belleville Collegiate harriers' race, Bill Pigden romped over the harrier running course in 22.30 minutes, a distance of well over four miles this week to win the school Harrier Race honors.

Pigden clipped more than a full minute off the previous best course record, held by Gord Griffin, who covered the course in 23.33 minutes last year for a B.C.I. record. Griffin was second to Pigden this year, however.

The course, as designated by George Laughli, physical instructor at the Belleville Collegiate, is laid starting from the Belleville Collegiate and surrounding the city for a distance of over four miles.

The 1939 B. C. I. harriers' race was won by Bill Pigden with Gord Griffin second and Gerald Spafford third. Pigden is also intermediate track and field champion of the B. C. I.

Training Camp Briefs

Sportsmanship: Burleigh Grimes, manager of Montreal Royals in the International Baseball League and a former pitching great in the major leagues, sent a $25 contribution to the Babe Siebert memorial fund from New Haven, Mo. Explaining that he was sorry not to be able to attend the Siebert memorial game in Montreal tomorrow night, and added: "Understand he was an old ball player and a great favorite in hockey with Montreal fans."

An ultimatum has been delivered to members of Chicago Black Hawks by Manager Bill Tobin, disclosed yesterday that every player has a contract clause whereby, if he fails to make the grade in the eyes of Manager Paul Thompson, he can be sent automatically to a minor league at minor league pay. Said Tobin: "There will be no exceptions—either play hockey or go down the line."

Toronto Maple Leafs are "leading the life of Riley" in their exhibition tour of Northern Ontario, the players are being entertained by mining magnates, and have been received royally by fans, many of whom have not seen their favorite hockey stars before. The Leafs were amazed at the way fans in Schumacher stood on ends all through the game. One spectator explained it as follows: "We were standing because we couldn't see over the guys standing in front of us if we didn't."

Bill Taylor and Wally Stanowski, two youngsters with the Toronto Leafs, are hitting a brilliant clip in training camp manoeuvres. They scored two goals and an assist, and Stanowski a goal and assist each. Leafs split in two squads—the Blues and the Whites—for a game last night at McIntyre. The Whites won out 7-4 due to the fine play of the two rookies.

As Jack Adams undoubtedly knows, Ebbie Goodfellow is a mighty handy fellow to have around. Big Ebbie showed off his scoring activities curbed when Adams changed him to defence from a centre some years ago, but he still hasn't forgotten how to slam in goals. Goodfellow rammed home two in the only period last night at Brantford, Ont., as the Detroit Red Wings whipped Indianapolis Capitals of the American Association 8-3.

NAME PLAYERS NATIONAL LOOP MEET MONTREAL

SHORE TO PLAY

Probably Last Appearance of Brilliant Defenceman in Montreal

(By Robert Clarke Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Oct. 28 (CP)—The "name" players of hockey—from the inimitable Eddie Shore downward—will take centre stage Wednesday night when the National Hockey League All-Star team will meet Montreal Canadiens in the Siebert Memorial contest.

Hockey has looked forward to the game, not only for its cause, but because it brings together for the first time a team chosen by the annual poll of The Canadian Press. With the exception of Lorne Hector (Toe) Blake, who will play with Canadiens, all members of the 1938-39 Canadian Press All-Star team will line up against the Flying Frenchmen.

To bolster the All-Star squad, Manager Art Ross of the Boston Bruins and President Frank Calder of the N.H.L. have added players from every team, excluding Canadiens, in the seven-team league. Ross, Manager of the team with whom the late Albert Charles (Babe) Siebert gained fame as one of the greatest defencemen in the game, will handle the All-Star squad.

Here are the teams for the game:

ALL - STARS: Goal, Frank Brimsek, Boston; defence, Eddie Shore, Boston; Ebbie Goodfellow, Detroit, Art Coulter, Rangers, and Earl Seibert, Chicago; centre, Syd Apps, Toronto; Johnny Gottselig, Chicago, and Sid Colville, Rangers; wings, Gordie Drillon, Toronto, Tommy Anderson and Harvey Jackson, Americans; DI: Clapper and Bobby Bauer, Boston, and Syd Howe, Detroit.

CANADIENS: Goal, Wilf Cude and Claude Bourque; defence, Red Chiquille, Walter Buswell, Doug Young and Cy Wentworth; centre, Polly Prouth, Paul Hayes, Armand Mondou, and Ray Getliffe; wings, George Mantha, Louis Trudel, Toe Blake, Rod Lorrain, Earl Robinson, and John Gagnon or Bill Summerhayes.

The game will mark what may be the final appearance in Montreal of the late Babe Siebert, and Babe Siebert gained fame as a defenceman with Boston Bruins before coming to Canadiens some years ago. Shore, new owner of Springfield Indians in the International-American League, intends to play a number of league games and in playoffs this season.

LESTER PATRICK TO HAVE SWIFT PASSING TEAM

Not a Single Member on Rangers That Won Stanley Cup in 1932-33

FIFTEEN IN SQUAD

Winnipeg Oct. 28 (CP)—Here comes another young, swift-passing team of New York Rangers to give Phil Watson's Winnipeg Hockey Club a demonstration of the advantages of manager Lester Patrick's farm and school system.

Like his uncle, Cecil Dillon gone, the Broadway Blurshirts haven't a single member of the cast that won the Stanley-Cup in 1932-33. The club guard has passed along through the introduction of professor Patrick's autumn hockey school in Lonesome City, Man., and with the growth of his scheme of farm-team affiliations.

Kilby Macdonald and Alf Pike, two additions to the squad that forced Boston to the limit of seven games before yielding in Stanley Cup playoffs last spring, are typical products of the Patrick plan.

Pike Learned Hockey

Macdonald, former Ottawa amateur and junior star, was the International-American League's rookie of the year in 1936-37. He jumped to Philadelphia last season for the Int-Am playoffs. Thirteen contracts and without experience in the way Patrick wants them to play—round out the squad. The oldest is Captain Art Coulter, only 30.

Patrick sold Dillon to Detroit and Bill Carse and George Allen to Chicago in the off-season, letting defenceman Larry Mifflenzy go to the minors. He was confident he could find adequate replacements from the farms and apparently he has.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Inclement weather and wet grounds forced the postponement of yesterday's Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville collegiate rugby football game in the Bay of Quinte City. The game will be played early next week. Incidentally the Collegiate have a postponed game with Trenton C.I. yet to play also. Albert College withdrew from this group, which gives the remaining three squads two victories by virtue of Alberts' decision. All league games have been played in the group, Trenton beat Albert, O.S.D. trounced Trenton while B.C.I. and the O.S.D. played a six-all tie. The standing of the group today reads:

	W.	L.	T.	P.
O.S.D.	2	0	1	7
Trenton C.I.	1	1	1	5
Belleville C.	2	0	1	5

Directly upon the announcement that the Meaford Knights had been declared intermediate "A" champions of the O.R.A. and that Trenton C.I. had been declared "B" and been suspended by the provincial baseball heads, a movement was launched in Western Ontario to form an amateur baseball association in Southwestern Ontario and break away from the Ontario baseball Association. This district includes Chatham, Windsor, Gerrais and around St. Thomas. Belonging the subject the Chatham Scribs says "baseball is dying on its feet in Southern Ontario and one of the biggest reasons is the lack of co-operation and failure of the O.B.A. to make a proper study of conditions in this section and make certain allowances which would have healed sore spots at the time". Had that statement come from Kingston we could have added an "amen", but there's an air of irony in such a statement coming from Oshawa, a city that would not approve even an intermediate team this year, but rather allowed its players to migrate to the T.A.B.A. while these players still resided in Oshawa.

Kingston found the answer to the troubles of baseball this year when they abandoned all major diamond activities and organized Juvenile and junior leagues. Yarmny Jamieson, who piloted one of the junior nines was in Belleville today and stated the two leagues proved successful from every angle taken. The kids drew well, all made financial ends meet and the most important goal was attained—the development of several good players. Yarmny says Kingston may seek a berth in the Bay of Quinte League next season, as will Gananoque, but the Limestone City baseball moguls are going to continue the sponsoring of a junior city baseball league for the development of talent, due to the lack of sponsorship of minor league baseball in Belleville is sadly and directly responsible for the deplorable condition of the game here at present, so why should Belleville blame the parent association? In other conditions are likewise resulted in the decline of the diamond game, but the O.B.A. cannot set up rules and regulations to suit every community. Each club should solve its own problems, as did Kingston, who were hit the hardest.

The fact that good clean orthodox wrestling is increasingly appreciated by the mat fans was clearly and outwardly demonstrated and proven at the Rome Arena last night when 1,000 fans turned out that saw Joe Maich and Dave. Khoen grapple for sixty full minutes without the resemblance of a fall. Both main bout lads uncorked their entire repertoire of wrestling ability and there wasn't a sign of unorthodox wrestling displayed, much to the satisfaction of the largest wrestling crowd in this city in many years. Actually the present set-up of wrestling in Belleville is gaining in favor simple because the fans hired help keeps their efforts without hesitation and give the patrons plenty of action, and good wrestling. The only unfortunate part of the show was the lack of condition of Roy Doherty, the local lad who gained the decision in the first wrestling efforts. Doherty was forced to concede his bout to his opponent, and personally congratulated the local lad for his gameness. However, it took the Daniels-Valdez semi-final to steal the picture, as these two agile lads wasted no mating hammer and tongs, but perhaps Jess Daniels and not the Mexican is too clever a ringman.

We neglected our weekly football prediction yesterday but undaunted by muffing a couple last here goes—in the "Big Four" it's Ottawa over Argos, but be prepared for an upset hear, however. Montreal can't beat Hamilton in the Ambitious City, Varsity over Queen's and Western to beat Westmounts to beat Sarnia right in the tunnel town to add to Sport Scribe 'Red' Wilson's grey hairs.

SPORT SPICE — Ned Vitarelli scored for the Baltimore Orioles in their International game last night, but Bill Caliadine failed to belge the Bisons.....Lefty Perdue's Peterboro' Orfuns made matters interesting for Toronto Beaches together the cover of darkness last night.....Paul Thompson's rejuvenated Chicago Black Hawks still stress wide-open hockey with youngsters brewing caution to the winds, they say, but how long will it last? .... Bill Pigden, fleet-footed quarterback of the B.C.I. grid squad, won the annual Collegiate harrier race recently establishing a new course record of 22.30 minutes. Sporting partners get $35 each time they enter the ring against Joe Louis and feel it ain't enough.

THREE OF 1939'S TOP HORSES IN PIMLI CO SPECIAL

Last big turf event on the 1939 calendar is the Pimlico Special, an event inaugurated by Alfred Vanderbilt, head of the Maryland track, last year, with the matching of Seabiscuit and War Admiral, who staged their great duel last May. This Wednesday the second special will be run with Seabiscuit and the best of the training entered—Challedon, Kayak II, Cravat and Isolater. Of the three, Challedon, shown, is the only WINNER picture, seemed destined for second place behind Seabiscuit in the three-year-old ratings for the year, but piled up one victory after another, with Johnstown among the defeated, to take over leading honors. The important wins were in the Preakness and the Arlington Classic. Kayak II, TOP LEFT, was pictured after his triumph in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap. A South American horse, he gives his owner, Charles S. Howard, a chance to have one of his horses win the first two Special. Howard also owning Seabiscuit, last year's winner. Challedon holds one victory over Kayak, registered in the Narragansett Special. Pictured after his win in the $50,000 San Juan Capistrano Handicap at Santa Anita, is Cravat, TOP RIGHT, a distance runner, who will probably be getting up a full head of steam near the end of the mile and three-sixteenths. Cravat is owned by Townsend B. Martin.

COUPLE DROWN

Disappearance of her brother in Toronto Dec. 2, 1919, preceded a world-wide search. He walked from Toronto to Belleville, but failed to and never was seen again. A fortune was left to the sister.

Flashlights in Action

Constable Small said later sister Florence were plaintiffs in an action to prevent distribution of the estate until Mrs. Ambrose allowed Small to his wife, who died in 1933. Litigation had continued for seven years.

In November, 1936, Mr. Justice Nicol Jeffrey ruled that the will of Ambrose Small, made in 1903, was valid, will and instead and disallowed the action brought by the sister Florence. Costs were awarded against them.

Florence Small said in Toronto last night that several weeks ago her sister "told us she was going to get married." Mrs. Small said she was going to live permanently in Midland and would sell her effects and furniture. Florence said Gertrude came to see them several times, during last summer and appeared happy.

Turned Over to Church

Patrick Sullivan, adviser to the Small sister after the disappearance of their brother, said the trust fund, from which Gertrude and Florence drew their incomes up to 1933, was turned over to the Roman Catholic Church under the terms of their mother's will after the death of Mrs. Small. Sullivan drew the income about $300 a month from a trust fund of $40,000.

Mrs. Bell was a well-known figure in Midland and was seen often in the company of Bell, who has an electrical store in the Midland Hotel block where he lived.

He is survived by two brothers, Nelson, Toronto, and Duncan, Sudbury, and a sister Mrs. Isabella Byrd, Alex Bradbury, Toronto and Mrs. Wilda Markle, Calgary.

WAGERING LOW DURING YEAR

$21,695,423 Wagered on Canadian Racing Tracks in 285 Days of Racing

Ottawa, Oct. 28 (CP)—Total of $21,695,523 was bet with the horses at Canadian tracks during the 1939 racing season the sports department announced tonight. This was a decrease of $1,419,729 from total wagers of $23,115,252 in 1938. However, jumped $35,500 to $1,970,770.

The 1939 season covered 285 racing days at 25 meetings run on by 19 racing associations, while in 1938 24 associations held 33.• meetings with 281 racing days.

Along with the betting the 1939 receipts declined to $628,023 from $700,435 in 1938.

Largest amount wagered was at the opening meeting at Woodbine Park, Toronto, $1,231,884 and the smallest amount was at a one day meeting at Claresholm, Alberta, when $472 was wagered.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Way Down South" and "Pride of the West"

Dixie dances, laughter galore, harvest time heart-songs, adventure, laughter and drama that thrills in Bobby Breen's musical hit, "Way Down South", which also features Ralph Morgan, Alan Mowbray, Clarence Muse, Sally Blane, and the Hall Johnson choir, now being shown at the McCarthy Theatre in addition to the newest Hopalong Cassidy Western action hit, "Pride of the West" featuring William Boyd as (Hopalong) Cassidy, Russell Hayden, and Russell (Lucky) Hayden, the trio that have made Hopalong B. Mulford's famous stories "the popular screen entertainment that everyone has had an equal enjoyment from during the past five years. Also Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland and Charlie McCarthy's Trailer," and another exciting Universal Newsreel. "Ranger Callan" complete and round out this swell show now to be seen at the McCarthy Theatre.

Jack Holt Returns

Jack Holt in his new starring production "Trapped in the Sky," an excitement-filled action story presented next at the McCarthy Theatre, Belleville, also in companion feature "Women in Prison," starring Wyn Cahoon, Scott Colton, Arthur Lafleid and Don Dowd. "Women in Prison" is the most dramatic, thrilling prison story since "The Big House." Plan now, see these two smash hits at the McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE BELLE

"BARES IN ARMS"

Hollywood's finest juvenile talent, headed by Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland are now on the Belle screen in "Barnes in Arms" which result is something to write home about.

Mickey Rooney uncovers more tricks than ever his pappy, Lewis Barnes succeeded he had, and Judy Garland does a job of entertainment that makes acting students from her peers. Betty Jaynes, Douglas McPhail, Ann Rutherford and a hundred other youngsters contribute to make "Barnes in Arms" one of the best pieces of musical entertainment to come out of Hollywood in months.

Besides acting, Mickey dances, sings, has impersonating and at twenty-one days from the date of this notice. twenty-one days from the date Judy dances too. Betty and Douglas also have got opportunity and make the very best of it. June Preisser is a dancing wonder.

"Babes in Arms" is a story of the days when Mickey and Judy were out of existence. As the sons and daughters of headliners of the world, the kids know things into their own hands when they are threatened with being sent to a state farm. They stage a show of their own and with Broadway producer, and wind up in a big revue. The picture is interspersed with the songs and even drama.

The musical score of Rodgers and Hart, who wrote the original Broadway success upon which the picture is based, is augmented by several new numbers, notably "Good Morning", "Where or When", "Minstrel Man" and "Opera vs. Jazz." Bushby Berkeley, who directed "Gold Diggers" and also did rear filling sequences, the "Babes in Arms" numbers, has done a stirring marching song which 200 kids participate; the finale shows the audience, in which many of the old hits are used, and the "God's Country" and "Yankee Doodle" in favor of a Berkeley spectacle. In fact, the picture is built on the kids of Charles Winninger, Guy Kibbee, Grace Hayes and Barnes Brooks. If you want a rousing evening's entertainment, don't fail to see "Babes in Arms."

The Belle latest world news reel and a very fine musical reel will be presented on the same program.

Toronto, Oct. 28—Not much was heard over here of cricket since Bernard Bosanquet—"Bob" clevier in England early this month. "Bob" was one of the great cricket of the 1900's, played around the turn of the century...owned the fifty, Scorpion, whom many will swear was the greatest horse to ever race... she took part in some 50 odd races and the five "Classics"... "Bob" landed in Australia on his first Ashes' tour, when 79 when he died) and on his first day ashore made straight for the wicket... and in real filling sequences, the "Babes in Arms" numbers, has done a stirring marching song which 200 kids participate; the finale shows the audience, in which many of the old hits are used, and the "God's Country" and "Yankee Doodle" in favor of a Berkeley spectacle. To Keep U.S. Out of War.

Passage of the measure drew a statement from Senator David Walsh (Dem., Massachusetts), an opponent that "its motive and undisguised purpose is to aid and abet one group of belligerents in the European war."

Another opponent, Senator A. Y. Gillette (Dem., Iowa), said: "The good can come to a distressed world from giving assistance to those in this week by the Senate."

The administration leaders contented themselves with a reiteration of their view that the bill would serve effectively to keep the United States out of war. Majority leader Alben Barkley (Dem., Kentucky) moments after it passed by the House and returned to the Senate by Speaker Bankhead, called for speedy action. White House officials predicted that the measure would be signed by President Roosevelt's assured signature.

West Huntingdon

West Huntingdon—St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church had the honor of entertaining the Huntingdon Branch of the O.R.E.C. on Wednesday, Oct. 25. Two sessions were held, one at 2.30 p.m. and one in the evening. These were presided over in a very efficient manner by the Township President, Mr. Clayton Rutter of Fuller. The worship service in the afternoon was conducted by the President of the While Lake Young People's Union, Mr. Ernest Holland. Mr. Howard Ashley representing the St. Andrew's congregation welcomed the delegates.

Mr. Rutter gave an account of his visits to the various schools during the year.

Music for afternoon session was furnished by Mrs. (Rev.) Walker who delighted with a solo. The following department superintendents gave their reports: Girls' Work, Mrs. John Clements; Boys' Work, Mrs. J. C. Mills; Young People's Work, Mr. Geo. Wood; Adult Division, Mr. Philip Carr; Teacher-Training, Mr. Arthur Wood; Missionary, Miss M. Latta, report was given by Mrs. Lee.

Following these reports the Provincial Representative, Rev. Roy Rickard of Cookstown conducted a round table conference. When many problems of the Sunday School work were dealt with this session was closed by Rev. W. H. Walker, pastor of the convention church.

The nominating committee met and recommended to the following as officials for coming year.

New Officers

Past President of the Association: President, Mr. Clayton Rutter; Vice President, Mrs. John Wallace; Secretary, Mr. Ernest Holland; Pupil Supt., Children's Work, Mrs. Morley Haggerty; Girls' Work, Mrs. Frank Palmer; Boys' Work, Mrs. J. C. Mills; Young People's Work, Mr. Geo. Wood; Adult Work, Mr. Philip Carr; Teacher Training, Mr. Arthur Wood; Missionary, Miss Mabel Latta; Representative, Mrs. Frank Herity; Home Religion, Mr. Arthur Wood.

The delegates who remained over for the evening session were given an excellent banquet by the ladies of the congregation.

The Young People's Union of the West Huntingdon United Church had charge of the worship service for the evening session. This was presided over by Mr. Keith Bray, assisted by Arthur Wilson.

Following the report of the nominating committee Rev. S. Delve of Ivanhoe conducted a very impressive installation service. The Resolution Committee gave their report expressing the thanks of the convention to the special speakers, ladies of congregation and officials of the church. The special music of evening was furnished by Rev. S. Delve, Mr. Frank Palmer who gave a duet and accordian selections. The Misses Margie Haggerty, Muriel Thompson and Celiberius Dugan gave a song.

Very inspiring addresses were given by Rev. W. H. Walker and Rev. S. Delve.

Mr. Walker's subject was "The Home, the School and the Church" Mr. Rickard chose to speak on the responsibility of guiding boys and girls through life.

The convention will be held next year at the Moira Church. Rev. Delve closed the meeting with prayer.

Y. P. Rally

A number of the Young People attended a Young People's Rally for North Hastings which was held at Stirling, Wednesday evening.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)— The stock market retreated warily today after its initial brief upsurge.

Volume dwindled following a moderately fast opening and the leaders sank behind fractions to around two points in the main. But the decline was due more to absence of buying sentiment than to any pressure to sell, dealings approximated 500,000 shares.

In a similar fashion group fractional gains were posted for Distillers Seagrams, Schenley, Walker and Lake Shore moved narrowly to the other side. Substantial losses were under mild pressure in the bond market.

Down most of the time were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Bendix, Glenn Martin, Sperry, International Nickel, Westinghouse Electric, Allied Chemical, Santa Fe, New York Central, Great Northern, Goodyear, U.S. Rubber and Montgomery Ward.

Among the aircrafts Curtiss Wright, which opened with a block of 12,000 shares, hit its top for the year and kept its head above water.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, Oct. 28 (CP)— Announcement of a deal providing for purchase of Canadian Breweries, a majority by the British government, gave the base metal stocks a lift on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The market turned dull in the second hour and most of the early gains were dropped. Mining shares were firm to strong generally in the final period and the industrials and western oils were irregularly lower. Aggregate turnover was around 250,000 shares.

Sherritt-Gordon traded around 45,000 shares and the price touched 1.45 before losing part of the gain under profit-taking. Noranda was also a heavy trader with the price up four points around 48. Smelting and Nickel added fractions. Ventures firmed about 25 cents and minor gains were posted by Wallace Amulet, Ventures, Fend Oreille and Falconbridge.

Price adjustments were narrow in the gold group. Dome was up over a point, Lake Shore, Fiddle Crow, Pioneer, Teck Hughes, East Malartic, Powell Rouyn and Kerr Addison were slightly for Wright Hargreaves, Central Patricia, Hollinger, Bralorne, Francoeur were at demand at high prices.

Scattered industrials posted minor gains. Senior oils, steels and banks tended irregularly. Utilities were a bit lower and the foods irregular in their movements. Canadian Breweries (Hamilton) 4½ and prices were up slightly for Loblaw A and Canadian Breweries. Bell Telephone, Winnipeg Electric and Canada Steamships Pfd posted minor losses.

Cold Weather Brings Problems

With the coming of cold weather comes the problem of keeping the windows frosted. How often do farmers tell of the acre of work they thought of the forward or during extremely cold weather and all the plans that go with it.

It has been estimated that four pigs out of every ten farrowed die before they reach the age of eight weeks. This loss is sufficiently high to warrant some definite steps to correct it. In Western Canada it has been found that the weight that is very interesting in its ingenuity and practicability.

It is the purpose of the writer to discuss the main features of that type of brooder in following articles.

DENIES RUMOR OF AN ELECTION

Ottawa, Oct. 28—(CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday said that reports the Government was considering holding a general election before the next session of Parliament, scheduled to open in January, were unauthorized "and wholly without foundation."

The Prime Minister said in a statement that the Government's position concerning an election was set out clearly on Sept. 12 during the special session of Parliament called to consider war measures. "News items have also been appearing asserting or suggesting or to indicate the Government's intention with respect to certain appointments," Mr. Mackenzie King said. "They too have been wholly unauthorized. Except where an official intimation is given of the appointments of cabinet ministers with reference thereto should be purely speculative. Many persons are obviously expressing some wish that is father to the thought or to inspiration."

BRITAIN DRIVING INDUSTRIES TO INCREASE TRADE

Exports Needed to Buy War Materials from Canada and United States

EXPORTS DOWN 42%

German Merchant Marine Virtually Swept from Seas by British Navy

London, Oct. 28—(CP)— Great Britain was pictured authoritatively today as driving her industries to increase sales to Canada, the United States and other American countries for dollars with which to buy war materials.

The nation also is trying to keep as much money as possible at home through checking importers locally what formerly was bought abroad, particularly food, and through strict control of the export of foreign exchange necessary to buy American goods.

By buying less and selling more abroad, officials look for speedy correction of Britain's business ills from the first shocks of the war. In the first months of the war, exports decreased 42 per cent through the difficulties of shipping, but, more slightly for Wright Hargreaves, Central Patricia, Hollinger, Bralorne, Francoeur were at demand at high prices.

Scattered industrials posted minor gains. Senior oils, steels and banks tended irregularly. Utilities were a bit lower and the foods irregular in their movements. Canadian Breweries (Hamilton) 4½ and prices were up slightly for Loblaw A and Canadian Breweries. Bell Telephone, Winnipeg Electric and Canada Steamships Pfd posted minor losses.

Merchant Navy Mostlised

They see one big asset in the shipping losses. Germany's powerful merchant marine virtually has been swept from the seas by British and Allied merchant navy, on the other hand, has been mobilized under Government control.

Ship builders, pooling their efforts, have completed arrangements plan to turn out 2,000- ton cargo vessels on a mass production basis that will further cut the British maritime superiority.

The Board of Trade is starting talks with groups of industries on post-war trade, with an eye toward Germany's overseas markets. Oliver Stanley, President of the Board of Trade, said of his Department's aims:—

"What we want to do particularly is to stimulate trade to certain countries which are particularly valuable to us, such as the United States and Canada, from which we have been buying large quantities of materials required for the war."

Scheme Highly Praised

Sir Charles Hipwood, Director of the National Council of Manufacturers, hails the Board of Trade's activities as a realization by the Government of the importance of trade to pay for our supplies."

Control of trade and industry within the country has brought sharp criticism from sections of industry and assurances from the Ministers that only control so it was absolutely necessary would be imposed.

Rationing and "pooling" of gasoline is in operation. Under the "pooling" scheme individual motorists cease to exist and the Government controls distribution. Gasoline pumps and drinks now have "pool" posters pasted over the individual names.

Few if any pools are in operation so far. Government departments, however, have to administer the pools, which have been named, however, steel, alcohol, leather, metals, jute, flax, hemp, leather, silk, gasoline, fish, railways, coal, timber, sugar, cocoa, flour, butter and yeast.

Food Rationing.

Food rationing is to begin next month.

The War Emergency Committee of the Motor Industry announced today it anticipates that unless motorists are given a bigger quantity of petrol every two weeks gasoline station operators and automobile dealers will have to lay off men.

In its drive for increased farm production, the Government announced tests that prices of staples, such as wheat, will be based on the cost of production plus a reasonable return. The government also is extending a grant to all farmers' growing of flax seed for ploughing grassland and putting it to crops.

There is no shortage of farm labor, the Canadian Government Labor Committee granted a wage increase of about 20 cents a week for the 1,500 farm labourers of the district. This brings their weekly pay to about $7.50—the highest since the last war.

In Ottawa he acted as Liberal whip for the Maritimes, was Chairman of the Committee and other Federal committees.

In Belleville he was a Presm.son, an Elder in the Presbyterian Church and a member of the Sons of Scotland Board of Trade.

His wife, the former Rita Stavert, is the only survivor. They had no children.

Eight Vacancies

Ottawa, Oct. 28—(CP)— Death of A. E. MacLean left eight vacancies of Parliament for Prince, raised the vacancies in the House to eight and reduced the Liberal membership to 173.

Party standings in the Commons now is Liberal 173, Conservative 39, Social-Credit 13, C.C.F., seven, Independent two, U.F.O.-Labor one, vacant eight, total 245.

By-elections have been called in Kent, Ont., Saskatoon, Montreal (St. James and Montreal Jacques Cartier for Dec. 16 to fill four vacancies. Liberal nominations for constituencies are Bonaventure, Drummond-Arthabaska, Kindersley and Prince.

CIACO CLUB HOLDS PARTY

Hallowe'en Dance at Recreation Hall, Corbyville, Splendid Success

A most delightful Hallowe'en party was staged by the Ciaco Social and Athletic Club in their Recreation Hall at Corbyville on Friday night. The hall was beautifully and most tastefully decorated with orange and black paper streamers and Jack O'Lanterns placed about the hall and goblins and witches peering out from unexpected corners. A large number came in costume and the judges had a difficult time picking the costumes for the splendid prizes offered.

Tommy Mason and his orchestra provided the music for the dancing and the music did not break up till the early hours and even then they were loath to leave the dance floor. A delicious buffet lunch was served by the ladies members of the club near midnight and the whole party paraded to the street to view the bonfire and fireworks at the moon. Mr. Harry Lennox and his assistants conducted the party and by moving at a lively pace and the guests present voted the Ciaco dance a success in spots.

The judges, Mrs. Albert Johnson, Mrs. Ed. Dolan and Jack McIntosh viewed the parade of costumes after supper and their decision the following prizes were awarded:—

First best dressed lady, Mrs. Cecil Lloyd, (Witner); second best dressed lady, Miss Dorothy Fallen (Blue Gown); first best dressed man, Lawrence Cumming, (Fairy); and second best dressed gent, Dr. A. E. Miles, (Surgeon); best original costume lady, Mrs. James Cathcart, (English Flower Woman); best original costume gentleman, Ralph Plumpton, (Drive Belt); best dressed comic, Mrs. C. Drummond, (Indian Woman); second dressed comic, Lawrence Wye, (Hedge Silver); best comic gent, Arnold Eves, (Huckleberry Finn); second comic gent, Jim Foster, (Clown). Two of the prizes were donated by Mr. Cumming, one of Mr. F. Bailey and Mrs. Alfred Eves won the spot dance during the dance program.

CAUGHT STEALING PENS OFF COUNTER

Youthful shoplifters were active in Belleville yesterday when one culprit was caught red-handed stealing goods from counter in Woolworth's store by Detective Sergeant Thompson and Manager Evans assisted in the investigation following Mr. Mason's report of the incident to police authorities.

It also learned that two alleged accomplices of the youth apprehended escaped undetected. The articles taken were pen and pencil sets when caught by Mr. Martin. The culprit was given a severe lecture by Chief Kidd before being released into the custody of his parents.

MAJOR H. JONES RECEIVES APPOINTMENT AS INDIAN AGENT

Popular Resident of the City Will Assume New Duties in Near Future

TO LIVE IN DESERONTO

Major H. M. Jones of Belleville will be the Agent for the Indians at the Tyendinaga Agency, word received from the Civil Service Commission at Ottawa stated today.

Major Jones, a returned soldier, brings extensive experience in responsible positions to his new work. For some year, secretary treasurer with a Belleville manufacturing company, Maj. Jones was corporation auditor and assessor with the Income Tax Branch of the Department of National Revenue for nine years. Following this he was secretary treasurer for a well known Belleville construction company.

The last four years he has been in the insurance business for himself.

Major Jones will be leaving shortly for Deseronto to assume his new duties. He will take up residence there at a later date.

MARKET PRICES REMAIN STEADY

Settling down to the routine of Winter sale of produce, the city market today made its appearance in contrast with the colorful display of Summer days. Prices generally showed little or no fluctuation from those of a week ago, although the quality offered was appreciably less than that of Summer days.

Headlining the offering and affording the most interest to the housewife present were some splendid samples of Ontario grown Spy apples. Price levels were the same as quoted last week in spite of the heavy movement. A few stocks to outside markets during the week, however. Reds, Tolmans, Greenings, in fact practically all varieties were offered at $1 each. "Grounders" were available at $1.50 while baskets sold anywhere from 15c up.

The last reported supply of pears was offered at the six quart basket, while blue and white grapes sold at 10c per basket. Fresh plums were fairly plentiful and moved at 5c per lb. or 25c the basket.

Eggs Easier

Egg offerings were down slightly from previous days of the week ago, but quotations were fairly steady. Fresh eggs were offered at 40c, tops, but in some quarters they were to be had for 35c. Mixed lums and pullets were quoted at 30c and 32c respectively. Farmers' butter offerings were at 30c per pound.

The chicken offering was fairly heavy with a quantity of fowl being in evidence. Prices were fairly uncertain age and quality was often the deciding factor in determining prices for sale. Of excellent quality the birds weighed in unanimously at an average of 5 lbs. each were offered at $1.75 each. A few ducks were in evidence at $1 upwards.

Potato prices were steady with 75 pound bag lots offered at $1.40. Bushels were quoted at 90c and $1. A few bushels were offered at 80c but these were of poor quality.

Vegetables were sold by the bushel with cabbage at $1 per head and beets at 60c and onions at $1.25. A few homegrown tomatoes were available at 30c the basket.

Fresh lake trout and whitefish headed a splendid display of fish in the former selling at 20c the pound and the whitefish at 30c. Pickerel commanded the same price with fresh lake herring offered at 15c and 20c. Fish was quoted at 10c the pound and a few mudcats sold at two pounds for 25c.

SCOTTISH

Trails of smoke from gunfire were clearly seen in the sky. It was the first air raid warning in the British Fourth and Scottish Command.

Air raid precaution personnel also was put on the alert for half an hour when Belleville Spitfire and Air Force fighter planes took off for defence, but the precautionary measure was lifted when no out a general alarm having been sounded.

Bullets Fall in Street

Mr. Macdonald was killed in the main street of one town. Several spent bullets spattered a few yards away from the station in a side silent arena.

The two shooting given the inhabitants was the sound of firing. Civilians on this was the second occasion on which raiders have been driven off without air battle having apprehended.

A witness quoted by the Press Association said: "Machine gun fire shot down tried desperately to land on the water. Fighting machines and more than one hundred people gathered on one spot to watch the air battle. It was a dramatic scene.

Finally this witness said the German plane "came down on a hillside, burst into flames and even then the pilot would not give up.

Ran Along Ground

"He tried to get the machine into the air again and ran along the ground for about half a mile before he had to stop."

After the bodies to sound air raid warnings during the raid at the Firth of Forth October 16th, Sir Kingsley Wood, Secretary for air, announced a new policy under which warnings would be given only when d anger appeared imminent so as to prevent interruption of industrial and civil activities.

Taxpayers in an East Lothian town protested to the authorities over the failure to sound the sirens. They said the firing overhead came so quickly there was not sufficient time to take cover.

A lookout at work on the roof of the police station said he picked up three spent bullets.

R.A.F. FLIERS

graphs as a basis for shelling enemy positions.

Most Daring Feat.

The planes at this field were being used strictly for reconnaissance. John Hilton Macartney, author of the famous "pamphlet raids".

It was one of these planes which performed one of the war's most daring feats—a flight 600 feet above the wetwell and 200 feet above shipping while the Germans, who apparently had no knowledge of the approaching planes, waved gaily at the pilot and crew. I asked an officer what the feat was like.

"Oh, he waved back at them," the officer said.

When a plane returns from one of these photographic missions, the films go directly to self-contained development units which, like every thing else in the R.A.F. Force are highly mobile. These units look like large motor transports and inside all the equipment is the newest obtainable. The films are rushed to me almost reverently by an R.A.F. sergeant, who said if the films developed as they thought it would be "the busiest place in France."

Photographs taken are "Observers".

Photographs taken so far have ranged almost the entire German Siegfried Line. In addition the airmen have picked up many interesting facts relative to the singularly clear views of ion bases.

The number of men used on the ground to put one man in the air ranges between seven and ten. The planes must be camouflaged and overhauled, and fuel and food has to be provided up to the aircraftships.

The R.A.F. is supplied by bases scattered the length and breadth of France. From them, a squadron may get sandwiches, an engineer or a wing to a spare pair of rubber boots.

prize crew had taken her because the U.S. Government "insists upon it, "unceasworthy".

Freighter Not Disclosed.

Especially what progress the freighter was making was not disclosed. Neither her route nor destination was disclosed. Earlier reports said that the ship was being taken to Hamburg, but authorized sources were vague on that point today.

Foreign office spokesmen said such a step constituted a naval secret, and it was emphasized the crew of the American freighter was interested in the ship. Her cargo of tractors and other goods originally was consigned to Britain.

Acknowledges Loss of Ships.

The German announcement meanwhile, acknowledged that the loss of the ships would be considered to be counted on in view of their long absence.

High Command claimed that since the beginning of the war at least 2,000,000 tons ships with an aggregate tonnage of 475,331 had been sent to the bottom by German.

"Inasmuch as unconfirmed reports have been published in this compilation it must be assumed that the actual figure are considerably higher," the communique said.

As to the war on the Western Front, the High Command said "Artiller artillery activity" and between the Siegfried and Maginot Lines late Forest and said a small enemy advance west of Warndt had been repulsed.

Hallowe'en Party For A.Y.P.A. Group

The regular meeting of Christ church A.Y.P.A. was held in the Parish Hall and took the form of a Hallowe'en party.

Games, well told stories and refreshments provided the evening's entertainment. The guests came in costume and were judged accordingly which made judging the costumes a difficult task. Miss Barbara Ireland was awarded the prize for the best dressed lady while Wilfie Jackson captured the men's prize.

Much enjoyed refreshments were served in home decorated in Hallowe'en colors after which the meeting closed with singing "God Save the King."

BOOKS TODAY NOT CHEERFUL DUE TO TERRIFIC AMOUNT OF DEPRESSION, SAYS NOTED WRITER

Miss Margaret Lawrence Addresses Women's Canadian Club Friday

REVIEWS BOOKS

"The Writing on our Walls," an analysis of the trend of contemporary literature, was the theme of a most interesting address given by Margaret Lawrence, author of "School of Femininity," when the Women's Canadian Club was privileged to have as guest speaker at the annual luncheon held at the Quinte Hotel yesterday afternoon.

As writer and critic, Miss Lawrence has her finger on the pulse of literary endeavour and in her interpretation of the significance and value of modern writing was presented in scholarly, and entertaining style. On two former occasions, Miss Lawrence had spoken at meetings of the local club and the enthusiasm of previous receptions was overshadowed by the welcome given her yesterday by members who have come to claim her as a charming friend. This feeling was expressed very aptly by the club president, Mrs. G. E. Argue, when she presented Miss Lawrence to her audience.

Explaining her choice of title Miss Lawrence recalled her conviction, advanced in her earlier lectures, and to which she has adhered in her career, that a writer gives back to his readers what they are already thinking: a writer, a really good writer, is a sensitive, mediumistic person. For this reason books today are not cheerful; there has been a terrific amount of depression and suffering in the last few years and this state of mind must needs be reflected in present day writings.

Some Mercenary Writers

Unfortunately today there are among writers the distinctly mercenaries who, like this class of soldier of old who joined any cause with no personal loyalty save to the dollar, present any doctrine, that will bring them most returns. The subtle methods of such cleverly trained propagandists is more dangerous than that of the "high pressure" writer. Equally dangerous is the work of the confused writer, whose emotions and findings are not accurate. Readers must be alert to such forces in writing of the present day.

As a test for books, for attitudes and reactions the advice of an Oxford professor "verify your references" might well be adopted by the serious reader. Applying this method, Miss Lawrence discussed Clarence Streit's "Union Now," a thorough study of the principles, the doctrines and the foundations of federation. As an idealist who does not subscribe to the attitude of the European fatalist who accepts blood feuds and racial hatreds as inevitable, the author believes the democracies can form a central federation with sufficient force behind it to be a world influence. This book should be particularly interesting to Canadians who enjoy the great privileges and opportunities that confederation has offered and by all those on this continent, while not settled by people who believed that America was the second chance of mankind. In connection with this treatise should be read Professor Wrong's "The Canadian" which, with great charm, for the first time makes a whole flow of the story of Canada from the principles behind its exploration and development to its life today. And a companion volume should be "The Monroe Doctrine and World Peace" by Dexter Scudder if one wished to approach, with understanding, well equipped, the spirit of the United States' relations with other nations.

Very Much Confused

Vincent Sheehan's "Not Peace but a Sword" did not measure up to the "verity your references" test, for reople its charm, exquisite style, and the literary reputation of the author it was not exactly accurate reporting and write honest it was very confused. Hermann Rauschning's "Revolution of Nihilism" was a significant book by a man who was in Nazism a return of the 19th century Russian revolutionary doctrine of destruction and would warn the world of its danger. Nazism would destroy the whole fabric of society and subject it to a pattern of Nazi totalitarianism. But the historical perspective makes one realize that human nature does not work this way. History keeps some time ago and goes on, from epoch to epoch. Revolutionaries still do not realize, that they cannot clear one set of circumstances out by violence without setting up conditions equally bad or worse. They never learn the lesson of history. Miss Lawrence also recommenced Benes' "Lectures on Democracy" and Churchill's "Step by Step."

The much discussed "Grapes of Wrath" by John Steinbeck was a magnificent story that undertakes to warn the people of the United States that they are on the eve of a revolution. It is unfair for the author, however, to throw the blame for certain conditions on one class of people, and revealed a not very historical mind. Somewhat of a shock and of virile strength it will be found shocking to those of a sensitive mental texture. Miss Lawrence read from the book a particularly interesting passage from one of the finest portraits ever done of a woman.

Interesting Document

J. Allen Boone's "Letters to Strangheart" has an interesting and educative document of the life of this great dog; the historical and beautiful works—Margaret Irwin's "The Bride" and Doris Leslie's "Another Cynthia," and the important collection of Col. Lawrence's documents, however, fragmentary. Oriental Assembly were briefly touched by the speaker who also drew attention to Charles Morgan's "Fountain" by Shalom Asch as well worthy of one's reading time.

"The Changing Scene" by Frank-in McDowell soon to be published, was briefly spoken of as a notable contribution and that of others who had seen the manuscript, a rich gift to Canada and one of the most beautiful things ever written of the Dominion. A most significant spiritual story it gave, as a Protestant journalist put it, "exactly what I should saw it, the moving story of the Jesuit martyrs who made of Port Ste Marie the first social centre Canada had known. Artistic for the background and the feeling that the lessons of heroic sacrifice of that period of national development have a lasting value today should impel Canadians to-wards this volume and to the message it transmits.

Appreciation of Miss Lawrence's address was charmingly voiced by Mrs. Argue. A happy moment in the afternoon's program was the arrival of a telegram from a former president, Mrs. H. Williams of Owen Sound, by which she conveyed greetings to the club and Miss Lawrence and regretted that she could not be present at the meeting.

Y'S MEN'S CLUB TO HOLD FROLIC

Club Expects 700 Kiddies at "Y" on Hallowe'en Night

Although Hallowe'en is usually given over to mischief and hilariousness, the practice of the wilful destruction of property throughout the country on this night of bogeymen and mischief-makers has been very much minimized of recent years. It is through the efforts of such service club organizations as the Belleville Y's Men's Club, who annually sponsor a Hallowe'en Frolic, that serious property damage has been somewhat curtailed.

Not only will the Y's Men's Club hold their annual Hallowe'en Frolic at the Y.M.C.A. on Tuesday evening next, but a costumed parade of all those to attend will be held through the main thoroughfares of the city, headed by a band composed of musicians from the Belleville Collegiate band under the direction of leader Tommy Cooper will be one of the highlights of the evening's free entertainment to be provided by the Y's Men's Club.

Upwards to 700 costumed kiddies have been entertained on Hallowe'en by the Y's Men in the "Y" gymnasium at which time apples and candies are distributed among the children present with the assistance of the city police. During the evening an impromptu program of recitations, stunts an songs is provided the adults present with prizes given to the winners. The Y's Men's Club also donate prizes for the best costumes, most original costumes and comical costumes paraded at the "Y".

President Harold Vaughan of the Y's Men's Club stated today all children in the city were invited to attend the 12th annual Y's Men's Hallowe'en Frolic and urged the parents to assemble at the time the splendid program that is annually presented by the talented children of this city. It's all free and all are guests of the Y's Men's Club at the Y.M.C.A. on Hallowe'en.

FINLAND GETS REPLY READY

Will Not Yield on Points Regarded as Endangering Independence

Helsingfors, Oct. 28—(AP)—The Finnish Cabinet today was prepared to say what will unofficial political circles regarded as Finland's final answer to Russia's demands in the diplomatic campaign for extended power in the Baltic.

Finns said there would be no yielding on points which Finland regarded as endangering her independence and neutrality.

Helsingfors Parkmen dug new trenches in the parks today as the cabinet worked over new instructions for the delegation, headed by Dr. Juho Paasikivi, who planned to leave tomorrow or Monday for Moscow. Frontier districts largely have been deserted by civilians and occupied by thousands of regular army troops and reservists.

WAR BRIEFS

Paris, Oct. 28—(CP)— Havas News agency reported from Berlin today that all German Communists imprisoned in the Reich except Ernst Thaelmann have been released.

Thaelmann, one-time honorary president of the Comintern who received 5,000,000 votes when he ran for President of Germany in 1932, has been imprisoned without trial since the Nazi accession to power, Havas said.

Rio De Janeiro, Oct. 28 (AP) The Brazilian liner Santarem, bound for Brazil, reported today she had encountered off the Canary Islands a German submarine, which came to the surface nearby to ascertain her nationality.

NURSE OFFERS HER SERVICES FOR THE FIFTH TIME

If the offer of Miss Celia Lefleur, of Kingston are accepted for war-work, it will be the fifth war in which she has given time and labors. A native of Wolfe Island, she left her home in early years in Chicago and recently returned to Kingston to live.

In the Civil War she did considerable sewing for the troops and was rewarded by a medal. During her stay in Chicago she received a medal, which was given for fought in the Philippines, in the Spanish-American War, and in the Boxer Rebellion of 1914-18.

Born on Wolfe Island, the daughter of Peter Lefleur, she lived there until she was seventeen years old. Coming to Kingston at that age she learned the tailoring business and later went to Chicago where she remained for a period of thirty years.

She followed the occupation of tailoress, a business she remained in until after the Great War. She then became a practical nurse at Fort Sheridan Hospital. Returning to Kingston she followed that profession for some time.

Miss LaFleur has told authorities that if her services are needed, they are available, and she fully expects to take a part in her fifth wartime effort.

CLEAR SKY PERMITS VIEWING OF ECLIPSE

A blood-red moon, with a silver of silver edging adorning its western tip, shone down from a cloudless sky last night.

Grey wisps of scud that flitted across the sky prior to the partial eclipse disappeared shortly before the first shadow appeared on the moon at 11.46 p.m. From that time on interested spectators had a clear view of the heavenly phenomenon.

Gradually the reddish shadow crept over the brilliant surface of the moon. By 1.30 a.m., its surface was approximately half covered and by three o'clock the eclipse had reached its maximum. Approximately ninety-nine per cent of the moon's surface was covered with the earth's shadow, but the contour of the moon was distinguishable through the shadowy covering.

Shortly after three o'clock the earth passed through the orbit of the moon and before four, or shortly after, the eclipse was over.

ECLIPSE OBSERVED IN ENGLAND

London, Oct. 28—(CP) — The eclipse of the moon was observed in England early today. It began a few minutes before 6 a.m. and the "bite" became steadily larger, reaching its maximum at 7.26 a.m. when increasing daylight spoiled the spectacle for all but astronomers.

Dense clouds obscured the eclipse in Ontario, astronomers said at Toronto. The eclipse started at 11.54 p.m. E. S. T. and passed out of the shadow at 3.18 a.m. Saturday.

NUMBERS RACKET EXTENDS TO WINDSOR

Windsor, Oct. 28—(CP)—Detroit racketeers have extended the numbers racket operation to Windsor, according to Crown Attorney J. S. Allan. The numbers or policy game is a lottery. In Detroit it is dominated by Negroes. Sergeant John Watson of the Windsor morality squad claims there are fifteen agents in Windsor for the Detroit syndicate.

TO DIE FOR WIFE MURDER

Oklahoma City, Oct. 28—(CP) Roger Cunningham, 34, must die in the electric chair for strangling his wife last March and burying her body in a secret ditch. The verdict was reached last night by a jury which had listened to five days of testimony much of which sought to prove Cunningham was insane.

ALL RETURN SAFELY

London, Oct. 28—(CP)—The Air Ministry announced today that the Royal Air Force carried out reconnaissance flights over "certain areas in Southern Germany" during the night and that all British planes returned safely.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, October 29

SUNDAY'S horoscope is contradictory. There is splendid promise for auspices and happy personal activities, mainly in emotional, romantic, social or artistic affairs, but there also may be sudden upheaval, turbulence and devastating situations.

Those whose birthday it is may find their spiritual and subtle forces may be the means of offsetting and manoeuvering difficult, or are suddenly precipitated.

A child born on this day, while having certain eccentric, violent and reckless tendencies, may also have a calm, calculating, mystical or spiritual inner nature to fall back on in devastating circumstances, probably in the love life.

For Monday, October 30

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a generally favorable and propitious state of affairs, providing utmost precaution is exercised in the handling of all manner of papers, writings and documents. In this there are no possible illusion. Romantic, emotional or social activities flourish.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year of progress, happiness and prosperity, in both business and personal life, if they will be prudent with all writings, guarding against fraud and litigation.

A child born on this day may be talented, resourceful and fairly ambitious, although its social or sentimental life may over-shadow its desire for accomplishment.

Active War Fronts

What we are witnessing in Europe is an extraordinary demonstration that the basic conditions of war have changed no less than the mental attitude toward fighting.

Perplexed observers continue to regard the military front as the main line of offence and defence, whereas today it is actually the auxiliary line, the force held in reserve. If the movements on other fronts are recorded on a map as advances and retreats, it would be apparent to everybody that this conflict, instead of lacking action, has been marked by a series of rapid movements and shifts of weight quite as important in their effect as major battles.

This demonstration is underlined by a dispatch from Mr. Tolischus in yesterday's Times describing the overturn taking place in the Baltic states as Soviet Russia moves in and Germany moves out. The striking point in this displacement is that the power assuming control is Soviet power, as imperialistic in its drive toward the West as Peter the Great, but at the same time revolutionary in its purpose to "proletarianize" these outposts as a springboard for further conquests. This withdrawal, on the other hand is not a Nazi exodus. It is the retreat of a German people trained in the commercial and cultural domination of the Baltic ports since the days of the Hanseatic League. Hitler may believe that he is surrendering these strategic positions temporarily while eliminating British influence in the Baltic, but Stalin, obviously providing against this come-back by sweeping out the Germans, may be said to be collaborating with Hitler in delivering a blow to the real interests of Germany as great as any inflicted by the limited "Diktat" of Versailles.

Meantime, two other notable engagements are in progress. In Moscow the Finnish delegation resumes negotiations in an atmosphere somewhat lighter than before its position has been strengthened by the display of solidarity by the Scandinavian states, the appeal of President Roosevelt and the Turkish pact with Britain and France. And in Berlin the civilian general staff of the Nazi regime, the gauleiters from every district of Germany, have received orders to fortify the home front against the demoralization of the "hunger blockade." There was no word of trump in the solemn warning that the Allies were subjecting Germany to a "war of nerves," for nothing seems to astonish and outrage the Nazi strategists so much as the use of their favorite weapon against themselves. But the chief significance of the complaint is the admission that the blockade is beginning to be felt and the additional evidence that of all the fronts in this strange war at least two—the psychological, the economic and the diplomatic—are the scenes of battles more important and decisive than the military front.— New York Times.

Air Raids $1,000,000 Each

The cost of a first class bombing plane is given at $200,000.

Presumably, Germany used her best in the raids of early this week on Firth of Forth and Scapa Flow.

A summary of the raids figures cates that eight of the enemy craft were shot down.

It, therefore, works out that Germany paid about $3,000,000 in addition to loss of personnel, for such slight damage to two warships that neither of them was rendered unfit for immediate service.

If Germany has any sense, of proportion and value she will give up these raids, unless more material results can be obtained; which is not at all likely.—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

MARVEL OF PLASTIC SURGERY RESTORES FEATURES OF GIRL

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—"Be Mo," told the story of her transformation—without disclosing the name—to members of the society of plastic and reconstructive surgery yesterday.

She cut a diagonal line across the middle of her forehead, temple to temple. He drew the upper part of the eyebrows. He drew downward the lower part, on which there was eyebrows.

"This left most of the forehead in broad, raw strip," he explained. "I performed a free skin graft."

Dr. Brown then cut a line from the side of one nostril upward along the nose, over the bridge, and down the other side. He drew the skin down, exposing the raw surface of the nose, upon which he stitched a patch. Below each other eyelid, he stitched a crescent of new skin.

"Then he began to make eyebrows.

"On each side of her forehead he cut slits until he came to arteries which feed and keep alive the eyebrows. From her head, he cut into her flesh, sewing them on as eyebrows. Then he drew over the arteries, to nourish the transplant."

When he came to the cheekbone, he invigorated and stiff—he took them off. From her legs he took flesh and made new cheeks, stitched them on, and trimmed the edge.

He clipped the eyebrows, and smoothed out the last irregularities, Then he told the girl to do as other girls do—use a little makeup—and be happy.

Air-Raid Warnings In Different Parts Of England Heard

Two Unidentified Planes, Presumably German, Fly Zig-Zag Course from Northeast England to Kent

WARNING IN LONDON

Alarm, However, Proves False but in East Lothian Area Heavy Fire is Heard and Machines Seen in Combat

London, Oct. 30 (CP)—British fighter planes went up to investigate the presence of unidentified aircraft off the Essex coast today and a German plane also was seen over the northeast coast, the Air Ministry announced.

Air raid signals were sounded in London by mistake.

The Ministry issued two communiques, the first saying:

"An air raid warning which was given in the east Kent area this morning was due to the presence of unidentified aircraft off the east coast proceeding south.

"British fighter aircraft went up to investigate.

"As announced, the all-clear signal was sounded 10 minutes later."

Second Communique

The second communique said:

"An enemy aircraft was observed off the northeast coast of England this morning. The British fighter aircraft went up to investigate, whereupon the enemy aircraft made off in an easterly direction and no contact could be made."

Three sailings of British ships due to enemy action were announced. The freighter Marsabae was torpedoed yesterday with the loss of five lives. 70 survivors being landed in the Isle of Man today. The other losses were the British fishing trawlers Sir Nidan and Lynx II, with no loss of life.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Air pressure and wind? If the air pressed down upon the sea surface everywhere with the same force there would be no wind. It is because of the uneven distribution of this pressure that there are winds. Therefore, wind depends upon air pressure, there must be some law expressing this relation. Almost 100 years ago Buys Ballot, a Dutch meteorologist, first formulated the law which is: "If you stand with your back to the wind the air pressure is lower on your left than on your right." Actually the lowest pressure at the surface is a little forward and left but above 1,500 feet the law as stated above exactly describes the condition. The deviation from the law at the surface is due to the friction of the earth upon the wind.

Two Canadian Jesuit Missionaries Wounded

Peiping, China, Oct. 30—(CP)—Two Canadian Jesuit missionaries wounded by Japanese gunfire Saturday were identified today as Brothers E. Gauvin and L. Fournier.

The shootings, said by the Japanese to have occurred in error when a sentry thought the missionaries were "trying to escape," occurred at a Japan 10 miles southwest of Suchow.

Brother Gauvin was shot through the side and in the shoulder. He was operated on at Suchow and given a blood transfusion. His condition was described as serious but improving."

Brother Fortaine was shot in the back and through the shoulder. His condition also was serious.

A third missionary, Rev. L. Bourassa, was accompanying the wounded to Suchow hospitals.

The Japanese sentry reported he fired at a distance of 230 yards after vainly attempting to halt the priests."

ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS PLACED

Used for Protection of Troops and Planes on British Front

With the Royal Air Force Somewhere in France, Oct. 30 (Reuters)—Emplacement of anti-aircraft guns for protection of British concentration depots and planes in France is being pushed forward rapidly.

All week territorial army gunners have been installing their armament in fields overlooking the Royal Air Force secret airdromes. When newsmen visited a battery area which depends on one of these airdromes the first of a number of quick-firing guns belonging to the regiment was being dragged from cover to its newly prepared base. The tractor had to plough through thick French mud on its way to the nearest ground when an emplacement had been dug. Its wheels failed to grip in the mire. From behind made little difference. Operations were temporarily suspended.

"Just our luck to get here after rain," said the commanding officer.

The took correspondents over to look at the type of camouflage for the gun when in position. Three members became part of the gun screen, returning from exercise.

"When the enemy comes like that we hope to get them," said the commanding officer.

He spoke modestly enough for an officer of one of the oldest anti-aircraft units forming. The unit is now not only ready to protect bombers in the neighboring airdrome, it will also assist in protecting the headquarters of the Royal Air Force in France.

More than one such regiment has been sent out, and others may come. They will join those of the regular army.

Golden Gate Fair Artistic Success But Financial Flop

San Francisco, Oct. 30—(AP)—The 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition ended last night. And its historians wrote of today that it was an artistic success, but a financial flop.

Bets were about even that the $50,000,000 show on Treasure Island would be re-opened in 1940.

A total of 147,674 persons paid admissions on the closing day, bringing the attendance for its 254 days of operation to 10,466,203.

Whether the Exposition will be re-opened next year appeared to depend on the wishes of creditors, who have their choice of holding up apparently good assets in ready cash now, or gambling that another season of operations would enable the Exposition to pay off in full its $4,606,814 of debts.

Thirty-five nations and a majority of the 48 United States participated in the exhibits. Japan erected a $1,000,000 building and installed an $8,000,000 art display, Italy participated with $2,000,000 worth of art masterpieces and a separate Italian exposition building, and Russia, massive building, Germany was not represented.

Unofficial sources said the United States government erected and still was in the hands of the German crew and attempting to dodge the British blockade on a return run from Murmansk to German ports.

But officials said that when the City of Flint docks "there will be no information as to her ship".

Enthusiasm over Nazi claims of success in eight weeks of submarine war led some Germans to the conclusion that Britain's rulers have discovered a weak spot in Great Britain's defence. SNOW CRUISER ON EVEN KEEL

Raised from Ditch in Which it Tumbled on Saturday

Lima, O., Oct. 30 (AP)—Giant snow cruiser, built for an Antarctic expedition but trapped in a small country ditch, was brought to its own keel today and workmen continued their slow job of jacking it up to a level from which the monster could move forward onto an adjoining pasture.

The 75,000-pound machine, constructed in Chicago for Admiral Richard E. Byrd, was hoisted from a bridge into Pine Run at nearby Grover Saturday and dropped, sinking in mud and water from an eighteen-foot depth. Only minor damage was taken from Chicago to Boston. No one was injured.

Byrd's 55-man, 8-month 50,000 persons jammed into the little village yesterday for a glimpse of the craft. Workmen managed to set the machine upright.

ALICE BRADY DIES

New York, Oct. 30 (AP) — Alice Brady, celebrated star of stage and screen, died in Doctors Hospital here. She died only a few days before her forty-second birthday.

The end came only three weeks after her famous producer-father, William A. Brady, brought her here from Hollywood for treatment for the illness which she knew for the last year or more would be fatal.

In addition to her father and her step-mother, Actress Grace George, she is survived by a son, Donald Crane, the latter's brother Actor James Lyon Crane, from whom Miss Brady was divorced in 1922.

Comic and Wife Due for Trip To the Courts

Hollywood, Oct. 30—(AP)— Stan Laurel, the comic, and Illana, his former wife, appear due for another trip to the courts.

The Russian Illana, from a hospital bed where her physician said she was recovering from "a temporary nervous disorder," announced she would seek to set aside her divorce he won by default last May.

Her attorney, S. S. Stahn, announced the announcement with the statement:—

"Illana contends that Laurel got his divorce fraudulently through collusion. I will file suit to set aside the decree and property settlement."

Terms of the settlement have never been revealed. It was reached last April as a compromise of her demand for $1,000 monthly alimony.

Laurel, who was made a score of o.ur. appearances since he married Illana three years ago in the first four months of 1938, said that if she wants to go court and battle it out with him the whole truth about it all. I'm just being persecuted."

Russian Support of Bulgaria's Claims on Rumania Crux of Situation

ITALY ACTIVE

Budapest, Oct. 30—(AP)— Anxiety over rivalry between Soviet Russia and Italy for influence in the Balkans sharpened southeastern Europe's watch today for a clue to Moscow's intentions.

Foreign offices of the Balkan countries hoped to hope for a statement on Russia's aims when the Supreme Soviet meets tomorrow.

Crux of the situation was reported as the Russian support for Bulgaria's territorial claims on Rumanian Dobrudja.

What Premier Turkey would follow in case Russia supported Bulgaria against Rumania was not forthcoming today. Diplomatic ceremonies celebrating the Turkish Republic's 16th birthday were held. Turkey and Rumania are in the Balkan Entente.

U. S. Freighter Manned by Nazis Norway Reports

Report is First Clue of Whereabouts of American Vessel Since Leaving Russian Port of Murmansk

NO DETAILS GIVEN

Captured Ship Halted Briefly at Tromso, Norway, on its Trip North in Charge of German Prize Crew

Stockholm, Oct. 30—(AP)—Reports from Norway today said the United States freighter City of Flint, released from a Soviet port by her German captors, had departed from Tromso, Norway, late this afternoon.

These reports were the first clue to the whereabouts of the American vessel which was taken to Murmansk, Russia, by a German prize crew following its capture while carrying a miscellaneous cargo to England.

The City of Flint was said to have sailed at 4 p.m. (10 a.m. EST) from Tromso, the northern Norwegian port where she captured and halted briefly on its northward journey to Murmansk more than a week ago.

There is about 800 miles from Murmansk and more than 800 miles from Hamburg, mentioned as the probable destination of the German prize crew.

Tromso newspaper sources in response to an inquiry about the City of Flint said they were forbidden by officials to give any information.

WAR BRIEFS

London, Oct. 30—(CP)— Naval experts said today the British Navy would be handicapped by nature in attempting to intercept the United States freighter City of Flint on its way to a German port, in the British view, the German prize crew readily could sail her down the coast of Norway to Germany, thus taking advantage of territorial waters to prevent the British Navy stepping in.

M. MacDONALD DENIES CHARGE

Takes Witness Stand and States He Never Killed a Man

Toronto, Oct. 30—(CP)—Donald (Mickey) MacDonald, being tried for the second time on a charge of murdering James Winsor, Toronto bookmaker, in the latter's North Toronto home last January, entered the witness stand today and said:—"I did not kill James Windsor. I've never killed a man in my life. I've never stuck a gun in a man in my life. I've never had a lie-detector test and I'll prove it."

MacDonald denied the testimony of James R. Shea, Crown witness, that on the night he was shot Lee guns into Shea's apartment and Shea, returning fire.

"John Shea framed me because he thought he had me double crossed over the Port Credit bank hold-up," MacDonald testified.

MacDonald is the man in whose apartment the night of the murder, Mrs. Winsor's friend of mine. I wanted to get something straightened out about that hold-up."

At Brampton a jury trial opened today of John Shea and two others on charges of wounding Raymond A. Bryant, accountant, and robbing him of $2,000 cash of Commerce Branch at Port Credit last December 9, the attorney general's department announced.

Those charged with the shooting at Shea stayed. The Crown continued its case against John Shea, Leo Gauthier and Alex MacDonald, brother of the accused.

Mickey MacDonald went in for dramatics during his testimony by telling Crown Attorney Hugh Guthrie as good as on that rope right now. I've sat looking at that rope for months for something I didn't do."

FINNISH GOVT DECIDES COURSE

Takes Attitude Russia Does Not Need Naval or Air Bases on Finnish Soil

Helsingfors, Oct. 30—(AP)—Authoritative sources in Finland today stated today the Finnish Government, in a "final answer" to Russia, declared it had taken the attitude that Russia needed no naval or air bases on Finnish soil and rejected her position on the Baltic and Arctic Ocean coasts.

The Finnish delegation to the Moscow conversations planned to leave tomorrow morning for a final session at the Kremlin. The actual subject of the negotiations remained the secret of Russian and Finnish leaders.

A Foreign office spokesman said only that the cabinet and leaders of various party groups in parliament had reached complete agreement on the Finnish course. Never before, he said, had the government been so united as in the present emergency.

RESIDENT REPORTS THEFT OF DYNAMITE

The mystery surrounding a stick of dynamite, found abandoned on Coleman Flats by a schoolboy last week, may find a solution in the reporting of a stick of dynamite having been stolen in Belleville, city police revealed today. William Harris, 43 Gordon Street, reported to police over the week-end that a stick of dynamite had been removed from his premises sometime during the past week. Mr. Harris stated he had the dynamite in a satchel one week ago, but did not discover its loss until Saturday. He immediately notified the authorities of the that some unsuspecting boy might have come upon the stick, but might have carried the dynamite away. later abandoning it without knowledge of the article being an explosive.

Tabernacle Marks Anniversary Metropolitan Church Band Plays

Rev. Dr. E. W. Young of Peterborough is Special Preacher of Day — Congregations Are Large

FESTIVAL OF MUSIC

Tabernacle United Church observed its anniversary with fitting services on Sunday last, which attained the accommodation of the church at both morning and evening services. Rev. Dr. E. W. Young of Peterboro was the special preacher for the day and the Metropolitan Church band, Toronto, played. In the morning the Rev. Dr. E. Young-Smith was in Peterborough preaching in the absence of the pastor in Belleville but Mr. McClintock was able to attend and assist in the evening services of thanksgiving on the completion of another successful year in the work of the church.

Reformation Theme.

Dr. Young in the evening spoke on "Reformation and Martin Luther." Reformation Sunday is not so much observed in this country as in the Old Land, Dr. Young said, but chose the text of Acts 17:5, "These that have turned the world upside down have come hither also." He declared the people of the New Testament days took the principle of Christianity and the principle of reformation has been one of the revolutionary forces in civilization. This was, he said, no doubt of the great qualities of leadership which Martin Luther, the reformer, possessed. Dr. Young told in his sermon, Sunday is not so much observed in this country as for schooling by all churches and Luther, he declared, studied for the law and just before the time he was to become a lawyer he changed his mind, heart was touched and he went into an Augustinian monastery to study for the priesthood. He studied St. Augustine, and the apostle Paul and from these he was influenced himself by his saintly qualities. The question of salvation also absorbed his attention and he thought deeply on the passage "The just shall live by faith". The history of the conversion of Luther and succeeding events was told.

Dr. Young said that the Reformation meant the return to the simple on justification by faith in Christ alone and that the authority of the Gospel is good news. The Reformation also meant the priesthood of the host of believers, said Dr. Young, in that every man and woman has a right of direct approach to God.

The congregation and minister of the church have reason for thanksgiving as the givings of the day reached the sum of $1,000 in addition over the givings asked for, to carry on the various activities of the church.

Metropolitan Church Band Plays.

A solo performance by the Metropolitan Church silver band of Toronto led by Mr. Sidney Record. When Bandmaster Jobson learned that his plans for bringing the organization here called for the same date as the anniversary of the Tabernacle Church, he immediately offered the services of the visiting band for the morning and evening services. The offer was gladly accepted and the choir and the organist joined with the bandmaster and organ loft for the band with the result that the congregations in both churches had the opportunity of hearing band from Metropolitan Church, Toronto. The opportunity of hearing the band from leading Belleville citizens visiting the Toronto play at both services. This band of the Metropolitan Church which has been called the cathedral of the former Methodist Church and of the United Church, of which the well-known minister and former moderator of the United Church, Rev. Dr. Peter Bryce is minister, is a fine adjunct to the musical services of that church. It proved its high standard as a musical organization by its performance here.

During the visit the band provided four programs in Belleville, a concert and evening at the church, at both church services on Sunday and at the evening service in the Capitol playing in Picton under the auspices of the Salvation Army and a Citadel Regiment before a packed congregation.

Band Entertained

On arrival in Belleville the visiting bandmen were entertained at dinner at the Tabernacle school rooms by the Ladies' Aid, of which Mrs. William Wonnacott is president. Bandmaster Jobson is son of the Belleville Municipal Band, introduced Band Leader Alfred Pierce and the members of his organization and Rev. D. T. Macilquham, pastor of the church, spoke a welcome on behalf of the congregation while Mr. Cecil Lees extended greetings on behalf of the committee of stewards to the Metropolitan visitors. The excellent program of music was given by the visiting band.

The musical services of the church were in charge of Mr. Sidney of the church to the fullest to hold the crowds, an excellent contribution to the worship and to the heartiness of the church was provided by the band. With prelude to the service, with settings of hymn arrangements for band the musicians played several numbers at each service and also played for the hymns sung by the congregation. The band earned golden praise for the excellence of their performances. This being a church band its interest centres in religious music for church services and therefore the music accompaniment for hymns are perfect in their requirements. The accompaniment of the hymns and the arrangements of hymns for band only were a joy to hear with that which pronounces this band one of the best trained civic bands in Canada. In interpretation of church music they excel. For instance, last evening they included as a prelude to the service as the congregation was assembling Dvorak's famous "Going Home" from "The New World Symphony," the supreme beauty of this number being caught with the finest appreciation by the band.

Over Thousand Attend

It is estimated that over thousand and fifty persons attended the evening service and the concert the Toronto band gave after the evening service. Bandmaster Jobson acted as chairman at the concert and paid tribute to the band as a musical organization. For nearly an hour and a half this body of musicians held the attention of the audience by their interpretation and the quality of their music. The program opened with the majestic march from "Tannhauser" followed with the stirring composition "1812" by Tchaikowski, where cannon musicians were required and where the band proved all its right to its fame. But it was also in the settings of hymns and in solo numbers and duets that the Toronto artists excelled.

Octette Sings Two Numbers

During the service the Belleville octette sang two fine numbers, "Battle Prayer" and "Now the Day is Over," the singers being Messrs. Bankier, Evans, Jobson, Bruff, Howard, Thomson, Moorman and Hudson.

Mr. Jobson directed the band in one number, "In a Monastery Garden."

A collection was taken up to help defray expenses of transporting the band.

After the evening service the Toronto bandsmen attended the service and the concert was entertained by the wives of the members of the Belleville Municipal Band.

Mr. Woods of the band expressed the pleasure the bandsmen had had in the visit to Belleville, spoke of the comradeship between the two bands and their members and thanked those who had helped to make their visit so pleasant. They were delighted to have been able to contribute to the services of the church and to the entertainment of the citizens of Belleville and district.

He Praised Local Hospitality

Mr. Jobson joined in thanks for the co-operation of the church authorities in the services and refreshments and citizens in whose homes the visiting bandsmen were billeted and the church.

Similar charges against Lucien Lavallee, of 67 Bridge St. East, were dealt with when it was learned that Lavallee was confined to the Toronto Don jail at the time of the alleged offence, on Oct. 11th last. Lavallee is charged with the theft from King Georges School is also pending against Drummond, who admitted the theft of a suit of clothes, a fedora hat and a topcoat today. Drummond's record of previous convictions was presented to the court by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., who pointed out that Drummond had used aliases on previous occasions.

When he asked the court for the Don Jail as the date of the Superior Cleaner break-in, Mr. Donnan remarked—"Well, that's a good safe place to be under these circumstances." Lavallee was dismissed from custody.

CORPORAL GREEN BID GOODBYE

R.C.M.P. Constable presented With Windbreaker Before Departure to Ottawa

Tribute to Corporal John Green of the Belleville detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police was paid by representatives of his comunit, the Provincial Police and city police of Belleville and officers of the county on Saturday when they presented him with a suede windbreaker prior to his departure for Ottawa and overseas.

Corporal Green has enlisted with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police until the duration of the present European war and left for the capital city today where he will join his unit.

The presentation was made by Inspector Frank Carlaw, officer in charge of the Belleville district of the,Ontario Provincial Police who in his address, after the presentation said, "Since you have been with us here in Belleville, you have earned the respect of all. And we are indeed sorry to see you go but we unanimously admire your spirit in doing it and join in wishing you the best of luck and a safe return."

Corporal Green, although taken by surprise, voiced his appreciation of the handsome gift and the spirit behind it.

Y'S MEN'S CLUB OF DISTRICT MEET AT BELLEVILLE "Y"

Regional Director, Burt Priddle of Midland Speaks on Aims and Objectives

TO ASSIST WAR

With delegates present from Sudbury, Midland, Toronto and intermediate points the annual Eastern district conclave of International Y's Men was held in the Belleville Y.M.C.A. over the week end, with the Belleville Y's Men's Club as the host club. Reports of International Y'sdom were heard and objectives reported upon.

At the Saturday evening open banquet, in the "Y" Auditorium, His Honor Judge Deroche of this city was the guest speaker when he gave an interesting and instructive address upon a subject thoroughly familiar with his official professional duties, the Dewsmouth Penitentiary prison break" of a few years ago. His Honor Judge Deroche was the presiding Judge at the trial of the inmates who rioted and attempted the prison break. The speaker was introduced by Bobb. Wright, of the Belleville Club, and thanked by Stan James, International Y'sdom Vice President, and by Harold Thompson, Past International Y's Men's President was the chairman of the evening.

Rev. Wight Speaks

During devotional service on Sunday morning, Rev. Wight of this city, spoke briefly on "Know Yourself". In his remarks Rev. Wight said "The great problem in the world today is its weakness, brought on because of a lack of knowledge of kind. Men do not realize their weaknesses and do not know what good safe place to be under these circumstances." Lavallee was dismissed from custody.

Regional Director Burt Priddle, Midland, was the guest speaker when the objectives of International Y'sdom and its program for 1939-40 and speaker stressed the necessity of taking over patriotic obligations under the present circumstances as an essential measure of service. Clifford West, Toronto, outlined the program of "World outlook" while District Gov. Frank Wilson spoke on "Boys' Work" projects and. Doug Winfield, Sudbury, outlined International Y's Men's Service projects. All clubs throughout the entire Eastern District of International Y'sdom were represented. President Harold Vaughan of Belleville, welcomed the visiting delegates.

BAKER SLUGGED WITH IRON PIPE BY AN UNKNOWN

J. H. Taylor, Bloomfield, Unable to Grapple With Assailant at Garage

HEAD IS CUT

Picton, Oct. 30 (Special)—As he stepped from his motor car, which he had just driven into the family garage, John H. Taylor, Bloomfield baker, was attacked by a mysterious assailant and struck over the head with an iron bar shortly after 12:30 a.m. today. Although stunned from the force of the blow and bleeding profusely from a three inch long cut, Mr. Taylor managed to keep his balance and his assailant apparently became frightened and disappeared into the darkness when Taylor tried to grapple with him. Nobody is believed to have been the motive, County Constable James Lovelace, Bloomfield, stated after an all-night search of the entire district without success.

Mr. Taylor returned from setting a batch of dough at the bake shop and left his car in the family garage. As I stepped out from the driver's side of my car, I was hit over the head. The blow stunned me, but I managed to keep my balance and lunged forward to try and catch my assailant in the dark, but I could see was a dim form of a man running out of the garage," Mr. Taylor told Constable Lovelace, who was immediately summoned to the scene by members of the family. Mr. Taylor was attended by Dr. Bedell.

The victim of the attack stated he could not get a good look at his assailant as it was dark in the garage, but he knew the man was medium height and did not wear a topcoat. He had on a dark suit and fedora hat. The piece of iron bar use by Mr. Taylor's assailant was found at the entrance to the garage, where it had been dropped by the man to attack Mr. Taylor as he became alarmed and ran away. Mr. Taylor was bleeding profusely from the wound inflicted on the side of the head.

A posse was organized by Constable Lovelace and the entire country side was searched without results, though at an early hour this morning a search was also made of the attack, which was apparently done by a stranger, as Mr. Taylor does not carry cash on his person when working. Ex-plained Constable Lovelace today.

PARASITES ARRIVE IN GOOD SHAPE

Forwarded to Tel-Aviv to Assist in Controlling Citrus Mealybug

On August 16th a consignment of insect parasites propagated at the Dominion Parasite Laboratory, Belleville, were forwarded to Palestine and had the distinction of being the first consignment of insect shipment accepted for air transportation across the Atlantic ocean on the flying boat Caribou leaving Montreal, Aug. 17th. Interested readers at the laboratory from Tel-Aviv states that the shipment reached there on Aug. 21st, the fourth day after leaving Montreal and that it was in most excellent condition with the greater number of the parasites alive. These parasites will be used by the citrus growers of Palestine in their efforts to control the citrus mealybug, a very destructive pest. The service provided by Trans-Canada Airways has been in great advantage during the past year in transporting parasites in Canada and this experiment in transoceanic shipment has demonstrated one of the important uses that may be made of extended air services in the future.

INSTALMENT 2

The warm clear tan of Rebecca's cheeks colored. There was no mistaking the look in Gavin Hood's eyes.

"I don't — believe so. And unexpected as it is, for herself she added: "I'm engaged to Joe, you know, and we have so much to do ——"

"Oh?" Gavin said with a glance for Joe. "That's it, is it? That's Joe? Well, lucky Joe. And when?"

"Last night. It regretfully, but with an air of casualness, of philosophic carelessness especially his own, immediately he had left her side and joined the group; he had to talk big to Lucy, keep up at him appreciatively. The woman did not like whose heart beat normally when Gavin turned the battery of his glance, his secure and sophisticated charm upon her.

Becky moved in a dream of him for the rest of the day and lay awake thinking about him at night. She did not want to do so; she felt it silly, reprehensible, disloyal. But there was no help for it. There was in her thoughts, a darkhaired tall man in tweeds with something in his glance, in his manner . . .

The few words he had said to her all came back. And especially she was haunted, as she lay quietly, electrically wakeful by those simple words: "Unlucky me. I've fallen in love with you."

It meant nothing. It meant everything. For, lying awake all night, she breakfasted in a dream, went to the kitchen in a dream.

The little Wintz boy was there. Royal Wintz, a spunky little fellow of five.

"You've got company at your house, haven't you, Royal?"

"Yes, ma'am, my cousin Ned."

"And another man with him!"

"The one what swallowed a nickel, at the birthday party Royal invited. Miss Rebecca laughed.

"Oh, yes, so. You tell him, when your teacher told him not to get swallowed," she said, but decided that Royal would not remember.

Monday always dragged. This Monday was a strange day of dreams and emotions, and sudden awakening from dreams. Nothing ordered and rational emotions. It dragged interminably, however. Becky felt languid and vague.

She was to meet Joe for supper downtown at seven. When she went into the office, Joe, deep in consultation with Judge Miller and his fellow lawbooks, looked up and said, "Becky, honey, just let me phone; I'll have to run out to his house."

"Oh, bother," said Becky amiably.

"Listen, you don't want to come," Joe said. "I'll drop you at home. If you get into town that the old judge wastes a lot of time in compliments and all that, and we'll miss the seven-thirty show. Let me eat something out there—his housekeeper always has some delicious thing on the sherry—and you—you——"

"I'll go across the street to the Saddle Rock, Joe, and have a bite, and you meet me there. If I go home, I'll get into something and sit all that. You go along, and I'll dawdle over my supper, and by then you shout seven."

"That'll do fine! What a partner you turned out to be!"

They descended to the street together. Joe to leap into his waiting car, Becky to saunter across to Saddle's one good restaurant and to study a menu card.

"Right Lovin Trout." The Saddle Rock was famous for them. Becky said that she would have trout.

"Alone?" said Gavin Hood, seating himself opposite here. "You aren't alone?" he asked, almost with awe. "It couldn't be that we're to have our dinner together? I've been thinking about you, and you've been thinking about me too, haven't you? This is fate. This is our fate."

"This is fate," she conceded with a little laugh. Joe would come for her in an hour. But this hour was here.

When Joe came back at a quarter past seven they were talking earnestly. Immediately the three left the restaurant together and separated, Gavin saying only, "I'll see you both again. I'm going to be here until Friday!" and Becky merely raising her eyes to his with an odd look that had something of bewilderment and something of expectation in it.

At the table in the Saddle Rock he had said, "It's very funny, this. I never see you until yesterday. But after all, you don't see an earthquake until it comes along. But it changes everything; it changes your whole life. I think I've been dreaming all my bachelor manhood, of a tall honey-colored girl with a face like yours! I don't say anything's going to come of it because I don't see what can come of it. You belong here; you're going to marry one of the Perrins. And I'm simply—nobody. I've tried more things and failed at more things than any other white man in America."

She had listened, saying very little. Of course nothing could "come of it!" It had never crossed her mind that anything could do so these whirlwind emotions that were shaking and possessing her. They were definite and breathtaking; how could anything more devastating result from them, when they themselves were so utterly, so strangely complete? Becky was like a person in a high fever. All life had retreated from her, was heard only by fate and seen but vaguely; there existed in her consciousness only one thought—the thought of this tall man with his rather white face and dark eyes and thick, dark brown hair, with his strange self-distrustful air of knowing the world despising the easy surface successes of many of the famous persons in that world, and yet so honestly admitting that he himself had tried many avenues of work without success.

On Wednesday Joe went with Judge Miller to Sacramento, to be gone overnight. Becky's mother always went to the club on second Wednesdays; Becky herself usually joined her there. But on this particular day, a winding day of soft rain, Becky said she had work to do at home, and came back to the house from school to find the place deserting and quiet at three o'clock, changed her gown, picked up a book and walked up to the village.

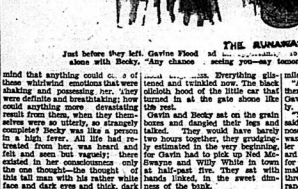
The great doors at each end were wide open; the soft air poured through, rich and fragrant from alfalfa and plowed fields. Becky turned in the doorway and looked down the slope of the hills east the farmhouse to the village. Rain was sweeping across it in a silver veil. Perhaps Gavin would not keep his appointment. But even while she watched, the clouds broke—and "Good Lord, why don't you go the sun burst out in blazing after-down there, then? It's hundred miles. You can make it in a day."

THE RUNAWAY-I

Just before they left. Gavins Flood ad ... alone with Becky. "Any chance ... seeing you every tomorrow?"

THE RUNAWAY-2

"You aren't alone?" he asked, al ...ost wit fawe. "It couldn't be that we're ... here together. I've been thinking about you. This is fate."



THE RUNAWAY-3

For a long ... e embrace held, and when they drew apart the girl was breathless, with a stinging mouth and fast-moving breast.

INSTALMENT 3

"I'll never forget you." Rebecca spoke slowly, her amber eyes full upon him. Gavin answered her lightly, with a little laugh that showed he was touched and shaken.

"I hope you won't, my dear. I hope these days will seem to you what they do to me, a little interval in our lives that's been—his eyes watered, although he was smiling—"that's been darned sweet!" he finished it youthfully.

And quite suddenly they were in each other's arms, their lips together, Becky's rifle all but cracking under the force of his hold. For a long time the embrace held, and when they drew apart the girl was breathless, with a stinging mouth and fast-moving breast. Neither spoke. They looked at each other ... full minute in complete silence.

... the village the shrill high pipe of the five o'clock mill whistle faintly sounded.

"I'm sorry," Gavin said in the silence.

Becky turned upon him a radiant face. Her eyes shone. "But why?" she asked, frightened, quick, laughing. "We—can't help it. It's no harm."

Gavin got down from the feed box. "I have to go," he said in a cooled, quiet voice. "I told Willy a little after five——"

Chilled in her turn, Becky walked beside him. In a streak of sudden sunset light they crossed the yard to his car, and he got in. "Why couldn't I be Joe Perrin, Jr?" he said, his fine hand playing on the wheel. "Why couldn't I marry a good job, a rich father? Wouldn't it be easy? Well, we leave Friday at six in the morning. So I'll not see you again."

He drove away and Becky went in to the kitchen with her head spinning, joy and despair and doubt and utter confusion in her soul. But the joy predominated; the world was about her; it was with difficulty that she could keep her feet on the ground.

Oh, oh, oh, what a thing it was to feel like this! This was being in love, of course, having a man in your arms hard and big about you, feeling his face against yours, his own, his lips pressing yours— Oh, Gavin, Gavin!

She went through dinner. At eight o'clock the telephone bell rang. She knew it would be Gavin's voice.

"Rebecca," Gavin said, "just say yes or no. Don't say my name! Say it's the most superstitious girl in the world of my seeing you tonight?"

"No," she said, trembling.

"Will you meet me at the movie with the Whites and me? They're going. New bill tonight."

"No. They're holding it over. Joe and I went Monday night, you know. Thank Mrs. White for me, will you?"

Silence came back to the kitchen. "The Whites were going to the show," she explained. She moved restlessly about, not knowing what to do with herself.

"You miss Joe." Sarah said in monotonous tones. Becky could see no more to bring her mind; her thoughts to Joe than to the pyramids.

Twenty minutes later Gavin Flood came into the Gilmore kitchen. He was spattered and dripping, for he had driven in the rain; Willy White had had to go on up to the Peraltas', and since Joe was away, Gavin ... might as well stop in and say hello to Rebecca.

He stayed only about twenty minutes. Becky introduced to her mother ... and chatted with them agreeably by turns.

The thought that his need to see her was as keen as hers to see him, that he had not been able to resist the impulse to run out to the ranch and talk to her, even for a moment only, even before them all, was as wine to her spirit. She forgot Joe; she could not think of Joe. And again she lay wakeful all through the night, dreaming and remembering.

The next day Gavin came to the kindergarten, and she telephoned her mother that she could not be home for luncheon, and Gavin ate she went to the cafeteria. They chose a remote corner, half hidden behind a post, and for an hour and twenty minutes had the world to themselves.

Becky was late in returning to the kindergarten for the second time in three years. And after thirty-eight mothers, the children Rebecca was free to walk home. Her mother asked her about the man who had stood at the gate with her Monday.

"Gavin. Gavin Flood. He walked home with me."

"Humph!" said Sarah.

"He goes tomorrow at five in the morning," Rebecca volunteered with a casual air. She could almost hear her mother's "Thank the Lord!" After dinner Rebecca said she was going over to the Eldridges' for a minute.

Gavin was at the gate in the streaming moonlight. There had been no appointment, but she had known he would be. They linked hands. They went a little way down the road to where there was a fence rail, and Becky balanced on it. Gavin standing with his arm about her, and they talked for a long long time. His girl seated her self ... ample against his, one arm was about his neck.

"Sweet, dearest, isn't this strange?"

"Oh, strange!"

"What's happened to us?"

"I don't know. Gavin ——"

They said each other's names said them again and again.

"You're going to marry Joe!"

She laughed ruefully in the dark place. But today it was the fifth of October—but now!

"You mean you won't?"

"I mean I can't. I couldn't. I've been thinking all day—trying to think all day. I simply can't, wearily again. "But I can't think! I'm complicated.

"You tell me to marry Joe?" Becky asked in a laughing manner, her lips against his temple.

"I say that that's the only happiness there is for you."

"Why, Gavin," she said regretfully, "I'm going to be happy. I'm going to be very soon married. Willy White! That's—over. It was my life; it was all arranged a short time ago and now—everything. Now it's over. I've been trying to think it all through, but I can't. I can't think it might be best just to let things drift, and not name any day for my wedding, and eventually let it die."

"And meanwhile, darling, what will you be doing?"

"Meanwhile?" she said.

"Becky, I swear to you it won't be long! I'll get a job; I'll find a way. I'll be able to marry you. But suppose it's months, sweetheart? Suppose it's a year? Can you wait?"

"I'll live," Becky said simply; "somehow I will live."

"But they can make it so hard for you, darling. They're all set on your marrying Joe."

She was silent a moment. "I'll write them," she said then.

"And you'll wait?"

"Why, I'll promise you. I've six hundred dollars." Becky said suddenly, "I never thought of it! We could live on that until things were better."

Gavin turned suddenly and kissed her fingers. "You're such an adorable kid!" he said simply. "No, dear, we can't do that. But I'll not be able to thank you and I've never had any trouble getting work."

"You might be the king!" Rebecca said, and they laughed. "I dream of the future, "to never come back. We've only known each other since Friday. You may not remember me by this time next week. In which case, the whole life!"

"No, I'm not like that," he said quietly.

"I'll tell Joe I've changed my mind about wanting to get married." And I'll tell my mother I've changed, that I've'll wait until I feel sure. And by that time I'll be August or September, and you'll write for me to come."

"And suppose I don't honey?" the man asked with a sudden honest doubt.

"Then I'll just live all my days in the memory of this week."

"You mean it, don't you?" the girl asked with sudden passion when they had stopped at the gate and could see the house lights a hundred yards away. "You will send for me? You will remember? I know that sometimes men—and especially if it's a country girl—a girl who believes everything that's said to her."

"Gavin, it's my life!" she whispered, clinging to him. And he saw tears wet on the face upon which the moon shone. "From now on it's my life! My fate to follow you and take care of you and have you take care of me. Don't fail me."

"I'll not fail you," he answered with an emotion almost matching that an hour at the Eldridges', and mother might telephone over there to ask them what was keeping me."

"Then I'll walk with you back to the gate."

A sudden sorrowful mood possessed them both. Gavin's arm was about her shoulders. The moonshine was very bright now, but that only made the tree shadows more sheltering.

"It's too bad, isn't it!" she said.

"Yes, it's too bad that it had to come this way."

"You mean it, don't you?" the girl asked with sudden passion when they had stopped at the gate and could see the house lights a hundred yards away. "You will send for me? You will remember? I know that sometimes men—and especially if it's a country girl—a girl who believes everything that's said to her."

"Gavin, it's my life!" she whispered, clinging to him. And he saw tears wet on the face upon which the moon shone. "From now on it's my life! My fate to follow you and take care of you and have you take care of me. Don't fail me."

"I'll not fail you," he answered with an emotion almost matching her own. "Well have a home, Becky, and a garden, and kids in it. We'll be happy!"

"For richer or poorer," she said unsteadily, tears running down her cheeks, "in sickness and in health, until death do us part!"

'WIN THE WAR AND AFTER WAR'

"This time we must not only win the war but also the after war." These are the words spoken by the Right Hon. Anthony Eden and show the high purpose which directs the British and their French Allies in the war against the Hitlerites.

There is a hint that "the other time" the after war was not won, though the Great War was won.

With this thought in mind it is not to be wondered at that the Allies cannot be wooed into a treacherous peace which would bring recurrences of the fears and alarms of the past few years.

It has been said before by Mr. Chamberlain that British seeks a just and enduring peace for Europe and world as well as for France and herself. The same goal is that of the French Republic. As Premier Daladier stated not-long ago, France did not declare again to go through crises recurring at regular intervals.

The nations' object is to finish the disagreeable job and to make the job a good one with results which will tell in settlement and security.

BELGIUM'S POSITION

King Leopold of Belgium which went through the horrors of war when it resisted the invasion of its neutrality by the former Kaiser's Teutonic hordes, has already proven himself a worthy son of the good King Albert. He strove to prevent the outbreak of war in Europe, along with other small states. The other evening he spoke over the air from Brussels on the same program as President Roosevelt. After speaking of the memories which Belgians cherish of American valor and aid in the years of the Great War, he spoke on defence and neutrality and said he was "convinced that my country is acting in the defence of this civilization by the attitude it has taken amid the conflict that has broken out in Europe." He was referring to the Christian civilization of which he said Belgium had always been looked upon as a fountain head. Explaining the neutrality position which his nation had adopted he said: "Side by side with Holland, Belgium stands for an island of peace in the interests of all. At the crossroads of the borders of the great west European powers Belgium, neutral, loyal and strong as she is, today fulfills an essentially peaceful mission. She sets a limit to the fighting front and to the loss of human life. She stands amongst other neutral States for a strength of peace, and the maintenance of that appeasement which alone can save our civilization from the abyss into which a world war would throw it.

"We fully know our rights and our duties. We insist the former with a confidence which nothing can perturb. We are prepared to exert our entire strength in order to uphold our independence. Exactly twenty-five years ago, day for day, the Belgian army under the command of our father, King Albert, arrested after a hard battle the progress of a cruel invasion. If we were attacked—and pray God this may not happen—in violation of the solemn undertakings guaranteed to us since 1831 and were renewed at the outset of the present war, we would not hesitate to fight with the same convictions but with forces ten times stronger — once again a single-minded nation which supports its army.

"But we cannot believe that the belligerents would fail to respect our neutrality. We trust in the word they have given us and have proclaimed before the world just as they may rely on our loyalty from which, following the examples set by my beloved father, I am resolved never to swerve as the Sovereign of a free and gallant people.

The brilliant young monarch of Belgium has made it clear that Belgium is the same Belgium which stood loyally by its promises in 1914. If Belgium today were attacked—and may God in His mercy forbid it," he said, "we would not hesitate to fight with the same convictions but with forces ten times stronger—once again a single-minded nation which supports its army."

The fact expressed is the belief that Belgian neutrality would be respected by the belligerents. Belgium has taken precautions and made preparations so that she may not be overrun should her land be invaded under neutrality disregarded. Her ruler has declared her strength.

HITLER AND THE GENERALS

Reference is made in the Windsor Star that Lieut. Baron Von Fritsch, Hammerstein Equord, former chief of the German General Army staff has been arrested because of a plot against the Hitler regime. It is said that the Nazis are endeavoring to purge the army of monarchist-Nationalist tendencies. The Windsor Star says—"There have been several reports that Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Field Marshal Goering will take over actual command of the German army themselves. Well, if the purges among the army command keep on, then they will have to do so, because there will be no generals of experience and ability left.

"Col.-General von Fritsch, having been shorn of the chief command in the German army, was killed in Poland under mysterious circumstances. Col.-General Blomberg was ousted from his command because of marriage to a stenographer. Now General von Hammerstein-Equord is under arrest.

"Some armies have been handicapped by too many generals and too few followers. But Herr Hitler should know that officers of experience are necessary, irrespective of their political views. He apparently likes generals who are 'strong men' and not in sympathy with certain Nazi policies."

HALLOWE'EN

Hallowe'en is again at hand with its multiform possibilities of entertainment and originality in dress and in games. This festival has lived throughout the centuries because it had its root in a time when the human imagination had sway over the mind of men. The women and children used their imagination in regard to the world of the spirit particularly in days before science had not removed some of the unusual notions. The result is a vast collection of legends and stories of human interest which have held their grip for hundreds of years because they deal with that essential of the human makeup, the imaginative faculty, which in all ages, whether in the Middle Ages or in these days of science or in the generations of the future always holds mankind probably more than any other element though guided by scientific knowledge. Fear has been taken out of much of the boundary stone and it may be said that much is not believed which once went current for fact, yet is cherished with the deepest desire to preserve because it has such fine lessons for the life of today and tomorrow.

Today among the youngest children may be cultivated a little of the faith in these things but even by them the wearing of guises, the association of the season of harvest fruit and the bonfires which mark the night, the giving expression to ancient ideals as to strange beings which inhabited the air and all such things are regarded as entertainment.

Hallowe'en before the Christian era lands under the sway of the Druids observed a festivel of this sort. Britain was one of these and ancient Rome had celebrations something like this in character. In the developed form of legend and story which centred in the mind of man incorporated elements and festivities from many sources. In druidical days bonfires were lighted in honor of harvest in gratitude to the sun god. That was the night when the Druid priest or Druid lore to Saman, the lord of death, who called the wicked souls which had been condemned since the last festival to inhabit the bodies of animals. The Scottish Celebration of Hallowe'en is seen as a relic of the worship of Baal.

After Hallowe'en is the day which the Christian Church observes as All Saints' Day, which was set apart in the calendar to commemorate the saints who had died for every saint. After the wild riot of imagination of Hallowe'en All Saints' Day is a day of calm and meditation.

In the modern festivity of Hallowe'en as an outlet for the emotions and the sense of gaiety and fun, the farm produces the material sources of supply, its apples and its pumpkins. Trees furnish nuts of the home variety, the supply of these being amplified by importations from southern lands. Hickory nuts still hold their place along with candy at the feast of the eve of All Hallows.

THE RIGHT TO CROSS OVER

Motorists who step on the gas immediately lights change generally are on the lookout for any pedestrians who have started on the way across. But sometimes pedestrians are held up in the centre of the road until some of the congested traffic passes.

In New York a case was recently tried in which a woman brought action against the city for damages. She went to the court of appeal and this was part of the verdict—"One who starts to cross a traffic-light-controlled highway with the lights in his favor has the right of way over traffic proceeding on that highway until he reaches the other side, even though in the meantime the traffic lights change."

Fortunately most drivers have this conception of fairness and right. But there are some drivers who do not recognize this right of the pedestrian though they recognize it for motorcars going over a crossing when the light changes before they have passed completely over. They drive on. The drivers who hold pedestrians sometimes in the centre of the streets are to blame.

Drivers making a right angle turn seem most unreasonable in allowing the citizen on foot this right he undoubtedly possesses.

Immobilizing Germany

One of the least noted effects of the "war of waiting" in the Western Front may turn out to be of capital importance in determining the outcome of the struggle. A review of the movements and events in the Balkans and in the Baltic and the Scandinavian states and the Balkans since the war campaigned all point to one conclusion, and this is taking place always regarded as the German sphere of influence the Reich has not been able to exert its usual pressure therefore successfully employed to keep the smaller states in order. While the war lasts, moreover, it is very doubtful if this power can be regained.

The complete surrender of the German-dominated Baltic states to Russia — a spectacular but relatively insignificant instance of German loss of weight and pressure. More noteworthy is the recognition on the part of the Scandinavian countries, long linked to Germany by geography and economic bonds, that they can no longer conduct their policy of neutrality based on these historic ties. Most striking of all are the shifts in process in the Balkans. Yugoslavia's Power is behind the new combinations taking shape in that peninsula it certainly is not Germany. On the contrary, it is becoming clear that the confused and criscross currents are moving against Germany.

The great importance of this development is that Germany's hold is being weakened in the very part of Europe that Hitler is bent on developing. The essential base of the war is to prevent German supremacy in Europe, a lasting Nazi aggression in the southeast. But now the threatened states in the "isbenarsaum," relieved by war of German pressure, are taking advantage of the situation to work out other alignments, and their governments are showing a spirit that decisive engagements are being fought under cover of the quiet on the battlefronts.

The reason, of course, is that the Allies have practically encircled Germany. Yesterday's reports indicated that British and French troops are concentrated on the Western Front. Obviously the necessity of keeping them there is a fixed point makes it impossible for Germany either to move or to exercise pressure elsewhere. And this means that the watch on the Westwall, even if it is only a watch, actually lightens the German threat on the Balkans and the Baltic. It helps Hevlest and encourages them in the first timid efforts to organize in their own interests and in the interests of peace. — New York Times.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Irritability, Tiredness and Depression Relieved by Food

One of the bills of knowledge items and memories we have from experience is that if any serious matter is to be discussed or dealt with early something unpleasant that has occurred during the day, it is better not to postpone it. Many husband and father has finished his evening meal is in a cranky or disagreeable or unpleasant should be discussed just before any meal as the upsetting influence upon digestion.

It is not alone for this reason—interfering with appetite or digestion—that the wife and mother postpone, if possible, unpleasant things. She knows that a hungry man (or woman) is not in the best humor to be approached.

Physiologists tells us that hunger pains are caused by the contraction or movements of the walls of the stomach. As the stomach becomes empty, the walls contract for a number of times. Then the contraction ceases. The quiet" period lasts from 10 minutes to one hour in the child and from one to three hours in an adult. These contractions of the stomach walls are accompanied by more or less severe pain sensations referred to the stomach. While these hunger pains may disturb an infant and child, they do not cause deep, thwarted emotions by the average adult.

Instead of pain, the adult has feelings of weakness, tiredness, and irritability. Soon, if he doesn't know he is hungry until he sees or thinks of food.

Drs. Howard W. Haggard and Leon A. Greenberg of Yale took part in a Food Efficiency state: "The feeling of fatigue and irritability which often accompanies is not relieved by rest but it is relieved by food." The workers were able to relieve "tired-ness" and get from 10 to 13 per cent more work done when worked by dividing the "usual" amount of food into five small meals rather than two. Food was thus given before the tired, irritable feelings occurred.

The "tired business" is his home in the evening tired, irritable and dispirited, from the day's work, finding no satisfaction or relief in rest obtained by lying down. Food was thus given before the tired, irritable feelings occurred.

SPRUCE SAWFLY BEING CONTROLLED

Parasite "Microplectron" Being Used Extensively and Propagated at Belleville Laboratory

Reports received at the Dominion Parasite Laboratory this past week indicate that the fight against the dreaded European spruce sawfly is being successfully fought. The tiny parasite "Microplectron", of which more than 100,000 have been propagated and distributed from Belleville laboratory, is known to attack the pupae of the sawfly in the cocoon stage and spread has excelled even the fondest hopes of the entomologists and foresters. This parasite, a natural enemy of the sawfly was introduced into Canada from Europe in 1934 and has been propagated in increasing numbers due to the research carried on by the Dominion entomologist developed for its production by the staff of this famous laboratory. The parasite lays its eggs in the pupae when in the moss and leaves surrounding the cocoon. Each parasite has a sharp, needle-like ovipositor with which it pierces the cocoon and deposits a group of eggs on the sawfly larva inside. The magnified drawing shows the larva of the wasp parasite preventing its further development by the use of the natural increase of the parasite, which is very rapid, it is expected that the sawfly will be completely controlled in a few years. Many areas still remain to be colonized with this and other friendly allies such as the "Exeter-wasp", which lays its eggs upon the feeding larvae of the sawfly but if the results continue to be as successful as during the past year the control of this dreaded pest which threatened to exterminate our spruce forests of America, seems assured and the value of scientific research once more demonstrated.

Through N. New Jersey

By TEMPLE MANNING

LOTS OF folks know New Jersey through the medium of Atlantic City, but there is much more hid behind the resort part of the magnificent Palisades, the west coast of the Hudson. Much of that famous resort. Every mile of Jersey's coast is studded with diversions . . . Bud and the Barnegat Bay region is one of America's happiest hunting grounds for anglers.

But for historic interest, northern New Jersey offers the most attraction. Across the George Washington Bridge the road winds back into the past, and everywhere to beauty. For wonder and scenery, there is the River Hudson from Fort Lee to Ringwood Manor. Today, like place, a varied history, it is also a museum, and in the midst of a 100-acre park.

State Forest

Stokes State Forest, along both sides of the Appalachian Trail in the northwest New Jersey, is 7 am sery to say, unknown to many New York residents. In fact, how many many who only learned about this lovely spot through occasional-town visitors. Bathing beaches, picnic tables, stone fireplaces, trails and delightful cabins in the woods, all under the auspices of the state affords ample means for the visitor's delight.

Not far to the north is High Point, a state park which offers splendid accommodations. On the summit of 1800-foot Kittatinny Mountain is a war memorial, the tribute of the state to a great view across New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania, making it one of the most exciting panoramas in the whole country around. Truly.

Another interesting and beautiful trip is to Morristown, a famed Revolutionary War site, now Morristown National Historical Park. The preservation in both about Ford House, used by General Washington as his headquarters during the winter of 1779-80. At the back of the house is a charming little museum which is filled with historical relics of the great patriot. There is a Library, also open to the public. The house itself is a splendid example of Georgian Colonial built in 1774.

Just the Morristown is the headquarters of the great organization that is working hard to accompany and protect the blind. Here is the home of this institution and you will come away with a new respect for dogs and for the men who train them.

President and King

At the little church of St. James in Hyde Park, New York, a special service was held on Sunday when a Bible presented to the Episcopal congregation by his Majesty King George VI was dedicated with due solemnity. During the morning-old adaptation of the special "prayer for the King's Majesty", read at the morning and evening services in the Anglican churches was used. The sentence in which Dorine said the Lord would "he may vanquish and overcome all his enemies" was changed by the King to the church, when he was received by Bishop Manning, was a unique event, it being the first time that the head of the state of the English church had met the head of the American Episcopal church.

There was an occasion, however, on which the ecclesiastical head of the English church visited New York and took an official part in the devotional exercises. In Trinity church, Broadway, may be seen a stained glass window of the Archbishop of Canterbury sat, and which, the guide informs inquirers, has never been occupied since. It was presented by Queen Anne to note that this famous old church, right in the heart of the financial centre of Wall Street, has the longest consecutive history of any church in the city. William and Mary, in 1697, granted a parcel of land, we are told, "to the end that a church without the north gate of the city, might be built, in the same, for the use as a parish church.

In this connection Former President Roosevelt knew beforehand that his passage was going to use the before-mentioned prayer from the Anglican Prayer-book; as he is a sensitive man the recent visit of Queen Elizabeth is way to whether or not the King would use the form of service. However that may be, Mr. President's attitude is interpreted to conceal his deep sympathy with the Allied cause, which is the common knowledge of all. That he should sit "with bowed head" while the petition for the King was offered was wholly consistent and natural. It is to be hoped that there will be given another impressive evidence of being Canada's "good neighbor", for which the country is duly grateful.—Hamilton Spectator.

Ancient Cars a New Hobby

From the Boston Evening Transcript

The self-starter for automobiles is credited by some with being an important or recent America, with being one of the primary social influences of the twentieth century.

What is known is one swift transition. It gave rise to a flourishing movement which was rapidly transformed from the widespread social activity which stamps this age. Its birthday was 1911 and it was named that. In fact, surprisingly enough, that is the only considerable reference to the automobile in the 11 volumes of his "Our Times" covering the first years of the war.

Whether the one particular appointment on which the automobile deserves all that credit is debatable. That the motor car itself deserves to be credited with altering the whole social, cultural and economic structure of America is, until recently, nobody has stopped to look back at the brief period of ten or fifteen years which this new enormous factor was still struggling from swaddling clothes to its first steps, to growing pains, to puberty.

To quote figures of 30,000,000 car registrations in this country is to point to only a part of the activity. Behind and beneath it are all the tangibles of steel, oil, rubber, and the asphalt and cement of highways; and the intangibles of the new ways of working, playing and thinking which make possible that huge total.

It has remained for a nucleus of Boston people to start a new diversion, one reach back into the past period and bring to it the fairly reliable evidence of a turning point in history.

The Veteran Motor Car Club of America was born at an informal dinner last Winter when a dozen or fifteen men got together to talk about their old cars, which, while in the collection and faithful restoration of vintage automobiles. It now has more than eighty members, subscribers to this purpose. Through the active cooperation of veteran cars, i.e., cars manufactured before 1916, it has set as an authentic source of information thereupon and to provide competitive events for various classes of veteran cars, and social events for the members.

The fun is all in the last two classes of the list, which is the first two. Right now, all four are in high gear with the throttle wide open and the feeling of hurry by individual members has been going on for a number of years.

Bankers and young mechanics and doctors have found confidence more than pocketbook governs purchase and reconditioning. There are records of cars bought up a bill of $200 before it took the wing from a wrecking yard in search of nearly two years. The cars are chosen for many reasons, largely because they are, in effect, worthless as they stand. Yet when they are finished and ready to hurry by in dignity they are more than worth the price.

In eleven collections owned by members there are nearly 60 cars, and most of the other fans own one or two. In size they run from the 1901 Locomobile steam car made in Waltham to sell for $800, to the 1914 Roamer, Packard, two of one made for the Czar of Russia, and the Pierce-Arrow limousine and humble two-seaters recently reclaimed from Vermont barns are included.

More Than Hitler

Prime Minister Menzies of Australia, points out that the war in Europe will not be won merely by the overthrow of Hitler. The conflict is against everything for which Hitler stands. He is not fighting Hitlerism, as well as Hitler himself.

There is no reason to believe that the world will be safe for democracy peace in Europe if either Field Marshal Goering or Deputy Hess, Reichsfuehrer Himmler or any two successors, replaced the present Reichsfuehrer. Nazism is more than a single man. It is more than Hitler. It is more than the personality of what has happened.

Hermann Goering, Hess, Goebbels, Himmler, von Ribbentrop, von Papen, and a few others have been the chief advisers of Hitler in his course of aggression. They have, on some occasions one, on more than one, of them disagreed with Hitler's policies. Yet they have acquiesced in them, and lent their every effort to the carrying out of them.

It is natural that Hitler should have to bear the brunt of the blame. But he is responsible. He could not have accomplished what he has, in the way of international aggression, if he had not had others to have aides, and followers.

Hitler's colleagues who have voluntarily supported Hitler's policies must share with him the responsibility, even those who objected but did not make their opposition effective enough to be unmistakable.

Not only must Hitler be overthrown, but the whole clique or coterie of those who have advised him, or been in the forefront in carrying out his dictates. The war will not be won until the German people have leaders who want peace, and until the rank and file are as ready to fight such men towards peaceful goals as they have been to fight unscrupulous exponents of unjust and unprovoked aggression.—Windsor Star.

Rawdon

Rawdon, Oct. 30—On Friday evening approximately one hundred and fifty people gathered at Mount Pleasant Rawdon Church hall to honour Lieutenant Clifford Holmes and his bride who are home on leave for a few days before Clifford takes up his duties at Picton. Guests were present from Shannonville, Stirling, Oak Hills, Enterado and Madoc Junction besides the folk from the home community. Rev. J. E. Becker was chairman for a short programme and he also spoke briefly. Misses Ruth Rose and Lois Weaver sang two numbers "Beneath the Spreading Chestnut-Tree" and "The Old Millstream" with Mrs. Kenneth Weaver accompanist. Mrs. Percy MacSmillen read a selection, "Little Mary's Essays on Husbands". Master Don Spencer delighted with two musical selections on his guitar.

Short addresses were given by Mrs. James Sharp who taught his Sunday school class, Mr. Herb Tavid, Mrs. Cyril Simmons on behalf of the Young People's Union, Mr. Irvin Reid, Mrs. John Reid on behalf of Mount Pleasant Church and Mr. James Sharp on behalf of the Sunday school.

The young couple then were invited to the centre of the room, the bride wearing her wedding dress of white sheer and the groom in his dress uniform.

Mr. Ross Hoard read the following address to the young couple and Mr. Kenneth Weaver made the presentation of a Trilight bridge lamp.

Both Clifford and Roberta graciously replied thanking their friends for the lovely gift and inviting all to pay them a visit in their new home at Picton.

The address follows:

Mount Pleasant, October 27, 1939.

Dear Clifford and Roberta:

We have gathered here tonight to wish you much happiness and success in your married life. We also wish to show the esteem in which you are held in this neighborhood.

Clifford although you have not been with us much recently many of us remember your willing and able help when you were at home.

Roberta you are not so well known but from your occasional visits we have learned to recognize your genial smile. We welcome you —no longer as a visitor but as a member of our community.

We offer you both our heartiest congratulations. May your fondest dreams be realized and God's richest blessings follow you throughout life.

As a sign of our esteem and appreciation of your services we ask you to accept this gift and may it always remind you of your friends and neighbours at Mount Pleasant.

Signed on their behalf: Don Campbell, Carleton Potts, Allan Reid, Herbert Smith, Willie Jeffs.

Mr. Bert Jeffs then read another address of a personal nature to Clifford as he has signed up for His Majesties service and is now one of the boys in uniform.

Mr. Don Campbell presented Clifford with a Lorie wrist watch with his name and as gift from Mount Pleasant community engraved on the back.

Clifford accepted the gift and thanked all the friends for this remembrance and said it would be something he would treasure and which would always remind him of Mount Pleasant community.

All joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and the National anthem.

An appetizing lunch was served at the close and all enjoyed a social half hour.

The address follows:

Mount Pleasant, Colover 27, 1939.

Dear Clifford:

We have assembled here tonight not only to wish you a happy married life but to pay tribute to you, one of the boys of our community who has so gallantly taken up the call of his country.

We have hoped since the day war was declared that some agreement could be made and we will not give up praying that God's love may be the winning power and you may soon be back happy at your chosen life's work.

We ask you to accept this gift and when you wear it may it ever remind you of your friends at Mount Pleasant who are earnestly praying that wherever you are God's richest blessing may rest upon you.

Signed on behalf of Mount Pleasant community: Don Campbell, Carleton Potts, Allan Reid, Herbert Smith, Willie Jeffs.

4th Sidney

4th of Sidney, Oct. 30—W.M.S. and L. A. met at the home of Mrs. Everett Phillips on Oct. 18th with a good attendance. A very enjoyable lunch was served at the close of the meeting and a social half hour was spent. Mrs. A. Woods invited the ladies to her home for the November meeting.

The sound of the threshing machine has again ceased for another year on this line and the grain harvest is reported good as most of the farmers finished over 1000 bushels.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Richardson and family spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hannah, also Mr. E. S. Taylor and son Douglas spent Sunday evening at their home.

The anniversary services were held in the Stone Church appointment on Sunday, Rev. Lane of Frankford, taking charge of both services at which he gave very inspiring sermons. The choir rendered special music consisting of a quartette by Mr. and Mrs. H. Tweedie, Mr. F. Hannah, also Mrs. Parley Vermilyea a solo by Miss Joyce MacPherson and four anthems by the choir. The day being ideal the church was well filled at both services.

Guests were entertained at different homes on this line on Sunday and attended the services.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Woods returned home on Tuesday last and a party was attended the latter's shower party at which they all enjoyed a good feed of ice cream and cake.

Mr. Robt. MacPherson and Mr. Thos. Laurence took in on Thursday evening last with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Reid.

Mrs. fi. Lloyd spent a few days with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Grey.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper I went around to Pawli's cigar store for some cigars for pop, and I gave them to him and he said, I believe I have some change coming to me, too.

You sir, that's what I'm feeling for, I said.

Meaning in my pockets, wich I kept on doing, saying, That's funny, there's no place else to feel.

Wich I did, saying, It was only a dime, and pop said, Then it still is, and I'm waiting for it. Yes gods only a dime when I was your age a dime looked as big as the moon and seemed about as far away, he said.

Well G, pop, so does this one, I've had everything out of all my pockets so where can it be? I said, and pop said, Have you looked behing your ear?

Biting sourcastic, and I said, Jimminy, pop, do you think a dime could come out of your pockets in the excitement while you were turning cartwheels?

If I could turn cartwheels I'd consider a dime a small price to pay, but that's no excuse for you when you're returning on an errand for me, especially with anything as fragile as cigars and as elusive as dimes, I expect you to proceed in an orderly conventional manner, pop said.

Meaning walk, and I said, Well anyways, pop, I didn't turn any cartwheels today, yesterday was the last ones I turned, so it couldn't of been those, and pop said, Now look here, this is no time for airy persyflage, if you lost that dime it will be too late for you.

Well G, pop, I didn't because I remember just where it is, I said, It's on the counter around at Pawli's, because that's where Mr. Pawli put it and that's where I was going to take it, only I forgot at the last minute, I said.

And I hurry up ran around to get it it was still there. Wich it was, making me feel lucky,

WEDDINGS

FORIN—REAR

Vancouver—Of much interest in the east is the marriage which took place quietly in the presence of only immediate relatives on Friday evening, October 20th, at 8.30 o'clock of Vivian Anna, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rear of St. Rear, 1397 Matthews avenue, and Cpl. Ralph Edward Forin of the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, elder son of Judge and Mrs. J. A. Forin, 3651 Osler street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George Pringle.

The bride attended Crofton House School and later graduated from Mills College in Oakland, Cal., while the groom is a graduate of Columbia University.

Capt. and Mrs. Forin will reside in Angus Apartments, Davie street, Vancouver.

The Seaforth Highlanders of Canada are included in the First Contingent with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Judge Forin, father of the bridegroom, was a native of Belleville. Forin Street being named in honor of his family. He was fifty years ago since he left Belleville; that street is now the finest in the city Council. Judge Forin, himself, had an interesting legal career. His first commission, that of Ensign, was granted to him on the 6th day of Oct., 1863. Shortly after this appointment, the old "Volunteer Militia" first organized. The war of 1866 Judge Forin held four commissions since the "Fenian" War in 1866 when he was Officer Commanding the 107th in charge of concentration camps.

HOOKE—SHARPE

The marriage was solemnized at the Presbyterian Church, Manse, Hilton, on September 30th, of Miss Marguerite Sharpe, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sharpe of Chatham Street, and Mr. Steve Hooke, son of Mrs. Hooke and the late Mr. Hooke of New Hamburg. Rev. Mr. McCrea officiated.

RAWSON—MURPHY

A pretty wedding took place at St. Michael's Rectory at ten o'clock Saturday morning, when Helen Veronica, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy of Lonsdale, became the bride of Mr. Thomas Frederick Rawson, son of Mrs. Rawson and the late Fred Rawson of this city. Rev. J. R. Baker officiated.

The bride was charming in her gown of white velvet with matching hat and corsage of Talisman roses. She wore a locket, the gift of the groom, and the accessories were of champagne tone.

Miss Jean Murphy was her sister's bridesmaid and wore Lucien blue crepe with matching hat and corsage of Talisman roses. Mr. Noel Langton was groomsman.

Wedding breakfast was served at the Quinte Cafe, about fifteen guests, immediate friends and relatives being present.

Later the bride and groom left on a wedding trip to Detroit, the bride travelling in a green wool frock, with beige coat and silver fox scarf, and black hat. Upon their return they will reside in Belleville.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy, Lonsdale and Mr. Joseph Kelly, Ottawa.

THEASHER—MERRICK

On Thursday, October 26th, at Christ Church, the marriage took place of Edith Jane Merick, of Bridge N.Y., daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Goldsmith and Mr. Roy Thrasher, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Thrasher of Sidney. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. C. Wright.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hart, the sister of the bride, were the attendants.

After a wedding trip to Hamilton and Toronto, the couple will reside on the groom's farm in Sidney.

GAUGHEY—FYNE

A quiet wedding took place at Bridge Street United Church parsonage on Saturday, October 28th, of Miss Margaret Fyne and Mr. Leon Caughey, both of Hillier Township, Prince Edward County. Rev. Dr. James Semple officiated. The young couple, who were unattended, left on a trip to Eastern Canada. Upon their return they will reside on the bridegroom's farm in Hillier Township. Clever Painting of Murray Bonnycastle Shown in Toronto

Concerning the art exhibition by Murray Bonnycastle, painting picture and actor now showing at Roberts' Gallery the Toronto press says:—

"Murray Bonnycastle is clever and often times much more than clever. His old, water colour style of painting which make up Murray Bonnycastle's exhibition at the Roberts' Gallery and productive of much interest since its opening.

The most impressive painting picture is the portrait Mr. Bonnycastle has made of Mrs. Dorothy Stanley which appeared at the Art Gallery last season, where also it was received with favour. It is a remarkably skilful portrait with its pre-Raphaelite quality of detail, while it is dramatic silverness which makes it inevitably centre of attraction in any exhibition. It is clearly quite differently—and with a real success of quite another manner—in the large water color sketch of Mrs. Bertram Tate, brought in not as a specifically designed in the catalogue list. Here again the characterizing accents are blue and the purple tones which are almost one of the Bonnycastle characteristics. Here, however, rather clarified his colors here with generous use of paper white. Sincerity and love of subject and the painter-at-work are readily apparent in both these characteristic studies. Outstanding also the more formal oil portrait of Mrs. Terence Donovan, wife of Colonel Govan and now making its repeat appearance, with its charming harmony and dignified portrait—head and shoulders—of the artist's mother, the handling delicate, sin tones delicately transparent; lovely highlights. There is again the striking portrait of an Artist, with symbolic background which is at once clean and strong and which is appropriate subject this time).

Mr. Bonnycastle has included a number of landscapes, most subtle of them February Evening, carried in pale clear browns shading into tranquil yellows. The fine design and suggestion of mystery. On other hand there is the more dramatic highlighting and pattern of Snow at Midnight.

The collection otherwise runs the gamut from the brilliant water and clever arrangement of Masqueraders, also the engaging pencilled nudes, to the charming decorativeness of London Lilies.

Murray Bonnycastle, comes by his artistic bent by inheritance. He is a great grandson of Sir Richard Bonnycastle, president of the Artizans and Architects Society in 1851-52, the same Sir Richard who wrote historical books on early Canada as well as his own travel books. His great grandfather, Henry Bonnycastle, exhibited his paintings at the same association Murray, the well known in theatricals at the Hart House, has more than 40 paintings on show, including portraits of such Toronto women as Jane Mallett, Lorna Sheard, Grace Matthews, who is now with the New York Theatre Guild, and Mrs. Gordon Finch . . . as well as landscapes and interiors."

For Boudoir Comfort

By ALICE ALDEN

We've had the quilted robe and we've had the hood. Now comes the boudoir combination in flowered crepe, at the baby's coaxing to throw and as warmly interlined. The hood isn't mere ornament, but keeps that spot—the back of the neck—warm. Imagine the comfort you'll experience wearing it while making up on a cold, winter morning or relaxing after a warm shower, or reading on a lounge chair. But why seek an excuse such as feeling cozy up to your ears and down to your ankles for such a pretty thing in the wardrobe? It's a woman's privilege. Moreover the price isn't prohibitive but just about what the average husband would consider for his wife's birthday handout.

Fashion on the Spot

By ALICE ALDEN

Have something spotted this season. Such fun as leopard are now only fashionable but are generally becoming in color to the majority of complexions. There's the fine-haired leopard coat of three-quarter-length enhanced by both Paris and American furriers and there are dozens of good-looking cloth coats and suits, including the one pictured, trimmed brown duvetyn carries its spots even in the leopard scarf and no accessory which brought nods of approval when it was shown first by the fashion host by our own designers. Remember that most of the "cat" family have gone in for hats and gloves equally well, and are as practical as solid-toned pelts.

Mountain View

Mountain View—The Prince Edward County Young People held their annual rally in Consecon church on Friday afternoon and evening, October 27th.

Misses Nina Carrarire and Hazel Minaker were in charge of the registering of the delegates at the church entrance.

The afternoon session was opened by the singing of hymn 21, "Fight the Good Fight", followed by prayer. Rev. Sanders, Consecon minister on behalf of himself and the church extended a welcome to the delegates and visitors. Mr. Warren Chase, County president, made a response. Miss Edna Minaker, County secretary gave the report of the last year's Rally held in Mountain Valley. The Roll Call of Unions found Consecon the banner union with 27 local representations. The pastors and presidents or in their absence the president a delegate from each Union were appointed as a Nominating Committee. Mr. William Nightingale and Miss Beth Dafoe were the Resolutions committee. The offering was taken up.

Mr. T. E. Blanchard of Bloomfield led the Round Table Conference using the theme, "A Creed To Live By." This was interesting and helpful and every one present received well make it their creed to live by.

At four o'clock an hour of directed recreation under the leadership of Mr. Warren Chase and Mr. Kenneth Hamilton was enjoyed.

On return to the church Mr. Warren Chase favoured with a solo.

Mr. George Greer, President of the Belleville Presbytery Young People's Unions was called on to introduce Miss Bessie Gordon of Tweed. Miss Gordon gave a talk on "Assurance and Its Message." Miss Gordon had attended the Youth Congress held in Holland in the summer. Youth from all parts of the world attended this Congress. The different languages spoken make talking a difficulty. The wonderful welcome given Miss Gordon by the people of Holland as well as the worship and fellowship made the delegates glad. Miss Gordon was able to attend this Congress and bring back such a fine report.

At six p. m. a fine banquet was served by Group number two of the Consecon ladies.

The evening session was opened by a song service under the leadership of Rev. Cragg of Northport. The M. S. B. Comrades put on the worship service. Mr. Howard Wall, Consecon president extended greetings to the visitors. Mr. Donald Bastier, Bloomfield, vice president of the Bay of Quinte Conference Young People brought greetings. Miss Polly Nelson of Trenton, editor for United Church Broadcast spoke a few words about the Broadcast and its value in every Union. The Roll Call of Unions found the larger audience and representation from nearly every Union in the County, Miss Mary Greer of Wellington, Secretary read a solo. Mr. William Nightingale had the report of the Resolutions Committee. Miss Hazel Minaker gave the following report of the Nominating Committee.

Honorary President—Rev. H. F. Sanders.

President—Mr. Warren Chase.
Secretary Treas.—Miss Hazel Minaker.
Membership Con.—Mr. George Carlisle.
Citizenship Con.—Mr. Ken Wood.
Cultural Con.—Mr. Don East.
Christian Literature—Mrs. Mary Wharmby.
Recreation leaders—Mr. Benton Goodman; Mr. Frank Brimly.
Publications—Mr. Phil Dodds.
Dramatics—Miss Edith Taylor.
Leadership Training—Rev. McKee.

The new officers were asked to stand at the front of the church and Rev. Cragg conducted the installation.

The offering was taken up. Miss Kathleen Sticks of Picton favoured with a solo.

Mr. P. C. McLaurin, Principal of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational Institute was the guest speaker of the evening. Mr. MacLaurin's address was on the young people using as his topic: "Let No Man Despise Thy Youth."

The singing of "Breathe on me Breath of God" and the Benediction by the Rev. McGee of Wellington brought the Rally to a close.

PAIR FLEE IN TRUCK

Meaford, Ont., Oct. 30.—(CP)—The approach of Constable William White interrupted the work of two burglars early today in the act of stealing the safe at Rowe's Dairy here, police complained about $2,500 in cash.

The burglars had a truck backed up to the door of the dairy and were preparing to move the safe into it when the constable approached. The pair fled in the truck.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They toss and turn—the result of poor kidney action. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Kidneys are Nature's chief way of purifying the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisonous body wastes and excess acids may stay in the system and disorganize the whole body machine, backaches often follow. If you don't get good rest, try Doan's Kidney Pills—used by millions for over forty years. They help the kidneys flush out poisonous waste. Get Doan's today.

Assuring Nutritional Value in Meat Dishes

PREPARING meat to be tasty and flavorsome is an art that is important to the housewife, as the price of meat rises, it behooves us to make the most of what we buy and get the utmost in nutritional value.

Kidney Bean Stew, a palatable dish, is inexpensive, too, since the amounts given will serves four. The recipe calls for six slices bacon, one large onion, one pound ground beef, one cup raw diced potatoes, one cup cans kidney beans, mustard, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper. Chop bacon in small bits and brown in a deep pan. Add onion and beef, and brown. Add one cup of water, the kidney beans, potatoes and seasonings to taste, and cook well. Cover and let simmer. Separate oven for an hour, removing lid for ten minutes at the end, to brown well.

Meat Loaf with Potato Stuffing is another excellent and economical dish, ideal for the winter. It takes one and one-half pounds ground beef, two tablespoons lemon juice, four tablespoons salad oil, two tablespoons prepared mustard, teaspoon salt, slightly-beaten egg, one-fourth cup milk, one cup soft bread crumbs, combine meat, lemon juice, salad oil, mustard and salt; mix thoroughly. Mix egg and milk, and add to bread crumbs; beat into smooth paste, add to meat mixture and mix well. Place half the mixture in greased 8 1-2 x 9 1-2 inch loaf pan. Cover with mashed potato stuffing seasoned with onions and top with remaining meat mixture. Bake in 350 degrees F. oven for one hour. Serves six.

Spiced Pot Roast is pot roast de luxe, as you'll discover when you use this recipe. It requires one and one-half cup cider, tablespoon brown sugar, teaspoon each cinnamon and ginger, two tablespoons fat, four-pound rump or chuck pot roast, two tablespoons flour, salt, fat, for skillet, two onions, sliced, Combine cider, sugar and spices. Put the roast in a close-fitting pan and pour in the spiced marinade. Let stand in the refrigerator overnight. Remove the liquid and rub well with seasoned flour. Saute in the melted fat or shortening until brown on all-side. Put into a heavy pot or Dutch oven, add the marinade, cover tightly and simmer for three hours or until tender. Thicken the gravy and serve with the meat.

Laymen's Association Meets at St. Mark's Church, Bonarlaw

Bonarlaw, Ont., Oct. 30.—At the annual meeting of St. Mark's Laymen's Association held in the club rooms on Friday evening, Oct. 27, Mr. A. B. McGrath was elected president for the ensuing year. Other officers are as follows: Hon. presidents, Canon W. G. Swayne; patron, Rt. Rev. Dr. J. Lyons, Lord Bishop of Ontario; first vice-president, Carl Heath; second vice-president, Carl Brown; secretary, J. R. Dance; treasurer, Chas. Lehigh.

The executive committee are the following: Messrs. Andrew Smith, Wm. Fitzgerald, Jno. A. Brown and W. J. Barlow.

Various committees were appointed to carry on the work. It was decided that all members who could possibly do so would attend the annual meeting and banquet of the Laymen's Association of the Deaneries of Hastings and Prince Edward which will be held in Belleville on November 1.

On Thursday evening, Wm. J. Barlow, District Deputy Grand Master of Madoc District No. 48, I.O.O.F. and installing team journeyed to Napanee and installed the officers of Argyll Lodge No. 212. This interdistrict visit was upon invitation of District Deputy Grand Master Dr. Blackwell of Deseronto.

There was a splendid attendance there being representatives present from every lodge in Dr. Blackwell's district.

Other members of the Madoc district team were Bros. O. R. Thrasher, Sidney Mason, Clayton Burkitt, Thos. H. Frost, Roy Evans, G. B. Eastwood and J. P. Baker.

Immediately after the installation ceremony all repaired to the adjoining banqueting hall and were served with a hot dinner.

Inspiring addresses were delivered by D.D.G.M. Barlow of District 48, D.D.G.M. Blackwell of District 48, and other prominent Oddfellows.

The newly installed Noble Grand Roy McGreer of Argyll Lodge acted as toast master.

AT THE BELLE

"Babes in Arms"

That amazing young man of the screen, Mickey Rooney, comes to the screen at Belle Theatre and likewise does he win his way down to the front seat in the gallery of screen performance of his career. Co-starred with Judy Garland, well and assisted by a host of really possibly the largest group of juvenile talent ever presented on the screen at one time, Rooney and Judy deliver an evening of entertainment that is more than worth anybody's time and money. The picture is "Babes in Arms."

As a successful Broadway musical by Rodgers and Hart, "Babes in Arms" was a fine piece of entertainment. As a screen version enlarged, enriched and embellished by additional song numbers and production that staggers the eye, Berkeley, the picture is great entertainment.

The Mickey Rooney of the Hardy series, "Boys' Town" and "Young Tom" uncovers a bag of tricks that few suspected he possessed, and which he has kept well away to better advantage. Mickey sings, dances, plays the drums, does imitations and acts.

There are take numbers in the picture, including two from the original score of "Babes in Arms." These are "Where or When" and "Babes in Arms." Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed contribute quite a few theme song, "Good Morning" which undoubtedly will become a popular number. Other new ones are "Opera vs. Jazz," "I Cried for You," and "Daddy" by Judy Jaynes; "My Daddy was a Minstrel Man" by Mickey and the "God's Country" which forms the background for an elaborate finale.

"Babes in Arms" is built for entertainment and it is that and more. It is unique among musicals in that it has a really fine story background into which fall naturally the plentiful numbers interspersed with dances and songs by the pairing of the youthful vaudeville and the plight of the children who are left out in the cold when motion pictures forget the two-a-day for those of us unable to earn money, they are near-tragedies. Then a clever backstage story a movement to send their children to a state farm, and they set out to happen.

Mickey Rooney, who is the leader of the children, takes them all together for a finish fight. They write and stage a show in a barn to save their parents' financial situation, but a surprise is in store for them. Enough talent is shown, however, to interest Hollywood producer and he engages them all for a big revue.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Trapped in the Sky."

Breath-taking serial spectacles of planes in flight and thrilling aerial adventure with the tense suspense of international intrigue are the highlights drama of a mystery, combine to make "Trapped in the Sky," starting Sunday at the McCarthy, a new playing at the McCarthy theatre, Picton, where it will be shown Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Films so far seen in Belleville, supporting the star, Jack Holt, the new serial has carefully chosen and includes Ralph Morgan as chief of Army Intelligence Service; C. Henry Gordon as an enemy spy, Katherine De Mille, Hollywood foreign agent, Sidnel Blackmer as Gordon's henchman, Fran Lebedeff as Miss De Mille's sinister and Regis Toomey who has a splendid role as young aviator. "Trapped in the Sky" is a worthwhile screen entertainment certain to please all lovers of sc-

Young People's Unions Of United Church Hold Picton Rally

Picton—A very successful rally was held by the Young People's Unions of the United Church of Prince Edward County at Consecon on Friday, October 27.

The afternoon session opened with a welcome by Miss H. Rogers, dean, the local minister, with reply by Warren Chase, Consecon. The county Y.P.U. President, Milford Union had charge of the devotional service, Rev. J. C. T. Blanchard of Bloomfield conducted a round table conference on young people's problems.

Miss Bessie Gordon of Wesleyville gave a most interesting account of the Youth Congress held at Amsterdam, Holland. She was introduced by George Green of Wellington, Bethel Y.P.U. President. Supper was served by Consecon young people and Rev. A. R. Cragg of Northport led the grace.

The evening service opened with a worship service in charge of M. B. B. Comrades. Howard Wait, President of Consecon Y. P. U. conducted a worship service. Miss Mary Greer, Wellington, gave a solo and President Chase conducted a roll call of Unions, every one in the county being represented. Miss Kathleen Hicks of Picton contributed a solo, Mr. P. C. MacLaurin, Principal of Picton Collegiate and Vocational Institute was guest speaker and his message was of special interest to the young people.

A hymn and the National Anthem of Northern Ireland were followed by the benediction pronounced by Rev. W. H. Boomhour, Redeemed.

Hallowe'en Dance

The assembly hall at Picton Collegiate was gaily decorated with Hallowe'en emblems Friday night when the school held their annual dance. Many were in costume and the evening proved a merry one. Refreshments were served.

Main which fell most of Friday was very welcome, filling cisterns and wells which had been low for some time.

A local report that a member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment had been killed in an automobile accident Thursday night was found to be untrue, the car in which he was riding struck a cow on the Picton-Bloomfield road striking rise to the rumor.

The Metropolitan Silver Band of Toronto which visited Belleville this week end, came to Picton Sunday afternoon to give a concert for the soldiers in the United Church.

The Home and School Club held a successful rummage sale in Picton on Saturday, Oct. 28.

Catches of fish are reported light at Point Traverse, and fishermen are laying up their boats until the shoal fishing season next summer.

Mrs. Geo. Clapp and baby daughter of Belleville are guests of her mother Mrs. Willis Yerex and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jones and Dr. D. S. Lighthall spent several days this week in Toronto.

The Birthday Bridge Club met on Friday evening, Oct. 27th, at the home of Mrs. Jack LeHeup, when the tables were in use. Two lovely birthday gifts were presented, a brush, comb and mirror set to Mrs. Clifton Brahm, and a Kenwood blanket to Mrs. Gerald Calhoun in having moved to join her husband in Cleveland. The hostesses served a delightful social, delicious refreshments at the close of the game.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Looks Her Love But Gets No Response

Dear Miss Fairfax:

If he were not at our house continually, to see one of the boys in the family, perhaps I should not find it so difficult to get over loving him. As that I could not bear him, and then found myself loving him, devotedly.

For years he has been mixed up in the love affair with a divorcee. They never seem to consider marriage, but are apparently devoted to each other. This man, who is somewhat older than I am, can hardly conceal his boredom when I talk to him. He has a tendency to use me, and this unfortunate attachment is driving me crazy.

Unhappy.

Love and hate are so curiously intermingled, that if you were older you might have recognized the possibility of the strong feeling that started out with, turning into love. It's pretty hard for a young girl or boy to call a halt, and even when going through the suffering of a first love affair, I'm sure you manage to look at your case objectively, you will see there is nothing in this grieving of yours, and in appreciative man, interested in someone else. Your will power will Force yourself to go out and meet other people. Absent yourself when this man comes to the house. Have a club, particularly a good hiking club. Join, attend, and you will get over it pleased. How do you feel about the baby? Have you asked him and he good to him, or if you had children of your own, would you regard him as the brother of your child? It's pretty hard to answer a question like this in advance, I know, and the fact that you don't like to hear the man says all the first wife makes me feel that you are jealous.

If you're really in earnest about marrying this widower I should advise you to join the Young Women's Christian Association and learn how to take care of that little boy. If you're a good stepmother, the baby will probably love you as much as if you were his own mother. Today's data has brought in some pretty bad letters from girls who have married step-mothers to helpless children. So I'm begging you not to enlist as a "step" unless you have a real love for the child, all jealousy, and do a good job of bringing up this motherless little boy.

Engaged to One Man, but In Love With Another

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Our families would never permit us to marry, though we love each other so dearly. We are cousins. And that's sufficient for the family to object. Meanwhile I'm engaged to another man and have been engaged for a long time. I tried to break my engagement to the other evening by telling my fiance how matters stood between us, but he would not take me seriously.

My cousin is going to go away for a long time, and I'd like to talk things over with him before we part.

Broken-hearted and Blue.

It seems to me that the proper person to make this decision concerning your marriage is your family doctor. And you haven't told me what degree of relationship this cousin is to you. If he's not a first cousin, I shouldn't think the danger, supposed to go with it, would be a degree of kinship, would be great.

First cousins are forbidden to marry, and have lovely normal children. Again, certain taints in the children are said to come from undesirable in the parents.

In any case, it would be most unwise for you to marry your fiance when you are in love with another man, and I hope for your own sake you won't go on with this marriage at least for the present.

Can She Be a Kind Step-Mother

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My boy friend has asked me to write to you about our problems. He has been married before and has a baby son. He would like to have me care for the little motherless boy, but he thinks I am too young and inexperienced, and that he ought to marry a woman who has been married before. Do you agree?

He was very much in love with his wife, and talks about her a great deal. Do you think if we married he would forget her, or would he continue to talk about her, thus cause a bit done now?

Puzzled H.

This is the first time I've ever heard of a widower objecting to youth and inexperience. Usually, the younger they are, the better a wife they prove's pleased. How do you feel about the baby? Have you asked for him and be good to him, or if you had children of your own, would you regard him as the brother of your child? It's pretty hard to answer a question like this in advance, I know, and the fact that you don't like to hear the man says all the first wife makes me feel that you are jealous.

If you're really in earnest about marrying this widower I should advise you to join the Young Women's Christian Association and learn how to take care of that little boy. If you're a good stepmother, the baby will probably love you as much as if you were his own mother. Today's data has brought in some pretty bad letters from girls who have married step-mothers to helpless children. Lenny Rose Advises Girls About Dates

Girls, attention! Have you heard the seven excellent rules about dancing that Lenny Rose gives to girls? Here they are:

1—Never, never lead if you want dancing partners.

2—Stay on your own feet and keep you head up.

3—"Don't cling. Don't lean."

4—"Don't chatter."

5—"Don't say hellos and call to other chaps on the floor."

6—"Don't dance too close."

7—"Don't take dancing too seriously. In dancing as in singing, have fun."

Gift For Employer's Child

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

I am employed as a bookkeeper and have been with the same firm now for fifteen years. My employer's daughter is graduating from college this year and I would like to give her a small remembrance. They are in good circumstances, and she has everything lovely, so I wonder if it would be proper for me to do. I like my position and they have done many little acts of kindness for me during this period, so be a good time to show my appreciation.

If you think this is correct, please give me a list of gifts you think would be suitable. I don't want to be too much, but would like to feel it is a correct gift.

R.

Flowers sent to the graduate on her graduation day would be the very best gift for you to make to this girl. You can send the correct gift when we have any doubts if any other gift might be mistaken-priced or for just such circumstance. es that you outline. Any other girl might appreciate a gift.

The next best gift, if you want to send something more personal, would be a book: collection of poetry, or a book of travel, or some book on one of her special enthusiasms or hobbies.

If these suggestions still don't quite hit what you would like to do, my next suggestion would be a leather portfolio for her desk or a lovely pencil for her purse, or a lipstick (if she doesn't already have one opened in a leather case), or a handsome leather or crystal photograph frame.

Letter to Son's Fiancee

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

My son is engaged to a girl in a distant city. I have not met her, but their engagement since last May. I met her at a dinner party this summer. I have never written to her to express my happiness in regard to their engagement. Should I write to her now, and if so, what should I say?

2—My son writes me that he has not returned from visiting at his home for a few days. Should I thank her parents for entertaining him? What should I say?

S.

1—Yes, by all means write this to important letter to your prospective daughter-in-law. Tell her how happy you are about the new ment; how delighted and proud you are of your son's choice, and how much you are looking forward to meeting her soon, and to greeting "your new daughter" in your home. Tell her how happy it has made you to have her and your son with you about her, "the most wonderful girl in the world." Write affectionately and informally to her, as you naturally would to the girl you love, and to the son. Every word that you write will be appreciated.

2—Such a note to the young man's mother might read:

Dear Mrs. Blank:

I can't begin to tell you how happy you and your husband and I and need I say your lovely Mary? have made me feel during my visit with you. I am sure that it would do your heart good to hear the enthusiastic way in which all of us, and how much we are looking forward to welcoming you to our home whenever you can turns toward here. May it be soon!

Dearest love to you both from all of us,

Cordially yours.

SURPRISE PARTY TO NEWLYWEDS

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bamber, Foxboro, Presented With Chair and Smoking Set

Foxboro, Oct. 30 (Special)—The home of Mr and Mrs. George Bamber, fifth concession at Sidney, was the scene of a delightful surprise gathering on Wednesday evening, Oct. 25th, when about fifty friends and neighbors from the immediate vicinity assembled to pay tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bamber in honor of their recent marriage.

Taken completely by surprise as the gathering walked in, the young couple were visibly affected as Mr. Russell Christie, acting as spokesman for the party, presented them the purpose of the gathering. The address of welcome recalled the happy congratulations of the community on the wedding and extended a hearty greeting to the bride, a hearty welcome into the neighborhood. Mr. Christie called upon Mrs. Leon Wright to read the following address:

Foxboro, Oct., Oct. 25, 1939

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bamber,

Dear Ray and Esther:

Birth, marriages and deaths have always been events of great interest to people the world over. Each event mark the beginning, development and end of whoman life. Marriage is not the least of these because it gives prominence of the continuance of the race. Upon the preservation of all those domestic and social traditions that still are so necessary and dear to human hearts. That wonderful institution brings us, your friends and neighbors together this night. We congratulate you both that you have so successfully and happily launched your barque on the broad and earnestly pray that you may have a long and happy voyage. Whether you want to welcome you into and hope that you may place as part of our community and church life. Words always seem inadequate at such times but we are sure you know with time, so, as a tangible and material expression of our regard and honors, we ask you to accept these gifts.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors, Gordon Wait, Clifford Ford, Reginald Scott, Clifford Murray.

Mr. Gordon Wait and Mr. Clifford Ford then presented the happy young couple with a beautiful occasional chair and smoking stand to match. Mr. and Mrs. Bamber each made very appropriate replies, expressing their heart-felt thanks for such lovely gifts and extending to their kind friends a well-meant invitation for repeated visits whenever possible. Following the impromptu speeches by different members of the party, followed by a delicious lunch served by the ladies, brought the delightful evening to a close.

As I mentioned before the most suitable food for humans is mother's milk. If animals had never been milked there would be no human consumption and we had all the facilities of modern science at our disposal, we would probably not have found animal gave milk most resembling that of humans. If we had the milk of all milk-giving creatures analyzed, we would find that our choice would be cow's milk, for the milk of the dairy cow is more nearly like that given by mothers than the milk of any other animal—mares, camels, goats, pigs, elephants, whales.

We know that prehistoric man didn't have any of the tools of modern science to help him. He couldn't analyze the milk of the various domestic animals. Yet he chose the milk best suited to human consumption. I don't think that choice was made by accident, but by guess well never really know why he made the choice he did.

Butter was in wide use in India as a food 4,000 years ago. And if you are interested in seeing how highly milk was regarded by the ancient Hindus look in the Bible and see how may references are made to "flowing with milk and honey".

In fact so much was the cow loved in India that it is against man that in many early tribes she was worshipped by the Hindus in India.

Large Part in Quinte Development

Milk and milk products have played a great part in the physical development of the Picnne Quintuplets right from the time they were born and will continue to play a large part in their progress as they get older.

Mothers' milk is the only perfect food we have. That is to say, the milk a new-born infant gets from its mother's breast is all the food it needs. And it is not just a perfect, but it is the nearest thing we have to a perfect food.

I don't think any of us could have grown up without milk. Our cookery books tell us it requires that one be more some every day. Of course we get the benefits of milk in many ways—from butter, cheese, milk puddings, custards, ice cream and all kinds of things. But I don't set per-fect, but it is the nearest thing we have to a perfect food.

The use of cow's milk by mankind is almost prehistoric. We know that it was used widely 6,000 years ago. The cow in those days, however, wasn't the fine animal she is today, for the animal has been developed almost to perfection through generations of careful breeding. For thousands of years farmers have been selecting their cows with bulls born to other high-grade cows, and the quality of cattle has gone up and up.

CORNELL IS ONLY UNBEATEN TEAM OF MAJOR RANK

Come from Behind to Beat Ohio State 23-1 in Biggest Upset of Day

NOTRE DAME WINS

Irish Score One Point Victory Over Carnegie Tech

(By Bill Bond, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Cornell's big red football team today had struck home a telling blow in behalf of the Ivy League, which once ruled the United States college football roost but in recent years has had to look back on its glorious past rather than its current ascendancy for justification of its place among the gridiron elect.

By coming from behind to bounce Ohio State's Big Seven out of the all-winning class, 23-14, Cornell gridders wrote a major chapter into their history book and gained the outstanding triumph of the October Saturday. Such teams as Tennessee, Michigan, Duke, Fordham and Southern California added to their reputations and defeated Georgia, Haverford, Colgate and Mississippi further cleared the national picture, but it was Cornell that dominated the proceedings.

Cornell Shut Out in East

As the pigskin parade heads into the last half of the season, Cornell stands out by itself, unbeaten and untied team of major rank in the east. Dartmouth, 10-0 winner over Texas Tech Friday, is a step behind them in the race for one to make this week's national top 10 are Michigan lone all-winning big ten survivor, Texas A. and M., Oklahoma and Nebraska in the mid-west; Tennessee, Tulane, Kentucky, North Carolina, Duke and Louisiana State in the south; Texas Christian and Rice in the southwest, and Southern California, U. C. L. A. and Oregon State of the Pacific Coast.

Fifteen old grads will be hotstoving for years to come over that Cornell comeback. Barred to their alma mater by Ohio State marches made by the Buckeye Bengals, the Cornellians Walt Schaller, a sub halfback, loose for one touchdown; sent Schaff back to pitch to Jack Borhman for a 64-yard scoring play; pitched deciding margin on a virtual one-man drive by Hal McCullough; tacked on a surprise field goal by Jack Petrie, and meanwhile clamped down a defence that has been featured by running plays and grounded all aerial manoeuvres.

Ivy Leaguers Trimmed

Beaten even more decisively than Cornell won were other Ivy leaguers. Yale was trimmed by Michigan 27-7 and Penn fell a 14-0 victim to North Carolina.

Oklahoma, unbeaten Nebraska, both unbeaten but both tied in their openers, marched side by side toward a clash that will decide honors. The scorers rolled over Oklahoma Aggies 41-0 and Nebraska, Big Six Kansas State for a 25-9 triumph.

In southern Penn's Nittany Lions defeat the only eastern surprises of the day were the decisiveness of Maryland's 20-0 win over Pitt and Clemson's feat in walloping Navy 15-7.

ADAMS IN TOUGH SPOT WITH FANS

Kid Line From Pontiacs in M. O. League Causes All the Worry

Detroit, Oct. 30.—(CP)—A brilliant kid line has Jack Adams in a tough spot with the home hockey fans. If he doesn't add them to the Red Wings for the forthcoming National Hockey League campaign, he will get a barrage of criticism from the fans. If he does bring them up, he is afraid of the consequences.

The rookies packed with scoring dynamite are Joe Carveth, Archie Wilder and Les Douglas. They played together for the first time last year with Pontiacs of the Michigan Ontario Amateur Hockey League, and were selected as the three best forwards in the league.

Playing for Indianapolis Capitals last night against the Wings they as a three did the trick for four goals in a bitterly-fought game. Detroit won 6-4. Capitols are the Wings' farm club in the American Hockey Association.

Adams said they were the best line on the ice last night, but he is afraid to jump them right into the M-O League to the N.H.L. He thinks a year of seasoning in the minors will provide them with necessary polish and experience.

The three are the kids of the thousands of fans who jam Detroit's Olympia every Monday night for the M-O doubleheaders. The kids might prove added scoring power, but Adams fears injuries would cripple the youngsters when they first play against

When it comes to novel ideas, Eddie Shore is still the tops among National Hockey League players. At times the "most hated" man in the league, Shore brought down the house last night as an N.H.L. all-star team defeated Montreal Canadiens in the Babe Ruth Memorial Game.

When the teams skated out to start the final period, an orchestra in the Montreal Forum was playing a catchy tune. Shore, known as a grim, cold player, did a few lively dance steps and then stopped. The crowd cheered and clapped. "Come on Eddie, we want more," someone shouted, and others took up the chant. Shore "shagged" some more and finished off with a flourish that brought down the house.

Superstition: Louis Trudel, in the dressing room before the start of the Siebert Memorial contest, was worrying about scoring the 1,000th Canadian goal of the season a couple of nights before it actually happened. "Aw, that's a good beginning will mean that I won't end up so hot," mused the Montreal Flyer. But Trudel scored one of two Canadien goals against the All-Stars.

Paul Thompson has instilled plenty of fight—literally—into his new Chicago Black Hawks. The Hawks, never a boisterous crew by any stretch of the imagination, handed an 8-3 thumping Saturday night at Cleveland to the Cleveland Barons, champions of the Inland League. Flat fights were frequent, and Thompson brought a steady parade to the penalty box. In all five major penalties were handed out, three going to the hawks.

It's a case of "you pay your money and take your choice" in trying to pick a first line on Art Ross' Boston Bruins. Some consider the Porky Dumart - Bobby Bauer - Milt Schmidt line about tops in the N.H.L. In other quarters, there champions of the Inland League. Hershey Bears, who will open their home season against two singles booted by Sammy Sward for Ottawa.

Touchdown Called Back

Jimmy Farmer crossed the Ottawa goal-line after Bill Stukus' 30-yard run and lateral but the play was called back because Stukus, waiting to re-enter the game as a substitute, stepped on a couple of feet over the sideline to watch the excitement and became involved in the play.

Hamilton Tigers stayed in the fight for a Big Four playoff place by defeating the winless Montreal Royals 6-3 at Hamilton, but the Tiger chance seems to be no better than a fighting one. The Hoopla haven't scored a touchdown all season and on Saturday their points came on a field goal by Bill Murmylyk and singles by Murmylyk and Bob Isbister, who provided the running highlight of the game in a dash from his 40-yard line to the Montreal 15.

The Imperials maintained their record of not having lost a game in Sarnia in seven years on the strength of a placement field goal by Bernie Morone, the leading scorer in the east, in the last three minutes. A few moments later the Imperials were stopped at Montreal's 25-yard line when Morone was downed at the Westmounts' 17-yard line after a pass from Mack Galloway, but the final whistle sounded as Bernie was tackled.

Imperials in Third Place

Sarnia remained in third place a point behind Toronto Balmy Beach, former ones Peterborough Friday night; Galloway, out of the game most of the season through injuries, collected three, Riddell and Moon Mullins of the Westmounts each scored three single points, Tommy Burns scored a touchdown for Montreal in the fourth quarter when Bill Gallaway, the other point on a field goal attempt that went wide.

Joe Krol's 26-yard pass to Claude Moore, was an 40 yards for a touchdown, was the lightning thrust that won for Western Ontario University's intermediate title. Glen Fear converted and added another point on a wide field goal attempt, as Ken Thompson added for a point on the last play of the game. Alex Hamilton forced a Western rouge in the first quarter.

Queen's University stayed in the title running by defeating the University of Toronto for the second consecutive week, 11-6 at Toronto. Never had the ancient rivalry ex-ploded into scoring until Saturday's fumbling but Queen's played the sounder game and Ting McGill had the necessary range shots with field goals of 41 and 38 yards for the Tricolor.

BLUE BOMBERS FINISH FIRST

Score Smashing 16-0 Victory Over Regina Roughriders

Winnipeg, Oct. 30 (CP)—Winnipeg Blue Bombers, at the top of the Interprovincial Rugby football Union all season, wound up the schedules Saturday with a score smashing 16-0 triumph over Regina Roughriders.

The win closed a brilliant season for Bombers who annexed three series of the 16-12 walloping they suffered in Regina during the opening game of the season and took the last lap of the grid trail.

They met Calgary Bronks in a sudden-death semi-final at Regina next Saturday to decide the Bombers' opponents in the western home-and-home finals which get underway here Nov. 11.

Toronto Argos Score Upset By Defeating Roughriders In Ottawa by 13-8 Count

Red Storey Scores Two Touchdowns and One Touch Called Back

WESTERN UNDEFEATED

McGill Defeated 8-1 While Tricolor of Queens Triumphs Over Varsity 11-6

(By Jack Calder Canadian Press Staff Writer).

The superb running display by Buster (Red) Storey that carried Toronto Argonauts to victory over Winnipeg in last year's national football final seems to have brought out the best in the redhead with the high-kneed, pile-driving style.

Everyone knew Storey could run from the time he came out of Bates, Ont., to join the Argos. The idea was to get him to adapt his running to offensive football and be taught on perfectly just in time to set up three touchdowns for the Boulers that late December day against Winnipeg. This year he has been an inspired player.

The Argonauts upset the favored Rough Riders 13-8 in a blizzard and rainstorm at Ottawa Saturday and Storey scored two touchdowns, Bowns in another display of pay-off playing. He was the spearhead of a daring passing attack that shot the Scullers into a first-place tie with Ottawa, pointing more definitely towards a spectacular two-game playoff between the clubs for the schedule.

The Rough Riders tumbled from the ranks of the undefeated and untied teams and only the University of Western Ontario Mustangs hold that class in the sector.

Western Maintains Record

Western, scoring a touchdown in the first three minutes, maintained its perfect Intercollegiate Union record by defeating McGill 8-1 at Montreal. Montreal Westmounts, who had won their first three starts in the Ontario Union, were held to a 6-6 tie by the Imperials at Barrie and just missed defeat in the closing seconds.

While wind, rain and snow swept Lansdowne Park, the Argos scored a record attendance of 12,000 persons by defying the elements with an aerial attack to make up for their defeat by Ottawa in Toronto the preceding week. They turned on after Curly Moynahan had scored on a single and Argo mistake in the first quarter.

Storey tossed a lateral to Earl Selkirk deep in his own territory and when Selkirk dropped the ball Murray Dick picked it up and lateralled to Moynahan, who raced 75 yards for a touchdown. Ken Herman converted from placement.

Passes carried the Argonaut Blue into scoring position in the second quarter and Storey rounded the end for a touchdown. In the third Bill Stukus passed over the goal line and Storey scored the points as were converted by Annis Stukus, while Selkirk kicked a single point against two singles booted by Sammy Sward for Ottawa.

PETE LANGELLE NOT PLAYING TO EARLY FORM

Smythe Undecided What Fifteen Men Will be Dressed for Opening Game

TAYLOR STANDOUT?

Davidson, Apps and Drillon Only Line Decided on Permanently

By JACK CALDER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Oct. 30 (CP)—Just when manager Conny Smythe thought he had a fine two forward lines picked, Pete Langelle's play had to go sky-high or scramble the plans for the lineup that Toronto Maple Leafs will send against Boston's champions in their National Hockey League opener here next Saturday.

Smythe intends to carry about 20 players most of the season, but will have 15 with him for the opening night is a question that even the Leafs' boss can't answer yet. A week of practice at St. Catharines, Ont., and an exhibition tour of Northern Ontario have clarified the picture only slightly.

Only Syl Apps will start at centre on the first forward line between Gordon Drillon and Bob Davison again, while at least three of last year's four regular defencemen will oppose Boston. Normie Mann and Hank Goldup, both rookies, have a good chance with the rest of the 22-man squad in training.

But beyond those things nothing is certain, Smythe says he plans to alternate Taylor in the early stages of the schedule and let the fans help pick the fifth man to play regularly.

Have Player Surplus

When the Leafs ended farm club relations with Syracuse of the International - American League this year, they were left with a player surplus. The Toronto sent Harvey Jackson, Doc Romnes and Reg Noble to New York Americans for Sweeney Schriner but it cleared some but there has been a terrific scramble for positions.

Most of the forward-line pinch hitters are "has - been" veterans. Dick Irvin put Langelle between Drillon and Davison in practice Marker in training camp and he proved to be an inspired choice. Pete played cricket with that of Marker and together they made Schriner, Bill Thoms and Gordon Schriner.

Even when the team took to the road for actual games, Langelle missed fire. Schriner was the only forward to get most of the time and Marker was skating offside.

Taylor in Lead

Billy Taylor, centre with Oshawa's National Junior Champions last winter, and two Toronto junior clubs in the senior club, became front-rank candidates for the place, with the latter team, which the lead. Nick Metz, the Leafs' other centre, has been given a promotion with an eye injury.

With Davison and Schriner sure of two left-wing berths, Murph Chamberlain has been duelling with Robert (Red) Heron from Syracuse for the other. Drillon and Marker have defence mates with Apps centre while the veteran Regis (Pep) Kelly has been challenged for the third by Bob Goldham, Mann and Nick who played amateur hockey in Toronto last winter and also jumped to the Leafs during the playoffs.

Wally Stanowski, a great player of the future, has come up from Syracuse to Leafs, but Smythe's flight for defence positions with Captain Red Horner, Goldham, McDonald, Reg Hamilton and Ringo Stampfler. Stanowski has been a sensation as a rusher. Church a steady blocker and McDonald the most improved of the holdovers.

To complicate matters more, really Murk Proctor has shifters to spells while Phil Stein, another of the boys from Syracuse, hasn't let down once in the nets.

VARSITY VS QUEENS AT TORONTO

Traditional rivals of the Intercollegiate Union, Toronto Varsity Blues and Queens met in Toronto on Saturday and the Kingston team outplayed the Toronto team during the first half of the game. At the end of the first half Queens were leading 7-0. The Presbyterians went on to win 11-6 before a crowd of some 9,000 shivering patrons at Varsity stadium. Continued fumbles were costly throughout the entire game, however.

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Belleville's junior O.H.A. mentors find themselves placed similarly to the position they were in when their sponsorship of hockey, among the teen aged of Belleville, was first suggested, namely — replenishment. Realising their present crop of Junior puckers will graduate from the higher ranks, the Holway-Cook-Yanover trio is endeavouring to negotiate plans for further the advancement of hockey among the teen aged boys of Belleville. Just what program or system to employ along these lines, however, is the junior mentors up the well known guessing tree. Naturally Coach "Tools" Holway's ranks are filled in tutoring the Belleville juniors, with but instinct he be elevated to the junior "B" ranks in the O.H.A. this coming season. However, if the Junior mentors decide to sponsor a second team, with an age limit of under 18 years, there is available in Belleville a coach who is capable to take over the tutoring of this team. We refer to Frankie Collins, former Peterboro and Belleville "Bee Peer" veteran ice player, who hockey ability prevented him by Belleville fans as Ken Frank Collins is just about what the Junior director ordered in Belleville. Incidentally he was moved here by his employers.

"There are but two ways to supply the necessary replacements in junior hockey circles. The first is the direct elevation of the junior "C" team, entered in the O.H.A. each year, which must be of 19 years of age or under. In this system only 12 or 14 players would be required, however, the second plan would be to organize a juvenile city league of clubs and following the completion of a regular league schedule, select one all-star team, which would be entered in the Juvenile Hockey Association, the parent body that started Toots Holway's present juniors on their road to success two years ago. Of course if a four teamed juvenile league is organized in Belleville, it will naturally mean that two or three additional coaches will be needed, ones who are willing to devote considerable time to hockey. Regardless as to which system is finally adopted, one thing is certain, additional executive members will be necessary to look after the business activities of the newly proposed hockey set-up among the teen aged kids of Belleville. Here is an opportunity for some of our local sport-minded fans, who desire to get into the athletic and sports picture of the city.

We talked with Ben Cunningham, one of the driving forces of the Kingston Van Horne Memorial series, and Mr. Cunningham informed us that, in all probability the Van Horne series will be resumed this season. Doubt exists, however, will be back into the Kingston pre-season puck icon picture with the Belleville Redmen, but whether or not the local junior squad will give the Van Horne series consideration is problematic. "If we have an early winter we would not need pre-O.H.A. training for our kids in Kingston. However, if the season is late winter, then the Kingston picture takes on a different aspect, but regardless sponsoring a junior team in the Van Horne series can mean nothing more than a serious financial loss in return for what pre-season training the club might enjoy," was the attitude taken by Coach Holway. Frankly speaking it looks as though the sponsorship of a four-teamed juvenile league with the schedule opening as far back as the 25th of November, is out for hockey, is by far the better arrangement.

Local wrestling fans are still talking about last Friday night's Match. Eleven sixty minute draw without and without a fall being registered. Incidentally the patrons would like to see a return bout with no time limit, one "fall in three" basis to decide all of the main bout purse. Frankly we'd prefer a Rikon-Eppy one hour and one hour, baskets of chess men ply considerable knowledge of the grappling business and we like Ellhas's ring workmen. It has been brought to our attention that Charlie Thorne, who wrestles Tipper Daniels here Friday night, is the same Thorne who has been wrestling in Western Ontario with Rikon for the past few months, especially in and around the tobacco belt area where they take their wrestling seriously. Thorne watched Daniels here last week and feels he can whip the fiery Bitz Tiger with as much ease as Valdez.

Patsy Alossi, Brooklyn fan, will root for Larry MacPhail to continue the Dodgers' terrific pace and another fan tied on guessing the season attendance. They tossed a coin to see who would take the automobile. Patsy lost. So MacPhail consulted him with a pass good as long as Larry is connected with the Dodgers. And Patsy hopes that is forever.

There is an outside chance that the 1940 Olympic Games may be held in Japan. The International Olympic Committee reported recently, "The business of war has mitigated the 1940 Olympics to no purpose." Japan had to abandon the idea and now Helsingfors, Finland, has also been forced to quit the idea owing to international troubles and relations.

The Western University Mustangs remain the only undefeated, untied football squad in the east. Toronto Argos scored a surprise win at Ottawa, while Montreal Westmount remains at Barrie, so today the Mustangs are the only undefeated, untied team in Eastern Canada.

ONEPOUND BABE MAY LIVE

Galveston, Tex., Oct. 30.—(AP)—If William and Ruth Harrell, a one pound baby, doesn't yet land home much in the next few days, doctors say he may live.

William, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Harrel, was born prematurely Friday. He needs weight to survive, doctors would say in effect. Oxygen is being given the baby and he is fed a few drops of a modified milk formula.

BROTHER KILLED IN MINE BLAST

Mrs. Alec Williamson of Belleville Is Sorely Grieved by Explosion in Scotland

Aftermath of the Scottish mine disaster at Valleyfield near Dunfermline, on Saturday, thirty-four miners lost their lives in what was believed to be an explosion caused by fire-damp, who felt here today when Mrs. A. Williamson, 184 Front Avenue, learned through a list of the dead published in a newspaper, that her brother Robert Keegan had died in the mine with his companions.

The late Mr. Keegan, according to Mrs. Kathleen Williamson, was a widower and had worked in the mine for a number of years. He had worked on the night shift for some time and this knowledge caused the family to be more grieved information. A list of the dead brought the direct information that Mr. Keegan had been killed.

MANY CASES IN TWEED COURT

One Pleads Guilty to Drunk Driving and Sentenced to Seven Days

Tweed, Oct. 30 (Special)—Clerk Head, a Tweed resident, pleaded guilty before Magistrate Boyd, of a charge of operating a motor car while intoxicated. He was sentenced to seven days in the County jail and his drivers license suspended for a period of three months. The charge was laid by Chief J. G. Hayes and Provincial Constable A. Dymond, who made the arrest.

A second case appearing before the court was that of Three Tweed residents, Lloyd Ketcheson, Crawford and John Weyman, who pleaded guilty to a charge of having in the possession of illegal liquor. A fine of $100 was assessed in each case, with costs added, or three months in jail on default of payment. They were charged with drinking rubbing alcohol, for which they paid $3 per bottle. Sentence to run concurrently with the other.

James Parm of Tweed, was found guilty of a re-charge of the charge. He was fined $10 with costs amounting to $40.35. The charges followed a collision on Highway No. 37 on October 16th, when a car driven by Ketcheson struck a truck at a narrow bridge about two miles north of Tweed. The truck was driven by Oswald Hutson of North Hastings. None of the occupants of the car or the truck was seriously injured.

Crawford of Tweed, appeared for the accused.

Police Blotter

Morley Ward, 120 West Moira St. reported damage to his motor car when it was parked in front of his home over the week-end. The left rear fender, tire and wheel were damaged. The car is capable of being struck by an alleged hit and run driver. He says a description of the vehicle to strike Mr. Ward's car was later provided the authorities by neighbors and a thorough investigation is proceeding.

City police were busied over the week-end investigating minor affairs which came to their attention. Court officials reported the investigations looking into destitute motorists, who failed to stop at Alfred and Front Streets on the streets and also who were apprehended for the violation of the down-parking regulation.

Elma Smith, 207 1-3 Front St. reported the theft of her bicycle to city police over the week-end. The bike was taken from the porch, leading to her parents' apartment sometime Saturday night, but was missing Sunday.

THE SEMANTHAY configurations bearing rule on the events of today are: Jupiter favorable, and thrilling events, possibly of a tragic and unpronounced nature, with many new, strange or unculcultated developments. The spirit of Halloween will be strong, but is found under high stimulus for pulsation. Those who celebrate, and in this elders, old institutions or institutions of power, will be favored. High-pressure measures should prove productive.

There is every birthday it is may anticipate a progressive and productive year, with much high initiative and quickened energies and faculties attracting the attention and gaining substantial endorsement of the elder superiors or old-established institutions. However, intrepid adventures and surprises in construction and creative work may attract strangers as well, and give thrilling satisfaction. Caution may be needed, but be wise as to legal aspects.

A child born on this day may be unusually progressive, productive and interested in matters of practical way, winning support of elders and prominence in its fields, possibly originality and audacity.

EDWIN CHARLES FOAREAD

London, England

Word was received in the city today of the death of his father, Edwin Charles Foaread, in London, England, early this morning, by Mrs. Foaread, Dunsmore Addition, Belleville. The late Mr. Foaread had been in ill health for some time and Mr. and Mrs. Foaread visited him two years ago. He was born in London, England, a son of Harry of London, England, survive.

MRS. R. A. PARKS

(Tweed)

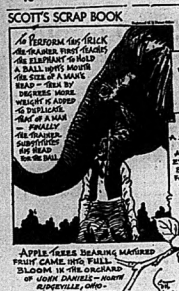
Tweed (Special)—The funeral of the late Mrs. R. A. Parks of Tweed who passed away on Thursday in her sixty-fifth year was held on Saturday afternoon from her late residence on Metcalfe St., to Tweed United Church of which she was a member. The services were conducted by Rev. H. C. Morrison, B. A., pastor. Mrs. S. H. Connor sang "They are only Shadows." Interment was in Victoria Cemetery. The following were the bearers: Messrs. T. B. Bath, W. R. Tummon, H. Tucker, W. Countryman, Ed Wright and Dr. P. T. Bowlby.

The late Mrs. Parks was born in Selby, Ontario, the daughter of George Osborne and Mary Ann Wright. She was married in 1904 to Joseph McKeah who moved to Tweed where her husband died in 1906. Later, after her second marriage, to Alfred Parks, she resided for a time at Sioco where her husband was engaged in milling. In 1916 Mr. Parks passed away and the widow and four small children moved to Tweed where she has resided until the time of death.

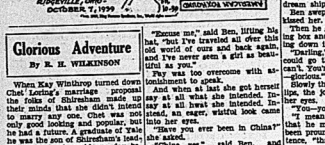
The deceased is survived by four children, Roy of Mount Forest; Mrs. Ronald (Ethel) Peterson (Mary) Ghrs. John Orr), both of Tweed, and Mrs. Campbell Wright of

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT



Do You Know Your Dogs?



Glorious Adventure

By R. H. WILKINSON

When Kay Winthrop turned down Chet Loring's marriage proposal the folks of Shiresham made up their minds that she didn't intend to marry any one. Chet was not only good looking and popular, but he had a future. A graduate of Yale he was the son of Shiresham's leading citizen and would one day become sole owner of the Loring Textile mills.

It was hard to understand a girl who would turn up an offer like that.

For some reason Kay must have decided to live and die an old maid, because no girl could possibly assign higher than Chet Loring.

As a matter of fact, the folks of Shiresham were for once quite accurate in their guesswork.

Kay had resigned herself to do just what they predicted; Live and die an old maid. And she probably would have succeeded because of a natural stubbornness and independence of nature had not, a month after Chet's proposal, Ben Rosen of the Wallingford Express popped into town one day to interview Loring senior concerning the possibility of a textile strike.

En route back to the railroad station Ben stopped in the drug store to buy some cigarettes and found Kay Winthrop there.

One look at Kay and Mr. Rosen had an attack of goosepimples.

He followed her out to her car and climbed boldly aboard the running board.

Kay looked at him indignantly, but she didn't scream.

"I'll chuck th... sporting job and do the thing I've wanted to do: Write a travel book. I'll do it while we're cruising across the Pacific. I'll never take a chance that I can sell the book!"

"Yes," said Kay breathlessly. "Oh, yes, it'll be a glorious adventure! You can show me all the places you've visited before, all the queer countries and strange customs!"

Ben nodded and for once held his peace.

He looked down into her glowing eyes and instantly turned away.

BEN-Kay was too excited to notice.

"We'll elope," he said. "Next Thursday night. It'll be more exciting."

Until Thursday Kay lived in a world of dreams and glorious expectancy. When the time came she was waiting for him with her suitcase packed and an eager, joyous look in her eyes.

During the ride to the docks, he said:

"The captain will marry us on board.

And then he was strangely silent. At the pier he pointed out their ship and Kay exclaimed in delight: "Oh, it's wonderful! Like—like a dream ship."

Ben awed her into his arms and kissed her.

Then he sat her down on a packing box and stood before her, looking down into her eyes.

"Darling," he said. "I thought I could go through with it, but I can't. You're too fine and good and —glorious."

Slowly the smile faded from Kay's face, the joyful, expectant look left her eyes.

"Yes—you mean—" she began.

"I mean," said Ben, in a voice that he might have said had he been pronouncing his own death sentence, "that I haven't been honest with you. That I haven't been round the world, or visited strange countries and queer people. I—I've never been outside the state. Those stories I told you are only my dreams—the things I've always wanted to do, but never got around to it. I'd hate to you to that way because I fell in love with you and after that first day I knew that that was the way to make you love me."

"Then—then you're not going to write a book?"

He smiled wistfully.

"No, Kay I am. Some day when I can overcome the cursed inertia that has been my Waterloo since childhood."

"Then—you're not like everyone else?"

He shook his head.

"No. There'll come a time when I'll sail away. But it will have to be alone. It takes money to support a wife. A wife wants security and most anyone else but me could give her that.

Kay's eyes were misty.

She looked toward the ship that was to take them away.

A gray veil of fog rolled in from the ocean and was eddying about her bulwarks like a silvery wreath.

Hiding there at anchor it was not hard to think of her as a ghost ship, a fairy vessel belonging to another world, a world of romance and adventure.

Kay turned away and looked up at Ben.

"I don't care," she said huskily, if you did lie, I love you, darling, and I'm glad you were honest. Glad you had that much imagination, glad those thoughts were in your dreams, for they were my dreams, too. I—I needed someone like you to—to wake me up. I never would have gone, if it hadn't been for you."

Ben's eyes gleamed in the darkness. He reached down and seized her hands.

"But darling, you only enough money for the ticket. No more."

"But the book! You'll write the book!"

"Of course, I will!"

He laughed, and there was recaptured hope and confidence in the sound he made. "It mayn't sell, though."

"Oh, it will! It will. It can't help selling if we are having our adventure! It doesn't we can always write another! And in the meantime we'll get along. Somehow."

"We'll get along," Ben repeated joyfully. "You and I together—in far away places, in a strange country, among queer people. Just you and I on our glorious adventure. I—I guess we only needed each other to get started."

He kissed her again and held her close for long minutes. And then they turned toward the ghost ship. Arm in arm they paced through the fog and mist. It closed about them, shutting off the lights and sounds of the town. The world that was behind, and they were gone into the land of glorious adventure.

News From the Medical Front

On Asthma and Hydrotherapy

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Is asthma due to nerves? Partly. Asthma is caused by spasm of the bronchial muscles and these are controlled by nerves of the vegetative nervous system. In the old days one treatment was to tie a pig to the bottom of the asthmatic's bed. The grunting of the pig, imitating his own grunts, was supposed to shame the asthmatic out of his condition.

I remember a young man who was brought in the city for consultation of a severe case of asthma. He was sitting in a wheel chair in the station waiting for a wheel chair, he saw from the window a casket being wheeled along the station platform. He bought it was for him and it frightened him so the asthma left for several years. It does not do, however, to take such isolated cases as models for the treatment of asthma. Asthma is real and cannot usually be cured by recourse to psychic treatment.

Do you recognize the virtues of hydrotherapy, and can it be given at home?

Hydrotherapy, or treatment by water is one of the finest methods of treatment in the modern physician's armamentarium. Certainly I recognize it. The modern North American home is splendidly adapted to different forms of hydrotherapy. In Boston, in Colonial days, it was a prime offense to take a bath without a doctor's prescription. But all that is changed. Some methods of treatment by water that can be used in the modern home are:

A. The cold pack. A sheet wrung out of cold water is spread out on the bed over two blankets. The patient lies down on it, and the sheet is snugly wrapped around the body from neck to feet, then the blankets wrapped over it. Good for a cold, a fever, arthritis, sleeplessness, kidney disease, as a heart tonic, scarlet fever, skin disease, itching.

The Compress

B. The compress. Throat compress —A strip of linen, three inches wide is wrung out of cold water and laid over the throat, being brought up to the ears and held in place by a flannel bandage that goes over the head (not around the throat to the back of the neck). Good for laryngitis, tonsillitis and any form of sore throat. Chest compress—same principle. Joint compress—same principle. Splendid for any sore joint gout or rheumatism.

C. The douche. If you have a shower bath, prudently alternate hot and cold water. This gives a massage to the capillaries. It is called the Scotch douche. Pailing this, get in a bathing suit in the back yard and have the hose turned on you. Indications—heart disease, high blood pressure, nervousness, fatigue.

D. The affusion. Sitting in the bath tub, have a pitcher of ice water poured over the body from a height.

F. Stupes. Hot cloths to the abdomen. Relieves the abdomen first with vaseline to prevent burning, then apply flannel cloths wrung out of the hottest water that can be endured. Good for flatulence, any abdominal pain, gallstone colic, pelvic inflammation in yomen.

"If we go into another world war the essentials of modern civilization, as we know them today, are bound to disappear."—Harry Elmer Barnes.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Oct. 30.—(CP) — Cattle Trade continued at a slow pace in early-afternoon dealings on the Toronto Livestock Market today. Slaughter cattle sales were too few to establish a trend. The calf and lamb section held steady while the sheep market turned stronger. No hog price was established. Cattle holdover from last week was 800 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock branch were: Cattle 6,020; calves 2,230; hogs 1,410; sheep and lambs 2,040.

A few canners and cutters sold steady at $3.50 and under. Steers were active and firm at $5.50-$7 with stock calves selling up to $7.75.

Choice veal calves sold at $10-$11 with heavy calves at $6-$7.50 and graners at $5-$5.50.

Prices close on off-truck hogs was $9.65.

Good ewe and wether lambs delivered by rail brought $9.50 with a few selling to pulpers around $8.50; on off-truck lambs were $9.25.

Good light ewes sold at $5-$5.50 and culls sold downward to $2.50.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Oct. 30 (CP)—Hog-dog markets were unsettled today. Brantford prices were down .10 cents from Saturday while Peterborough dressed-weights declined .20. No quotations were available at Barrie.

Liveweights—Brantford $8.15. Dressedweights — Brantford $11.25, Hamilton $1.50, Hill $11.25, Kingston $11.50, Belleville, Peterborough $11.50, Stratford $11.25, Brantford $11.25.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 30—(CP)— Toronto Exchange stocks were steady today. Trading was concentrated in Aldermac and Sherritt-Gordon. Announcement that mail order companies would be given orders for support for buyers for the British Government and both posted gains of 1 cent. Lake Shore, Wright-Hargreaves and Teck Hughes were off moderately and light interest in the base metal price golds were steady.

Food, amusement and utility stocks were inclined to easiness. Canadian Car and Foundry Common spurted at noon to a new high at 19 1-4 in heavy trading and other car issues were also in the western oil group, Home was down slightly and Shalla and Anglo-Canadian up a cent or two.

WALL STREET

New York, Oct. 30—(AP)—Leading stocks slipped a shade in today's market although real selling pressure was lacking. Dealings slow at the start, frequently came to a standstill.

Stocks behind the greater part of the day-session were narrowly revived moderately—included U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, U.S. Rubber, Caterpillar Tractor, Douglas Aircraft, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Anaconda, Western Union, International Nickel, Great Northern and Texas Corp.

Dome managed a small gain in the Canadian list. Industry cannot stand side coldly and witness the destruction of the very foundations of national policy to oppress the belligerent nations making the most vigorous protest of which she is capable.

She cannot remain indifferent to a campaign deliberately designed to undermine her economic and political liberties which are hers by right of inheritance. Therefore Canada is at war for humanity, for the right to pursue her way in peace. She is at war because her soul is tortured by wholesale pillage and murder which have violated every known law, even three thousand miles away, unless it is stopped where it has begun.

PTE. JOHN WOODS HELD BY POLICE

Will be Charged With Drunken Driving and Reckless Driving, the Result of an Accident

One member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is in the Picton Hospital as the result of a motor accident, that occurred four miles south of Bellville on night-Monday No. 14 early Saturday night when the automobile in which he was riding, along with three other soldiers, is said by police to have overturned another motor car. The injured soldier was Pte. Charles Wardman, Jr., of Picton, four passengers, Ptes. Spence and Latta received slight injuries in the accident, a member of the Regimental physician, Dr. H. Lysens at Picton.

Pte. Woods, in the vehicle, Pte. John Woods was arrested by Provincial Constable Ernest Hall, and W. E. Smith on charges of drunken driving, reckless driving and also of driving while his driver's licence was under suspension. Woods, the police revealed today, was convicted on a charge of failure to remain at the scene of an accident when he appeared in Picton on Friday last and which was also his operator's licence was revoked.

The car driven by Pte. Woods with the four soldiers aboard is said by investigating police to have collided with a north bound motor car driven by Henry Walmsley, R.R. No. 1, Picton, causing considerable damage to both vehicles. There were no injuries to passengers in Mr. Walmsley's car, however, Pte. Wannamaker is said to have received severe facial lacerations, the result of flying glass, it is believed.

Canada at War For Humanity Says G. McCullagh

Toronto, Oct. 30 (CP)—"Canada is at war for humanity, for the right to pursue her way in peace," declared C. George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail, in a war time broadcast tonight by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Speaking for the first speech in a series entitled "Canada At War" Mr. McCullagh said that it is difficult to realize that peace-loving Canadians are fighting on foreign soil, and that it is a stern reality for persons nothing in the world is dearer to their soul.

Canadians recall with a profound sense of gratitude that they live in a British land, subjects of a king and constitution which stand for peace and welfare of his own and all the British peoples, said Mr. McCullagh.

"What a striking contrast is presented by the vision of this stately tree-lined capital, the city and the sunlit countryside, when compared with the hideous, Godless, Satanic spirit that hoodlums and gangsters who spare neither age nor sex, the innocent or their mad march to enslave defenceless peoples and appropriate their lands for their own purposes."

Canada Can't Stand Aside.

He declared that Canada cannot stand aside coldly and witness the deliberate destruction by aggression of national policy to oppress the belligerent nations making the most vigorous protest of which she is capable.

"She cannot remain indifferent to a campaign deliberately designed to undermine her economic and political liberties which are hers by right of inheritance. Therefore Canada is at war for humanity, for the right to pursue her way in peace. She is at war because her soul is tortured by wholesale pillage and murder which have violated every known law, even three thousand miles away, unless it is stopped where it has begun.

"Canada knows only too well that the forces which have committed these be gone, and democracy will have departed from the earth. Canada is all wise to help Britain defend this Dominion's right to her way of life."

AIR-RAID

The aircraft observed in Kent drew fire from land batteries.

The gunfire was described by those been heard from the direction of the English channel. British fighting planes were known to have taken the air.

At several points in Kent, the alarms lasted 10 to 12 minutes. At one spot, 3,000 children quit their schools in orderly fashion in less than four minutes.

At Height of Rush

The false alarms in Westminster, Holburn and Paddington, came at the height of the morning rush of commuters to work and lasted only a few minutes.

Large numbers of persons took shelter before the all-clear signal was given.

There was a brief alarm at the Ministry of Information building.

The warning system, with 400 or more of the headquarters staff, which has 29 wardens throughout the building blow their whistles for the first time since Sept. 6.

With gas masks slung over their shoulders, officials, their typists and messengers followed a trail of blue arrows to the basement. They returned about 10 minutes later.

Fourth in Week

Today's warning was the fourth for London, there having been sounded Sept. 3, 4 and 6.

British naval circles meanwhile riddled sweeping claims of submarine successes against British merchant ships and suggested to newspapermen that the U-boat propaganda had added merchant and warship figures and been nearly doubled the tonnages to make their figures.

A British compilation estimated merchant shipping loss of 221,000 tons thus far, exclusive of the torpedoed warship Royal Oak, mysterious and the battleship Royal Oak.

Last week the British merchant losses were estimated at 51,000 tons, which were offset to a degree by German ships destroyed amounting to 19,500 tons.

Warnings were drawn to the statements of Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty and Prime Minister Chamberlain, pulling Britain's access in U-boat warfare at 14 ships, with others perhaps damaged.

Churchill declared that "we are seriously damaged and grossly underrun.

Circles Know Motive

British naval circles said they believed they knew the motive for false German claims that key British warships had been sunk.

These circles said they believed Germany was making claims had the twin purpose of impressing neutrals and annoying the British navy, demoralized by the spectacular spectacular stunt outside naval strategy."

One spokesman recalled that the British Admiralty was led into this error in the last war when, after German raids on British ports, word came from Berlin that ron was sent on an "expedition" to Germany that "every ship crushed in disaster."

The First Ministry announced an investigation into the false air raid alarm in London.

In a joint communique with the Ministry of Home Security, the Air Ministry said:

Down In East Kent

"An air raid warning was given in the East Kent area shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, and the all-clear was given after 10 minute. Half an hour later, a warning signal was sounded in error in the London district, but the all clear was sounded a few minutes later. The matter is being investigated."

Some office workers grumbled about the false alarm and speculated on whether the warning system might be to provoke premature precautions with "finger" flights, then capitalize on the sense of false security thus created.

Above some of the early air persons were seen carrying gas masks today, compared with about nine out of 10 immediately after the war started Sept. 3.

Ag. Day Line

Warnings were sounded first in the London area, however, and continued on a zig-zag line to Kent, on the Southeast coast.

The joint communique did not immediately fix in a terse report passed for publication, but the southeast coast incident in which civilians were said to have been burned of machine-gun fire as an aircraft flew low on the Dungeness and a British craft flew close together at a low altitude.

The scene later was identified as the East Lothian area where a German warplane fell Wednesday Saturday.

An air raid warning in the fifth of Forth area lasted a half hour.

Daily War Survey

This principle has been described by a French economist as the contribution of neutrals to the blockade. For European states it is a precaution against possible Germany insolvency and also a means of avoiding German domination through increasing economic dependence. From the Allied point of view it contributes to the blockade by making it more difficult for Germany to obtain supplies.

Regulated by Agreement

Since 1934, trade regulations between Germany and Yugoslavia have been regulated by an agreement regulating to exchange. German imports from Yugoslavia exceeded exports, however, and recently Yugoslavia insisted upon the payment for its surplus exports in Germany over imports from Germany in gold or currencies acceptable to her to accept blocked marks, good only for purchases in Germany.

At the same time, Germany was asked to settle back numbers of Yugoslavian freight cars and locomotives held in Germany and, in future, provide its own transport for Yugoslavian exports into Germany.

Under a new arrangement between Bulgaria and Germany it is stipulated that 30 per cent of Bulgarian exports to Germany must be paid for in currency.

BRITISH TROOPS

The B. E. F. can be described as being "on the spot." It is not only ready to repeat a possible enemy attack but is also being kept ready for an instant advance. That is its position today. Some time the full story will be told of the organization that enabled Great Britain to send across the sea the thousand score of thousands of men and thousands of motor vehicles which are necessary to keep a modern army supplied with food, fuel and ammunition.

Skilled Labor

First, there came to France a band of men, turned overnight from civilians, who could supply the skilled labor of unloading transports, of preparing depots and warehouses for the thousands of miles eastward the men and materials would have to travel on the front-line fighting forces.

Then the depots had to be organized. Railways had to be laid down. Some half-dozen railheads had to be established.

Beyond these, reserve depots had to be got ready so that the troops should temporarily be interrupted, whatever the weather, by enemy action or the ordinary chances of war.

Some idea of the maintenance problem may be got from the fact that the R.A.F. has to be supplied with six hundred and fifty tons of petrol every day, or 4,550 gallons at the rate of 90,000 tons a month.

Yet in the first month of war the army actually arrived in present forward positions with three times the number of motor vehicles and with 500 tons of gasoline to spare. Its supplies of food, ammunition and maintenance are the concern of the quarter-master general.

Kept in Supplies

Having got the spearhead of British strength into the present position, the business of the quartermaster general is to keep the front-line troops in supplies and at the same time ensure their ability to move into action as necessity or notice. Thus it is that we find them in the front line being called to work out in the open rain, sleet and blizzard, and then after a few minutes' halt an hour later, a warning given was false, a rumor in the London district, but the all clear was sounded a few minutes later. The matter is being investigated."

Some office workers grumbled about the false alarm and speculated on whether the warning system might be to provoke premature precautions with "finger" flights, then capitalize on the sense of false security thus created.

BRITISH SHIPPING

View Is Encouraged.

Adolf Hitler's newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, encouraged this view and supported intensification of submarine warfare by describing what it said was treatment accorded to captains of British merchantmen which have been seized by the British blockade units.

The newspaper charged that the captain and crew of the Poseidon, a German merchantman seized by the British warship, were threatened with revolvers when they abandoned their vessel. The reason for the alleged threat, it claimed, was that the British wanted prisoners to set time bombs and flee with their crews in lifeboats, thus leaving the German ships to fall into enemy hands.

"If English methods are throwing overboard, one after another, all conceptions of international law," the newspaper declared.

The last report of Weyer's Naval Annual indicated that at the beginning of this year 43 German submarines were afloat and 28 others were planned or under construction.

ARRESTED YOUTH

The Frankfort, Ind., youth was turned over to Missouri authorities near the Illinois-Indiana state line last night after he had told a story of death in the sky.

Fletch told police in his confession he piloted the stolen plane, killing himself, but lost his nerve.

In a signed statement, he related he received "an hour and a half instructions" from Birren Friday night.

Fletch said he then proposed they "go to Mexico" in the plane Birren took for the Birren, "after testing for a while", agreed.

Headed East.

He said they took aloft immediately and headed east, to visit Fletch's wife-to-be parents on a farm near Frankfort,

The disagreement started, the confession continued, when Birren inquired if Fletch was armed and the youth answered he "carried an army with the intention of trading it for gasoline if necessary".

"Birren then stated he was withdrawing from our plans to steal the plane and also said that he was going to land the plane and 'turn me in'."

Expert Electrician

Bell, who lived in Midland, was considered an expert electrician and radio specialist but his work on Midland boats which came into harbor at Midland had slipped in recent months. A week ago a boat left on his business.

Bell's home was known by Midland residents as a lavish spender and a dresser with unusual taste. She had said she intended to open a tea room in Midland some time ago she bought a cottage in Midland for Bell.

Miss Smith had an income of about $30 a month from her brother. She was employed at the office of Ambrose Small, it was to go to the Roman Catholic Church upon her death.

THE BEST WAY TO PACK TOBACCO

Getting his product to the smoker in perfect condition is one of the important considerations of the tobacco manufacturer. A large, moisture-proof package is the best way to keep the tobacco in a good condition and a smaller package containing the same quantity of tobacco which is firmly packed. The tobacco in the small package, not only keeps better, but it also smokes better and the trend of the times in this type of package is that now used in connection with DAILY MAIL Cigarette Tobacco, a product which has achieved such outstanding popularity among men who roll their own cigarettes. It contains the same quantity and quality and sells at the same price as formerly, but certainly get full value for your money in the new package of DAILY MAIL Cigarette Tobacco.

ITALIAN-SOVIET

Jailing of 14 pro-Nazi Free Guardists accused of plotting to assassinate General Gabriel Marcel, Minister of Interior, momentarily diverted Rumanian attention from the international situation.

Rumanian circles said Italy was combatting Russian moves with promises of continued neutrality and increased trade.

Italy Favored

Hungary and Yugoslavia were reported in more political circles as favoring Italy. A pro-Soviet demonstration in Belgrade, the Yugoslav capital, was broken up and student and workers being arrested.

Indications of close co-operation between Hungary and Italy were reflected in a Government-censored front page editorial of the Magyar Nemzet, Budapest newspaper, which declared:—

"Neither political nor spiritual Rome is willing to make fruitless, cheap promises, with those powers of Central and Christian civilization."

MYSTERY ENDED

Miss Small's body was found late Friday by duck hunters at the point where the Nottawasaga River pours into Georgian Bay. Bell's automobile, with the ignition and lights switched on and engine running, emerged near river mouth and his coat, floating in the stream, yielded papers that showed he had married Miss Small, who was 12 years his senior, at Stayner Thursday.

Believe Bell Killed Girl

Police believed Bell missed a road in the dark Thursday night and the car plunged into the river. Holes in the canvas roof of the car told of Bell's desperate struggle to get out. Their bodies evidently were carried by the lake by strength of the river current.

On Saturday night Dr. E. R. Franklin, medico-legal expert of the Ontario Attorney-General's Department, came to Midland to examine Miss Small's body.

Williams and Stirling, Orangeville men he saw Bell's body in the shallows about 75 feet from shore. He found it to be the body.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE CONTROL BOARD

NOTICE

All persons exporting property from Canada, or importing property into Canada, or receiving any foreign currency in Canada or abroad, or dealing in any way with foreign securities or other foreign assets should take notice that activities of this character are subject to the provisions of the Foreign Exchange Control Order, 1939, promulgated under the authority of the War Measures Act, and it is encumbent upon all concerned to become familiar with the Order and the Regulations of the Board. Penalties have been established for infractions of the Order or Regulations.

Under the Order any resident who had in his possession, ownership or control on September 15th, 1939, any foreign exchange valued at more than $1,000 or any foreign securities valued at more than $1,000 is required to declare them to the Board. Notice is hereby given that any resident who has not filed such declaration with the Board by November 15th, 1939, will be considered to be in default under the provisions of the Order.

Notice is also given that the Board has provided a special form of permit for exporters who are being allowed to make exports for payment in Canadian dollars. Temporary arrangements previously made in this regard will be terminated on November 30th, and any exporter who has not then obtained a special "Control Permit-Canadian Payment" from the Board will not be able to make any further exports otherwise than for payment in foreign exchange. Any exporter who wishes to make shipments for payment in Canadian dollars and who has not yet made application in this connection to the Board should do so immediately, giving full particulars of the nature of the transactions.

For the information of the public, the Foreign Exchange Control Order and Regulations 1 to 34 of the Board, as contained in special issues of the Canada Gazette dated September 15th, 17th, 23rd and 25th and October 23rd. Copies may be obtained from the King's Printer, Ottawa.

Further information may be obtained from the Board, from Collectors of Customs and Excise and from Canadian banks.

WAR BRIEFS

Inspect French troops, the newspaper La Journal said, the Duke of Windsor expressed "great admiration" at the sight of empty steels created by the absence of the population under the menace of bombardment. The paper quoted the Duke as saying he was impressed by the spirit of the troops and commented on the reactive work of the soldiers.

Ottawa, Oct. 30—(CP)—Domestic authorities on the busy today stamping out demonstrations in Bohemia, where Czechs defied German police over the week end to celebrate the 21st anniversary of the founding of the Czechoslovak Republic, agreed that calm excitement occurred Saturday night, in the course of which at least 800 persons were arrested, the particulating in disorders in Prague.

FIFTY MILLIONS AWARDED IN SABOTAGE CASES

Mixed Claims Commission Makes Awards Against Germany

1916-1917 CASES

Germany Has Special Deposit Account to U. S. Treasury of Over 23 Millions

Washington, Oct. 30 (AP)— The German-American Mixed Claims Commission awarded approximately $50,000,000 today to Americans with claims against Germany arising from the black from and Sabotage, H.J., sabotage cases in 1916 and 1917.

The Commission last June 15 found Imperial Germany responsible for the munitions disasters in the New York port area in the United States entry into the first Great War.

Today's action made the definite award to the claimants.

Damages of $23,157,227 plus five per cent interest—estimated to approximate $50,000,000 today—was ordered paid to the claimants.

Germany Denies Jurisdiction

Germany has a special deposit account in the United States treasury of between $23,000,000 and $26,000,000 to meet the award. The treasury also holds about $500,000,000, "paper value," in German republic bonds.

Germany however, has denied the jurisdiction of the commission.

Dr. Victor Ruecking, the German Commissioner, handed out in a statement his reasons for the decision last June and the German government has appealed against the award. The German side of the case was recently vacated.

The Kingsland munitions plant was owned by the Canadian Car and Foundry company.

Major Awards

Major awards among 153 made by the Commission included: Lehigh Valley Railroad, $9,900,352; the Agency of the Canadian Car and Foundry Company, $5,971,106; the Kingsland Underwriters, which paid insurance on some of the losses, $1,311,022; the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, $32,-676; the Black Tom Underwriters, $4,096,977; the Bethlehem Steel Company, $1,849,491. The remainder was small claims.

The Commission made public correspondence between Hans Thomsen, counsellor at the German Embassy, and Roberts, filed by Thomsen protested to the State Department against the procedure before a "rump commission." He said that Owen J. Roberts, while as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, has "had no neutrality at all." Thomsen made "most solemn representation" against the "illegal" act the department could ask the State Department quash proceedings of the Commission.

Hull replied that "I must refrain from entering in a discussion of the various complaints and protests set out in your communication. In the contest myself by stating that since the department is without jurisdiction over the Commission, I consider that it would be highly inappropriate for it to intervene directly in the work of the Commission, or discussion, in the same manner, to determine the course of its proceedings."

Incidents of Explosions

The incidents which the Commission attributed to German sabotage began when the commission revealed terminal at Black Tom Island off New Jersey blew up on the night of July 30, 1916. The explosion of 500,000 pounds of munitions en route for Allied armies in Europe heard as far away as Philadelphia and rocked the New York Metropolitan area.

The Kingsland catastrophe came on Jan. 11, 1917, when 300,000 pounds of explosive and a fire which started at a workman's bench.

RAID ON KIEL RECONSTRUCTED

London Audience Acclaims War 'Movie, 'Lion Has Wings'

London, Oct. 30—(CP Cable)— "The Lion Has Wings", a movie of war in the air which was placed on the official secrets list during production, was shown in public for the first time in London today.

The picture, of frankly "inspirational" character, was acclaimed by a leading group of critics, particularly during scene reconstruction of the Kiel Canal raid, in which, it is recalled, Canadian member of the Royal Air Force took a prominent part.

The actual pilots of the Kiel raid are shown at the moment of return to the airport.

The movie was made in close cooperation with the Royal Air Force and the Ministry of Information by several companies and London Films.

Fifty per cent of the proceeds will go to the Government's war fund. Members of the movie are being sent to all the Dominions and neutral countries.

Full Co-operation of Canada With Great Britain Assured

Hon. T. A. Crerar, Head of Canadian Delegation in London for Empire Talks, Makes Statement

CO-ORDINATE TASKS

London, Oct. 30 (CP. Cable)— Hon. T. A. Crerar, Canadian Minister of Agriculture, declared today, in a statement issued today said the delegation he heads had come to London "with the single objective in view—to ensure that as far as we can Canada's full co-operation with Britain, France and the other Dominions shall be forthcoming to bring the war to a successful conclusion in the shortest possible time."

The Minister said the magnitude of the war operations would bring a host of problems. "The Canadian delegation, he added, has in its personnel "those who are competent to assist in discussing these problems so far as they touch, or are affected by, Canada's participation."

"It is impossible, of course," the statement said "at this stage to make declarations, in either their form or result. But this may be said—they will be directed to a co-ordination of the fruitful collaborations that have been made during the past few months. In addition they have the purpose that they may be conducted through the medium of personal contact.

"Representatives from the Dominion also will have an opportunity for learning at first hand the machinery of between $23,000,000 and $26,000,000 to meet the award. The treasury also holds about $500,000,000, "paper value," in German republic bonds.

MAY ALLOCATE SHARE S. S. TAX

Ford Company Wins Appeal of $18,000 Tax Company Assessed to S.S. Board

Ottawa, Oct. 30—(CP)—A company may allocate a portion of its school taxes to separate schools without determining exactly the proportion of its shares held by Roman Catholics, the Supreme Court of Canada decided today.

The case involved the interpretation of the Ontario Separate Schools Act, Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff and Mr. Justice H. H. Davis dissenting, dismissed the appeal of the Windsor, (Ont.) Board of Education from a decision of the Ontario court of appeal in favor of the Windsor Separate School Board and the Ford Motor Company of Canada.

The practical effect of the decision is that 5 per cent of the taxes paid by the company in Windsor will be assessed for Separate school purposes.

The case involved the interpretation of Section 41 of the Ontario Separate School Act which says a corporation may assess "any part or all of its taxable property to be assessed for Separate school purposes but that unless all the shares in the corporation are held by Roman Catholics" then the portion assessed for Separate School purposes shall bear to the whole assessment the total assessment than the amount of taxes which the Separate shall bear to the whole amount of taxes.

The Ford Motor Company gave notice requiring 18 per cent of its taxes be given to Roman Catholic Separate School purposes. This notice was disregarded by the Windsor Board of Education.

SAYS LINDBERGH BETRAYED TRUST

Elliott Roosevelt Says Lindbergh Had No Right to Say What He Did

Detroit, Oct. 30—(CP)—Elliott Roosevelt, son of President Roosevelt, said in an interview here today that Col. Lindbergh "betrayed his trust" in a recent radio address commenting on Canada's position in the war.

"Col. Lindbergh had absolutely no right to say that Canada is the weak link in the chain of nations in this war," Roosevelt said.

All officials and officials in the United States were requested to withhold comment on the war situation in view of our position, although he is an officer of the Air Corps, Col. Lindbergh ignored instructions and criticized Canada's position.

"His speech was not only a betrayal of his country but was a definite threat to our status as a neutral nation".

Roosevelt said Lindbergh sought refuge in Britain but as soon as war broke out appeared to be married back to the United States "and criticized a nation which had welcomed him."

BOTH DRIVERS ARE CONVICTED

As the sequel to a sideswiping motor accident in front of Albert College, Belleville, on Saturday night, the drivers of the vehicles involved appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., and were duly convicted on charges of violation of the Highway Traffic Act.

Eugene Curielle, Halloway, was convicted of driving a motor car without having three months' legal experience and Lawrence Allen, of the other driver, Walter Robinson, Picton, was convicted of driving without lighting. The motorists were proceeding in opposite directions when the front left fenders of each vehicle crashed, Miss Nellie Hodge, a passenger in the Curielle car, sustained minor injuries.

Sergeant Arthur Harman investigated and revealed that damage to the extent of $55 resulted to Curielle's car, while the damage amounted to over $110 resulted to Mr. Robinson.

ADVERSE DOLLAR PROBLEM FACES BRITAIN, CANADA

Britain Buys Honey in Jamaica Which is on Sterling Basis

DIVERSION OF IMPORTS

(By J. F. Sanderson Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 30 (CP Cable)—It may not be much of a factor on the Western Front, but it is a totalitarian struggle on the trade and financial front.

Every day the British government draws tighter the string on the whole industrial and financial life of the nation. Every day new restrictions for this, regulations for that, controls for this product and licences and licences for almost everything but waiting down the street—and they cannot do that during an air raid.

The Canadian viewpoint the most important trade regulations involve the question of a limited number of products, licenses must be granted before anything can be landed on British soil or shipped out of the country. These regulations are having a profound effect on Canadian trade with Great Britain but it will be months before their total effect can be assessed.

Honey is Oked

The British government divides imported goods into three classes.

1. Non-essential products, called luxury goods, importation of which is prohibited unless import licences will not be considered. This classification includes furniture, leather, automobiles, washing machines and down. Luxury fur bearers, perfumes, toys and caviar.

2. A general classification, for which import licenses are required. British authorities so far have shown an inclination to divert their trade to countries where the British exchange position is not so tight. Honey is an example. It cannot be imported from Canada, but large quantities have been shipped from Jamaica, which is on a sterling basis.

3. A limited classification, for which no licenses are required, and for which no government control is exercised. This concerns primary products like cotton.

Products which are a government monopoly, like tea, are subject to import licence is required, cannot be imported by private traders. This classification covers goods required for the manufacture of food and supply, which have a buying monopoly in this country. It includes copper, which is required for munitions, and is being conducted with the Canadian government and Canadian producers to extend it to bacon and cheese.

Dollar and War Effort

As far as Canada is concerned, Britain is difficulty in the adverse dollar position. For years Britain has bought more from Canada than she has sold, and now, with her war effort growing, she must conserve her financial resources.

The whole subject is one of the most important in the war and problems being discussed between the Canadian and British governments. It touches Canada's whole war effort. Britain must find some means to retain her financial and economic stability, her war effort will be hampered.

Elliott Roosevelt said Lindbergh sought refuge in Britain but as soon as war broke out appeared to be married back to the United States "and criticized a nation which had welcomed him."

Pretoria, Oct. 30 (CP-Reuters)—A Foreign Legion will be created in South Africa, a proclamation announced today.

The proclamation, signed by Prime Minister Jan Smuts in his capacity of defence minister, stated foreigners would be authorized to enrol for service either in the east defence or in a special corps named the Foreign Legion.

Broken Hill, Northern Rhodesia, Oct. 30 (CP-Reuters)—Sir John Maybin, Governor of Northern Rhodesia, today enjoined men in the European and African communities to remain at vital posts here, such as work on the railways and the metallurgical plants. He said emphasis was so great in support of the principle that many men in important jobs wanted to leave the territory for more active service.

Sordid Tale of Nazi Atrocities Marks Lifetime of Hitler Regime

By J. FRANKENSTEIN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 30 (CP)—The British government today lifted the lid on a sordid tale of Nazi atrocities and brutalities which have marked the lifetime of the Hitler regime.

The government issued a white paper entitled "Papers Concerning Treatment of German Nationals in Germany" which, it said, consisted of 36 pages of affidavits and depositions describing Nazi terrorism.

The full sordid story of brutalities committed in German concentration camps, a story which would outrival the fabulous tales of the Spanish Inquisition.

Most of the documents came from Consular officials in Germany. They are published at this time because of German propaganda against British treatment of U. S. aid.

"The attitude of the German government and the unscrupulous propaganda they are spreading compels his Majesty's government to publish these documents at this time both here and abroad may be able to judge for itself," it said.

"The German government has compiled an elaborate system of German minorities in foreign countries and 'Nazi cells' of espionage and 'fifth column' there. It may be seen from the publication of these papers that under the Nazi regime no foreigner in Germany itself and the treatment of Germans abroad is consistent not of Macedonia but of the darkest ages of Turkish misrule."

The white paper stressed the inhuman treatment of Jews and other "non-Aryans" in Germany, including cramped quarters, overwork and a total lack of food necessities, and it listed accounts of systematic killing of Jews, including the mass killing in Paris of the German consular official, Ernst von Rath, by Herschel Grynszpan.

The white paper went back to 1933 when Hitler came to power and when "members of opposition parties, trade unionists and Jews were confined in concentration camps where they were subjected to the most brutal treatment."

"Flogging and torture were the methods used to force from them knowledge in Germany that the Nazi regime was ruthless and was taking a terrible vengeance on those who had the temerity to oppose it." Boer War.

MAN RUNS AMOK AFTER DREAM

Wounds Wife With Sword, Then Gives Self Up, Kills Woman, Policeman Says

Caraopolis, Pa., Oct. 30—(AP)— Awakened by a dream, a steel worker today hacked his wife with an old army sword, slashed two children, killed a neighbor and a woman, Patrolman Joseph Sears reported.

Sears identified the sword wielder as Christy Larocco. Sears said Larocco told him he used the sword and a pistol.

Sears said the dead woman was Mrs. Libby Ballempo, mother of two and a neighbor of Larocco's wife. The injured were Larocco's wife, Rosie, 29, Mario Ballempo, 4, brother of the dead woman, and his daughter, Mary Ann, 6. Sears said Larocco told him: "I dreamed my wife was sleeping beside Ballempo and I thought he was in bed with her." The officer said Larocco got into 36 fights with his wife. Larocco hacked his wife a dozen times and then shot her in the head, Sears said. The Ballempo home after first trying to force his way into the home of another neighbor.

At this stage it is impossible to judge the full economic significance of the trade restrictions. As far as Canada is concerned, certain exports may increase by leaps and bounds, but individual industries may experience severe losses. The clearance canned lobsters, cannot be exported, provides an important branch of the maritime fishing industry has depended for years on this product.

Work of Canadian Trade Commissioners abroad is completely all trade promotion work has ceased and the commissioners are devoting largely as liaison officers between Canadian producers and British importers and exporting regulations and seeking import licences. They have never been so busy.

DUKE OF KENT VISITS SOLDIERS

Edinburgh, Oct. 30—(CP)—The Duke of Kent today visited the Valleyfield Colliery, near Penicuik, Midlothian, scene of a fire-damp explosion killed 35 men and injured 14 on Thursday.

The Duke asked to speak to rescuers who had been under ground when the explosion occurred and Bernard O'Neill, 27, was called to the mine office and presented to him.

CHARGE DISMISSED

Simcoe, Ont., Oct. 30 (CP) — Charged with theft, Gordon E. Ward was acquitted today of a charge of stealing from the Crown offered on evidence.

He was charged with the abduction of the 6-year-old daughter from a Port Rowan summer cottage, last June. Ward, August, during absence of the child's mother, his divorced wife. Later, Whitton was arrested at Windsor, and, along with his second wife and the child, were brought here.

The final statement in the white paper is dated Feb. 15, 1938, and describes conditions at a concentration camp at Buchenwald.

This tale of sadistic brutality is written against the background of action that Germany was a country "where laughter and happiness and duty abound."

Here "Z" describes the scene as Buchenwald as film and mud up to the knees. . . . It was almost impossible to walk. Fresh was arriving from his face, which was so disfigured as to be unrecognizable. About 10,000 men were in the camp but only 100 straw sacks were available as bed. The men were obliged to lie on their sides. Lying on their backs was forbidden under pain of death. Latrines were ordered to be trifles without warning.

The report declared that British subjects, including a number of the Embassy staff, "were wantonly assaulted in the street by uniformed S. A. (Storm Troopers) men on duty".

An introduction to the White Paper concludes with a collection of affidavits which showed Nazi sovereignty "in the treatment of German nationals abroad from 1936 to 1939," declared:—

"These documents were not written for publication and, indeed, as long as Hitler is in power, the publication of reaching any settlement with the German Government. It is, therefore, the duty of each one to do anything to embitter relations between the two countries.

"Even after the outbreak of war His Majesty's Government refused to take action which might have the effect of inspiring hatred.

"But the attitude of the German Government and the unscrupulous propaganda which they are spreading compels His Majesty's Government to publish these documents so that public opinion, both at home and abroad, may be able to judge for itself."

The statement added they were published also because German public opinion is misled by many false statements which is wholly devoid of any foundation" accusing Great Britain of "atrocities" in South Africa 40 years ago" during the

SPOKE FOR SELF ALONE, HE SAYS

Rev. R. J. Irwin Declares He Did Not Speak for Church

Toronto, Oct. 30 (CP)—Rev. R. J. Irwin of Donlands Avenue Church here, one of the ministers who formed a "witness against war" meeting, said last night advised "cheap and tawdry flagwavers" to "keep their mouths shut" in their country, to "keep their mouths shut", in the Canadian Forum, a publication, said he had to make a statement following the "witness against war" meeting, "otherwise I would have exploded."

"I am a pacifist," he told newspaper writers, "I was speaking for myself and for the Canadian Forum." He said of the war manifesto. "Although since our commitment has been made public we have received assurances from many others who, like myself, have signed, that they have agreed with our stand."

Mr. Irwin said his attitude was many men going to jail, but even that does not affect my feelings," Mr. Irwin said. "My allegiance to God transcends all others."

Press Urges Government to Postpone Proposed Compulsory Food Rationing In Favor of Voluntary Effort

London, Oct. 30 (CP)—Official assurances that Britain's reserve food supplies are steadily improving brought an editorial appeal today from the Manchester Guardian that the government to postpone proposed compulsory food rationing in favor of voluntary effort.

The entire population has already registered and millions of food cards prepared, but the government has not given a definite date as to when a general rationing plan may be introduced. It has been reported however, that rationing of such commodities as butter, sugar, bacon and meat may begin some time next month.

Alluding to the inevitable curtailment of certain supplies, including those from Scandinavia, the Guardian points out that negotiations are now in progress with Canada and other overseas countries to make up the deficiencies.

The paper declares the British people are adapting themselves to the circumstances of war time and that a call on them is unlikely to meet with any opposition. Acceptance of the war.

"If there is any fear of shortage in a particular commodity, it is the duty of the state only to ask us to change our diet and we will do so," the paper said. "Our people have a healthy dislike of interference. Dictate to them and they will try to defy. Invoke their voluntary spirit of sacrifice and they will work miracles. Let our rulers remember that our people hold in their hands a weapon which even dictators envy but can never wield."

CLEAR WEATHER ON WEST FRONT

French Communique Says Only Few Patrol Actions But Offensive Expected

Paris, Oct. 30—(CP)—(Havas)— The opening of the week during which many believe Germany will begin attacks on the Western front by the first brisk, clear, dry day that the western front has known more than a few days.

Over the ground drenched by driving rains and mists, the sun shone and the misty, grey obscurity of the past eight days gave way to clear weather. The drop in temperature will have to be maintained for some days, however, before the ground will be sufficiently dried out for extensive operations.

Activity continued light. This morning's French communique said the night was calm. "We repelled several enemy raiding parties."

There were a few patrol actions on the vicinity of the Upper Rhine. French fire caught a party of German engineers engaged in building field fortifications and forced them to leave the scene of their uncompleted work.

Conditions Unfavorable

Until today snow, icy rains and mud had provided the worst possible conditions for any offensive on the western front. The snow fell in the Vosges Mountains and along the Saar River, but little flurries in the rest of the front.

About 100,000 French troops, picked men and all men of a number of large families were released from the front, who are being replaced from military service over the week-end, indicating that the French command believes it has more than enough men under arms to meet any attack and to go on the offensive.

The Duke of Windsor reviewed the British troops.

Military observers yesterday declared that the Germans had failed to make good their boast that they would begin attacks on the Western front by the first brisk, clear, dry day that the western front has known more than a few days.

DETROIT MAY GET OLYMPIC GAMES FOR YEAR 1940

Announcement Made Games May be Transferred from Helsingfors, Finland

NO WINTER GAMES

President of American Olympic Committee Says "There Must be Some Mistake"

New York, Oct. 30—(AP)— The 1940 Olympic Games became an international passing game today because of an announcement from Olympic headquarters in Switzerland they might be transferred from Helsingfors, Finland, to Detroit.

Nobody could be sure what it was all about, inasmuch as Finland still is planning to hold the games and Detroit has not asked for the privilege.

A proclamation of the International Olympic Committee at Lausanne yesterday said the 1940 games would be held in Detroit if the Helsingfors games could not stage them.

The committee's communique said all national Olympic committees had been polled as to the desire of their national teams to Helsingfors and that if their replies were negative the games would be awarded to Detroit. Replies were received from all countries to compete.

Heard Nothing of Rumor

Avery Brundage, President of the American Olympic Committee, reiterated that he had heard nothing of the proposal. He said he believed there was a tremendous investment in the games and it may not be easily abandoned. Whether if they "are not held."

The confusion also extends to the winter Olympics, which were to have been given Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, after the games were awarded to Garmisch-Partenkirchen. Germany after an attack. It was expected to be abandoned.

APPS FEATURES ALL-STAR GAME

Toronto Player Scores Once and Aids in Three as All-Stars Beat Canadiens

Montreal, Oct. 30—(CP)—Montreal Canadiens' chances of consolation today in the fact that never, during the Maple Leafs' entire stay campaign, will they be called upon to meet a squad such as the one that defeated them last night which took their measure in the Babe Siebert memorial game.

Before a crowd of 6,000 last night at the Forum, the all-star aggregation from six of the seven clubs in the league, defeated the Habs by three goals to Flying Frenchmen. Never were they extended, never did they seem in danger of defeat as when at they threw up a monotonously-steady succession of attacks at the Canadiens.

The members of the all-star squad came from the 1938-39 Canadian Press all-star team. Only Hector Kilrea, Ottawa Senators' veteran centre, was not in the league last year and left wing on Boston's Dynamite Line, Milt Schmidt, one of their line-up. Blake played with Montreal.

The All-Stars were led by Syl Apps, Toronto Maple Leafs centre ace. Apps scored once and aided in three tallies. He had no chance of scoring on the first goal because defenceman Doug Young of Canadiens deflected the puck into his own net. Earl Seibert drawing the credit for the tally as closest man to the scorer. Seibert was forced to the play.

Bobby Bauer and Eddie Shore, both of Boston Bruins, and Johnny Gottselig scored the other All-Stars' goals.

Earl Robinson and Louis Trudel were Canadiens' goal scorers.

The memorial game was played in honor of the late Al Alber ("Baldy") Siebert, former defenceman and coach who died of heart disease during the summer in Lake Huron.

Flint Takes on Large Supplies Of Meat, Water

U. S. Freighter in Charge of German Prize Crew Gets Supplies Outside Norwegian Port of Tromso

FLIES GERMAN FLAG

United States Gov't. Requests British and German Gov'ts. Not to Expose U. S. Crew to Unnecessary Danger

Copenhagen, Oct. 31 (AP)—The United States freighter City of Flint, under control of a German prize crew, was reported in advices arriving here today to have taken on large supplies of fresh meat and water yesterday outside the Norwegian port of Tromso.

The vessel was said to be flying the German flag. As a prize ship, the City of Flint was unable to enter the harbor anchorage, but reports here said this difficulty was solved by moving the vessel at slow speed to Skjervoy Sound, while a motorship came alongside and made a transfer of supplies.

The City of Flint, enroute from the port of Murmansk in Russia to Germany, was said to have lingered for three hours at Tromso Sound although the transfer of supplies took only an hour.

No Contacts With Shore.

During this time Norwegian officials were said to have made no certain there was no contacts between the vessel and the shore, other than those authorized officially. Officials at Tromso declined to make any comment on the vessel.

Tromso residents were said to believe the City of Flint was being conveyed southward by two armed German warships. One ship was said without identification visible, was said to have passed the entrance to the Sound two hours before the City of Flint arrived and another, similarly without identification visible, about an hour after the Flint departed.

Hamburg was considered the likely objective of the American ship.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Hallowe'en is the time of "All Saints' Day, at this time of the day your time may be a year ago when there is a gentle warmth in the air, a sort of last touch of summer, called "Indian Summer". In "Evangeline", Longfellow says of the Acadian peasants call it the "Summer of All Saints". The tradition of an Indian summer is widely recognized it is not solely American. In England it is called "St. Martin's Summer," while in Scandinavia it is civilized by the name of "St. John's Summer". These Indian summers of all nations refer to the same kind of season when the trees have assumed their brilliant fall coloring, and while winter may have made a start, it has slowed down, and there comes as it were a spite a spell of hazy, warm weather.

Queen Elizabeth To Broadcast on Armistice Day

London, Oct. 31—(CP Cable)—The Queen will broadcast a message to the women of the Empire on Armistice Day, Nov. 11, it was officially announced today. This will be the first broadcast by the Queen since her majesty bade farewell to Canada last summer.

The exact time was not stated but it is understood it will be a five-minute broadcast starting at 9 p.m. British summer time (3 p.m. E.S.T.) The British Broadcasting Corporation Home and Empire Services are to carry the speech. Due to the war there will be no Armistice Day ceremony this year at the cenotaph on Whitehall.

BRITAIN UNAFRAID OF MASS ATTACK IN NORTH SEA

German Press Hints North Sea One of Great Battlegrounds of War

TACTICIANS' VIEWS

London, Oct. 31 (CP)— Heavy naval and warplane concentrations along Great Britain's east coast, military observers said today, indicated the British were prepared for any attack by planes or ships in the North Sea.

"Predictions aren't much good," one tactics expert said, "but you can be sure of one thing, and that is that Great Britain wouldn't be caught out if Adolf Hitler sent along his planes and submarines in a bunch for one terrific North Sea attack."

Much of the feeling that the North Sea will be one of the big battlegrounds of the war comes from such German pronouncements as last which appeared in Hitler's newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, over the week-end.

'Nazi Savagery' Adds Impetus To Britain to Fight to Victory

London, Oct. 31 (CP)—British newspapers said today the government's while paper disclosing "Nazi savagery" in German concentration camps would further goose to Great Britain's determination to fight until Hitlerism is smashed.

"What a lot of authors and devotees of the Buchenwald (prison) barbarities who rule the roast now in Germany," the Daily Telegraph said. "What a lot of them will be among ministers and the War Cabinet here, was received by the King today at Buckingham Palace.

peace with Germany till the regime of the present German rulers is ended. That will be your resolution in London.

"But beware. Do not extend your hatred to the German people. Do not confuse them with the Nazis.

"It is the misfortune of the Germans that these criminals rule the land. This is only a reaction of the German people sympathize with Hitler's regime. Europe has driven tyrants from its midst but will release the German people from the Nazi yoke.

"Once before we had been given a picture of the brutality and terror which has now been exposed. That was one year ago, when the synagogues were fired in Germany and the Jews were plundered and persecuted in an orgy of destruction.

"On that occasion American opinion was outraged beyond measure. What will the Americans say now? What they say will be said rightly and said well."

Wipe Out Nazism Says Londonderry

Belfast, Oct. 31 (CP)—The Marquess of Londonderry, former air secretary and once known as czar of Nazi Germany's staunchest friends, said in a speech here today that the war cannot end until Nazi doctrine is wiped out.

"The war has been forced on Britain and her, efforts to maintain peace have been misunderstood," he declared. "In Germany it has been supposed that British reluctance to fight was based on inability to do so.

"The conflict is not for the purpose of aggression or annexation of territory, but simply to establish once and for all the right of free communities to exist—a theory which has been assailed for the past six years by Nazi ideology emanating from Hitler."

DANCER'S FRIEND ADMITS ESPIONAGE

Woman Smiles Scornfully as Evidence Unfolds Before Spy Court

Geneva, Oct. 31—(AP)—Reports leaking today from a closed courtroom where a mysterious lady is on trial as a spy were that her handsome friend, Roger Joel, confessed stealing models and copying designs from a Swiss arms factory for her.

The dancer, known in continental circles as "Vina" and whose real name is Virginia Capt whose real name is Virginia Capt Joel, one-time draftsman in an arms factory, testified before the federal judges.

Miss Rota and Joel face three to twenty years in jail on such on a double count of espionage and treason. They were arrested, police said, when they attempted to cross into Switzerland with an aircraft gun and other military data.

Joel with the dancer and Joel are Paul Rochat and his wife, draftsman in the Swiss federal munition service for an Italian consul general under the dancer's influence.

CABINET SHAKE-UP BY MUSSOLINI AFFECTS TWELVE

Chiefs of Staff of Army and Fascist Militia Are Changed

Achille Staracc, General in Ethiopian Campaign is Given High Post in Shakeup

By RICHARD MASSOCK
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Rome, Oct. 31 (AP) — Premier Mussolini reorganized the entire leadership of the Fascist regime today in a shake-up of cabinet, party and top military posts unprecedented in its sweeping scope.

Seven cabinet ministers, the secretary of the Fascist party, the chiefs of staff of the army, air force and Fascist militia and four undersecretaries of state were replaced in the drastic reshuffling. In addition, Mussolini himself yielded the portfolio of minister for Italian Africa to General Attilio Teruzzi.

Two Fascist notables were shifted. Chief among those shifted were two Fascist notables widely credited with pro-German tendencies, Lieut.-General Achille Starace, relieved of the secretaryship of the Fascist party "at his own request", and Dino Alfieri, minister of Popular Culture (propaganda).

Starace was named chief of the general staff of the Fascist militia; Alfieri, ambassador awaiting assignment.

SAY E. O'HANLON ADMITS SLAYING OF MILK DRIVER

Police Say Man Signed Confession He Murdered George Flude

STRUCK WITH HAMMER

Toronto, Oct. 31 (CP) — Edward Patrick O'Hanlon, former bodyguard of George Flude, 31, was charged in front of police with the murder of the Toronto milkman. He was remanded to Nov. 8.

Police said O'Hanlon, 26-year-old former soldier and father of two baby, signed a confession following his arrest late yesterday in which he said Flude was killed after an argument last July 10, the day Flude disappeared. The body was found one week buried in a shallow grave in a wooded grove.

Police said O'Hanlon worked for the milk company after employing Flude. Because Flude was threatened with a "petite" attack in June after collecting a disputed C.O.D. count, the firm usually sent another man with him on his milk route as a means of protection.

O'Hanlon told police, police say, O'Hanlon, slim and wavy-haired, was the "protector."

Moses Mitchell, Assistant Inspector of Detectives, announced O'Hanlon's arrest. Charges of murder on his face when arrested, had confessed to the crime.

FINNISH GOV'T GIVEN FREE HAND IN CASE OF WAR

Delegation Leaves for Moscow With Finland's 'Final Answer' to Soviet Demands

FEW CONCESSIONS

Original Advice to Remain Away from Homes During Crisis Not Changed

By LYNN HEINZERLING
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Helsingfors, Oct. 31—(AP)— On the eve of the departure of a Finnish delegation to Moscow with Finland's "final answer" to Soviet demands today, the Diet hurried bills to passage which will give the government a clear hand in case of war.

The Diet's action appeared to bear out predictions in diplomatic circles that Finland's answer to Russia granted few, if any, concessions.

A Foreign Office spokesman said Finland was proceeding on the basis that an agreement could be reached. The feeling in political quarters was that a stalemate would result from the current trip to Moscow.

Finland's reply to the Soviets will be submitted to President Kyosti Kallio for final approval when the delegation departs at 9:30 p.m. (3:30 p.m. EST).

GERMANY CLAIMS 4 ENEMY PLANES LOST IN BATTLE

Scouting Parties Sent Out Between Siegfried and Maginot Lines

NEW REGULATIONS

Berlin, Oct. 31 (AP)—An official statement today claimed German armored troops had crossed the German-French border to explore the terrain in front of the Siegfried line. The announcement did not say when the crossing occurred.

German troops were said to have found an empty area around defence lines close behind the boundary posts and, about a mile from the French border, they found a finished trench system.

Under the new, unidentified by the German announcement, regulations, the commander of every gunfire, searched the village and then marched on to a second community which also was deserted. Every place claimed was found to have machine-gun nests, army equipment and other "signs of preparation for defense."

An earlier communique claimed the shooting down of four French planes, but gave no details. It also claimed the destruction of artillery fire on the Western Front.

CONANT ORDERS INQUEST

Toronto, Oct. 31—(CP)— Attorney-General Gordon Conant today ordered an inquest into the deaths of Warren Bell and his bride of a few hours, 19-year-old Gertrude Finlay, after the Toronto millionaire who disappeared in 1919. The two were drowned when, apparently missing a turn, they drove their car into Mississauga Bay at Wasaga Beach.

"This is a case in which an inquest should be very properly be held," the Attorney-General said.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Another week opens with the appearance of the bloody war Nazi spokesmen threaten to unloose on the United Kingdom or the land offensive suggested by the disposition of their forces behind the Westwall.

All available information indicates the German military and air force commanders have done a good job in preparing the forces for a blow but the order to strike must come from the political power, from Adolf Hitler. The German forces are under complete political control.

In any attempt to appraise the reason for the delay in the order of attack Russia must bulk large. Recent events suggest a closer tie-up between the Nazi and Communist governments than was believed likely at first.

GUNFIRE BARRAGE RETOLD IN COURT

William Allard Committed for Trial on Two Charges of Attempted Murder

Brooks, Alta., Oct. 31—(CP)— The story of a three-hour gunfire barrage on the farm home of Thomas Wigenyr, and his harricaded wife and children and ordered his wife and five children to crouch on the floor, was told here yesterday by Wigenyr at the trial of W. H. Gray committed William Allard for trial on two charge of attempted murder.

Wigenyr testified that Allard, a former employee, came to his home on the night of November 5, shoot him but that he (Wigenyr) got his rifle and fired back himself and rushed from the barn to his house to protect his wife and five children. Wigenyr said he saw Allard's gun in the house.

Wigenyr described how he fell wounded and a bullet crashed through the window, striking the Wigenyr farm, wounding Mrs. Wigenyr in the arm.

Wigenyr said he attempted twice to use Allard's jammed rifle, managing to shoot it out.

After Mrs. Wigenyr suffered the wounds in the forearm for the assailant ended within 50 hours when Allard give himself up.

RE-SHUFFLE HEADLINED

London, Oct. 31—(CP Cable)— London newspapers featured the Italian Cabinet shuffle with six inch type on their billboards today. "Mussolini Acts," one headline.

But official reaction was more restrained. Mussolini's sudden purge was called another step in the war's tendency towards confirmed neutrality and political independence.

Gough Says Hitler Must Strike, Sees Germany Collapse Before Spring

London, Oct. 31—(CP)— Germany must launch an offensive at once or resign itself to losing the war through economic collapse, Sir Robert Gough, who commanded the Fifth British Army in the World War, declared in an article published in the periodical "English Speaking World" today.

Adolf Hitler has neither the food supplies nor raw materials necessary to carry an army of 3,000,000 men through the winter, the General asserted. He said Germany's collapse may be expected before next spring.

Ottawa, Oct. 31 (CP)—Organization of the Co-operative Empire Air Training scheme is expected to move forward rapidly after the Australian and New Zealand air missions all in at conference with Canadian officials here tomorrow.

The Australians arrive from Ottawa and New Zealanders tonight or tomorrow. The British delegation under Lord Riverdale has been here for some time and has made satisfactory progress in consultations with Canadian authorities.

Questions to be decided almost at once are the number of pilots and other air force personnel who may be trained in Canada and the date at which training may start. The latter point hinges to a some extent on the speed with which training facilities can be established in adequate.

Accuses Allies of Seeking New Excuses for Continuing War With Germany

'IDEOLOGICAL WAR'

Asks if Britain and France Wants to Draw Russia and Germany Back to Middle Ages

Moscow, Oct. 31 (AP)—Soviet Premier, Vyacheslaff Molotoff, today declared 'there can be no question' of restoring Poland' and that it was "absurd to continue the present war for such a cause."

He declared that "although the governments of Britain and France repudiated this, they have made the war stopped and peace restored."

He accused the Allies of "seeking new excuses for continuing the war with Germany" and spoke of the "ideological war" which they pursue as "largely attempting to depict themselves as champions of the democratic rights of nations against Hitlerism."

Surveying the international situation in a speech before the supreme Soviet, Russia's "parliament," Molotoff said Britain and France had decided "something in the nature of an 'ideological war' on Germany, resuscitment of the regime that now often stands."

"Is it back to the middle ages, to the days of religious wars, superstition and cultural deterioration that the people of Britain and France want to drag us?" he asked.

"There is absolutely no justification for a war of this kind."

H. D. BATEMAN IS COMPTROLLER FOR BELLEVILLE

Appointed by By-Law at Meeting of City Council Monday Night

REPORTS RECEIVED

City Tourist Camp Has Successful Season, Ald. Harvey's Report States

Harold D. Bateman, recently appointed assessor for the corporation, was last night by by-law appointed Comptroller of Revenue and Expenditure by the council in regular session. Under the new by-law all arrears of the city especially that of revenue and expenses will come under his supervision and the affairs of the city will be co-ordinated and there will be little overlapping in the departments. The members of the council discussed the matter at length by law and each clause of same was discussed when there was any objection and it was finally the members are fully cognizant of the powers entrusted in the by-law. However one clause was stricken from the by-law especially the comptroller's control of revenue and another clause respecting the hiring or firing of employees of the Commission. The by-law now stands the comptroller with the heads of the various departments will be in charge of the department and in each instance the council will have redress through the comptroller for any action by the latter. The by-law will be published in its entirety and the ratepayers and those interested can study the same at leisure.

Salary Is Fixed.

The salary of Mr. Bateman was fixed at $2,100 a year and the month of January 1940 on resolution of the council can be increased $100 each year until a maximum of $2,400 is reached. The members were thoroughly satisfied with the appointment was a step in the right direction and would co-operate in the matter of coordination and systems that are now all loose ends and the council would have a closer check on finances. The council and the several departments through the comptroller will be governed by the city and those donated by citizens will be paid to the right recipients and others for the cultivation of gardens as a War Measure. Mr. Bateman was also given a recommendation passed at the meeting. Ald. Cromarde Butler, seconded by Ald. Alexander Butler stated the measure was a step in the right direction and was not taking away anything from the private citizen. "In times like these," Ald. Butler stated, "all should be working for the common good. I do not agree with the method of the department in Toronto intends that the private individual will not be deprived of his rights but that the city council could have the power to take over vacant lots for cultivation purposes.

Co-ordination.

"The scheme might work in some cities but in Belleville it would be a handicap to many who have improved their property," he said.

Mayor Against Proposition.

Mayor Rose: "I am going to oppose this scheme. I have a Russian type. I think the first rights should be to a man to own his own land."

Ald. Allin: "I do not think it is the intention of the government to restrict anybody. It is a War Measure act and should be supported."

Ald. Allin read from a story in the Star that the Toronto mayor was opposed this measure. "I think it is all right for the city to take up vacant lots on my own opinion on the subject but the council should not be linked up with the government until the subject is passed or rejected in Parliament."

Ald. Marshall: "The new law does not give the owner the right to vote under his land. There are plenty of lots owned by the city available for the cultivation of. I am sure there are enough public-spirited citizens to volunteer their labor."

Ald. Butler: "The Department is anxious to know what has been done regarding their manifesto and probably the activity of the council in not taking over some lots for the cultivation of relief given to the city.

Wants Co-operation In Claim.

Ald. Logan: "The Government only wants co-operation. 'The land you own is the King's land and could be taken from you.'"

Ald. Allin: "Do you think the Department would not trust their share of relief if this recommendation is not passed?"

Ald. Butler: "I would not go that far but Mrs Lynn of the Welfare Department is quite perturbed as to the action of the council in this regard."

Mayor Rose: "The principle of the thing is awful. It is confiscatory legislation." The discussion closed at this point and the recommendation was passed.

Ald. Laurie Lewis sent a letter to the City Clerk which stated: "I, Laurie Lewis, hereby disclaim all right to the office of Alderman for the remainder of the year, 1939, in the City Council of Belleville and all defence of any right I have for same." The letter was ordered filed without comment.

The members of the Finance Committee were congratulated on the sale of $18,000 of bonds in the sinking fund to the Toronto firm at 100.25. A house at 141 James street was ordered repaired by the council after Special Committee of Council had reported the roof was leaking. The cost will be $150. The committees of the Chamber of Commerce and the City Council were called to discuss the industrial situation in Belleville reported as follows:

The Executive Committee of the City Council and the Chamber of Commerce, consisting of Mayor Rose, Aldermen Logan and Rollins and Messrs. Geo. Hinchey, Harold Boyce, to inquire into industrial matters pertaining to the city, unanimously recommend that an Industrial Commission be appointed, consisting of six members, and that the Mayor be ex-officio chairman of Industries and the President of the Chamber of Commerce, and that the personnel be approved by the Council and the Presidents of the Chamber of Commerce and that the necessary legislation be passed to implement this recommendation and outline the duties and responsibilities of the Commission and that the Council include in its annual budgets an amount within the Assessment Act deemed necessary for its satisfactory operation."

Tourist Camp Activities.

A report of the activities of the tourist camp for the past year was received from the chairman of the committee, Alderman William H. Harvey and the caretaker, George Wilder. The tourist camp had a most successful season with revenue higher than in the preceding year. The report is as follows:

"Following is a report of the city tourist camp for the season of 1939:

"Total number registrations, 2,783.

"Number cities stopping over full day or week, 171.

"Amount collected from tourists stopping over, $146.75.

"Amount collected from the use of the kitchen, $17.75.

"Total receipts, $166.50. (An increase of $40.00 for the season of 1938).

"Thanks are extended to Messrs. Alf Symons, Dale Farrell and J. Wallace of the Ontario Provincial Society for the donation of spruce trees, rose bushes and plants for the park.

"Thanks are also extended to the Belleville Fire and Public Works Departments for services rendered.

"Everyone using the camp was well pleased, and many stated they would be again in the city.

"No complaints of any kind were registered.

"I would respectfully suggest that next season an advertisement be placed in the Directory of Tourist Camps and Parks and Camps in United States and Canada, published by H. Dixon Co., 35 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill., and in Canadian Tourist League Guide, and also that banners be placed at the eastern and western entrances to the city for the attention of tourists to the city camp.

"I enjoyed the work and will be re-appointed to the position again in 1940."

Question of Grants.

The question of grants by council was covered by a bulletin from Hon. Eric Cross, Minister of Welfare and is herewith given for information. The communication was ordered filed.

"It has come to the attention of the Department of Municipal Affairs that a number of Ontario municipal councils have been making grants that are not authorized under section 404-A of The Municipal Act.

"The section dealing with municipal grants, was enacted at the special session of the Ontario Legislature in September of 1939, and was then enacted being duly called to the attention of all municipal councils in Bulletin No. 13 of this department.

"Under the amended Act, authority to make grants for certain purposes is limited to organized territory, vested in the councils of cities, separated towns and counties only. Proposed by-laws for such grants must now be submitted to the Department of Municipal Affairs and to the new Organization of Resources Committee (for approval). (The proposed by-laws will be submitted by the Department to this committee.) Further, only those patriotic organizations which are registered with the Secretary of State, Ottawa, under the War Charities Act, 1939, Canada, can be thus assisted.

"Briefly, the Statutes do not now permit councils of towns, villages and townships, comprised in counties, to make grants for patriotic purposes.

"It has been held by the courts that members of councils who vote in favor of by-laws or resolutions to pay money out of the general funds of a corporation for unauthorized purposes are personally responsible to the Corporation for the money so expended."

"Since it is the duty of the Department to insist upon adherence to the Provincial Statutes, the co-operation of all municipal officials is requested."

By-Laws Passed.

Consideration of deeds to Albert W. High, Nettie M. Fox, Frederick A. McCoy and A. W. Cleaveland were given by by-laws. These properties have been sold by the city to these persons and these by-laws are necessary to clean up sale of the properties. There being no further business the council adjourned. Ald. Marshall was in the chair for the committee of the whole and the committee on by-laws.

SEVERAL DEPUTIES TO ASSIST POLICE

Chief Kidd Says Children Can Have Fun but Must Not Destroy Property

Long ago, the last of October was the ghostly night, when witches, hobgoblins and other spirits of either evil or mischief were to be feared and propitiated. Fires and lights, bonfires and torches were inimical to the evil ones, and our pumpkin lanterns of today are the relics of the sacred fires of other days and thus we come to another Hallowe'en.

The spirits of mischief may be said to be those of the high jinks of urchins who ring door bells, pull door latches, remove the family gate, dress up as ghosts to endeavor frightening the more timid and feel that on this night they find themselves immune from penalty. But, such may not be the case in Belleville on Hallowe'en this year, as Chief Alexander Kidd has kindly revealed he had procured the services of several deputies, in an effort to minimize the possible and wilful destruction of property in Belleville tonight.

"We do not mind the children having a good time but the wanton and wilful destruction of private or public property we have to be educated or condoned this Hallowe'en. Last year a favourite prank was to take the city stop street signs and persons apprehended defacing or destroying city property will be severely dealt with in police court. I can safely say in warning," added Chief Kidd.

For the entertainment of the children, who like to dress themselves from rummage goods on Hallowe'en, the annual Y's Men's Club Hallowe'en Frolic will be held at the Y.M.C.A. where prizes for various types of costumes will be given to those attending and there will be favours for all. Candits, apples and other goodies will also be supplied the kiddies by the Y's Men's Club gratis. Parents are urged to send or bring their children to the Y's Men's Hallowe'en frolic, in an effort to assist in the minimizing of Hallowe'en pranks in Belleville this evening.

BANQUET TENDERED TO ARENA STAFF

With the official closing of the Hums Arena dance gardens on Saturday night, the management tendered the employees a banquet at a local restaurant. Impromptu speeches were the order of the night by General Manager Allan Meagher and Manager Russ Barriage, who announced the dance floor in the Arena would be removed immediately in preparation for the forthcoming skating and hockey season. Mr. Meagher personally thanked the entire staff for their loyalty and co-operation in the past dance season the success it enjoyed. The Hums Arena dance floor is known as is one of the summer playhouses and entertainments of interest to the community and is enjoying increased patronage each succeeding year.

LOCKED BRAKES BELIEVED CAUSE

En route to their new home in Ottawa by motor, an automobile driven by Bernard Gilbert Hennessy of Windsor, turned completely over twice into the ditch on Highway No. 2 near Belleville Cemetery late yesterday. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hennessy escaped unscathed, but their personal belongings were strewn along the highway and the motor car was badly damaged. The Hennessys were enroute from Windsor to Ottawa, where they are to take up their residence, when the brakes of their motor car locked as they were approaching the C.P.R. bridge west of this city. The locking of the brakes forced the vehicle to swerve into the ditch, where it rolled over twice. Provincial Constables Wm. McBrien and W. E. Smith investigated and assisted the travelers. The wrecked car was towed to a local garage badly in need of extensive repairs.

Police Blotter

Two additional Special provincial Constables arrived in Belleville yesterday to assist in the duty to Inspector Frank Gardiner. The constables, C. A. Shepard and Wm. McCluskey were dispatched from O. P. headquarters in Toronto to supplement the Provincial Police special guards on hydro plants, canals, etc.

After rounding the East Dundas-Front St. junction, a motorist from north lale yesterday afternoon, the 31st inst., collided with a parked motor car, driven by W. A. Sandercock, Marmora, opposite the No. 1 fire hall.

Damages to amount of $5 resulted to the fender of Mr. Sandercock's automobile P. C. Wright learned in his investigation.

With a marked decrease in the number of transients seen passing through Belleville of late, only five sought shelter at the police station last night, authorities revealed today.

County Court

William Cannif, Jr., Marmora Township, was sentenced to serve two months in the common jail after being convicted on a charge of theft in county police court here before Magistrate F. L. Loyd at Madoc yesterday.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., introduced evidence to prove Cannif had stolen a steer from a neighbour, the property of a neighbour. The articles had been recovered by Provincial Police. Mr. Donnan assured the court before sentence was delivered.

Privates Daniel Vesterfelt and Raymond Ray of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment appeared on charges of joy riding. The accused men admitted their guilt and were permitted to return to their military unit on probation. The pair were apprehended ten days ago by Provincial Constable Arthur Dymond, while driving a motor car allegedly taken at the time without the owner's consent.

A charge of theft was dismissed against a woman resident of this village, while two men paid fines later being convicted of intoxication.

G. G. Beare Presented With Purse of Money

On Friday afternoon, October 27, Mr. George G. Beare of this city, was presented with a purse of money in the lunch room of the Grand Trunk Railway shops by his fellow employees on the occasion of his retirement on pension. The presentation was made by Mr. T. York on behalf of the employees, who wished to thus express their happy retired life. Mr. A. H. Jones, general foreman, spoke of the years of service given by Mr. Beare and his faithful attention to duty.

Mr. Beare commenced his railway career with the old Grand Trunk Railway at Toronto as a fireman in the year 1900, and in 1906 was made Charge Hand at Minden Shop, working there until he was transferred to Toronto Shop as Boilermaker in December, 1906, remaining in that capacity until his transfer to Belleville on March 18, 1909, where he has worked at his trade until his retirement on October 27, 1939. During the Great War Mr. Beare served overseas from July 1915 to January 1919.

Belleville and Trenton Out-of-Bounds for Members of Regiment

The city of Belleville and the town of Trenton will be out-of-bounds to all members of the 21st Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment unless they are in possession of a proper pass signed by the proper authorities, Lieutenant-Colonel C. J. Sherman Young, officer commanding the regiment announced today.

"I have been in touch with police authorities in Belleville," Col. Young stated, "and any man found in places declared as being out-of-bounds, without the proper pass will be apprehended."

"It has been brought to my knowledge that some of the men, especially those from outside zones, have been on the streets with disregard for their dress. Members of the regiment must be properly dressed at all times. Other breaches of conduct unbecoming to a soldier have also been brought to my attention and will be dealt with. Discipline must be and will be rigidly enforced. We are proud of the regiment one of the finest in the First Canadian Division," Colonel Young said.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

FOR PRINCIPLE

Prime Minister King has pledged Canada to the destruction of Hitlerism with its spirit of domination and suppression of national and personal liberty. The Canadian leader did not lose the opportunity to stress the fact that this is a war where Christianity and civilization are at stake. There is not a Canadian but feels that this viewpoint is the correct one. Every Canadian knows that Hitlerism and the Nazi doctrine are the foes of everything in the international life and in the life of a nation and individual that Canada cherishes.

This war is for "the preservation not alone of national and personal freedom but of freedom also of the mind and of the soul." No one dare gainsay that.

In his declaration in his recent broadcast he said he had hated war and loved peace. So do all Canadians. They would do everything they could for peace but yield up their hard-earned freedom they will not. They know as citizens know that in this imperfect world even the small community has to possess a force of men deputed to serve the people as policemen. So Canadians themselves put on accoutrements of war and are ready to fight.

The Prime Minister referred to the loosing of the forces of evil in the world in the pagan conception of force and might as preeminent and in the destruction of individual values.

On the other hand the Allied attitude is the Christian conception of the brotherhood of man, the sanctity of contractual relations and the sacredness of human personality.

Mr. King's attack on Hitlerism was an indictment of terrorism and the desire for absolution, and of the mechanization of the entire Reich and its conquered peoples, and of the bringing in of Communism. He said, "In the gospel of Hitler, the German people, the so-called Nordic race, are the chosen people. They alone have the right to rule. All other peoples are to be subordinated to the sons of Wotan. They are to dominate the world." But dictatorship is bound to result in war, he said, "It is on the edge of an abyss that mankind is standing today because of Nazi Germany . . . . . Should Nazism triumph what will become of the freedom of other countries of the globe?"

This is something which the smaller powers of the world feel and also the great powers. The war is for self-preservation and for mankind.

The Prime Minister goes on:—"If today I have been prepared to lead a Government charged with the awful responsibility of prosecuting a war, it is because, contrary to every hope and wish I have ever entertained, I have been compelled to believe that only by the destruction of Nazism and the resistance to ruthless aggression can the nations of the British Commonwealth hope to enjoy the liberties which are theirs and the world itself be spared a descent into a new and terrible age of barbarism."

The personal touch which Mr. King gave is the spirit of a dweller in a land of democracy. He speaks of his desire to retain the influence of the Christian teaching of his childhood days above all which have been a sheet anchor through life. Without it life for me would lose its warmth, beauty, color, its sustaining power in time of adversity and it would be a truly mechanical existence at that. This early Christian influence he would wish to bequeath to the young people of Canada, preserved from the blight of Nazism which is the antithesis of the Christian Gospel.

His closing words were a closing call for service. "The time has come when, to save our Christian civilization, we must be prepared to lay down our lives for its preservation. Young men who are enlisting in our forces today, to serve on land, on the sea, and in the air, are first and foremost defenders of the faith. Like those who have gone forth to battle in the past, they are placing their lives at the service of King and Country but theirs is an even greater mission. It is the preservation for our own and future generations, of freedom begotten of persecutions, martyrdoms, and centuries of struggle. It is the preservation not alone of national and of personal freedom but of freedom also of the mind and of the soul."

His address was deeply moving and sounded the depth of the Canadian resolution.

SOCIAL DEVELOPMENTS STRESSED

Italy celebrated its seventeenth anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome on Saturday but the events were of a kind somewhat different from other celebrations of the past. There was not much stressing of the warlike, rather the stress was laid on social progress, opening up of new farms and of miners' houses and of new stretches of electric railway. Of course there were martial touches hardly to be avoided in the world where Italy's neighbors and an Axis partner are at war, such an event being the opening of the Fascist school for military specialists. Altogether, however, there was more emphasis laid on the non-military and social aspect of Italian life.

Saturday's event seemed more sober in its content than others in the piping days of peace not so long ago when the world listened anxiously for a statement from Rome on the armament race.

But Italy is busy nevertheless. She is neutral and there is indication enough that she is not quite in sympathy with the Nazi effort, particularly as it was inaugurated with the crushing of Poland. There is a feeling that Italy, not at all sympathetic to Communist Russia, is working for a bloc to preserve neutrality in the Balkans which might frustrate any German Nazi plans.

The steadiness of the Allies, their rejection of the left-handed peace proposal of Hitler and their determination to fight to the end have not failed to impressed Signor Mussolini, who, while a dictator, is also a practical statesman.

Italy today as a neutral enjoys a form of prosperity which could not be possible in pre-war days.

There is a view that Italy is unlikely to link up with the Nazi effort and there is manifest good feeling between Italy and the democratic countries.

CZECHS REMEMBER

Czechs who have lived under oppressors for centuries and tasted but a bare twenty years of liberty yet have the spirit of freedom within them, as they showed in celebration of the 21st anniversary of the foundation of the Republic. Prevented by the Germans from holding a celebration in King Wenceslas Square in Prague, there were disorders and it is said eight hundred persons were arrested.

One thing it seems certain. The Nazis cannot Germanize the people of old Bohemia and the rest of Czechoslovakia. They may be dragooned and regimented in their food and in other ways, but their spirit will be free. They may not be able to revolt but they are keeping thousands of the enemy troops occupied while their brothers in other lands and the Allies are wearing down German strength on the western front.

The indomitable courage of the Czechs is just proof of the folly of Germany in trying to make them Germans. Nazi repression is bringing out the soul of these people. Hitler's plan, so boasted of, and yet so idle because he has broken it himself in taking the Czechs within the Reich, simply won't work. His boasted eighty or ninety million of a population in Germany is pure bombast for there are in that number many elements, all the new parts of his Hitler empire, the recent conquests, which would be ready to dart away from him or fight at the first opportunity.

The Czechs are loyal descendants of those who knew good King Wenceslas, a Bohemian ruler whose name has gone down in history and one of the guiding stars of Czech life and civilization.

THERE'S A LOT OF SEA

People ask how it comes that German raiders can evade the British navy, sink British ships in the North Atlantic.

The answer is that the North Atlantic is a pretty roomy place; that there's a lot of sea.

In a voyage across the Atlantic the average passenger ship follows the ordinary lanes of commerce. Yet despite all the ships that ply with passengers and commerce between Europe and this continent, an entire day may go by without one ship meeting another—or even sighting another.

In the North Sea, and in the North Atlantic, there are grey misty days, when there is little visibility, and there are long black nights when a ship without lights is not easily detected. The British navy would require to have one ship for every square mile of the ocean to make enemy raiders impossible.

As it is, the British navy isn't doing badly. It is keeping the U-boat menace down to a minimum; is capturing or destroying many submarines; has moved a British force of *250,000 men to France without a single casualty.

Meanwhile German commerce is still swept from the seas.—Ottawa Journal.

"A sense of security makes a man a better workman. That man is going to do a better job because he has fewer worries."—Alfred P. Sloan.

Letter to the Editor

IS THE GERMAN NATION AT WAR?

Ever since the start of hostilities, Mr. Chamberlain has made it quite clear that the Allies were at war, not with the German people, but against Hitler and his government alone.

These sentiments have been uttered so often and broadcast so widely that some otherwise intelligent men have come to believe that the downfall of Hitler and of Hitlerism would cause a sudden cessation of this conflict, whereas peace consummation would be but the preliminary step towards a return of peace.

We must not take the prime minister's words too literally. We should fill in the spaces and complete his sentences, taking into consideration the aims and needs of the world at large and of the British Empire.

As I see it, the real meaning of Chamberlain's statement is this:

"No! We aren't declaring war on the German population, because we do not consider them in any way responsible for the rape of Czechoslovakia or of Poland. But, in return, we expect the German people to give us some justification of our faith in them, by refusing any longer to tolerate the present state of affairs.

"Therefore, O German people, cease countenancing by your apathy the criminal activities of your leader, get rid of him and of the gang of ruffians, his helpers and advisers, elect a democratic form of government, recognize the independence of Czecho-Slovakia and of Poland; finally, become our true allies and help us beat the Russian bear out of Europe once more. You will then have earned an honorable peace which we will grant you, with our blessing."

And they were happy ever after.

For the meanwhile, the British have established a new Czecho-Slovakia and the German people are on rations.

But the Nazi troops aren't rationed.

Since 1933, Goering has cornered and put in cold storage, 85 per cent of all German foodstuffs, against the need of it for the army; the population being fed on "ersatz" or synthetic foods.

When the Nazis start their war to the death and bomb the open Dutch towns, slaughtering the innocents, we shall of course adopt retaliatory measures of which the German population with whom we are not at war, will be the first victims.

All this, it seems to me, arises from a misapprehension. We still think of the German man in the street as he was a hundred years ago. Sober, peaceable, industrious, lovable and thrifty.

The Franco-Prussian war—in 1870, stated a famous historian, was fomented by the German schoolmaster.

Think of it. A whole generation of children being murdered on hate. Think further, 1870, whilst the ghost of Napoleon yet cast its shade on Europe, the Germans defeated the French.

The good natured contempt which had until then marked the sentiments of both nations was fanned to a flame of living hate, first step towards the inevitable war of 1914. It is a well-known fact that, ever since the capitulating of Sedan, the German high command prepared for the next war. These preparations lasted 44 years and were brought up by the German schoolmaster first and the German soldier next.

Can you see a mixture of arrogance, hatred and contempt on the German side, while the French were animated by hate pure and simple. In 1918, after being time and again, within an ace of victory, the German army was finally crushed.

The allies imposed upon their enemies, first at the Armistice, later at Versailles, the most humiliating terms of peace which the mind can possibly conceive.

The German population had to put the best face it could upon an unpalatable situation and were, no doubt, very sorry that they had been defeated.

But they didn't love us any the more for that and when, in 1933, a leader sprang up and led them without firing a shot, from victory to victory, they would have been less than human if a blast of enthusiasm hadn't swept throughout the country like a tidal wave.

The result of these reflections is this: Let Hitler achieve, even a minor victory on the Western Front and the German nation will rise and show the whole world that they are "en bloc" behind their leader.

That is why I repeat once again: "Although we will certainly win the war, it may take us years to do so."

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Can a Hernia be Cured by Wearing a Truss?

Two brothers consulted a physician regarding a "lump" in the lower abdomen which was really a "threatened" rupture or hernia. As they outlined the idea of an operation and the injection treatment was not in use at the time, the physician invited abdominal exercises—lying on back and raising legs (knees straight)— and the wearing of a light truss to prevent threatened hernia from becoming worse.

In one case the results were most satisfactory and the "lump" completely disappeared even when the truss was removed. In the other case the hernia became worse and operation was performed. Later, in the apparently cured case, there was no sign of hernia for fifteen years until a heavy "lift" was made and the hernia "came down." An operation gave excellent results as the abdominal muscles were in good condition.

What about trusses to control a rupture or hernia?

In those whose abdominal muscle tissue is poor, in those who fear operation, and in those whose hernia is unsuitable for injection, the wearing of a properly fitted truss gives both comfort and safety. This is proven by the many thousand of ruptured individuals who have been wearing a truss for many years.

Can a rupture be cured by the use of a truss and exercise as mentioned above? I have seen a number "apparently" cured by exercise and a truss, but as in the case above mentioned, the later history of the case might reveal a return of the hernia.

Can a rupture be cured by wearing the truss alone, that is, without exercise?

Dr. Ralph Corte, in the British Medical Journal, says: "Congenital rupture has no chance for cure . . . a truss, I should like to say that there does not appear to be any chance after the age of 4. Even before the age of 4, the chance of curing a hernia, by simply wearing a truss is very small and depends on one important point. That is, that once a truss has been applied no further protrusion (pushing through) be allowed until the true is discharged, which may be only after several years."

As the number of ruptured is very large, many of whom cannot or will not undergo operation, and many of whom have a hernia unsuitable for injection, it would be well for parents to consult their physician if their youngster under four has a hernia. They should not wait, hoping that it will disappear without treatment.

LOADING U.S. BOMBERS FOR BRITAIN, IF AND WHEN—

Dismantled bombing planes, manufactured in the United States for the Allies, are shown being loaded on barges at Floyd Bennett airport in order that they will be all ready for shipment if, and when, said that $600,000,000 worth of planes will go from the U. S. A. House of Representatives okay's repeal of the Arms Embargo Act and passes the administration's neutrality bill. British newspapers say that this, but as in the case above mentioned, the later history of the case might reveal a return of the hernia.

ALLIED ARMY HEADS MEET IN FRANCE

Marshal Maurice Gustave Gamelin, generalissimo of the combined French and British armies, and General Viscount Gort, commander of the British field forces, are pictured together "somewhere in France," as they presumably met for conference on strategy. The location of their meeting was deleted by the censor.

While the major portion of France's army is entrenched on the western front, the French Alps, too, are well-manned. Here is a view of a 280 mm. howitzer which has been set up at an elevation of 10,000 feet. Note the camouflage netting over the weapon.

TRUNK MURDER CASE BACK IN ASYLUM

Winnie Ruth Judd "Literally a Wild Woman" When Captured by Police

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 31 (AP)—Winnie Ruth Judd, "literally a wild woman," was back in the Arizona State Hospital for the Insane today carefully guarded.

The trunk killer, unkempt and half-starved, who said she saw "horrible things" during her air days of freedom, was caught in a night landing on attache's home on the hospital grounds which she had entered to obtain food.

Her shoe were gone. There were holes in her stockings. One ankle was sprained and she had fashioned a brace from a girdle.

The new frock and shoes which she wore when she fled the hospital last Tuesday night had been exchanged for an old, brown coat and blue hat, pulled down over her ears.

Mrs. Judd, who in 1931 killed Agnes Ann Le Roi and Hedvig Samuelson, and stuffed their bodies into trunks which were shipped to Los Angeles, apparently had been in the vicinity of Prescott since her escape.

She told Dr. Louis Sass, hospital superintendent, she had been hiding in a cornfield, about 1 1-2 miles from the main hospital group, in a cemetery on the hospital grounds.

Sen. Lon Sanders said, however, he had traced her movements and that she spent the greater part of her time hiding in one side of a duplex, about eight blocks from the home of Attorney Gen. Ross and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, when she visited a few blocks after her escape.

Jordan said Mrs. Judd spent the first night in an orange grove, Wednesday night through Saturday night at the cemetery. She said she carved her initials, "WRJ," and the date "10-28-31" on a tombstone still. Sunday night she visited a minister in Tempe, nine miles west of Phoenix, and spent three hours at his house.

The minister attempted to return the woman to the hospital but persuaded her to flee when he threatened suicide. He notified Jordan.

Attendants said they surrendered Mrs. Judd last night as she left the residence of Mel Larson, hospital engineer.

"She was literally a wild woman," Dr. Sass said. She was gyves, dacles and put to bed.

Silver Band Plays In Picton United Church

Picton, Oct. 31.—The visit to Picton United church Sunday afternoon of the Metropolitan Silver Band of Toronto, which was in Belleville for the week end, attracted a large crowd. This outstanding musical organization, five times winner of the Gold Medal at the O.N.E. for Canadian bands, lived up to all advance notices. Bandmaster Alfred Pierce was introduced by Bandmaster S. G. Lockyer of Picton, who attended the same High School in London as did the Toronto leader.

The following program was given: "O, Canada," Overture "Harmonie (Thimmel); March, "B.B. and C.F."; Hymn tunes, "I Need Thee" and "Abendir"; March, "Trombanist"; Intermezzo, "Bells in the Valley"; Trombone solo, "Trombone Polka" by Bandsman Max Richmond; "Lord, reconcile me" (Hymn tune); Cornet solo, "Celebrity" (Mortimer); Chorus, "Garlands of Classic" (Rimmer).

Among the large crowd were many from Bandsman and Prince Edward Regiment.

Anniversary services at Deseronto United Church on Sunday were taken by Rev. J. F. Reycroft of Picton United Church. Rev. Mr. Reycroft was a Captain with the R.C.A.F. during the morning service in the Picton church. Dr. Jack Lynd, recently returned from Canada, told of conditions in the war area. At the evening service, Rev. O. R. Boudreau was the preacher and the sermon.

Funeral services were preached at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church on Sunday by Rev. Dr. M. R. Boudreau who resigned to become pastor at Burnbrae Presbyterian church. Dr. and Mrs. Lynd left for their new home on Monday.

Mrs. L. Mitchell died on Friday after a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Geo. Reynolds, in Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Croxon and daughter Diane are leaving Picton this week to live in Deseronto, Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Leavitt have moved to town from Vreeville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Phillips and Shirley, spent the week end in Toronto, guests of Miss Freda Newman.

Children Turn to Military Type Of Toys Now That War is On Young Canada is going to war" with all the enthusiasm of Brother and Daddy.

He knows all about tanks and airplanes, staff-officers and privates, the horse-marines and the artillery. He is rapidly becoming versed in the art of military strategy even if his every-day games and divisions are deployed in formation on the dining room floor.

One toy store in the city has a weekly parade of regular customers. On Saturday afternoons the "generals" make it a point to add at least one war article to their collections, some of which are rapidly approaching completion.

And the variety they have to choose from encompasses just about everything in the armaments program. A row of diminutive tents, looking like tiny mushrooms adorned the floor of the dining room of a home which a reporter happened to drop in on. Guarding the camp were a series of wooden lead soldiers and guns, sand-nosed howitzers poked their squat snouts at all angles and pointed to the right of the "parade-ground." Anti-aircraft guns, minute pointed toward the ceiling, defied enemy craft with the assistance of tiny searchlights.

Near a tent stood a staff-officer. To the rear a regiment of "marines" stood at rigid attention. Drawn up in two lines at the rear of the tents were business-like looking tanks, gunners ready and alert and awaiting the signal to go.

In "Battle" Formation

Mechanized artillery was drawn up in "column of route" with a battalion of "infantry" in readiness to "take-off" in the vicinity. A touch of green "camouflage" on the person of a German soldier clad in armor who has just been dispatched by a machine-gun held in the hands of a diminutive "Tommy" in the background, barbed wire entanglements enclosed with "prisoners" described as German prisoners.

"Shucks, that ain't nuthin," the youthful "general" said when the reporter commented on his collection. "You ought to see the stuff that a lot of the fellows have got. They have airplane carriers and guns and everything. We are going to put in the Maginot Line as soon as we can get it."

"Do you like this fun?" he was asked.

"Sure, why not. Bill, that's my brother, got enlisted in the army when he comes back he'll be able to tell me all about putting these things in the right places."

"Wait till Christmas," he grinned, "I'll bet Santa Claus will bring me a big fort, and some more tanks." And the will-o'-the-wisp picture of dismissed he turned away to re-align his tin battalions.

Staticless Radio Reception is Newest Development Ahead of the Industry

Arthur Young, Gen. Manager Stewart-Warner Alemite Corp., Gives Talk on Latest Developments in Radio Industry to Rotary Club — Says Television for Commercial Purposes is Still in Infancy

Prophesy that frequency modulation, one of radio's latest developments would revolutionize the industry in the not too far distant future, was made by Arthur Young, General Manager of the Stewart-Warner Alemite Corporation of Canada in an address "Radio and Its Relation to Aviation," to the Belleville Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon meeting.

A brainchild of Major Armstrong, famous radio expert, the new modulation foreshadows a brighter day for radio the speaker said. It would do away with the fades as wide as the present amplitude modulation, and is not distorted by static or other interference. It brings out the full tone of musical instruments and sounds not easily reproduced by the present system."

"But, like television, present developments have brought the new advancement to a range of two hundred miles. If properly developed it will mean that radio stations will be built every one hundred miles so that programs can be relayed by a beam system instead of via telephone," Mr. Young said.

"You can get your morning paper by the new development," he continued, "for the new machines will print the news for you even as you are eating."

The speaker believed that frequency modulation would be available before television, but if not, he felt sure it would be developed together.

Uses Saws

In radio, out of developments, will come greater things—than even radio now contain itself, he declared, describing many developments such as detectors, signal defenders for railways, instruments for the medical profession, submarine and airplane detection and many other recent development.

Referring to television, the speaker said he considered that it has few shortcomings, the principal which is the lack of present system of relaying radio programs by telephone.

"The general public will not purchase television sets until broadcasting stations are in a position to give programs and sponsors will not back them, until the public is assured of a good broadcasting area. It is still in its infancy," he said.

He prefaced his address with a brief history of the Stewart-Warner Alemite Corporation of Canada from the time of its inauguration here until the present day.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian H. Bassingthwaite while the club's appreciation was voiced by Rotarian Frank Correll and forwarded to the speaker by President Howard Clarke.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mrs. F. Smith wishes to announce the engagement of her only daughter, Jean Hamilton Sparrow, retently come home from the New York Worl... Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Tyrrs, Mr. and Mrs. W. Hazard and Mr. and Mrs. A. Randall attended the funeral in Port Hope on Sunday of the late Charles Massie.

Mrs. Harold Bunkard was a guest at the Mooney-Branigan reception which took place yesterday at the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Toronto.

Mr. Geo. Howbotham, Bettes St., who was injured when he fell from a scaffold while working on repairs to a roof in Peterborough, a month ago and is in the Civic Hospital, Belleville General Hospital, is progressing as well as can be expected.

Mrs. Percy Meyers of Johnstown, is visiting in the city the guest of Mrs. L. Wilkes, Catherine Street.

The ladies of the C.O.B.A. sponsored a very enjoyable euchre and dance at Conservative Club rooms on Friday evening. Fourteen quaints and lovely costumes were paraded before judges making their task a difficult one. Their final decision being Mrs. E. Holst as the little old lady and Mrs. Wm. Arnott as the most comic. A great deal of the fun of the evening was supplied by Mrs. Arnott as she played her part to perfection. Winners at euchre were: ladies' first, Mrs. A. Alexander; second, Mrs. V. Frost; men's first, Mr. W. J. Wright; second, Mr. Scoban.

Miss Elsie White entertained at a delightful shower at her home on the home of Miss Dorothy Gardiner, previous to her marriage. About twenty-five friends and neighbours were present. Bingo, bridge and euchre were enjoyed. The guest of honour received many lovely gifts. A dainty lunch was served at the close of the evening.

A very enjoyable Hallowe'en social was held at the University Sunday School, College Street, when over one hundred, all in costume, met to celebrate and enjoy a social evening. A splendid program was presented. Mr. E. A. Ridley and the quartet of Kingston Road United Church contributed music. Mrs. McCluskie gave a humorous reading and an amusing trio was given by Mrs. McCluskie, Mrs. Burley and Mrs. Brown. A recitation by Dana Sock and a chorus by eight small children followed. Mr. J. Thompson was the clown of the evening and roars of laughter came from his antics. Refreshments, ice cream, candy and cake were served. Prizes for costumes were awarded as follows: childunder seven, bride, Meribeth Bristol; japanese, Mrs. McCluskie; Ireland, Gordon Hogarth; Germany, Francis Scoll; children to twelve, fairy, Dorothy grey girl, Gretchen Mason; Spanish girl, Constance Scott; cowboy, Donald Hogarth; tramp, Jack Gown, Mr. J. Thompson; tramp, Jack Patterson; Spanish girl, Betty Parker, Dorothy Hogarth.

At the Regular Baptist Church, Front Street, last evening, the Young People of the Dorcas Society gave the pastor's wife, Mrs. Wyse, a pleasant surprise in the form of a linen and grocery shower. Mr. Angus Hannah, jr., was chairman and made the presentation after singing of the Doxology. There was a pleasant social hour later. About fifty attended.

The Evening Branch of Christ Church W.A. met at the home of its President, Mrs. Everett Smith, Boswell Street, on Monday night. Following business discussions Mrs. G. G. Wright and Mrs. F. O'Connor presented reports of the annual Deanery meeting held recently. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Smith assisted by Mrs. H. Dowsett and Miss Olive Smith.

WEDDINGS

STERN—MARCUS

The marriage was quietly solemnized in Montreal, Sunday, October 29th, at the home of Rev. J. Hirsch Weinberg, of Miss Dorothy Marcus, younger daughter of Lillian, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Marcus of this city and Mr. Norman Stern of the R.C.A.F., St. Hubert, Que. son of and Mrs. A. Stern of Montreal. The happy couple will reside at Dartmouth, N.S.

DEMILLE—BOYCE

Picton, Oct., 31.—(Special)—Pelloveship Lodge at Wellington, was the scene of an interesting wedding when Helen Mae Boyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Boyce of Wellington, became the bride of Stephen DeMille, son of Mrs. DeMille of Bloomfield and the late Stephen DeMille. Rev. Harry Brown officiated.

The bride wore a becoming gown of blue sheer with blue accessories and a corsage of callas, lily of the valley and fern. Miss Wilhelmina DeMille, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid, was wearing wine crepe with matching accessories and a shoulder corsage of pink carnations and fern. Ross Boyce, brother of the bride, was best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride, with over fifty guests present. Picton, Bloomfield, Wellington and Petworth; present. The rooms were attractively by vases of flowers and the newlyweds received the congratulations of relatives and friends, while standing beneath a white bell with pink and white streamers. Later, Mr. and Mrs. DeMille left for a trip to Campbellford. They will make their home at Bloomfield.

WHITE—GRAHAM

The marriage took place at St. Michael's Rectory on Saturday morning of Dorothy Evelyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Graham, and Mr. Sidney Frederick White, son of Mr. Fred White, and the late Mrs. White, Mrs. F. J. Collins officiated.

The bride wore teal blue wool ensemble with matching hat and corsage of roses. She was attended by her sister, who wore a Burgundy frock with matching hat and corsage of roses. Mr. Jack Cuthbert was groomsman.

After a motor trip to Vermont, Mr. and Mrs. White will take up residence on Dufferin Avenue.

GREATRIX—EVERETTS

Brockville —Wall Street United church parsonage was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock when Rev. Dr. Silcox performed the ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Viola Henrietta May Everetts, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Edward Everetts, Brockville, and George Thomas Greatrix, son of Mrs. Greatrix and the late Harry Greatrix of Belleville.

The bride looked charming in a dress of wine velvet with matching accessories. She wore a corsage of pink roses.

Miss Mildred Banks was bridesmaid. She wore a dress of teal blue with corsage of pink roses. Jack Greatrix was groomsman.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, at which time a wedding supper was served to over 30 guests, including out-of-town relatives present were Mrs. Harry Greatrix, his grandmother; Miss Beth Myth, Hazel and Mildred Greatrix and Kenneth Greatrix of Belleville; Mrs. Ruth Greatrix of Oshawa; Harold Anderson, of Inverness and Miss Florence MacLean of Point Anne, Ontario.

The bride and groom left on a short honeymoon to Montreal. On their return they will reside in Belleville.

BRIDGE STREET Y. P. U.

Last evening a gay Hallowe'en party was held in Bridge Street church when the Young People's Union entertained in honour of the Sunday School rooms.

The costumes worn by the costumes seemed endless and the spirit with which they were worn was the best and contests made the party an outstanding success. Taylor Frankland and Mrs. Williams acted as judges and chose the following prize-winners.

Mary Lochart, (witch) worst looking lady.

Jack Zufelt, (mounted Police), best looking gentleman.

Charlie Clapp, (clown) worst looking gentleman.

Each feature of the evening which added to the merriment was a long goose walk through life a long goose walk through life and a graveyard gallery with witches and ghosts waiting along the way.

Delicious refreshments were served by the committee in charge and the party was brought to a close by the National Anthem.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, November 1

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

MUCH ACTIVITY of a surprising and drastic nature is forecast by the transiting planetary chain of astral forces. There is much to be gained by cold calculation, shrewdness and tactful application, with sound ideas and good judgment. But there are also the dangers of duplicity, craft, betrayal or other involvements hostile to the best interests or some sort of enforced outlay of funds or gifts or contributions. Emotion impulsive or contentious moves, as well as snap judgments or lack of the latter, are quite common throughout conservatism. Those whose birthday it is may have a year of opportunity and fair success if they will apply themselves diligently, cautiously, with discretion and cool judgment. There are menaces of fraud, duplicity and underhand practices, as well as legal complications, precipitated by strife and impetuosity. Such may demand excessive expenditures.

A child born on this day may be energetic, forceful, of high intelligence and judgment, and yet be carried away by impulsiveness, dishonor or shrewd urges, which may plunge it into loss or litigation. Extravagant impulses should receive early direction, lest over-expansive ideas prove hazardous.

Oatmeal Cookies —Ingredients:

one cup shortening, two cups brown sugar, four cups rolled oats, one teaspoon soda, one-half cup boiling water, one teaspoon vanilla extract, one-half cup cake flour, one teaspoon cinnamon. Cream shortening and add sugar, mixing and beating well. Add rolled oats and cake flour mixture. Dissolve soda in water and add, together with the vanilla extract. Mix and sift flour and cinnamon and add to mixture. Roll out very thin and cut with cookie cutter. While cookie mixture is being made, have filling on hand (requires one-half pound figs, (one cup), one-half cup dates, one cup marshallows, cut into quarters, one-third cup boiling water. Place figs, marshallows and boiling water in small sauce pan and cook gently until mixture thickens. Remove from heat and cool. Place small amount of mixture on cookie and cover with a second cookie. Crimp edges together with a fork. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for approximately fifteen minutes. Makes 50 cookies.

FIRST PRIZE must go to Chantal for her frosted leather dress. The bodice is of black velvet and is set in a rounded yoke of brown kid. A skirt of black tulle that falls in folds and is edged at the hem with box-pleated black velvet.

FRACTIONAL HEALTH

By McKEOWN'S DRUG STORE

To estimate the number of persons that have died from colds or more manifestations, something is amiss in their bodies, and yet do not realize what it would be merely hazarding a guess.

Many conclude that they are at least eighty-five or ninety per cent. healthy, and consider the fractional balance is not a matter of grave concern. Such as a matter of fact, even a one per cent. disorder that is deliously, or otherwise, increase to a degree where immunity ceases of the doctor of medicine are permanently hindered.

The joys of life are measured by the unmistakable exuberance of per cent health — not 85 or 90 per cent. health.

The one man who can aid you in the restoration of that last five or fifteen per cent is the efficient doctor of medicine; and you can help him in bringing about the desired condition by your careful choice of a druggist to fill his prescriptions—if medicine is necessary.

Advice to the Love lorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Which Is Better—Long or Short "Pitching Woo."

When your first grandmother was a bit slow in naming the day, your great grand-dad probably snorted in her that ancient maxim: "Blessed is the wooing, not long a'doing."

And the lady may have decided that two dozen hand-tucked and tie-necked petticoats were enough for the trousseau, and decided not to hand-sew the other two dozen, if she were terribly in love with great grand-dad.

Now the latest advice on the subject of "pitching woo" is that the longer it takes, the more lasting the marriage is likely to be. A Cornell University professor for the past seven years has delved deep into marriage statistics, and has arrived at the conclusion that much of the gamble in marriage can be eliminated by a long engagement. The Cornell researcher is Dr. Conrad H. Cottrell, Jr.

Chicago University, too, has not been remiss in delving into statistics and discovering what makes marriage tick. Ernest W. Burgess, son of Professor Ernest Watson Burgess, says he has been making a study there and who has interviewed five hundred and sixty-six married couples, and a happy relationship exists in marriages where mutual interests are a bond to keep jointly handle the family finances. Mr. Burgess says he also has arrived at that professional men make the best husbands, and of these, chemists, engineers and physicists get top rating. Married women stood second, and the ideal husband for happy wives.

Where the courtship lasted less than a year an incomplete adjustment was found. The chances for happiness were found to be greater less than for those whose courtships lasted a year or more. Those who married after a three months' of courtship or less, ran a thirty per cent risk in making a successful partnership.

College graduates were more successful in marriage than persons of high-school graduates. Religion also proved a factor in success. If you don't love education, or education's you, you may take to your college classes in the interests of domestic peace.

The learned gentlemen have left out of consideration such happiness as ensues from those made on a dare, or after an acquaintance of a few weeks. Many are trying to break up elopements by insisting on a three-day or longer residence before a license to wed can be secured.

The Gretna Greens are going and greatly to the advantage of the country. So many of these married-on-a-dare ventures were really gin marriages, and hardly live up to the faith on the certificate was dry. They weren't going to last. Usually those people who married on a dare, the parents who had had to support them after the dare was taken, and the unfortunate children, if any, who resulted from these haphazard unions.

As the writer, who has read thousands of letters from both happy and unhappy marriages, has been permitted to hazard a guess as to the ideal length of a courtship, she would say that three months would be the best results. Of course, there are exceptions to five-year courtship as showing five-year courtship as showing five-year courtship as showing

Do You Know Why You are Constipated?

Some days aren't you disgusted with everything, you're glum and worn out, depressed, very likely because of your constipation? Why not look for the real cause of your misery?

What have you eaten lately? Bread, meat, potatoes? In fact, you can't look any further, for that's your trouble. A diet of "starch" and "meat" makes you gassy, constipated, but the kind of, food that is not completely assimilated and leaves a bad "taste" in the bowels that helps the bowels move.

If you get back "pep", the solution is to eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every day. It's rich in vitamin B, the mineral bile salts, and "bulk" and Vitamin D, the natural bile-like tonic.

Eat some All-Bran every day. Drink lots of water and exercise "regular." Made in London, Ontario, by Kellogg. At all grocers.

Centenary

Centenary, Oct. 31.—After being away from his pulpit for three weeks owing to anniversary services, Rev. Mr. Mercer was warmly welcomed at the morning service on Sunday, taking as his topic "The Unfinished Temple" Mr. Mercer pointed out that we should not ignore Christian architecture, in the building of the temple, that to leave behind us the influence for good was of greater value than worldly possessions. A first foundation is achieved by building a good character and good workmanship is obtained by moulding our lives to fit in perfectly with others or the temple will be unfinished.

The teacher, Mr. Harry Bates, and the school children entertained on Monday afternoon at a Hallowe'en party. A number of the parents and friends attended and entered into the fun. The school was decorated in autumn leaves, pumpkins and other decorations in keeping with the occasion. Prizes were given for the best costumes and the judges had a hard task in choosing just which should win. A splendid concert followed with recitations, dialogues and singing by the school, led by their music teacher, Miss Atkinson. After the concert a social half hour with sandwiches, cake, peanuts and candy brought to a close the happy gathering. Mrs. Lawrence Hubble moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Bates on behalf of the parents and children for a very pleasant afternoon.

On Monday evening neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Clapp, second concession of Sidney, to spend an evening with them before they leave the neighborhood. An address was read by Mrs. Gilbert Sills and the presentation of a floor lamp made by Mrs. C. Sills. Although greatly taken by surprise the guests of honor gratefully thanked their friends for the lovely gifts and their expressions of good wishes. A dainty lunch was served. The address follows:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Clapp: As neighbors and friends we have met with you tonight to spend a social time together and to convey to you our regret that you are leaving our community. You have lived among us for a number of years and we sincerely hope you have found us to be neighbors in the true sense of the word, that you may in the years go by hold fond memories of the time spent in our midst. We are going to miss you, but are glad you are not going far away and that you will feel you belong to Centenary where you will always find a warm welcome whenever you are able to drop in with us. In your new home we hope you will find comfort and happiness and that God may bless you both, may you have good health to enjoy many happy years.

As a small token of our esteem we ask you to accept these gifts; may they serve to remind you of your many friends of Centenary.

Deaf French Peasant First Man Wounded By British at Front

With the British Expeditionary Force in France, Oct. 31—(CP)—(Reuters)—The first man wounded by a British bullet on the western front is a French peasant. He failed to halt when challenged by a British sentry as he was pushing a barrow across a field after dark. Making no reply, he went slowly on his way. The sentry fired. The man dropped.

Later, the sentry discovered the cause of the man's failure to stop. He was deaf.

The Reuter correspondent saw him in a French military hospital. He was lying on a hospital trolley on his way to the operating table. His left arm was ripped open by the shot from the sentry's rifle.

Drizzling Skies Forecast Wet Closing Of World's Fair

New York, Oct. 31—(AP)—Drizzling skies forecast a wet closing for the 1939 New York World's Fair tonight, but observers were more uneasy over the prospect it might be a dry affair—alcoholically speaking—for them.

Scouts for a check-up of the discovery that fifty-three of the fifty-four bars on the exposition grounds had obtained only the month liquor licenses when the fair opened April 30.

The licenses expire promptly at midnight tonight. Bar owners said they would seek permission to serve drinks a few hours beyond midnight, but expected heavy crowds.

Hundreds of extra police were assigned to guard fair property against souvenir hunters.

Celebrates Birthday

London, Oct. 31—(CP Cable)—Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of all England, today celebrated the 75th anniversary of his birth.

In a birthday message, the Primate declared the world was confronted with "satanic" force, adding:

"There are some among us who feel passionately that the use of countervailing force, with all its terrible attendants, is against the mind of Christ. I must respect their conscience, but I cannot doubt that Christian citizen is fully justified in giving support and service to his country."

REPORTED HITLER TO ASSUME COMMAND

London, Oct. 31 (CP)—The Yorkshire Post today published a report that Colonel-General Walter von Brauchitsch, commander-in-chief of the German army, would not be entrusted with command of the western front, but would step aside in favor of Adolf Hitler himself.

The Pusher will be assisted, it is reported, by his general staff, headed by Colonel-General Wilhelm Keitel, a minister in the Nazi cabinet.

ROB ARMORED CAR

Shanghai, Oct. 31 (CP-Havas)—Criminal gunmen today held up an armored car in the International Settlement and escaped with $100,000 (Chinese). One of the armored car's guard was killed and another wounded in the daring, daylight robbery, staged in the centre of the settlement. The loot was in banknotes.

HOLD PARENTS RESPONSIBLE

Pittsburgh, Oct. 31 (AP)—A ruling that nine of the children may be visited upon the parents may force Pittsburgh fathers to join the hands of Hallowe'en pranksters tonight—for their own protection. Safety Director George Fairley warned that all parents will be held responsible in cases where children are involved in destruction of property and for any other illegal activity.

DIES WHILE DISCUSSING FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS

Waterloo, N.Y., Oct. 31 (AP)—Albert S. Moon, 71, ill in Waterloo Memorial Hospital, summoned Henry Gumming, undertaker, to his bedside yesterday to make funeral arrangements in the event of his death. While they were discussing the funeral plans, Moore died of a heart ailment.

EARNINGS AT PENITENTIARY LOOKED MORE ATTRACTIVE

Minneapolis, Oct. 31 (AP)—Marvin Griffin, 22, viewed his prison term with a business-like eye when he came up for sentence on a burglary count. He asked the judge to commit him, not to the state reformatory where prisoners earn only six cents a day, but to the state penitentiary where they earn 50 cents a day. The sentence—up to five years in the penitentiary.

Tyndall's Tricolor Squad Can Earn Playoff by Beating or Tieing Western

COMING FAST

No Outstanding Games on Grid Bill of Fare for This Weekend

(By the Canadian Press)

Most of the talk in Intercollegiate football circles this season has been about the doings of the unbeaten and untied University of Western Ontario Mustangs. There hasn't been much said about the Gaels (team colors: University, but it's a safe bet that Coach Bill Stinson of the Montagu boys isn't looking them.

Take a look at the record of four straight victories for the Mustangs, and those two wins against two teams for Queen's aren't exactly inspiring. But Queen's teams have been of a distinguished brand of sleuthing out slowly in the past, and gaining great momentum near the finish.

The Tricolor have the chance this coming Saturday to do the college race, where a playoff obtains only if the team which finishes second has beaten or tied the first-team at least once during the regular schedule. . . Coach Frank Tyndall's boys, who play McGill Redmen this Saturday, would need nothing to defeat or tie the Mustangs Nov. 11 at London to assure of a chance of making the playoffs.

Favored Over Redmen

The Tricolor should after all be favored to take the Redmen, altho' they dropped their close decision with Doug Kerr's team several weeks ago. The loss was their second straight fall, but they had been defeated previously by the Mustangs. Since then, however, they took the measure of University of Toronto on successive Saturdays.

Something, too, that lends Queen's followers heart is the fact that their defeat at the hands of the Mustangs a good score at the start of the season although the final score was 33-17. At one time Queen's led 16-5 but their defenses crumbled in the second half. Tyndall thinks that should his boys be able to run ahead like that again they won't fall behind.

This Saturday, there is hardly a battle as outstanding as on the previous two Saturdays in the Intercollegiate Canadian championship Toronto Argonauts clashed with Ottawa Rough Riders. The Riders take on the winless Montreal Royals, while Argos clash with Hamilton Wildcats in the Big Four draw; University of Toronto plays at Western, and Queen's engage the Redmen at Montreal, in the other Big Four Canada Imperials meet up with Peterboro Orfans while Montreal Westmounts tackle Toronto Balmy Beach in Ontario Union games.

PROCEEDS FOR CHARITY

Port Arthur, Ont., Oct. 31 (CP)—Port Arthur Bear Cats, Canadian senior amateur hockey champions and New York Americans of the National Hockey League will play an exhibition game here Saturday night by special permission of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, it was announced yesterday. Proceeds will go to charity.

Only on rare occasions is the opportunity ever presented of securing a picture of major league hockey stars lined up on the same side, as are the players here, seen before the start of the Sibert memorial game played in Montreal in honor of the former N.H.L. star, who was to have climaxed a great career as a player by managing Canadiens this season, only to meet death by drowning during the summer. Proceeds of the memorial game went to Sibert's family, and shown here are the members of the all-star team that played Canadiens in the Forum, defeating the Flying Frenchman, 8-3. Reading in the usual left to right order: they are, BACK ROW: Bobby Shore, defence, Boston Bruins; Dit Clapper, defence, Bruins; Art Coulter, defence, Rangers; Gord Drillon, right wing, Toronto Maple Leafs; Syl Apps, centre, Leafs; Eddie Goodfellow, defence, Detroit Red Wings; Harvey Jackson, left wing, New York Americans. Tennis Association in Ontario Names Ottawa Player as No. 1 Man

Toronto, Oct. 31 — (CP)—The Ontario Tennis Association announced today that Don McDiarmid, Ottawa, has been named No. 1 Ontario player for 1939. Mrs. Frank Fisher, of Toronto, formerly of Montreal, was judged the province's best in the women's section.

McDiarmid was rated ahead of Bruce Hall of the University of Toronto, who represented Canada in Davis Cup play in Cuba last summer. Bill Piggott of Hamilton, another University of Toronto star, was ranked third.

Jean Adele Burritt, unranked last year because of an injury-filled tour, was placed second in the women's section and Mrs. W. R. Wright, Toronto, anEngland badminton champion, third.

Training Camp Briefs

(By the Canadian Press)

Tip to National Hockey League coaches: Better kidnap Bill Cowley if that Cowley-Hap Goacher-Mel Hill line of Boston Bruins is to be stopped this season. The Bruins defeated Eddie Shore's Springfield Indians 3-0 at Boston last night, the first goal going to Goacher in the second to Hill. No need to say who made the plays for both scores.

Montreal Canadiens have 10 men eligible to dress when they came to go before their first game against Chicago Black Hawks at Thursday. Those signed are Armand Mondou, Cliff Goupille, Rod Lorrain, Johnny Gagnon, Bill Summerhill, Ray Getaliffe, Cy Wentworth, Earl Robertson, Louis Trudel and Fern Drouin. Coach Pete Lepine expects to add more signatures today.

Syl Apps, Toronto Maple Leafs, all-star centre, gave manager-coach Smythe and Coach Dick Irvin an anxious moment yesterday. The Leafs great pivot played for an hour on one of Normie Mann's skates during a practice. Great was the relief when it was found that Apps had suffered only minor cuts about the hip.

The Leafs gain respite from regular drill today to take to a St. Catharines course for their annual golf tournament. There has been a lot of good-natured bantering among the players about who is going to be declared club champion. "Neutral" observers have installed Les Chisholm, Red Heron and Syl Apps as co-favorites for the title. The team, though missing regular drill, is scheduled for an exhibition game tonight.

Not that there's any doubt about it, but here is further indication of the greatness of Eddie Shore as a hockey player. Shore played for Springfield Indians last night against Boston, and the Indians held the N.H.L. club scoreless for two periods with Eddie proving the big barrier to those efforts. When Shore didn't start the final period with the rest of the Indians, Boston rapped home two goals in a minute and a half.

Red Dutton apparently has made a strategic move in shifting big Charlie Doncaster, once one of the fastest of right wingers, back to defence spot. Doncaster was one of the stars for Dutton's New York Americans last night as the Americans defeated Their inter-city rivals, the Rangers, 3-1 at Winnipeg. It was Conacher's second game as a defenceman.

LOCAL WRESTLER MEETS DANIELS

Charlie Thorne Engaged in Pro Wrestling in Western Ontario

Charlie Thorne, native of Belleville, and who has been engaged in professional wrestling in Western Ontario for some months past returns to his native town this week to meet Tiger Daniels, the pugnacious Hamilton wrestling star, when Regina in the preliminary go of a three-bout card.

Thorne is well known and around Belleville as an amateur, under the tutoring of Gene Mostar for some years Thorne advanced to the "money ranks" three months ago and met with instant success as a lightweight grappler. Thorne features his fast footwork and double-leg holds, and has proved himself an exceedingly punishing when applied by an expert. Fans in Belleville will be curious to know how a beginner like Thorne will stack up against a seasoned veteran like Daniels, but the answer remains in the ring at the Hume Arena on Friday night.

The question as to whether a good 180 lb. man can beat a good big man will also be answered on the same night when Ted Whitmore, the lithe and scientific Mexican, meets Dave Cohen, Toronto's heavyweight. Valdez will be giving away fifty fifteen pounds and he has been a consistent winner locally. Valdez demanded top billing for this week's professional show.

The semi-final bout sees a new grappling face in "The Leopard," Jack Kinsella bringing from the north to meet Young Griffins. Last week's crowd at the Hume Arena was the largest wrestling crowd in the history of the game locally.

Pace is Ready For All Comers Of Bantamweight

By LARRY HAUCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

Cleveland, Oct. 31—(AP)—Little Georgie Pace, sporting nine new suits and the world's bantamweight boxing crown, set out today to prove he's more than a one-punch wonder beside that of his tutor, Johnny Kilbane.

The National Boxing Association put the 23-year-old Negro, a carbon copy of Kilbane in his clever counter-punching style, in the throne when champion Sixto Escobar abdicated the world featherweight rank.

Sixto Escobar refused to fight Pace, claiming the purses were too small. Pace faced his demands on victories over several boys who had licked Escobar.

"Well fight anybody, anyplace," thundered Pace's manager, Tom Jones, "in the public arena to watch the little boys. Refusal of fellows like Escobar to fight has hurt their game, but Georgie will fight just as often as the fans want him, and my hunch is he'll win 'em plenty."

"I'd rather have won the title fighting," drawled 5ft-spoken Georgie, "but I just couldn't get at this Escobar. Stanley will tell you all about it."

Kilbane, the popular Irishman who ruled the featherweight ranks from 1912 to 1923, first signed Pace in a city playground fight show. As an amateur Georgie won 97 of 98 bouts. He's also won 50 circles in 1936 and Stanley says he has won 31 fights and got good one, that on a technical disqualification.

Challenges are coming from all directions, including one from Johnny Paudes, of Winnipeg, who has filled a title claim. Pace will tangle with baby Yack, Canadian champion, in a non-title argument in Toronto Nov. 13.

He has signed an NBA agreement to defend his title within 60 days against K. O. Morgan, of Detroit; Lou Salica, of Oakland, Calif.; Tony O'Dowd, of New York, or any fighter named by the British Boxing Board.

FIXED FIGHTS IS CHARGE LAID BY HARRY THOMAS

Says Match With Schmeling and Galento Were "Prearranged

JACOBS INDIGNANT

Promotor Wants to Know Why it Took So Long to Lay Charges

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 31 (AP)— Gov. Henry Horner said today he would order the Illinois Athletic Commission to investigate thoroughly charges by Harry Thomas, former heavyweight fighter in a published story that he participated in "fixed" fights with Max Schmeling and Tony Galento.

The story was published by the Chicago Tribune, which said it had affidavits by Thomas which charged the results of his match with Max Schmeling in New York Dec. 13, 1937, and with Galento in Philadelphia Nov. 14, 1938, were pre-arranged. Schmeling won by a technical knockout in the eighth round, while Galento won by a technical knockout in the third.

"Simon Galento doesn't fight in Illinois until this matter is cleared up," Gov. Horner said at a press conference. "No one is going to fight in this State under that cloud of suspicion. I'm going to have the Athletic Commission delve through and get to the bottom of this."

Jacobs Denies Charges.

New York, Oct. 31 (AP) — Fight promoter Joe Jacobs, informed of charges by heavyweight Harry Thomas as that he participated in "fixed" fights with Max Schmeling and Tony Galento, said today it "is mighty funny I took Thomas this long to get around to making the charges."

Thomas was stopped by Schmeling in eight rounds in New York, in 1937, and in three rounds by Galento in Philadelphia Nov. 14, 1938. Jacobs was manager for both Schmeling and Galento.

"And don't forget," Jacobs added, "Thomas also fought Joe Louis and was stopped in three rounds in Chicago in April of last year. I don't know what that Thomas is talking about."

CARL LISCOMBE BACK WITH WINGS

Former Detroit Player Wins Position by His Spirited Play

Detroit, Oct. 31—(CP)—Manager Jack Adams of the Detroit Red Wings announced today Carl Liscombe, shifty left winger, will start the season with the Detroit Red Wings instead of the Indianapolis Capitols as originally planned.

Adams said Liscombe had won his place on the team by coming through his spirited play during the time he was with the Capitols and last night at Olympia where the Wings defeated the Capitols 6-4 in overtime. Liscombe, who comes from Galt, Ont., is playing for the Wings for the third season.

Centre Connie Brown may replace Don Deacon at centre, as Deacon has not got in condition yet. Defenceman Jim Orlando of Montreal has replaced Cully Jones on defence. Jones will play the Capitols' in exchange for Orlando.

O. S. D. ASSURED PLAYOFF BERTH DEFEATING B. C. I.

School Team Plays Cautious Football Till Fourth Period and Then "Go to Town"!

SCORE IS 15-1

Six-Man Football Smart Pastime With O.S.D. Always Having Edge

Flying their grid trade of cautious foothill until the last period, Frank Gaetano's O.S.D. senior six-man C.O.S.A. squad continued their undefeated record in the Bay of Quinte senior Interscholastic football group with a 15 to 1 win over the Belleville Collegiate sextette on the latter's campus yesterday afternoon. The Oshawa gridders assured themselves of at least a playoff finish and may but one more win to cinch the group title and the right of representing the group in the provincial Interscholastic playdowns.

As both teams showed a strong defence it remained to have the O.S.D. lads unleash a torrid aerial attack in the last quarter, and when some razzle-dazzle football combines four passes and a touchdown score two touchdowns early in the final session and cinch the game at 15 to 1.

After Theobald ran the O.S.D. kick-off back 40 yards and Gaetano punted to the O.S.D. seven, Kinkaid fumbled a snapback and was roughed for a single point as practically the whole B.C.I. team was through to smother the fleet-footed Kinkaid and give the "collegians" an early lead. Unmolested on point, their lone scoring effort. Theobald's single was the only one B.C.I. Early in the second quarter Gratiano tore a B.C.I. kick back 40 yards and on the next play tossed a 25-yard forward into the hands of Ken Bowman, who safely cracked the centre of the Collegians' line for a touchdown. Gaetano converted and the halftime whistle saw the score 7 to 1 for O.S.D. There were only two first downs in the first half, Theobald making part of the B.C.I. and the O.S.D. forward pass.

No Scoring in Third

There was no resemblance of scoring in the third session, although both squads showed some powerful football as neither team could penetrate the others'defence to advantage. Two forwards tried and failed for the collegians and was early in the fourth period that Coach Cunningham's charges opened with their aerial attack, that finally netted results as they completed four long forwards in succession. Graziano tossed to Barrett, who was then brought down and rifled another to Kinkaid, who scampered over the goal line, carrying making the score 10 to 1. Kinkaid's forwards to Riley and later Graziano for a third touchdown and as the tries were both in the same quarter the score stood 15 to 1. Gannon brought hopes of the collegians to the fans reporters as he intercepted an O.S.D. pass, but in trying to run it into touch was thrown by Gaetano. O.S.D. were holding strongly at the finish, and the fact that the Oshawa school have not been beaten in 1939 football is now being a tie with B.C.I. however.

Both teams fielded strong sturdy blocking and tackling and while it was the surprise attacks of the O.S.D. that netted the win in the last period, that proved the difference, the efficient backfield Tomaso and Aceera stood the brunt of the losers' work while the Cunningham, Gaetano and Graziano duo played senior "A" last winter and also had a good intermediate squad as well.

Local hockey fans should well recall the name of Harold "Bomber" Small, who played here with the Belleville juniors last winter. Small was a powerful player, a good puck carrier and he seemed to possess plenty of knowledge of the puck-chasing business and was the spearhead of the Quinteonian attack. However, it appears "Bomber" Small, is a bad man, a small time boy, but today he is a man, being 21 years of age his own boss. Over the week end we heard that Small was desirous of coming to Belleville to play with Eddie Thomas' Belleville Redmen, which we couldn't at all be a bad idea, if some person would step forward and assure the Quinteonian flash of employment. Although Small played defence for Gananoque it could easily be diverted into a forward, as he possesses strong legs and is a good skater.

The Peterborough scribe is beginning to develop a bad case of Happy Days Fever. Days we visualizes as O.H.A. grouping this winter that might include several Kingston teams, the Air Force and Belleville, leaving his native town out in the cold. The Lifflick City scribe suggests the Peterborough senior league get busy with some missionary work in nature as Belleville, Kingston, Air Force-Belleville grouping. We feel assured that Mr. Perlee's fears are not well grounded, but purely imaginary, as the Kingston puck heads are in the throes of including clubs into their group that would necessitate too much travelling. "We have four or five intermediate teams in Kingston and nearby points, as well as one or additional expenses by including Kingston clubs when we start off with a compact set-up!" Charlie Hicks, the one and only up to date, he ence told me. However, regarding the including of Oshawa, Whitby, The O.H.A. group is not exactly relished too much around here, especially after Oshawa played senior "A" last winter and also had a good intermediate squad as well.

Mickey Rooney, Leaving

The jumbo of all musical fun show, "Babes in Arms" featuring Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland and a cast of favorites is now being presented at the Belle. The Belle News of the Day and a funny comic color cartoon precede the feature.

"Fifth Avenue Girl."

Said to be even funnier than her recent "Bachelor Mother," Ginger Rogers' new RKO Radio starring vehicle, "Fifth Avenue Girl" comes next to the Belle screen with the family comedienne in the role of an unemployed girl who takes the job of bringing a rich and careless family to its collective senses.

The job is forced on her by the hard-boiled head of the family, a millionaire manufacturer who is getting fed up with the selfishness and indifference of his wife and children. He brings the sidewalk Cinderella to stay as a guest in his palatial but morgue-like Fifth Avenue mansion, letting his horrified relatives believe he intends to marry the girl as soon as his wife has secured the divorce she is secretly planning.

The mother does her best to drive the intruder away; the "deb" daughter is in love with the social-conscious family chauffeur, seeks the girl's aid and advice; the son carrying her to be an out-right gold-digger, endeavors to break up the fancied affair between her and his father, and the father, delighted with the outcome of his scheme, finds he is once more looked upon as a man instead of a bank account.

How the plan works out, with its expected and unexpected results makes for the gay ending to the picture. Miss Rogers, of course, plays the role of the first-nupper and Walter Connolly that of the harassed millionaire. Tim Holt and Kathryn Adams, a new candidate for screen honors, discovered in the "Gateway to Hollywood" talent contest, are seen as the son and daughter, respectively, of the family. James Ellison as the chauffeur and Verree Teasdale as the wife, while Franklin Pangborn, Berike Borse, Theodore Von Eltz and Louis Calhern have important supporting roles.

Gregory La Cava, who directed the star in "Stage Door," both produced and directed this offering.

Three excellent short treats have been assembled for exhibition on the same program including "Metropolis 1939," a thrilling and exciting story of New York City, as revealed in the all new edition of the "March of Time."

"Hello Mama," a smart musical comedy and news reel, a clever and original film, complete the program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Women in Prison" and "Trapped in the Sky."

"Women in Prison," starring Wyn Cahoon and Scott Colton, with a splendid supporting cast is one of two features now playing at the McCarthy Theatre. Topping "The Big House" for drama, it is an exciting story behind grey walls, holding one's attention throughout and at times is so gripping that it brings more than a drop of moisture to the eye. "Women in Prison" is not all filmed inside one of the largest penal institutes of the United States, but many action scenes present night club life in a big city lifting the picture entirely out of the dreary atmosphere of pounding of cement or the continual closing of iron doors, gruff wardens or guards who are only half human. "Women in Prison" is a picture you will enjoy, it's really something different along the beaten track of screen entertainment.

In addition Jack Hall in another of his famous action hits, entitled "Trapped in the Sky" is also now playing as a companion feature with "Women in Prison" and is a perfect contrast in entertainment. An excellent cartoon entitled "Golf Chumps" precedes the above at all performances.

"Five Little Peppers"

Margaret Sidney's famous novel, read by millions and now made by Columbia Studios into a great classic of the screen, "Five Little Peppers and How They Grew," starring Ivvah Edith Fellows, will be presented next at the McCarthy on a double feature program with Charles Starrett in "Outpost of the Mounties." Both these features are arranged to be played here during the time of the teachers convention to allow all the school children of Belleville and district to see a show that is real entertainment for them and one that has never been surpassed in any theatre.

PIMLICO SPECIAL A 'DREAM RACE'

Winner Will be Acclaimed Champion Three - Year - Old of the Year

By MASON BRUNSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore, Oct. 31—(AP)—Monday, as the old saying has it, makes the mare go, but dollars will play second fiddle to personal grudges, sectional feuds and breeding arguments tomorrow when three fine horses match speed and stamina in the Pimlico Special—a "dream race" that became a classic really.

There will be more at stake in this race than the $10,000 purse and the Maryland Jockey Club Gold Cup. Real glory and nation-wide acclaim await the thoroughbred that wins.

Here is the line up for the winner-take-all, weight-for-age event to be run over a mile and three-sixteenths:

Horse—Cravat; owner — T. B. Martin; trainer—Waller Burrows; weight—126; jockey—Basil James.

Horse—Kayak II; owner—C. S. Howard; trainer—Tom Smith; weight — 126; jockey — George Woolf.

In their on'y meeting to date, Challedon whipped Kayak II in the Narragansett Special. And, before that Kayak II beat Cravat in the Hollywood Gold Cup. Thus, when these three meet in the Special there's a triple grudge to be settled.

Hammerin' Henry Scores Knockout Over Bobby Pacho

Denver Oct., 31 (AP)—Maybe it was the Hallowe'en influence that caused hammering Henry Armstrong to observe today "fighting is just a frolic—when you're in shape." But he added he's a bit tired of it.

The 26-year-old welterweight champion hammered a technical knockout over Bobby Pacho of Los Angeles here last night in Colorado's first championship prize fight in 23 years. Referee Jack Bloom stopped it after a minute and a half of the fourth with Pacho heaving helplessly against the ropes.

The busy negro went to work from the start, crowding and jabbing. Twice in the third he trapped Pacho against the ropes and let fly with both pistons.

The fight was Armstrong's fifth in four weeks, backing up his opinion that "the best way to stay in shape to fight is by fighting every little while."

He heads eastward today to get ready for a battle Dec. 1 with Lou Ambers, who took the lightweight crown from Henry last summer.

75,000 WORKERS ADDED PAYROLLS

Steel Production in U. S. Increases Rapidly in Last Three Months

Pittsburgh, Oct. 31 (AP)—A spectacular increase in steel production has added approximately 75,000 workers and $12,000,000 or more monthly to the industry's payroll in the United States within the past three months, leading operators agreed today.

The pickup brought both output and employment near the decade's peak which was reached in 1937 and is stirring up heated debate over the effects of technological improvements.

The last "official" figures by the American Iron and Steel Institute showed ste lmills hired 64,000 workers during September, bringing the average employment for that month to 502,000 from 491,000 working in July. Payrolls were reported at $69,735,000, up $10,000,000 from the July figure.

Production increased during September almost 20 points to better than 80 per cent of capacity.

Later today industry officials said introduction of labor-saving machinery, including the experimental high speed sheet and strip mills, has prevented the employment of 75,000 to 100,000 men.

An official of the Congress of Industrial Organizations' Steel Workers Organizing Committee, which has contracts with more than 370 steel concerns, charged recently that the new $80,000,000 Irvin Works built by the United States Steel Corporation ultimately will displace 15,000 workers alone.

WARNED TOO LATE

Bendigo, Australia, Oct. 31 (CP)—Four weeks after a doctor had warned him he must give up training, Robert Cutlon, race horse trainer for twenty years since ending his career as a jockey, died here.

HAD TOUGH TRIALS

Mt. Buller, Australia, Oct. 31 (CP)—Six championships were won in a blizzard when the Victorian Ski Club held a tournament here. Two contestants broke skis in the gruelling tests.

LUCKY TRANSPORT

Werribee, Australia, Oct. 31 (CP)—Dame Swift, Kalpara and Reef came to the Werribee race track in the same horse transport one day, and they finished respectively first, second and third in a race that afternoon.

A REVOLUTIONARY PROCESS BRINGS YOU...

NU-BLUE SUNOCO

The new miracle of gasoline chemistry

Made possible by a remarkable new process that was

HAILED BY THE PRESS OF THE WORLD!

Hundreds of articles in magazines, newspapers and trade papers substantiate the fact that this process:

– is a great discovery.
– may antiquate present refining processes.
– will give motorists a new kind of gasoline, at no extra cost.

Made especially for high compression motors, this new gasoline gives EVERY car:—

1 A BONUS of high-test knockless power
2 A SURPLUS of sure-fire quick starting
3 A DIVIDEND of economical mileage

To make a fair test don't dilute Nu-Blue Sunoco with other gasoline. Let your tank run practically empty. Then put in Nu-Blue Sunoco. Compare it particularly with premium-priced gasolines. We'll rest our case on your findings.

All you've ever wanted in a gasoline and AT REGULAR GAS PRICE

Bobby Bauer, right wing on the great Boston Bruin "Kraut line" sends the puck whizzing by Will Cude, Canadien goalie, for the first goal in the Siebert memorial game in Montreal, to start the N.H.L. all-stars on the way to a 3-2 victory, swinging behind the Canadiens' goal is Toe Blake, leading scorer in the league last season, and all-star left wing, who played for his own team in this game, but was unable to beat Frank Brimsek in the opposition nets. Behind Bauer, and unable to do anything about his scoring effort are Red Goupille, fair-haired left, and Doug Young, recently secured by the Montrealers following his release by Detroit.

THE RUNAWAY

BY

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Gavin caught her to him savagely, and again she felt her very ribs crushed by his arms, and her lips stung with his kiss. Then they were parted, and she ran up the path and into the house. She did not turn to wave or to watch, for she was crying.

"That you, Becky?" her mother called from the kitchen.

"Yes ma'am." Her voice was thick; she made it steady.

"I phoned the Eldridges and she said you hadn't been over."

"No, I—I felt sort of tired. So I just walked around for a little — for fresh air."

"You feel all right?"

"Yes ma'am. But I'm going to bed."

"Well, I'll be up, and if you'd like a glass of hot milk . . . You didn't eat any dinner—"

"Oh no, thanks, Mother!"

"Girls do love never eat," her father's voice said good-naturedly. And there was silence and she was free to escape upstairs and bury her wet eyes in her pillow and sob herself to sleep.

INSTALMENT 4

In the days that followed, unreal days filled with dreams and fears, and wild unreasoning hopes, Rebecca tried to bring order out of the chaos of her spirit. But the thing was too strong. Memories of emotion, themselves arousing fresh emotion, swept over her in a brimming flood; languor possessed her, and she moved through the ordinary events and duties of the day abstractedly, hardly conscious of what she was doing or saying.

Joe, fortunately for her, was not an exacting lover. For one thing, he was absorbed and excited over participation in his first big case. For another, he had inherited something of his mother's Celtic reserve. He would be a possessive, a passionate husband. But when he came to see Rebecca in the evenings he did not embarrass her before her own people. He kissed her when he went away as a brother might.

She had known kisses other than those now. The memory of them never died.

As the hot summer went on its way she planned. She would tell her own family of her plan just before she went away, tell Joe at the very end. She would pack her trunk carefully on some Wednesday afternoon when her mother was away, and leave that very evening. There would be no long intervals for argument and reproach. She would see Joe for five hard minutes; her heart beat a little unsteadily, thinking of them.

And she felt a breathless relief at finding oneself in the train, alone at last, alone with dreams and joys and hopes and prayers and hopes and joys, going to Gavin!

Gavin wrote her immediately, a letter she kissed and wet with her happy tears. It was brief, but no longer letter could have said more to her happy heart. Rebecca read:

My Darling,

Here goes for the Big Adventure. The adventure that ends and begins with you. On the train from San Jose I met Lucy Merrymore, so pleased to see yours truly as I was to see him. She's trying to put something over in San Francisco, and here we are! No more now, I'm late, but this is just to let you know that

Inexpensively Warm

BY ALICE ALDEN

IT'S so inexpensive to keep warm, why shiver and shake? That wool robe you need for winter breakfasts when the radiators seem most stubborn, for slipping on after a steaming bath, and for travel and comfy week-ends, may be bought for the price of a decent hamburger. The two models shown are in a soft flannel as soothing to the skin as balmy summer and very becoming to the figure. The model, left, is in stripes and, like the other, comes in dusty pink, sky blue, magenta and turquoise. The shirt-waist-topped robe, right, slips from a sash to hem and has more of a flare to the skirt. You might have your monogram on either robe, and wear an ascot scarf with the collarless style.

"Beck dear, you'll not do anything suddenly? You'll not just run off?"

Becky was hard pressed. Her face grew red, and her mother divined instantly that she had planned something of the sort. There was a silence while the two looked at each other.

"Promise me, darling. You know we couldn't stop you. But after all these years—when you've been my only girl——"

"I'll just——" Becky altered the phrase: "To tell you would just make it harder to go," she offered.

"Truly it won't! Truly, dear. Promise me!"

So there was her deep-laid plan gone flat! With her unwilling nod Becky committed herself to an opener policy. She and her mother talked of other matters while they ate their luncheon, and at four o'clock, after a bath and a change, Becky went off under Joe's escort, looking her prettiest in picnic gear and laughing as she warned Joe to carry the cake and the eggs carefully.

"She's all right!" Sarah told herself over and over again. "But I'll have to tell her now, just the same!"

Snoods Still Top Fashion

By ALICE ALDEN

THE opposition against snoods is getting practically nowhere, with Paris and America co-operating on new and better versions each season. On the other hand, or shall we say, other head, an honest-to-goodness hat may be the only solution to dinner and cocktail chic. The clever French send us both, along with suggestions on how to wear them. Left, a sophisticate's black velvet turban, a perfect accompaniment for an American-designed dinner gown of velvet, outlined at the heart-shaped neckline and wrists with starched black lace. Right, the Paris halo snood of black chenille with black velvet bow, recently modified with a black wool afternoon frock trimmed in gold, and gold ear bangles. Just a hint—if you're not an expert on snoods, get your hairdresser's tips on how the hair under the mesh should be arranged.

Toronto Stocks

Toronto, Oct. 31.—(CP)—Selling dominated the price tone in the early hours of the Toronto Exchange today and prices worked lower, especially in the industrial section. Losses by a point or more were recorded by some of the steels, foods and miscellaneous issues. Mining stocks showed index losses of .20 to .30 soon and the Western Oils were off narrowly.

Canadian Car Comm. and Pfd. weakened a point more and Dominion Foundries and National Steel Car were off similarly. All the golds pulled moderately lower. Changes were narrow in the golds and nickel and Falconbridge led the base metal shares downward with a retreat of about a point.

In the Western Oil group recessions of 3 to 5 cents appeared for Home Oil, Anglo-Canadian and Okalta and Royalite weakened a fraction.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—A wide selling wave hit the market today, after an early upswing in shrinks, and industrials, rails and other leaders were knocked down fractions to two points.

Top gains in the aviations ran to three points, but these were subsequently pared to substantial early reduced. Volume picked up for a while but near the fourth hour the slow jog was resumed and some recoveries were in evidence.

Brokers attributed the slip-up mainly to the speculative conclusion that, if the war would not respond to the heavy assortment of recent measures for business news, it might be in a position to react without much pressure.

In a mixed Canadian group small gains were shown by Dome, McIntyre Porcupine and Noranda, while Distillers and Stiram Walkers moved the other way. Dominion 4s retraced fractionally in the bond section.

Douglas Aircraft lost all of a three-point forenoon advance. Curtiss-Wright common was off a stock, liveliest on the upside at new years high, eventually back at parity.

Prominent losers were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, U. S. Rubber, Inter. Telephone, Westinghouse, Du Pont, U. S. Gypsum, Great Northern and Union Pacific.

NO BILL FOUND IN CANCER DEATH CASE AT PEMBROKE

Pembroke, Ont., Oct. 31 (CP)—The Grand Jury at the Renfrew County Autumn Assizes today threw out bill in the indictment against Richard Pennington, charging him with manslaughter in connection with the death, August, 1938, of Mrs. L. M. Lafferty, Pembroke, allegedly from poisoning.

Pennington had been out on bail since the charge was laid last Nov. 5 and an order was issued discharging him. Tennant was said to have treated Mrs. Lafferty for cancer of the breast, using a preparation alleged to have contained poison.

Egg Prices Improve

Toronto, Oct. 31.—Eggs opened this week at higher prices at Toronto today. Little change was noted in butter.

The light volume of fresh receipts moved readily under good demand on the egg market. Dealers reported shipments from the west are scarce. Prices increased as much as 3c per dozen on the three top grades.

Although trading remained slow in butter markets maintained steady. Deliveries of fresh Ontario supplies were limited. While buyers were not showing any desire to force prices.

Lady Luck

By VIC YARDMAN

In Lirio, N.M., the name of Rufe Drake is a by-word. Around there are numerous buildings named after him, a street, a park and a museum. Strangers are apt to get the idea that Rufe was once quite a figure in and about Lirio, and indeed he was.

His is rather a sad story, yet curious, too. I will repeat it exactly as it was told to me by Boris Avery, Lirio's oldest inhabitant and Rufe's one time closest friend.

Rufe Drake (Boris began) was a gold prospector. And his name in finding color was the most astounding thing this side of the Rio Grande. He was old when he first took to the desert, past sixty, and inexperienced, yet five days after he'd been out he struck it. He came plodding into town with his samples and had town amazed. Then he recorded his claim and went over to the Silver Dollar to spread the news.

Within a month a mushroom town had sprung up near Rufe's strike.

That was the beginning of Lirio.

At first, of course, the settlement was composed mostly of tents and a few hastily constructed board shacks. But presently a more substantial and permanent town began to be erected, and one of the first all-wooden buildings of any consequence was Nate Paxton's El Alhaja.

El Alhaja was a saloon and gambling den. The reason I mention it is because it was here that Rufe Drake spent most of his time.

There was a reckless streak in Rufe, a sort of weakness a quality of abandon that was in direct contrast to the rest of his character.

He loved gambling.

The element of chance fascinated and intrigued him. Perhaps you can't understand or appreciate what that means. Perhaps you've never had the feeling. Well, let me tell you it's a worse affliction than either the drug or liquor habit.

Anyway a syndicate bought out Rufe's claim.

They paid him $50,000 for it, and incredible as it might seem, the morning after the deal was consummated Rufe was broke. He'd lost every cent in the gambling rooms of the El Alhaja.

Every one felt sorry for the old boy, but Rufe would have none of their pity. He was old and didn't take life as seriously as some folks.

And so with a prehistoric pick given by Nate Paxton (Nate felt some than any one about Rufe's run of ill luck and would have returned some of the money, if Rufe would have let him) he set out for the hills once more. Three weeks later he was back.

He'd struck color again and this new strike was even richer than the first.

Well, another rush began, with Lirio as its base.

Nate's claim was appraised at $75,000 and the same syndicate offered him that amount of money.

He sold out and immediately headed for the El Alhaja.

There's no need to go into details of what happened. Rufe was as unlucky with the goddess of chance as he was lucky in finding color.

Two days later he was broke once more and Nate Paxton was $75,000 richer.

You'd think this would have cured him. But it didn't. It made him worse.

He swore up and down that there wasn't any reason why he couldn't beat the games. The thing became an obsession with him. But he was broke again and there was nothing left to do but hit for the hills once more. A month passed and then Rufe showed up in town one day with his pockets bulging with samples of the new strike.

Well, it was hard to believe, because hundreds of other prospectors had traveled over the same territory without finding a trace of color in the wealth that Rufe revealed.

It was about this time that Rufe and I became acquainted.

I was married at the time and my wife was ill. We had three kids and I'd had a tough break in investing in one of the mines, and was down and out. Rufe heard about it and came over to see me. He insisted that I take a couple of thousand dollars to tide me over. He'd received $60,000 for his new claim. We got pretty friendly after that and I urged him to give up the gambling habit. But he only grinned and a strange glint came into his eyes.

I saw that arguing wasn't any use, so I asked him why he didn't spend some of his wealth for a good purpose—such as donating it to public enterprises, before beginning his usual session at the El Alhaja.

He thought this over and decided it was a good idea.

Lirio had grown tremendously in size and had a public benefactor.

So Nate built a school and a church and gave them to the town. Paid for the whole works for cash, but before construction on either one was complete he was broke again.

Well, a lot of things happened in the next few years. Rufe made another strike and the result was the same as before.

The thing got to be something of a joke.

Folks might have been openly contemptuous of the old man's weakness if he didn't continue to spend a good portion of each of his fortunes for the good of the public. As it was I guess I was the only real friend he had, for the only one who tried to understand his character and help him fight it.

At any rate, five years later Rufe set out once more on a prospecting excursion and this time he took me along with him. He said the reason he hadn't before was because he feared that a second number of my children might ruin his luck. You see, he had become superstitious when it came to striking color and continuing to fall beating the games at the El Alhaja. And frankly I was a little afraid of the same thing myself.

But we decided to have been.

We struck color.

I'll never forget the feeling.

I wanted to cry and laugh and shout and weep all at the same time. For our strike was far bigger than any of Rufe's finds.

It took us three full days to trek back to Lirio with our news. And during those days I had time to think. The first excitement was over, my thoughts were rational once more and the thought came to me that my sudden wealth was due wholly to Rufe. And gradually a plan began to form in my mind. I decided to repay that old man for what he'd done for me if it was my last act on earth.

This time I didn't argue with the old boy. When he sneaked off a week later and headed for the El Alhaja I let him go. Later I strolled down to the saloon and as usual I found a crowd of curious there. Word had been spread around that Old Rufe was playing the games and they were there to see the show.

At four o'clock the next morning Rufe pushed his way out into the street. His face was white and there was a wild, fierce expression in his eyes.

In less than six hours he had gambled away nearly $10,000.

It was hard to believe.

The crowd gawked at him. They grinned and shook their heads.

If ever an old fool lived it was Rufe Drake.

I took him by the arm and we walked silently back to my cabin. Inside I lit a candle and brought out a jug of whisky. And then I sprung my surprise.

"Rufe," I said "for once your luck has held good with the games. You're richer right now than when you started six hours ago."

"Don't rub it in, Boris," he swore fiercely and poured himself a drink.

"I'm not rubbing it in," I told him. "I meant it. You're not broke. You didn't lose your money." I paused, savoring this moment. Bought it with my shares of the money this afternoon. It's deeded in your name. Nate has been leasing a poor run of claims lately, and he was only too glad to sell. Everything you lost, you won!"

Boris Avery paused in the telling of his tale and sighed. After a moment he went on.

"It's hard to believe," he finished, "but the moment Rufe realized he owned the El Alhaja and began to work as its proprietor, the place started losing money. Every sou-of-a-gun with 50 cents in his pocket who went in there to play, came out a winner, Rufe's luck with the game of chance never changed. Within a week he was cleaned out. And the day after he set out for the hills again—and never came back."

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma and pop were opening their mail at breakfast, ma saying, Now isn't this the cutest idea, and an original, I know. Sally Carter's daughter was expecting a baby.

It may be a cute idea, but I fail to see where the originality comes in, pop said, and ma said, I mean the way they announce it, listen to what it says on this adorable baby card, Baby Englelid Carter, 3:20 is pleased to inform you that he will be born on Sunday November the 5th and requests the pleasure of your company from 1 to 5 P.M. Now Willyum we simply must go, the Carters are such old friends ma said.

Don't you think we'd better wait 2 or 3 years till the baby starts to talk, that's the most intriging age, pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum he Carters would never forgive us, we must have to stay the whole 2 hours, you know.

Yes gods I should hope not, I was thinking of the whole 2 minutes, pop said, O well, I gurnelly manage to amuse myself on occasions of that kind. I remember when you dragged me to the Crockett baby's reception, or perhaps I should say deception, because it was a party looking for a baby. Anyway I remember I had a swell time talking baby talk to every woman you introduced me to, he said, and ma said, Please dont remind me of that, a joke if it hadn't been the only chance I ever had of introducing you to Mrs. Thurston Willows the cream de la cream of society, and you stood there looking like a perfect fool saying Kitchy kitchy. I hope nothing like that is going to happen again to me and sakes, she said.

Leave it to me, I never repeat myself, but I'll think of something pop said, and ma said. Then you'll think of it in your own secluded privacy because I'm going alone.

O brother nobody is always spoiling by fun, pop said.

And he winked me a private wink to prove he meant just the opposite

NAZI PLANE DRIVEN TO EARTH BY BRITISH IN FIGHT OVER SCOTLAND

Four British fighting planes shot down the German scouting plane shown in this radiophoto. In a thrilling fight over Dumble, near Edinburgh, Scotland, the Nazi plane dived and twisted, dodging a hail of machine-gun bullets, only to be forced down and wrecked in the heather that carpets the boulder-strewn Lammermuir hills south-east of the Firth of Forth. Other British airmen drove off a second invader, a lone reconnaissance plane in the Orkneys near Scapa Flow. Two members of the German crew of four, both gunners, in the plane pictured, were found dead in their seats when farmers reached the wrecked craft. A third man had suffered wounds in his body and only the pilot, who even after he had been forced down made one last desperate attempt to escape capture, was uninjured. Hardly had the wheels of the plane touched earth when the pilot taxied across the field and tried to take off again, only to crash into a stone wall, ending his last chance of escape. He was taken into custody as a prisoner of war. Note bullet holes in plane.

SET NEW ENDURANCE FLIGHT RECORD

An unusual picture, taken from the ground, as Wes Carroll, LEFT, and Clyde Schlieper equalled the world's endurance flight record of 653 hours and 33 minutes, made by the Key brothers. After this picture was taken Carroll and Schlieper continued to set a new record of 726 hours.

CAPTURED POLES WORKING FOR NAZIS

Polish soldiers, who became prisoners of war when the Nazi Blitzkrieg subdued their country, are shown at work in a prison camp "somewhere in Germany." These men appear to be at work constructing wooden buildings to house the prisoners, most of whom are presently housed under canvas. A few tents may be seen at right.
